EDITORIAL

THE PASSING OF THE SHAKERS.

Of a once flourishing community of Shakers in Warren County, Ohio, but sixteen are now left, half of whom are over eighty years of age. The community once numbered 700 persons and owned 4,000 acres of land, but they could not resist the encroachments of modern customs and their number declined. One of the peculiar tenets of these people forbade marriage, and their colony was perpetuated so long as it was by the adoption of children from outside. Conscious of the approaching end the remaining members have transferred their properties to the United Brethren.

Whether this was the particular community referred to in a revelation given in 1831, we do not know, but at that time the Lord directed three of the elders of the church, one of whom had been a convert from that people, to go to the Shaker community in Ohio, and preach the gospel to them. He said: "Wherefore I give unto you a commandment that ye go among this people, and say unto them, like unto mine apostle of old whose name was Peter: Believe on the name of the Lord Jesus, who was on the earth, and is to come, the beginning and the end; repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, according to the holy commandment, for the remission of sins; and whoso doeth this shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, by the laying on of the hands of the elders of the church."

Of this people the revelation said: "They desire to know the truth in parts but not all, for they are not right before me, and must needs repent." In regard to their teachings against marriage the Lord also said: "And again I say unto you, that whoso forbiddeth to marry is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation, and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made."—Doctrine and Covenants 49.

Time, as the arbiter of truth and error, though it has taken eighty-two years, has in this case proven the truthfulness of the statements quoted above purporting to be divine. In like manner time will prove the correctness or incorrectness of every doctrine, and the stability of every institution, and only that which is true and right will be able to endure the test. The quality of being ancient is no evidence of durability, but the quality of being right. The admonition of John the Baptist to the people of his day: "And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees; therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire;" is divinely applied to the people of modern times also. The signs of the times point to severer tests of all that is held by man than hitherto have been known, but truth will come through, purified from all error, so bright and clear that none may mistake its glory.

The Manhattan Beach News, (Cal.) of August 9th contains an excellent write-up of the saints' reunion held at that place, giving a description of the church including a clear statement of the difference between the Reorganized Church and the Utah Church. We judge the reunion to have highly successful.

Perhaps no man has worked harder for personal and national efficiency than Emperor William of Germany. Recognizing that the use of intoxicating liquors weakens efficiency he has become a total abstainer, thus falling in line with the heads of our own nation in his attitude toward drink. Of this the Kansas City Times says: "He has given up drinking because medical data and his own experience convinced him that even moderate drinking impaired efficiency. That is the modern trend. Athletes are not allowed to drink while they are in training. It puts them out of condition. Big corporations are beginning to insist that their employees leave liquor alone. Everywhere the weight of opinion is against drinking—moderate drinking—on the ground that it makes the drinker less efficient mentally and is apt to undermine his health. How strong this opinion is becoming is indicated by its latest distinguished convert in Germany, the land of moderate drinking."

We are in receipt of a eight page pamphlet issued by Bishop C. J. Hunt of the Galland's Grove District in which is set forth in simple terms the principle of tithing. A number of illustrations make still plainer the principle of one-tenth, and an appeal is made for a full compliance with the law as given by the Lord. While the principle of tithing has been taught as a part of the doctrines of the church since its organization in 1830, not all of the membership have come to full obedience. The number is increasing however, and of late years people of other churches have taken up the plan and are now advocating different systems of tithing as being the Lord's plan of providing for the temporal necessities of his work. The saints should continue to take the lead in this matter.

During consideration of the payment of the general church debt at the Little Sioux District reunion at Magnolia, Iowa, Mr. S. M. Van Eaton of Pisgah, a non-member, offered to give $100 if nine other church members would give a like amount. The required number soon subscribed the amount, making $1000 in all which with lesser amounts subscribed by others brought the total up to $1,500. Others may do as well in proportion to the means with which God has blessed them.

The Fort Peck Indian Reservation in Montana, including 8,406 quarter sections of land is being opened for settlement under the homestead law. Citizens may register between September 1st and 20th at Glasgow, Harve, or Great Falls, Montana, and after the registrations close, drawings will be made, the numbers first drawn having first choice of the land. $2.50 to $7.50 per acre must be paid for the land, one-fifth down at the time of the entry and the rest in five annual payments, or by paying the amount in three years the payee may prove up on his land at that time.

The Harrison County News, (Iowa) contains a report of the Magnolia reunion, and a double column article from the pen of Bro. E. Rannie setting forth the faith of the church. The Missouri Valley Daily Times also reports the Missouri Valley reunion. Both are very favorable in their presentation of matters relative to the church, both being published where the saints are well known.

THE CHURCH TO HER OWN MISSION.

There has not been a period in the history of the Christian dispensation when there were so many efforts to induce the Church to enter into competition with other organizations as now. It is a moment of crisis. If the Church can be kept to its own mission, then her victory is assured. If she answers the many voice which are now calling to her, and goes out into the world to compete with all sorts of human organizations in all sorts of work, then her power is declining, and will decline until she be brought back to her Lord's own appointed way and work.—Methodist Recorder.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 10.

THE PRINCIPLE OF GATHERING.

A feature of the work of the restored gospel which to the world is peculiar is that of gathering. By the gathering is meant the assembling together of those who accept the gospel in "close proximity" where they will have opportunity of putting into operation the whole law of Christ as affecting society as a whole as well as the individual, applying the principles of love and equity in social and economic life, to an extent that could not be done while in a scattered condition; the people thus assembled growing in all the gospel virtues, thus becoming prepared for the ultimate coming of Christ when he shall again return to the earth.

The angel who first introduced the work referred among other Scripture to the eleventh chapter of Isaiah, and said that it was about to be fulfilled. That chapter contains the following relating to gathering:

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Sinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea. And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth.

The fiftieth Psalm speaking of the last days and the coming of the Lord, says:

Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice.

Jesus declared the gathering of his people a part of his policy when he said to the inhabitants of Jerusalem:

How often would I have gathered my children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!

And after telling them that their house would be left unto them desolate, their ultimate gathering is implied in the statement:

For I say unto you, ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

The early revelations to the church established the fact that the gathering together of God's people was to be part of the 'gospel' work in the last days, and ere the church was six months old the Lord said to the elders: "Ye are called to bring to pass the gathering of mine elect, learning elect hear my voice and harden not their hearts; wherefore the decree hath gone forth from the Father that they shall be gathered in unto one place, upon the face of this land, to prepare their hearts, and be prepared in all things, against the day when tribulation and desolation are sent forth upon the wicked."

In 1830 several of the elders of the church were sent on a mission from the East to the frontiers of the West by divine direction and established their headquarters at Independence, Mo., and a few months later that place was designated by revelation as the central place for the gathering together of the people of God, and the place for the ultimate building of the city of Zion. Land was purchased and many of the saints; who had accepted the gospel in the East moved westward and settled in that locality; stores were opened, a printing office set up, and industries started, many settling upon farms which they improved and commenced the raising of crops, and for a short time the actual work of gathering went on.

It is not necessary to consider closely the events which followed, but through errors and failures upon the part of the saints and misunderstandings and prejudice upon the part of the citizens already resident in the county, persecution arose, so severe in nature that it resulted in the expulsion of the saints from the country, and several years later from the state.

The failures of God's children, and the opposition of the world do not frustrate the purposes of God, and when the saints were scattered, one of the revelations then given, speaking in a broad sense yet covering the local conditions, stated that Mine indignation is soon to be poured out without measure upon all nations, and this will I do when the cup of their iniquity is full. And in that day, all who are found upon the watchtower, or in other words, all mine Israel shall be saved. And they that have been scattered shall be gathered; and all they who have mourned shall be comforted and all they who have given their lives for my name shall be crowned. Therefore let your hearts be comforted concerning Zion, for all flesh is in mine hands; be still, and know that I am God. Zion shall not be moved out of her place, notwithstanding her children are scattered, they that remain and are pure in heart shall return and come to their inheritances; they and their children, with songs of everlasting joy; to build up the waste places of Zion. And all these things that the prophets might be fulfilled.

Some years later the church through evils within and persecution from without became disrupted and presumptuous and ambitious leaders arose leading away factions, declaring other places to be the gathering places of the saints. Brigham Young as one, made the Salt Lake Valley the gathering place of those who followed him, while James J. Strang chose Beaver Island in Lake Michigan his central place. But in harmony with the preceding instruction the true Latter Day Saints have ever held that Independence, Mo., is, and must continue to be, the central point around which the saints are to gather and today the largest local congregation in the church is to be found at that place.

While Israel which comes into the gospel covenant are to be gathered to this land, many of which are already gathered, the Jews however will be gathered in their unbelief to Jerusalem, and be converted after their gathering. Jesus said of the Jews, and of their beloved city: "And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled," indicating that at a later time their city would be restored and the scattered children return.

It is not to be understood that all the church, or all of Israel are to be gathered at one place, but Independence is the central place, and the saints are to gather in communities in the regions adjoining, making as many communities and as far distant as conditions and numbers may necessitate. The essential purpose of being gathered thus in communities is that the people of God might be relieved of the social and economic conditions of inequity prevalent in the world, and of the immoral and infidel influences which destroy faith, and by co-operative effort learn the application of the principles of the gospel to all the affairs of life, and put them into operation in the individual life and in the life of the community.

Various efforts have been made by religious and other bodies to establish ideal communal societies in which the principle of brotherly love might be exemplified in the collective way, but many of these have failed and others are yet in the experimental stage. It is necessary that any effort which is to be permanently successful in establishing the correct social order shall be according to correct principles, and Latter Day Saints hold that these principles have been stated by revelation. But these principles are based upon individual righteousness, and until a body of individuals can be assembled whose righteousness is higher than "the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees," there can be no true gathering.

Ideal society cannot exist where selfishness and greed exist. Any form of sin is a bar to Zion conditions, and hence the first work of the church looking toward the gathering is the conversion of men—conversion to such a degree that sin will be eliminated from their natures, and their whole lives consecrated to the service of God. This is the present work of the church and as this work progresses, the gathering, with the establishment of the perfect social order will come as the natural result.

While a considerable portion of the United States has suffered from a drouth and severe heat during the summer, Palestine has experienced abnormally cold weather with clouds and threatening rain which do not belong to the summer season.

THANKFULNESS.
(LMD CONTINUED).

For tender mercies thro' the year,
For joys and blessings sent to cheer,
For health and strengthening anew,
Dear Lord, to thee are praises due—
For these we give Thee thanks.

For friends to cheer us on life's way,
When sorrows seem to cloud our day,
For enemies our faults to show,
Lest we forget we're weak and slow—
For these we give Thee thanks.

For trials, too, and grief and strife,
Else we forget the better life;
Yea, richer life and crowned with love
That we shall spend with Thee above—
For these we give Thee thanks.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Bishop E. L. Kelley returned Tuesday from a two weeks' trip, having visited the Montrose, Missouri Valley reunions and other points in the interests of the department of the bishopric and the general church work.

Bishop R. Bullard of the Independence State has visited Holden and Centerville recently and reports substantial collections for the liquidating of the general indebtedness, and for the sustaining of other funds.

The Sunday services at the stone church were lightly tended probably on account of the excessive heat which still continues over the central region of the country due to the prolonged drouth. Elder M. H. Siegfried was the morning speaker and discoursed on the "Value of having a purpose in life." Elder G. E. Harrington spoke in the evening on the subject of "Marriage." The afternoon prayer service in charge of Bro. Harrington, C. G. Gould and S. B. Robinson was said to have been good. The gift of prophecy was exercised by one.

In company with Elder Hubert Case who has been laboring among the Indians of Oklahoma, Eldr Reuben Taylor, a full-blood Cheyenne Indian, his wife, and Lulu Bearshield a relative, spent Tuesday in Independence, visiting the church offices, and officers. They have been in attendance at the Missouri Valley reunion in Iowa, and are returning to their homes in Oklahoma. Elder Taylor is a man of strong personality, showing depth of character, and is influential among his people. He wears citizens clothes in contrast with his wife who wears her Indian costume with highly colored shawl in the place of a blanket, and beaded moccasins. Lulu Bearshield is a bright young woman, being granddaughter of Chief Threefingers. She was here last spring to visit the sanitarium, and appreciates the kindness and help given to her there.

Allen C. Southern, son of Col. John N. Southern, has been appointed to the circuit court bench by Governor Major to succeed Judge James H. Slover, deceased. Judge Southern has been engaged in the practice of law at Independence, being associated with his father.

Word has been received of the death of Bro. Charles Hayer on Monday at Holden, Mo., at the age of 52 years. The remains were taken to Lamoni, Iowa.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Sunday, 31st, Sunday school 9:30 a. m. attendance, 244, collections, $5.50. Preaching at 11 a. m. by the writer hereof. After service baptism was administered to Elmer McIntosh by Bro. H. W. Good; he was confirmed at the prayer service. Prayermeeting at 2:30 p. m. reported a good time.

Preaching at 8 p. m. by Bro. M. H. Siegfried, of the stake bishopric on the subject: "The relation of church to the individual, and the individual to the church." He held that the individual could not save the church, but the church must save the individual, and the united effort of both will bring about the salvation of the body, or individual, and nothing short of that will have the desired result.

Monday evening, 1st inst, was the regular monthly business meeting of the branch. 55 delegates to the stake conference were chosen, with instructions; canvassing for the heating plant will be discontinued for the present, unless it is found the committee have nearly money enough to complete the same.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

The last months items which were so creditably reported were due to Sr. Florence Burgess' kindness in attending to the correspondence while the undersigned with her family—the De Jong's—were away enjoying a pleasant vacation and rest. Her efforts were very much appreciated.

The past two Sundays we were edified by the discourses as delivered by Bro. H. C. Burgess, and G. Reeves, T. J. Elliott and R. Archibald. The subjects being "Faith without works works is dead,"—"God's dealings with the Jewish people and prophecy regarding their salvation,"—"The lure of world," and "Seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

If we as saints would realize the necessity of heeding the counsel as delivered, and make every effort to come up higher, how pleasing we would be to our God.

A very pleasing feature of the Sunday school service August 24th was the graduation exercises of six of our young people in the normal work. Bro. Elliott delivered the Baccalaureate address. Bro. R. A. Lloyd rendered a very nice solo and the diplomas, some of which were for both Sunday school and Religio normal work, and also the international, were presented by our normal Supt. Bro. G. S. Trowbridge, who has recently been appointed state normal superintendent of Missouri and Arkansas. The fortunate recipients who with untiring efforts earned their reward, were Srs. Maude and Hazel Parrish, Bro. and Sr. Frank Mowry, Sr. Alice Bourgeret and Sr. Anna Mowry. Advanced work is to be taken up by these and probably others, and a Book of Mormon normal class is soon to be organized in the Religio.

The morning of August 24th the babe of Bro. and Sr. Ivor Cooke was blessed under the hands of Bro. Noah Cooke and T. J. Elliott, and given the name of Naomi.

A very pretty solo was well rendered previous to the morning service Aug. 31st, by Bro. Arthur Burgess entitled, "Just for to-day."

Our pastor Bro. Elliott visiting St. Charles Mo., in the interest of the normal work assisted and preached to the saints at that place returning in the evening to preach to the Cheltenham saints.

A special work worthy of mention is being undertaken at Cheltenham in the way of a neighborhood canvass in behalf of the Sunday school work. Special pamphlets being printed at the Herald office to be left at the houses visited by way of invitation. This is under the leadership of Sup. Clyde Baker.

Appointments filled by Bro. were as follows: Preaching at Cheltenham, Geo. Reeves, C. W. Baker, G. S. Trowbridge and J. E. Davis. Presiding at prayer meetings, J. F. Gall, W. H. Rhodes, T. McKeivitt, C. W. Baker and R. A. Lloyd.

Our Bro. were invited by the Lansdowne saints to preach at their branch recently, Bro. G. S. Trowbridge and Geo. Reeves having occupied.

Sunday Aug. 24th we were greeted by a number of visitors from the Congregational Church in the neighborhood. Bro. T. J. Elliott's discoursing on God's operations among men by the Holy Ghost.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Our reunion leaves a record unprecedented for good, as a whole. Evidences of a higher degree of spirituality, of the real Christ Spirit, were manifest throughout. The spiritual man was wisely nourished by the corps of "good elders" present while the physical man was amply and wisely cared for by Bro. Chester Young who so ably and patiently managed the culinary department. He labored hard and long, spurning any earthly remuneration. In behalf of the many beneficiaries we venture to express to him appreciation and thanks. We feel highly satisfied with the success. A complete account will appear by thy press committee.

A gloom was cast over the camp by the news of the accidental death of Bro. Chas. W. Chalmers on the 23rd, who fell from a scaffold in the city to his death. The funeral occurred on Tuesday. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn a loving father and husband.

Bro. J. D. Stead and S. M. Reiste will locate their tent at Gridley, 69 miles north of Sacramento, where live Bro. Albertson and family, where also is a colony of the Utah Church. May success attend them in their efforts.

Funds were raised at the reunion for another tent for missionary work which will be operated in the southern part of the district by Bro. C. W. Deuel and Chas. J. Cady. This gratifies the long felt wish of Bro. Deuel and we hope his highest ambitions may be realized.

Bro. P. M. Sheehy started last evening for Myrtle Point to attend the reunion there which begins today. We shall miss his genial countenance and good counsel.

Our young people held three very spiritual six o'clock prayermeetings during the reunion—well attended and well occupied.

Bro. Jas. E. Kelley is in the city and will remain a time with us. Bro. H. J. Davison returned to his work in Stockton, looking after the cause there.

J. M. Terry.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., FIRST BRANCH.

"Ye correspondent" having been in attendance at the Northwest Missouri reunion, we are one week late with our bulletin of news. We of the first branch are in the main rejoicing in good health, good spirits and excellent surroundings. Our church edifice looks "spic" and "span" after its thorough cleaning and refinishing. Our new floor is beautiful. The new arrangement of choir seating very satisfactory, and altogether we are comfortable and contented.

The Ladies Aid Society has furnished the money for the improvements and the willing hands of both brethren and sisters have performed the labor, the brothers especially rendering valuable service.

Bro. John W. Rushton had the honor of occupying the pulpit in the rejuvenated auditorium on the 31st, both morning and evening, and of course he honored the occasion in his usual masterly manner. His morning theme was "The sin against the Holy Ghost," which he denominated as "irreverence." His line of thought was intensely interesting. His subject for the evening hour was "Conscience, love and fidelity." We were pleased to hear that Bro. Rushton intends visiting us again in the early winter.

Bro. B. J. Scott occupied the pulpit at Wyatt Park Mission on the 31st.

Since our last writing two more have been added to our number by baptism. M. S. Ross was baptized by Bro. B. J. Scott and confirnd by Bro. Fifer and Scott. Claude Beale was baptized by Bro. Coventry Archibald and confirnd by Bro. Rushton and Archibald. These are both young men heads of families, and we look forward to lives of active service from both, for which their youth and ability well qualify them. Bro. Goodrich will be glad to know that the work he began with these young men has reached a satisfactory condition. They both have a very warm feeling for Bro. Goodrich.

Our Sunday school resumed its usual class arrangement last Sunday after a number of crowded sessions in the basement, and its work went on busily and interestingly. Reunion time and vacation time are about over and our forces are rallying for a long season of, we trust, successful and profitable work.

The Religio moves steadily on in a solid and substantial way. On last Friday evening Bro. Rushton addressed the society on topics peculiarly suited to the young, and oh, how we wished that a multitude could have been there to hear and heed.

Our dear Bro. Ennis so long the superintendent of our school, was remembered by a post card shower recently. Also Sr. J. P. Tilden, so long a teacher and superintendent of the Cradle Roll Department, who has been so long a sufferer and unable to be with us.

Sr. Mary Kinnaman was able to attend service last Sunday after an absence of many weeks.

Bro. John A. Gardner of Independence was greeted with gladness last Sunday when he made his appearance among us. "Johnnie" always seems to belong to us, though he has been so many years away from us.

Attendance at services is good and the work is moving on.

Reporter.

CHICAGO, CENTRAL BRANCH.

Our Wednesday evening prayermeeting, conducted by Bro. D. E. Dowler and D. Macgregor, had an attendance of twenty-nine, which shows that the saints here are taking keener interest than they hitherto have taken in the prayer-meetings. The attendance has been on the increase for the past two months. Many of those who were lax in attendance in the past are putting forth greater efforts to serve their Master and are receiving many blessings in return.

The young people's prayer service on Sunday morning was well attended. Bro. D. Macgregor presided.

Bro. D. Macgregor and D. E. Dowker were the Sunday speakers.

WILMORE, KAN., AUG. 22.

Dear Ensign:—Just got through reading our silent preacher and saw the letters about paying off the church debt. And one lady asked who would be the next to respond to the one dollar per month. I may not be the next one to join the givers but I want to be one of them anyway. How I wish the members would all do as she says. We would soon have the debt all a thing of the past. What a blessing!

Though we have had a drought over this country, we are still patiently waiting for it to break. But the outcome is anything but encouraging. I am going to send in our little mite, and hope all will do all that lies in their power to help. May God help all to see the need of being out of debt, and put the means where they can help. I will send all of our six months now to save the trouble of sending it monthly, and it will benefit you that much more. So please find enclosed six dollars and may God bless it to its proper use.

I remain one of God's children, and your brother in the faith.

Earl N. Redfield.

RICHVILLE, MISS., AUG. 24.

Editor Ensign:—Would you please send me Bishop E. L. Kelley's address as next Monday morning, September 1st, I am going to send him one dollar to help pay the church debt; and will send one dollar the first of every month for the next five months if I can do so, which I hope I can. I am a poor man myself and am in debt, but I know if I do what is right that the dear Father will bless me and that I will be able to meet all my debts.

The dear heavenly Father has indeed always been good to me as I am past thirty years old and have never been seriously sick, and I have always had enough of the necessities of life, and I know that all that I have is his and that I am but a steward.

I hope that all the saints who can will respond so we can pay the debt and send more men into the field as we need all whom God has called.

When I see all the wickedness there is in the world, the sickness and suffering, poverty and want, and how many there are walking in spiritual darkness it makes me feel sad, and wish I had the right to get out into the field and labor for the Master too.

Elder J. L. Mortimer was with us about three weeks ago and held some meetings, and was baptized my wife and brother while here. We were all sorry when he went away. He said he would try and get back here again this fall.

I will close now asking the saints to pray for us that we may be faithful, also for my wife whom we think has a cancer of the breast and has not as yet sufficient faith to be healed.

Your brother in the faith,
H. M. Aeble.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., AUG. 25.

Editor Ensign:—In reading Bro. Wesley Gibbs' letter in the ENSIGN in regard to paying off the church debt. I think his suggestion is a very good one, and I for one will send $1 a month for six months and my son while not a member has promised to send one dollar a month for six months. Now, brothers and sisters let us show the Bishop what we can do and make him smile.

Your sister in gospel bonds,
Mrs. J. C. Frederick.

PRESCOTT, IOWA, AUG. 20.

Editor Ensign:—Enclosed please find one dollar for renewal of the ENSIGN. I cannot get along without it. It is the only preaching I can have being all alone, no other saints here, but thank God he will not leave me when I put my trust in him and I surely pray daily to him to take care of me and guide me in the right way. My faith grows stronger in him. Please pray for me as my health is not very good, and that I may not falter by the way. I never have written to the paper. May God bless you one and all is the prayer of an isolated saint. I wish you success and God speed the right.

Mrs. Emma Miner.

PERYEAH, TENN., AUG. 22.

Dear Ensign:—One of the most successful reunions in the history of the Kentucky and Tennessee District was held with Foundry Hill Branch July 12th to 20th. From first to last much interest was manifested, peace and good will reigned supreme throughout. Had excellent preaching by Elders J. A. Roberts, S. E. Dickson, W. S. Shupe, H. E. Moler, W. L. McClain and J. R. McClain. The prayer and testimony meetings were very spiritual indeed and well attended by aged and youth. The Holy Spirit was present to bless and encourage the saints of God. The last prayer meeting of the reunion a number of earnest prayers and more than fifty testimonies were offered. An outsider, who is a member of the Missionary Baptist order, arose and bore his testimony, saying that it was not hard to tell where the Spirit of the Lord was, and that he had seen more of the Spirit manifested at that service than he had ever witnessed any other place in his life and he had attended many revivals and protracted meetings during his life.

Saints from every nook and corner of the district attended. They came early and stayed late, because they knew it was good to be there.

Children's Day was observed on Thursday of the reunion; the district tent was nicely decorated, the color scheme being green and white. At 11 a. m. Elder H. E. Moler addressed the children in his easy and pleasing manner; subject used, "Remember thy Creator," etc. The little folks creditably occupied the afternoon.

Thirteen were baptized and a number of children blessed during the reunion. Saints returned to their respective places built up in the faith and encouraged to press onward toward the mark of the high calling as it is in Christ Jesus.

During the unseen and untried realities of another year, we will remember the blessings enjoyed during this reunion. When trials and afflictions—in the hour of doubt and despair we will recall the foretaste of the goodness of our God which he has blessed us with in days that are past.

The saints had prepared themselves for a good reunion, they had worked and prayed for it and were in the right condition to receive it, that's why we had a good reunion—the redemption of Zion will come about in the same way,—so let us begin to get in condition to receive our portion and Zion will be established.

In the hope of eternal life,
Louise A. Wall.

SELIGMAN, MO., AUG. 3.

Dear Ensign:—I see by the ENSIGN of July 31st that Bro. J. H. Poe of this part of the state feels that he is rather cut off from the church and from church privileges and desires an elder to come and hold meetings that the people may hear the "Glad Tidings of Salvation." While the harvesters are few and the field great, yet I would say that we have here in this vicinity four members of the church and also Elder Joseph Emmett of Kansas City is with us now on business matters and hopes to be able to do some preaching before he returns home. Bro. Emmett was here some time ago and delivered four sermons to an interested people. We trust the Lord will bless the word spoken or to be spoken in this part of the field, and that it may bring forth fruit in the great final day of our Lord. May God's blessings rest with this people and may we all take courage and look forward to the day when the everlasting hills may resound with the good news.

Your brother,
S. Farrington.

ELDRIDGE, MO., AUG. 21.

Dear Ensign:—As I have never written any for your columns, and I very seldom see any letters from this part of the country, so I thought I would send a few lines to let our former friends and acquaintances know that we are still in the faith, though we have been silent so long.

We are always glad to get the church papers and to read the many good articles therein. I think the Woman's Auxiliary columns are good. One can get so much instruction and help from some of the articles, which are very helpful in our every day life.

There are ten members in this neighborhood—all are members of my family. We have had Bro. J. C. Christensen come here and hold meetings twice in the past two years. He was here last May and preached four nights at Eldridge, Mo., to very fair sized crowds. He talked two nights on the difference between the true Latter Day Saints and the Utah people. He sure made quite a distinction between them. So many of the people here said they were all the same, as there had been some of the Utah elders preaching through this community. But of course they didn't tell anything about how they do in Utah. I went to hear them preach one night and I could not tell any difference in their doctrine from the other L. D. S. preachers and I have heard several of them preach. The people liked to hear Bro. Christensen. Some of them complimented him quite highly, said he was the best preacher that had ever held meetings in that church.

He baptized three while here; my two nieces and myself and also organized a Sunday school with eighteen members, with your humble writer as superintendent and Sr. Pearl Hollandsworth as secretary. We meet at my father's house at 3 p. m. each Sunday. We are getting along very well but the attendance isn't as good as I would like for it to be. I think we all can learn so much by meeting together and studying the Scriptures, for we cannot advance too fast on the right way of life.

We were intending to have one of the elders come here this fall and hold a series of meetings but as this has been an exceptionally hot and dry summer and the crops such a failure, we will have to wait for a more favorable time.

I ask the prayers of your many readers that we may all lead good and noble lives.

Very respectfully,
Miss Anna Hollandsworth.

ROUTE 4, BRONSON, KAN., AUG. 24.

Dear Ensign:—I am lonely on account of being isolated; there are no saints nearer than Mapleton and that is ten miles away, so we do not get to meet with them very often, and I am sad to think that such trying times are upon us and yet so few seem to realize the cause or heed the warning. I feel sad to see so many of the young saints taking up with the ways of the world instead of walking in the footsteps of the dear Savior.

I continually hope and pray those of my children who have not accepted the gospel will come in and that they will all live worthy to be called saints.

This latter day work is very precious to me and I hope to hold out faithful to the end. We came out here last March from Vernon County, Mo., being ten miles west of Mapleton and eleven miles northeast of Bronson. If any of the elders could come and make us a visit they could preach in our house and I believe a good many of our neighbors would come out to hear them. We would meet them either at Mapleton or Bronson.

With love to all the saints, your sister in the gospel,
Mrs. Florence Masterson.

JAMESTOWN, IND., AUG. 26.

Dear Ensign:—The Southern Indiana and Louisville District annual reunion held with the Hope Branch near Derby, Indiana, was a decided success and we feel much good was accomplished. The prayermeetings were an important feature, the Spirit being felt to a marked degree by all present. Many who could not come sent in a petition for prayers, one dear brother who has since passed over on the other side.

Our missionary staff is unusually strong this year and one that we are proud of, we feel they are well qualified to defend the cause in a most acceptable manner. They gave us many fine sermons throughout the reunion, food for thought for many days to come. As a result of the reunion eleven noble souls were buried with Christ in baptism; seven children were blessed and three afflicted ones were administered to. One local Religio was organized with a charter membership of 33.

One of the prettiest incidents was the presentation of the Inspired Translation of the Holy Scriptures by Bro. H. E. Moler in behalf of the saints, to Elder J. R. McClain, who accepted it with appropriate words and deep feeling.

The saints of Hope Branch are saints at heart as well as in faith. Their hospitality will never be forgotten, and we visiting saints were loath to say goodbye. We did so with the hope of meeting again next year in the same capacity, with the same people, only new faces added, and as each year brings good results we are looking forward to even a better reunion next year.

Your sister,
Rose Davis, Sec.

INGRAHAM, ILLINOIS, AUG. 7.

Dear Ensign:—You are all the preacher we have as I am the only one who claims the name of Latter Day Saint in this little village. I want an elder to come here and preach on our streets, he can make his home with us free of cost. We live in town, just myself and husband—we all live at home. I do not know where to find any brother that is sent to this part of Illinois so take this plea to let him know we want him. I am strong in the faith of the saints and want the people here to hear our doctrine. So come to Noble, Richmond Co., and take the hack to Ingraham, Ill. Enquire for us, we will welcome a brother any time. So come and preach for us. We have a nice little village of good clever people who never heard our elders preach, so come. I am well known and I will make it as pleasant for a brother as I am able to do so.

Your sister in the one faith,
Mrs. Dora M. Foreman.

WAWAKA, TEXAS, AUG. 18.

Editor Ensign:—The long looked for debate at this place is a thing of the past. For four years the Non Progressive Campbellites have been trying to get up a debate but could not agree on propositions until June last they signed church propositions. Bro. Glauđ Kuykendall and I closed meetings here at that time, waited on them to get a man, they failed to get one so we went to our work in the field assigned us and they kept up the quarrel with Sr. Lizzie Simmons, her son Hayden and a young girl fourteen years of age, being all the members here.

The Campbellites had managed last summer with Joe Worlick of Dallas, Texas, to hold protracted meeting here in August, they agreeing to pay him three hundred dollars for the meeting, so I hear, also one hundred more for debate. They announced debate to begin August 10th, without any arrangements with us. Sr. Simmons became alarmed for the work's sake, got herself ready and to my surprise she drove up to my place in Oklahoma, fifteen miles east of Davidson, a trip for her of 250 miles. She had phoned and telegraphed to Bro. E. L. Kelley, Aylor, Case and myself. Such determination to have us meet us them I never saw I took the train at once to Kingfisher where I met Bro. Hubert Case. We made our way at once to Wawaka, met the champion, Mr. Worlick, and after considerable talk arrangements were made and debate began Sunday the 10th. Bro. Case in the lead affirming our church.

Well I need not say, or try to tell you how many hard, mean things Worlick did say about Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. He was so mean he lost out with everybody. Even some of his own members turned against him. One of his members who came from Oklahoma to attend the debate called on us at the close and asked for reading matter. Said he was much in favor of our claim and wanted to investigate. Bro. Case gave him tracts and directed him to Herald Office for books.

On Worlick's proposition he ran away from it. Everybody could see that he was afraid of it. Worlick has a big name, but that is all there is of him.

Bro. Case in his Christianlike way of meeting his abuse won the people and we were satisfied. Bro. Case is what I call a good debater, but he says he is tired of it. We have made many friends in this debate. We go from here today, Bro. Case to Iowa to attend reunion. I go home to Loveland, Oklahoma.

S. W. Simmons.

SPRINGFIELD, MO., AUG. 10.

Editor Ensign:—A few lines from this part of the vineyard for the encouragement of those who have worked in this field.

We live six miles from the Springfield Branch, so do not get to attend meetings as often as we would like. We were made to rejoice when Bro. Randall came and preached at our house and also the Plainview school house.

I had prayed for many years that my companion and children might get their eyes opened. I am so thankful that the Lord sent Bro. J. W. Dubose to preach a week for us and then lead my companion and two oldest daughters into the watery grave. Bro. Dubose is certainly doing a grand work for one just starting in this work. May the Lord bless those brothers that they may continue in this glorious work is my prayer.

A sister in gospel bonds,
Ida M. Cameron.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

IS HELL THE GRAVE?

EDGAR H. SMITH.

Some religious teachers contend that the grave is hell and that the punishment therein is oblivion. These teachers have sown broad cast this idea until it has grasped in its poisonous tendrils the minds of many thousands of people. Correlated with this error is another necessary to it, that physical death is the only death treated upon in the Scriptures.

Now if the grave is hell and there is no conscious existence beyond its gloomy portals for mankind until the resurrection, then we are compelled to reach one ultimate conclusion, to wit, that all, good or bad, are consigned to its punishment. This conclusion is not Scriptural, if the writer clearly understands the Bible. The Bible unmistakably teaches that hell with its punishment awaits the wicked and the wicked alone, while a way of escape has been afforded the righteous. "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God."—Psalms 9:17.

The wise King of Israel has said "The way of life is above to the wise; that he may depart from hell beneath." (Prov. 15:24). Evidently this thought is conveyed, that upon obedience to the way of life we may escape the punishment of the prison house; for we read further as recorded in Proverbs 23:13, 14, "Withhold not correction from the child: . . . thou shalt beat him with the rod and shall deliver his soul from hell." "Deliver" conveys the idea of preventing the soul from reaching punishment. If the oblivion or annihilation of the grave is punishment, then it would be far from the true sense of justice for the wise Creator to consign to that punishment those who grow up to live true and noble lives.

"Serpents," generation of vipers, "hypocrites" are the legitimate heirs of hell. "How can ye escape the damnation of hell."—Matt. 23:33.

Then there is an escape afforded from entering into hell if the language of Jesus means anything. But the grave is the final common resting place of the good and bad alike. But we hasten to prove our conclusion more forcibly.

Jesus said "And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." (Matt. 10:28). Those who contend that hell is the grave tell us that when a life is taken that the soul is not killed as it shall live again. Upon this same hypothesis neither is the body killed as it shall also live again; therefore it was not killed.

Greater explanatory light is reached upon this question by referring to Luke 12:4, 5. "Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do. But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell." This settles the question beyond the shadow of a doubt. The grave is only the covering out of sight of a result that man may accomplish. But man cannot put you into hell, God alone can do that. Therefore the grave cannot be hell.

Mortal soulists teach that there is but one life and one death, both physical. But hear ye what Jesus says, as recorded in John 5:24. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that heareth my word and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life." "If a man keep my sayings he shall never see death." (John 8:5). Here then is life and death independent of the physical state. Upon the authority of Jesus Christ himself, the man who obeys him shall never see death and has already passed from the state of death into the state of life, having passed from the state of death into the state of life he is free from the consequences of sin and death and therefore cannot be consigned to hell although he may be called upon to lay down his body in the grave.

In 1 John 3:14 we have this thought expressed again. "We know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death." We need not await the final hour of demise to abide in death. "And you hath he quickened [made alive] who were dead in trespasses and sins." (Eph. 2:1). "And you, being dead in your sins . . . hath he quickened [made alive] together with him having forgiven you all trespasses." (Col. 2:13). No hell for these forgiven ones. The grave may greet them but hell never.

Now most all soulists tell us that Gehenna is hell, or hell is Gehenna. We believe this but we part from them when they tell us that Gehenna is the grave. There is no escape from entering the grave: for it is "appointed unto man once to die." But our Savior intimates an escape from an entrance into Gehenna.

Turn with me to Matthew 5:29, "And if thy right eye offend thee pluck it out . . . for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell." Why pluck a member out? To save us from hell. The keeping of an unruly member might consign us there, but we may escape. The evident meaning of this passage of Scripture that we should cast out of our midst the unprofitable member that might soon bring decay to the whole church and thus save the body from being sent when only the individual goes. Christ said he who called his brother a fool is in danger of Gehenna. Could he escape? Not if Gehenna is the grave, none escape the grave whether they call their brother a fool or not.

Hell is a place of consciousness. "Hell from beneath is moved to meet thee as thy coming, it stirreth up the dead (rephim-shades of the dead) for thee." (Isaiah 14:9). Hell can be stirred. It can step forth to meet and greet. It can be moved. There is no power great enough to stir a graveyard or the corpse in the tomb to move until the trump of the resurrection morn shall blow, and then there shall be no reception, but a glad departure for those who have long since been bound by its icy fetters.

Now the Hebrew word for grave is "geber" All translations of "sheol" as grave are incorrect. For one illustration: In Ezekiel 32:1 we read: "The strong among the mighty shall speak to him out of the midst of hell." (Sheol). Peculiar place to speak in, down there in the grave. In Ezekiel 32:23 we read, "Whose graves (geber) are set in the sides of the pit, and her company is round about her grave (geber) all of them slain." Two Hebrew words "sheol" and "geber" used here a few verses apart and each representing a different idea. Don't you think? If the prophet had intended the grave in both the 21st and 23rd verses it is passing strange that he had not employed but one word to convey his thought.

In the 31st chapter he uses the word "sheol" quite a number of times. If he used it to mean the grave why then did he employ "geber" in the 37th chapter, 12th and 13th verses where grave is certainly intended? Answer me all ye mortal soulists.

Foolish Paul had a desire to depart and be with Christ (unconscious in the grave till the resurrection day), when he might have lived fifty years longer upon the earth and had the time subtracted from the period of his unconsciousness. Paul was more foolish than you or I, we would prefer to stay here till the resurrection and take our change in the air. Read Philippians 1:21-25. Oh! Paul, we cannot believe you to be foolish. We believe you meant what you said, that when you took your departure you would be immediately with Christ; with Moses and Elias who were upon the mount; with the martyr Stephen who cried out for the Lord Jesus to receive his spirit; with Peter who put off this earthly tabernacle even as Christ had shown him by actual example; and with all the worthy ones gone on before. We believe you flew away even as David says man does. "The days of our years are three score years and ten, and if by reason of strength they be four score years, yet is there strength labor and sorrow: for it is soon cut off [our demise] and we fly away."—Psalms 90:10.

We go back to the God who gave. We take a different course than the body takes. "Then shall the dust return unto the earth as it was and the spirit return unto God who gave it."—Ecl. 12:7.

We believe with John as recorded in Revelation 6:9-11, That those who have been slain for the word of God were conscious enough before the resurrection to wait anxiously, and utter their cry, to wear white robes till eternal justice had prevailed. Yea, we are more than the inanimate windmill which stops when the wind dies down. Conscious, intelligent, animate existence shall never cease worlds without end.

We can see no fires of correction in a cessation of being. "As in Adam all die even so in Christ shall all be made alive;" but mortal soulists would have the greater number sleep on in dreamless dust without an end.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

Dealing with human beings, and being able to reach the best in them, and draw it out so as to develop the faculties in the best possible way, requires patience, skill, tact, and a goodly degree of charity. Superstition, prejudice, and ignorance have in the past hedged up the way and clogged the wheels of progress, and it is for the removing of these things, and the creating of a system of ethics among us that will develop the better faculties of men, draw out their hidden virtues, and perfect the best within them, that we should fervently and ceaselessly labor. To become effectual in a movement of this kind it becomes necessary that we first acquaint ourselves with ourselves, and if possible ascertain possibilities and limitations, and becoming conversant or familiar with our own strength or weakness as the case may be, will be able to build our character, and build it wisely.

If we desire to assist in the uplift of others we must first develop ourselves, and that development becomes most effective when our desires are governed by righteousness, when our hearts are purified, and our thoughts are high and ennobling. It should ever be remembered that we cannot give that which we do not possess, therefore if we would assist others to the heights of virtue and wisdom, we ourselves must become conversant with the higher laws of life, we should learn at the beginning that patience should characterize our efforts along this line, knowing well that it requires time to develop anything that is of strength or durability, and that if our brother fail to reach at once the height of our aspirations we should not condemn him, if he fails to see our point of view we should not charge him with ignorance and dishonesty, but patiently await the time when the truth already grasped by him will so illuminate his mind that he will not only reach our ideal but far transcend it in wisdom and virtue.

We should not conclude that another is willfully mean because he cannot see as we see, and he should never be charged with insincerity because he fails to revere the idols we have set up in our own imaginations, but we should patiently bear with (what we call) his peculiarities, and in meekness and love seek to give him a better and more complete conception of life and liberty. We should remember always, that the "Golden Rule" holds good in all our dealings with humanity, and that we should never ask of another that which we should not be willing to grant under like conditions and circumstances; and before we pass judgment upon another we should first place ourselves, as nearly as possible in his position, and then place him in ours, then ask ourselves the question, if I were in his shoes and he in mine how would I desire him to act towards me? And determining that matter to our own satisfaction, do to, or act towards him as nearly as possible, as we would have him do unto us, this would be Christ-like, and anything short of this would neither be just nor right.

As workmen in the cause of truth, and professors of virtue and knowledge we should become skilled in our profession, become "doers of the word," not only proclaiming truth but living it, not merely advocating virtue but becoming virtuous, not only teaching in theory the beauties of knowledge but becoming a possessor thereof, governing our very being by its laws. To become skilled then in the laws of a higher life is to live a life that is superb in all its parts, to cease complaining about the failures of others and develop within our own hearts and lives that which is superlatively great and noble, exhibiting our skill in applying to our own lives the thing we hold paramount.

We should remember that it is quite impossible to make a blanket rule that will cover every case; realizing the great difference between men, their capabilities, their manner of life, their early training, their environment, hereditary influence, their intellectual development and moral powers, and the diversity of opinions held by them, we at once see the need of tact in dealing with mankind. That which becomes effectual for good in one case may become a hindrance in another, hence our need of being discreet, and employing only such means and methods as are fitting to the case in point, and will best conserve the interests of all, and enlighten, uplift, and develop the Godlike faculties within the individual. We should never unnecessarily antagonize anyone, but should be able to use means and methods that become effective as a moving cause and yet be inoffensive. If it becomes necessary for us to remind another of his faults we should seek to do in as gentle a manner as possible, and use only words of kindness and love in so doing.

remembering that harsh words stir up anger, but "a soft answer turneth away wrath."

We should never be so unwise and self-centered as to blame others for our own errors, for example the writer is acquainted with a certain person who is so self-centered that he is in continual fear of losing something he never possessed, he is so extremely apprehensive of what he calls his rights and prerogative, that he is in boiling water, so to speak, all the time fearing he will lose a part of his honor. He is continually complaining of being ignored by others, and at the same time he is ignoring every one. He has failed to find the proper poise in life and is laboring under a delusion of mind, condemning in others that which he justifies in himself, and actually believing that all others are in error and he alone is right wherein they differ from him, and if others do not see as he sees they are willingly ignorant or willfully mean. This of course is a condition and disposition to be avoided, and any one who is suffering with such a malady is to be pitied.

On the other hand the writer is acquainted with another individual whose entire aim in life is to bless others, whose love for humanity is so great that she sees nothing but good in them, and is always conscious of a possibility of becoming selfish, guarding herself continually lest she should think too much of self and too little of others, and while she is ready and willing to make any sacrifice for the comfort and blessing of others, thinks she is doing too little for their good, and feels that the only real blessing and joy she has in life is in making others happy. This life is to be admired, and this disposition should be encouraged since it is certainly very commendable.

The former character is too self-centered to enjoy life, he is continually seeking pleasure and comfort in life, yet finding none, simply because the things that go to make life joyous and pleasant are found wanting in his makeup, he thinks every one is his enemy when in reality he is his own worst enemy, he is constantly blaming external things for his unpleasant and unhappy condition in life, knowing not that the entire cause rests with him. If such an one would have joy in life he must crucify self and learn to give good and he will receive good in return. He must learn that while he is a slave to self and selfish passions, happiness will be far removed from him, but when he has subdued self and has taken hold of truth he shall be emancipated, becoming free and unfettered.

The latter character is always happy, because her aim in life is to make others happy, and that SAINT once said to the writer: "I am never so happy as when I am making others happy," she knows nothing but joy in life because her life is centered in good deeds, the only sorrow she seems to have is that she is unable to do more for the blessing of humanity. To her every one is good; because her heart is pure she is able to discern the good in all, and can appeal to that good by her kind and pleasant demeanor, and thus uplift and bless all with whom she comes in contact. In such an one the Christ life is very apparent. Such a noble character is admirable.

These characters represent the extremely selfish and the extremely altruistic, and between them we have many shades of character and temperament, and to be able to deal with them so as to, not only conserve, but develop the very best in them requires a goodly portion of the grace of charity. "Charity suffereth long and is kind." One must be very patient and considerate then in dealing with humanity. "Charity thinketh no evil." One must be freed from evil thoughts if he would bless others and uplift himself. "Charity doth not behave itself unseemly, is not puffed up." Love and humility then are necessary factors in preparing us for Christian service among our fellowmen. "Charity seeketh not her own." Here we have the test, it may be an easy matter for as to do the other things—but when it comes to our forsaking that which is our own, or being required to part company with our most cherished treasure, or to stand by truth to our own apparent detriment, that we are put to the test, but charity does not even claim its own, so if we are charitable we will deny ourselves all things if necessary that we might be able to serve, uplift, and bless our fellowmen, we will sacrifice our own pleasures, and comforts rather than offend or injure them, and with love that is impartial we will mete out every one the very best we have in store and thus develop the very best in life.

In a word a charitable person cannot be selfish, and a selfish person has but little or no charity, therefore if one is wise he will take up arms against self and conquer self for it is the foolish that take up arms against others and thus hope to produce peace. In the language of Paul: "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his." Therefore we are brought face to face with the simple yet extraordinary rule laid down by the great Teacher: "By their fruits ye shall know them." It is not what we claim to be that counts in the Christian life, but what we really are, it is he who lives the life of Christ that has Christ for his companion.

"Be not deceived God is not mocked, whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Therefore let us sow the best that at the reaping time the best may be returned to us with an increase.

One of the Disciples.

A REMARKABLE CONVERSION.

FROM THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER CHAS. DERRY.

A years back, Miss Nellie Newman, of the State of New York, visited her aunt and uncle, Brother and Sister Wicks of Mason's Grove, and being ambitious to earn her own livelihood, and being fairly well educated, obtained a position of school teacher in the neighborhood of Deloit [Iowa] where she was surrounded by Latter Day Saints and attended their meetings. Her aunt and uncle were members of the church. After due examination into the faith of the saints she united with the church, and as none who truly embrace this work can keep the "Good news and glad tidings" to themselves, so Nellie must inform her mother of the good she had received. Her mother being an earnest member and a prominent worker in the Methodist Church, and having heard only things derogatory of the Latter Day Saints, felt that her daughter had been deceived and she was greatly scandalized by her daughter's acceptance of such a "gross delusion."

She gave her husband no rest until he came west to snatch their daughter from such a gulf of corruption, as she supposed the saints to be. He came, made known his errand, visited with his relatives, and attended the saints' meetings, and being a sensible and liberal-minded man, after closely observing the lives and doctrines of the saints, he finally advised Nellie to cling to her religion, and when his visit was over he returned to his home, leaving his daughter in the enjoyment of her religion, much to the annoyance of his wife.

By and by another daughter, Minnie Newman, decided to try the west. She visited her sister, aunt and uncle, found occupation as a school teacher, and came in contact with our doctrines. Being convinced that they were in harmony with the divine word, she wrote her mother to that effect. The pious mother, now fearing that a second child was about to be drawn into the vortex of "The Latter Day delusion," decided to come herself and snatch her child as a "brand from the burning."

The mother came, inspired with sectarian prejudice, and determined to close her ears and heart to our teaching, believing it was all from beneath, the reasoning of her sister and daughter was blasphemy to her, although backed by the word of God. She tried to meet their spiritual arguments with the imaginations of men, and the silly stories she had heard against the saints, but error could not stand against plain, simple truth. Finally she was induced to attend meeting, but prejudice had so obscured her mind that she could not see the truth. She set the day for her and Minnie's return to New York, but she was too precious a jewel in the Lord's sight to lose, and so was her daughter. He took the case in hand, and "When he works, who can hinder?" He laid his hand upon her in love. She must "learn obedience through suffering," and in affliction he visited her and taught her the truth.

On the evening of the 21st of August, 1836, I was milking my cow. I heard footsteps coming up toward my home. Presently I heard a female voice; it was that of Miss Minnie Newman. She had ridden on horseback twenty-five miles to fetch me to preach the gospel to her mother. On the next day, being Saturday, I rode up with her and found her mother sick in bed, where she had been for several days. I was introduced to her. She seemed pleased to see me and was humble as a child. She then told me how the Lord had dealt with her, and had shown her the truth of the gospel as revealed in these last days. She was wrapped in a vision in which the Lord appeared unto her and reproved her for her hatred of his cause. He held the Book of Mormon in his hand, declaring it was divine. He also declared the principles of his doctrine, and commanded her to repent and be baptized. She parleyed with him urging the necessity of her returning home and being baptized there, but he commanded her to be baptized now. She was convinced of the truth and having heard of me, she desired that I should be sent for, and from her lips I received the above narration of her vision, and as she lay upon her bed, she related her vision, and bearing testimony in all the earnestness of her heart, and with the blessed assurance of one who knows of the truth and divinity of this work.

On Sunday August 23rd I preached. She was present and at the close demanded baptism. Bro. Eli Clothier led her into the waters of baptism, and buried her as Christ was buried by John. Her daughter Minnie followed and was immersed by the same hands. She was duly confirmed a member of Christ's church by the laying on of hands and prayer. She was now content to leave Minnie with the saints and she returned to her home. Being full of the holy fire she let in shine among her Methodist friends, and though she had stood high among them as a leader, they had no more room in their hearts for her testimony of God's truth, and turned their backs upon her. The minister expunged her name from their records, but it was recorded in the Lamb's Book of Life.—Journal of History, July 1913.

LAMENTATIONS.

Why doesn't God kill the devil?

It seems that Satan slipped into the Garden of Eden when the Lord was not noticing, and spoiled such a peaceful scene, destroyed God's finest calculations, and just muddled things awfully.

Just think of those innocents there in the garden having no knowledge of good or evil; not even knowing that they were naked. What a pity that Satan should blunder in and spoil such felicity.

And to think that God was so engrossed in the rush of other business that he didn't have time to look after Adam and Eve properly—and they—poor folks, not having a knowledge of the difference between good and evil, were not able to protect themselves against that wicked sneak who was prowling around in the celestial dominions; therefore the poor unfortunate victims had to be damned, and all on the account of business being so rushed at head-quarters that no guardian angel could be stationed there in Eden to keep those guileless children out of mischief.

Or, could it have been some enthusiastic convention of angels, off of duty at the time, which was accountable for Satan's not having been put in chains right in the first symptoms of his terrible mutiny?

So when we think of the awful negligence which was responsible for Adam and Eve's discovering that they were naked, and of the lamentable fact that they actually learned the difference between good and evil so that they might do good without it having been an accident, how our hearts are pained because of it all. And, "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the sadest are these: it might have been."

For if Adam and Eve could have continued in that happy know-nothing condition, and could have been blessed with children who were as much in need of perpetual guardians as they were, we, ourselves, might not need to be bothered with trying to do right—not knowing right from wrong—but we would no doubt, do a great many good things any way, just accidentally you see, and would not be subject to any censure whatever, if we should frequently do a few bad things.

Oh, it is lamentable to think of what splendors we have been deprived.

Then there is the item of clothing;—what infinite complications of woe have arisen in this world, because of our having to try to keep pace with the fashions, style and texture of our clothing.

So, but for that lapse in the management of Eden when Satan slipped past the Lord and all his guards, we might not now even be bothered with the question of fig leaf attire.

One point we will have to concede, however, in favor of the present condition, and that is, that if all the millions of humanity had continued in so artless a state as Adam and Eve were at the first it would have taken so many guardian angels to follow them around and keep them out of the forbidden fruit, that it would likely have taken the whole reserve militia of heaven to supply so many guards. So after all, perhaps it is better as it is, and it may be a good idea for "us folks" down here to "sori o' knock around," independent like, in the same country with the devil, in order to learn self-reliance.

What would Adam, or any body else, ever amount to, being dangled about in a hammock in Eden with an angel to fan him and another one or two furnish icewater, and manure his finger nails.

Nothing, that's what.

So far as I am concerned, the Lord doesn't have to kill the devil, unless he wants to, and I shall try to be willing to wait till the right time comes to have old Satan put in chains, and in the meantime, in common with others, I may be subject to spasms of unnecessary lamentations when everything doesn't go to please a fellow's notions, but taking it all in all, the Lord may yet make the "wrath of devils to praise him; and I feel sure that we can afford to rely upon the superior wisdom of the Lord, as General Overseer, while we labor, watch and wait.

MODERN CARNALITY.

The crass carnality which marks the social life of this day, is demanding attention and receiving widespread discussion.

The "Literary Digest," in a recent article gives, a summary of this discussion, and says: "Considering the trend of political morals toward betterment, many observers are either puzzled or critical about the backward tendency they note in social morals."

Appeals to the low and indecent have become commonplace. The low theater and vulgar song, dance and dress have reached a degradation which equals, if not surpasses, anything in previous history. The moving picture shows in some cases afford healthful recreation; but in other cases there exists an insidious and baneful influence. They are supplanting the ordinary theater. The theater created the appetite, and the moving pictures are gratifying it. They do this with less expense than the theater, and thus undermine it. The fall of the theater would be no loss, but the substitution of the "movies" is no improvement. There is a censorship which is not successful, and there are pictures whose suggestions are much worse than their actual representations. Vice is veiled and the veil is rosy-hued. This glowing insidiousness is more demoralizing than that which is open, and very offensive.

The objectionable "movies" are not only offensive to the taste and defiling to morals, but they are injuring to the mental powers. Everything is a flash. Speed is essential. Impression is violent and passing. Patience and the power for reflection are being constantly destroyed, and this impatience is even finding its way into the sanctuary. The demand for a short, shallow sermon is only one of the results of the effect of picture displays upon the mental powers of hearing and reflection. We want to see everything, and we want to see it quick and short. Because we have been crowded with many impressions and sensations, we think we have learned much, but really all we have gained is impatience and mental injury. So the charge against the low "movies" becomes serious. They violate the taste, they degrade morals, and they pervert the mental powers.

The modern carnal dances have gone to the limit of decency. No longer will it be possible to hide this corruption under the screen of "To the pure, all things are pure." It has gone far beyond this, and every limit has been reached. There is no attempt to cover up. Things proceed openly.

The old chaste songs of "Annie Laurie," "The Last Rose of summer," etc., are no more heard. They are counted ancient. The songs which now lie on the piano are "The Devil's Ball," "My Harem," "The Tango Twist," etc. There is nothing within the limits of decency which can justify their foul appeals to the imagination of the young. The immortality of much of the modern women's dress is beyond question, and too bad for discussion. It has thrust itself into the very face of purity and decency.

There has been an outcry against all these lines of carnality, in secular and religious journals, all over the country. Civil authorities have been obliged to deal severely, and all kinds of protests from Christian assemblies have been sounded forth, and yet they go on.

What is the relief? What is the most effective agency for the suppression and prevention of these evils? Where is the great responsibility? This is a social problem. The social power lies with woman. Consequently, there is a looking toward women for her responsibility in the case, and a strong desire that she will use her present social prestige and power for the overthrow of these evils. Legislation can do little in such a case. The cause is deeper, and the remedy is deeper. The moral power of womanhood exercised along social lines, if need be, in a moral boycott, is the most hopeful agency. If the women will oppose these things, fair and square, if they will condemn and resist them, they cannot continue; they will fade and pass away. But as long as women, especially good women, wink at these things and excuse them, they will remain, spread, and become vicious.

The time has come when, without exception, the women of America are called upon to deliver the nation from this tide of carnality. If they refuse to do their duty, none can measure the awful flood of sin and corruption that awaits us. Cora Harris, in an article in the "Saturday Evening Post," decries these evils, but speaks hopefully when she says:

"The reaction is evidently at hand. And the women will lead that also, because they are still barometers of public opinion, never the creators of it. They cannot hold out against the gathering volume of criticism which the dance is exciting."

Mrs. Marshal, wife of the Vice President, is reported in a newspaper interview as recognizing woman's responsibility in the case.—The Presbyterian.

SKILL OF THE ANCIENTS.

"We are losing all our secrets in this shabby age," an architect said. "If we keep on, the time will come when we will be able to do nothing well.

"Take for instance, steel. We claim to make good steel, yet the blades the Saracens turned out hundreds of years ago would cut one of our own blades in two like butter.

"Take ink. Our modern ink fades in five or ten years to rust color, yet the ink of mediæval manuscripts is as black and bright today as it was seven hundred years ago.

"Take dyes. The beautiful blues and reds and greens of antique, oriental rugs have all been lost, while in Egyptian tombs we find fabrics dyed thousands of years ago that remain brighter and purer in hue than any of our modern fabrics.

"Take my specialty, buildings. We cannot build as the ancients did. The secret of their mortar and cement is lost to us. Their mortar and cement were actually harder and more durable than the stone they bound together, whereas our—horrors!"—Sel.

MEDITATION.

BY IDA H. STEWART.

How great are thy mercies, oh our God!
Daily, they are renewed to us.
Each morning we awake refreshed
For sleep and the peace and quiet of the night
Renew our strength, and all our souls
Rejoice in thee. Thy peace and safety
In the slumbers of the night are ours,
The heritage of thy children who trust in thee:
For the angel of the Lord encampeth,
Yea, he encampeth round about
All those who fear the most high God.
For as the hills, yea, as all the hills
Which immovable and firm do sit,
Surround and guard through day and night
Thy holy city they were set to guard;
So the angels of our eternal Father
Hover near the dwelling places of his saints;
And they who keep thy law and do thy holy will,
Shall ever dwell in peace.
Yea, though dread destructions sweep the earth,
Thy people yet in safety dwell.
The quaking earth may swallow up thy foes,
Their halls of splendor shake and bring to naught,
And sweeping fires destroy that which the earthquake left,
Yet still thy children precious are to thee,
When they have given heed unto thy word
Spoken well by those, who called of thee,
Go forth in all the earth in humble faith
And call thy people from the darkness to thy light,
They then in peace and safety dwell,
And in their hearts they do rejoice
That deliverance and thy Son are nigh,
When peace shall be in all the earth,
And thy righteous ones shall with their Savior dwell;
When he shall dry all tears and banish pain,
And they with reverence deep and great
His presence shall adore. Thus all
Thine own in peace and safety dwell
Still going on in love and holy joy
And daily more the image of thy Savior bear,
Until he shall send deliver up his kingdom unto thee,
And thy children dwell forevermore
In thy celestial home, with thee,
And all thy holy hosts, fulfilling then
Thy holy laws, and giving glory unto thee.

"He that is faithful in tribulation, the reward of the same is greater in the kingdom of heaven."—Doctrine and Covenants 58:1.

HIDDEN EVIL.

Men are afraid of slight outward acts which will injure them in the eyes of others, while they are heedless of the damnation which throbs in their souls in hatreds and jealousies, and revenges.

They are more troubled by the outburst of a sinful disposition, than by the disposition itself. It is not the evil, but its reflex effect upon themselves that they dread. It is the love of approbation, and not the conscience that enacts the part of a moral sense, in this case. If a man covets, he steals. If a man has murderous hate, he murders. If a man harbors dishonest thoughts, he is a crook. If a man broods sharp and bitter jealousies, envies, hatreds, though he never express them by his tongue, or shape them by his hand, they are there. Society, to be sure, is less injured by latent existence than it would be by their overt acts. But the man himself is as much injured by the cherished thoughts of evil, in his own soul, as by commission of it, and sometimes even more. For evil brought out ceases to disgust itself, and seems as hideous as it is. But evil that lurks and glances through the soul avoids analysis, and evades detection. There are many good seeming men who, if all their day's thoughts and feelings were to be suddenly developed into acts, visible to the eye, would run from themselves, as men in earthquakes run from the fire gapings of the ground, and sulphurous cracks that opens the way to the uncooled center of perdition.—Sel.

THE ROUND TABLE.

Please explain Rom. 2:12: "For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law." I read a minister's explanation of this as meaning that those who never heard the gospel here must utterly perish and be forever lost.

The thought seems to be that while those who have heard the gospel will be judged by it, those who have not heard it will be judged without it. Jesus said that he that knew his Lord's will did not do it shall be beaten with many stripes: "but he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes." Luke 12:48. Of the people of the world he said: "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin." John 15:22, and Paul says: "For where no law is, there is no transgression." Rom. 4:15. These passages speak of mercy to those who did not learn of Christ in this life, and leave no room for the forced interpretation stated in the question that this class would suffer eternal death. The Scriptures teach that all men will come forth in the resurrection, 1 Cor. 15:22, and that all will be brought to acknowledge Christ, Philippians 2:10,11, and that every soul in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, will give praise to him. Rev. 5:13. This does not mean that all will dwell in his presence but each to receive a reward according to his works. The doctrine that the heathen will be forever lost is out of harmony with the Scriptures and inconsistent with the character of God.

Can a child whose parents belong to the church, who has not reached the years of accountability, pay tithing, when it has the means and also the desire to do so?

Yes, with the knowledge and consent of the parents. Frequently adult persons who are not members of the church pay tithing and make offerings to the church, and there is no reason why a child should not make a beginning in this way if it has been properly taught, having the consent of its parents.

Are minors who belong to the church and are wage earners, to pay tithing, or must they give all they earn to their parent or parents?

Minors are legally subject to their parents or guardians, and should the parents or guardians insist upon a rigid exercise their rights they may take charge of the wages of the minor. In most cases however minors have partial or entire use of their wages being free to make such expenditures as they think proper, and under such conditions they may pay tithing. The church does not require minors to pay tithing as a duty, but the privilege is extended to them to pay with the consent of the parents. Many children in the Sunday schools; being instructed by their teachers with the consent and advice of their parents, are following strictly the rule of paying one-tenth of their increase as tithing, receiving credit therefore upon the books of the church.

RELIGIOUS TRAINING IN THE HOME.

The elder daughter and her mother were sewing; the next was reading aloud from her last library book, which told in places, of the cruelties of the Huguenots during the time of Roman power in France, when church and state were one.

Suddenly Elizabeth threw herself on her knees, her head on her mother's lap, in a tempest of tears.

In reply to her mother's anxious questions (for she had thought her youngest were amusing themselves happily in another room), Elizabeth exclaimed, "I can't bear to hear that awful story!"

From a further corner came the faint voice of the seven year old, who with drawn countenance was seated on the couch, the Bible spread open on her lap,—"Well 'liz'beth, why didn't you do like I did? I got the Bible and read it, so I wouldn't hear that other!"

We could not help but sense the comical side of this situation, and yet it led to a serious train of thought. We very well knew that not many children would think of that way to keep from their ears what was so unpleasant. That mother should rejoice over the apparent trend of the child's nature, to lean upon the Lord and his word.

But what if the mother had never spent those hours with the baby Sunday school lessons and on up; the evenings closed with the little prayers; the meals begun with "the blessing;" special prayers for each other during sickness, day or night? And all done with clocklike regularity. And when the new baby came the other children were kept full of expectation and reverence for the time when it would be blessed; and then came the many talks about baptism. It was always kept in their minds and at the right time, all took the step with pleasure.

Their talks with their mother, who was never too tired to talk (and it is not easy for all us to be so,) led out as a rule on lines of knowledge for them, with the wonders of nature and the Creator as the basis and force back of all there is to learn.

During those first eight or ten impressionable years, when the world is so new to the child and the heart so young and tender, it is eager for each bit of information, and everything is so wonderful that parents have the training all their own way as far as starting a permanent religious strain in their lives. It is so easy to keep the thoughts of God in all and God with all, before their minds. They are too young to ridicule the idea, and it will stay with them, to be a strength and comfort in time to come.

Children are controlled and developed according to our own seriousness in the matter of their lives, according to the study we give to the kind of men and women we wish them to be. "A thing becomes what it becomes by intent on the part of the maker."

Besides the moral training in the home, the religious training is all important. Children must know God. They must know right from wrong; they must have strength within themselves to decide for themselves; they must learn that the agency given them is their greatest privilege as human beings, and that on a right use of it, depends their soul's salvation.

They must learn often from the Bible; thus by divine help will they be able to use their wills aright.

AUXILIARY WORK AT NORTHWEST MISSOURI REUNION.

By invitation of the St. Joseph local of the Woman's Auxiliary, Sr. D. J. Krahl and the writer spent a couple of days at the N. W. Missouri Reunion, near Stewartsville in the interests of the Woman's Auxiliary, in company with Sr. A. Brooks of the St. Joseph Branch.

A portion of two afternoons was kindly granted us in which to set forth our work. A goodly number attended these meetings, notwithstanding a drizzling shower came up the first afternoon just before our meeting making it necessary for many to flee to their tents for dry clothing, but I do not think there was a murmur in the whole camp by reason of any inconvenience from the rain, for all were so thankful for it. It cooled the air and laid the dust, and rendered camping more pleasant than before.

On the second afternoon a short time before our meeting was to convene, a fire broke out in camp, and much excitement prevailed for a few minutes but again we were thankful that it was so splendidly checked, with slight damage around and in one tent. A very kindly hearing was given to us at our meetings, and questions asked and answered. Much literature was distributed from the stand and from tent to tent. We had many pleasant little chats about the work, with the sisters, as we met them at their tents while distributing literature. We feel that the saints of the Stewartsville reunion have a better understanding of the Auxiliary work than they have had heretofore. We found many kind hearted and earnest saints there, and very pleasant memories of our visit will long remain with us.

Mrs. B. C. Smith.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

REUNION MINUTES.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA REUNION.—Convened Friday August 1st and closed Sunday August 10th, and in the words of one of the presidency "O. K." may be written at the close.

In point of attendance it was the best success ever had in this district being an increase of about 50 per cent over last year, the interest was excellent, preaching all characterized by a more than usual degree of inspiration, educational and dealing with the pertinent and vital issues of the day.

F. M. Sheehy, Jas. E. Kelley and Nathaniel Carmichael were elected to the presidency, there were present V. M. Goodrich recently from St. Joseph Mo, now president of the Los Angeles Branch, Roy F. Slye Bro. J. B. Carmichael from Fresno, Bro. W. A. Bruner from Arizona who dispensed of the lunch in connection with the local men among whom we recall G. H. Wixom of San Bernardino H. C. Powell of Garden Grove and Fred, K. Adam of Los Angeles.

One of the very interesting features of the sessions was a round-table conducted by Bishops Agent Fred K. Adam covering all questions on tithing, consecrations, offerings etc. This elicited a lively interest and wrought much towards a generally better understanding on the part of the membership.

A much larger attendance of non-members was noticed this year and the morning sermon by F. M. Sheehy, a very able discourse on "Covenants" as between God and man was especially applicable to saints, yet one aged lady said afterwards, she had never heard so much Bible in one sermon in her life and that she was glad to find out that we were not "Mormons" after all as she had been told.

The evening discourse by Jas. E. Kelley on "Sanctify them by thy Truth" also brought out a goodly number of favorable comments by those who were not members especially some "Christian Science" people who admitted the argument was unanswerable. Surely though slowly we are coming to be well known by the people of this community and the increasing attendance coming without special advertising or urging on our part is very gratifying to the committee.

Officers for the year were elected. President Nathaniel Carmichael, Associate Frank W. Burton, R. T. Cooper secretary on the auditing committee A. H. Knowlton. Business passed off so smoothly that the entire conference only consumed one morning session. Aside from general routine business the principal item of interest was the report of the reunion grounds committee showing a net asset of the reunion grounds project of $19,569.99 over and above liabilities which total only $2450, which is covered by contracts for lots sold, an effort is being made now to sell the remaining lots and realize the assets in order to erect the auditorium for next year if possible.

The annual banquet was held again and the new City of Manhattan Beach adjoining Hermosa Beach were the official guests this year, with the members of the city council, together with the usual representatives of the press to which was added Mr. F. H. Johnson and wife of the Hermosa Beach News, organized since last year, a very enjoyable time was had and the following program was carried out; Address of Welcome; Wm. Schade, "The Spirit of the Age" Bro. V. M. Goodrich, "Our Neighbors" Mr. C. A. Daugherty "Our Relation to other churches" James E. Kelley; in which he set forth the distinction between us and the Salt Lake Church. "Looking Wise" Mr. R. C. Hill, President of City Council of Manhattan Beach, "Church and Civil Government" by F. M. Sheehy. This speech set forth our position as to the establishment of the constitutional law of the land as set forth in Doctrine and Covenants. He that keepeth the law of God hath no need to break the laws of the land, "in contrast to the procedure of the Salt Lake church, and some Political movements, drawing the consciousness clearly that there is no need of importing anything from foreign governments or ex-governments, to bring a solution or betterment of conditions and that such efforts would be failures. "Canada and Manhattan Beach and Convention Park" by Mr. J. S. Sommerville. "Twelve manner of Fruits" Bro. J. B. Carmichael. "Illumination" by Miss Barrett of Redondo Gas Co. "News, what is it?" Miss Hamilton Representing Redondo Reflex and Los Angeles Times. Conservation, or The Monetary system, Mr. G. S. Thatcher, cashier First Bank of Hermosa Beach; "Our Church Finances and Benevolences" Bro. Fred K. Adam; "Mexico," by Mr. F. H. Johnson. Our Young People" by Bro. Geo. H. Wixom after which a program was given in the large tent by the young people of the Sunday School and religio and a reading by Dr. Sanderson was well received. R. T. Cooper, Toastmaster.

Wednesday was occupied by the Sunday School with institutes work and Friday by the Religio both were well done and will be noticed under their respective reports, except we think the work of Bro. Jas. E. Kelley for "Graecoland College" should receive notice here. Bro. Kelley's address was intensely interesting to the congregations both old and young, bringing out many reasons in favor of the small college as compared to the larger ones, the work done in Graecoland, etc. incidentally two endowments were found willing and waiting to be paid but looking for notices to be received, one or two new endowments were registered, a nice collection was taken up and the meeting was made pleasant by the presence of several of our young people who have already attended a term at Graecoland and several more are now making preparations for the next college year.

One disappointment was felt in the inability of Bro. Fred. M. Smith to be present, he being at La Mesa near San Diego.

The next Semiannual conference is to be held at Los Angeles in February and efforts will be made with the cooperation of the Missionaries in charge to arrange dates for next year so that all the dates on the Pacific Coast will be such as to allow their attendances at all of them and still conserve the interests of the various reunions. There were four baptisms during reunion.

R. T. Cooper, Sec.

UNITED ORDER OF ENOCH.

What is it doing? Is the question so often asked by many who seemingly are interested in its welfare.

Briefly stating some things it has done will suffice for the present. The land purchased south of the Court House and set out as Summit Addition to the City of Independence, there has been eighty lots 50x138 feet transferred to saints who desire to make homes in Independence. Also fourteen one acre lots, which makes a fair showing when we take under consideration the opposition that has been met, that we need not state further.

Besides this class of work they have assisted a number who were about to lose their investments in other property by stepping in and helping them to bridge over and get where they can take care of the selves. Is this not helpful and one of the duties of said order? Many worthy people some times get into deep water not intentionally but circumstances gather around and close in upon them and they are not able to extricate themselves.

Membership is gradually increasing this will be helpful in time though we may not have much to contribute into our influence for the betterment of our social and financial conditions only by assisting to create better opportunities for service by way of factories at home.

Confidence established before we can anticipate doing much in the Lord's way of co-operation. Men in the world and of the world have made a success in co-operation together in their way, why can't we in the Lord's way? Let us try it and see! We may anticipate failure as long as we go in our own way in trying to co-operate, let us quit it and try the Lord's method.

DIED.

COOPER.—Matilda J. Cooper was born March 25, 1841, in Georgia; baptized and confirmed a member of the church by Elder John Given in Baldwin County, Alabama, in 1876; married to W. A. Cooper November 24, 1877. Died August 25, 1913, at Century, Florida. Age 72 years and 5 months. Funeral preached at Century, Fla., by F. M. Stover assisted by W. J. Booker.

INSLEE.—Earl Wm. Inslee was born at South Boardman, Michigan, March 17, 1896, died August 11, 1913, at Seattle, Washington. Bro. Earl's death came as a great shock to his parents, brothers, sisters and friends. He died of acute Bright's disease after only one week's sickness. He was baptized at the age of 12 years. It is another one of the great mysteries of this life, that one coming into the period of promise to be cut off with so little warning. Sermon by Elder Wm. Johnson, from Matthew 24:44.

HOLMES.—Sr. Hattie E. Holmes, wife of Bro. Thomas Holmes of Koslyn, Washington, had been a sufferer for some time, but not so that it caused alarm until a short time before her death. 'Sr. Holmes was a woman of few words, but a saint indeed, bearing with wonderful fortitude her trials in life. She was born at Salem, Indiana. Married to Thomas S. Holmes Nov. 26, 1887; baptized June 2, 1895. She died July 19, 1913, leaving husband and five children. Sermon by Elder Wm. Johnson, Elder T. C. Kelley assisting.

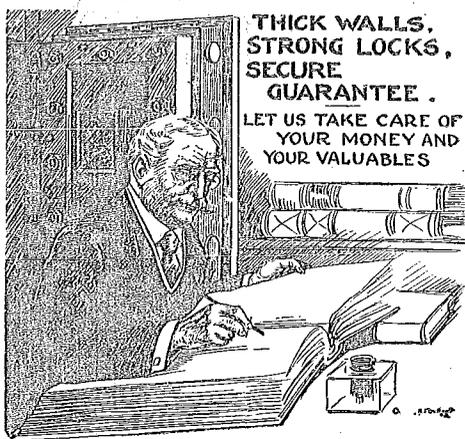

KNIGHT.—Geneva Alice, infant daughter of George and Veda Knight, was born March 20, 1913, at Flint, Michigan, and was blessed April 20th by Elders John R. Grice and Wm. H. Collins. She passed from this life Monday, August 18th. A youthful father, mother and baby boy of twenty months are left to mourn her absence. Bro. and Sr. Knight and the two children were just passing this way going to South Dakota when the baby took sick unto death. It became ill Friday or Saturday and died Monday. They, being strangers in a strange land increased their sorrow, but they soon found friends both in and out of the church who extended to them loving service. The sermon was delivered at Saints' Church, Burlington, Iowa, by O. R. Miller.

A DIVIDED CHRISTIANITY.

"One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God the Father of all," Ephesians 4:5,6.

The unity of the faith is one of the ideal characteristics of the people of God in all ages. A faithful observance of the laws of God has brought about and maintained unity at different times, but whenever the people have failed to observe the commandments of God division has come, usually followed by a general scattering of the individuals.

The division of ancient Israel and their ultimate scattering can be traced to transgression as the primary cause. Jesus gave as the cause of the scattering of the Jews by the Romans, their refusal to be governed by the principles which he came to teach them, and it would appear that he anticipated similar results in regard to his disciples, for in that fervent prayer to his Father as recorded in the seventeenth chapter of John he plead "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are." "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word, that they may be one; that as thou, Father, art in me; and I in thee, they also may be one in us: that the world may believe thou hast sent me."

In order that his followers might attain and keep this unity with each other and with God, the Holy Spirit was sent with the promise that he should "abide with you forever," on conditions that "ye love me and keep my commandments." The Spirit coming to the children of God was to "teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance," "guide you into all truth. . . and show you things to come." Under the influence of this Spirit there could be naught but unity, for he is the Spirit of truth, and would teach all alike.

The coming of division among those who have professed the name of Christ cannot be through the leadings of the one Spirit, for the Spirit of truth cannot teach one man one thing and another man the opposite, nor could he have been the author of the multiplicity of organizations purporting to be the church, or churches, of Christ. Many efforts have been made by leading ministers and others to reconcile the divided state of Christianity with the teachings of Christ, but the masses of the people are not satisfied with the explanations offered. The churches are sometimes figured as so many roads leading to heaven and it matters little which road one takes. But this illustration is defective in this, that since all are starting from the same point and desirous of reaching the same destination, all except the direct road must go out of the way necessitating the traveller making a longer journey than necessary. But the traveller who takes any road that leads in any other direction than directly to the destination, is uncertain of reaching it.

Another figure often used to represent the various churches is that of the spokes of a wheel all centering in the hub—Christ. But this representation is also defective for the spokes of a wheel are all alike, being made from the same material from the same pattern, and are parts of a complete whole, which the churches are not. It is their differences which give them existence. Were they all alike there would be but one, but they differ in organization, in doctrine, and in practice, so that there cannot be full co-operation of effort as with the spokes of the wheel.

In justification of the present divided state of Christianity, the Rev. David J. Burrell in a recent address before the Presbyterian Alliance at Aberdeen, Scotland, said:

I have heard much lamentation over the divisions of the Church. But why? Is not segregation the order of nature? "Birds of a feather flock together." Truth is like a valley among the hills. On various hilltops the denominations have set up their banners, but they look down on the same gospel, whose green pastures and still waters never change. It is only the non-essentials that divide us; and therein we can agree to differ. "Fences make good neighbors," though fences are hidden in the time of ripening grain. We felicitate our brethren on the fruit of their labors. There are diversities of gifts and administrations; but it is the same God who worketh in and through them all. The sound principle of division of labor, as outlined by Adam Smith, finds no better illustration than in the friendly competition and co-operation of the various divisions of the Lord's host in the advancement of his kingdom among the children of men.

Is "segregation" under the gospel found in the teachings of Christ? Is the gospel one thing to one man, and another thing to another? Are men justified in assuming different positions and then judging of the gospel only according to what they see from their different viewpoints? Is it true that only the non-essentials divide Christianity today? Are the diversities of gifts which the Spirit was to give, to bring about and justify a divided church?

The Apostle Paul in describing the work of the Spirit relative to these gifts, says: "But all these worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will. For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles." The figure used by the Apostle to represent the church is a correct one—correct for the one body or church of Christ, but not for Christianity as it is divided today. He represents it by the human body, having various parts, but all one; every part having absolute union with the whole, the same lifeblood flowing in every part, the same Spirit directing every part causing all to work harmoniously together.

But Christianity today is divided, each part being absolutely severed from the others, each having its own head or governing body, each having different characteristics. The real gifts and administrations of the Spirit are absent, and denied. The Spirit no longer operates as in the beginning in guiding into all truth, and showing things to come. Since the presence, work, and gifts of this Spirit were to be dependent upon men loving the Lord and keeping his commandments, their absence leaves but one conclusion, viz., that men have not kept the commandments.

Instead of men looking upon the gospel from their own individual standpoints and seeing it differently, the gospel requires such a change in men as will bring them all to see alike. One faith and one baptism are the teachings of God the Father: of all, and if unity is to be attained it can only be by men yielding cherished opinions based upon "accidents of history" and the precepts of men rather than the teachings of the Messiah. In the unity of the Spirit and of the one body of Christ will be found all the gifts and ministrations of the Spirit as received by the saints of God in the days of the New Testament.

Our esteemed contemporary, The Christian Herald in telling about Missouri's statewide effort for good roads recently, says that "two governors led 250,000 men in an attack on muddy roads a few days ago." Muddy roads! why bless you, we haven't seen any mud on Missouri's roads for several months. The news dispatch must have gotten mixed with some of ancient date, or did the operator mistake the word dust for mud?

Work is the very salt of life; not only preserving it from decay, but also giving it tone and flavor.—Hugh Black.

The faculties of man cannot reach up to God and eternity, but the eternal God has come down within the reach of man.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 11.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

Previous sketches have shown how that by revelation given within the first year of the church which was organized April 6, 1830, and by formal resolution of the body in 1835, the Bible was made the standard of faith and doctrine to the church. The statement of revelation is as follows:

Thou shalt take the things which thou hast received, which have been given unto thee in my Scriptures for a law, to be my law, to govern my church; and he that doeth according to these things shall be saved, and he that doeth them not shall be damned, if he continues.—Doctrine and Covenants 42:16.

This could have had reference to none other than the King James translation of the Bible which was in common use at that time. The adoption of this statement as embodied in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants by a general assembly of the church in 1835, made the Bible the standard book of the church.

That errors exist in the King James or Authorized Version, no Bible student will deny, for which reason came the general demand for a new translation which resulted in the Revised Version as published in 1881-1885. It matters little whether those errors came about through translation, or through copying in the days before printing was known, or in some other way, but since the errors existed there was need for correction. The inspiration or revelation under which the Scriptures were originally written would hardly result in so many mistakes as are apparent in the Bible, and it was undoubtedly through the work of copyists or translators who were either careless, or intentionally changed the reading, that errors have come to exist.

Since by revelation and inspiration the Scriptures were given in the ancient Hebrew language, (a portion of the New Testament in the Greek), it would seem necessary that in order to correctly represent God in every detail, that there should be an inspired correction of those Scriptures which have come down to us in our modern tongues and rendered imperfect by the mistakes of men during the intervening ages. This is just what God has done.

In June, 1830, Joseph Smith, then in his twenty-fifth year, and who had been instrumental in the hands of God in bringing forth the Book of Mormon, and establishing the church of Jesus Christ, was directed by inspiration to undertake a correction of the Bible. The work was started, and with the assistance of a scribe it was continued at intervals, the periods of labor upon it being as often and long as the press of other numerous duties, and the several journeys of several thousand miles overland would permit. It was finished July 2, 1833.

That it was the intention of the men of the church to publish this inspired correction in the near future is seen from what they wrote in a letter to Edward Partridge at Independence, Mo., June 25th—a few days prior to the completion of the manuscript. They said: "In regard to the printing of the new translation; it cannot be done until we can attend to it ourselves, and this we will do as soon as the Lord permits." (Church History Vol. 1, p. 301. As early as February, 1831, however, delay in the publication of the Scriptures was prophetically implied in the revelation which said:

Thou shalt ask, and my Scriptures shall be given as I have appointed, and they shall be preserved in safety.—Doctrine and Covenants 42:15.

Had they been published immediately there would have been little need for the promise—"They shall be preserved in safety," but the subsequent history showed the wisdom of the promise. The trying experiences through which the church and its leaders passed, prevented the publication of the book, and in the meantime Joseph Smith was murdered, the church largely broken up, and false leaders led away fashions after them. The manuscript was left in the hands of Mrs. Smith and during the years that followed various inducements were offered to get her to part with it. It is related that on one or more occasions she discovered that her house in which the manuscript was kept had been set on fire but that the fire had gone out without doing serious damage.

In 1866 a committee appointed by the true and legal church to obtain the manuscript for publication, called upon Mrs. Smith who delivered it into their hands. It was published the next year. The work had been preserved in safety through many dangers, and the custodian had likewise been kept in safety. Had she gone to Utah with others the work would undoubtedly have fallen into the hands of the church in Utah. When the saints were driven from Nauvoo and Illinois by raging mobs, Emma Smith and her children were permitted to remain where she stayed aloof from false leaders and corrupt factions, until the faithful few gathered together their remnants and reorganized the church.

The Revised Version required the work of eighty-two scholars for fourteen years, and the product of their labors has been little more satisfactory than the previous translation. Of their work they said: "We have felt more and more, as we went onward, that such a work can never be accomplished by organized efforts of scholarship and criticism, unless

ELDERS PLEASE NOTE.

The ENSIGN management requests that elders baptizing persons into the church who are in a position to use the help offered through the ENSIGN, especially heads of families, please send their names and addresses to this office so that sample copies may be sent them. The church papers are one of the best means of developing growth of new members in the gospel, and none should be without them.

Bro. Alex. Kippe writes to Bishop Kelley from Germany, that the number of saints had increased from 28 at the first of the year to 58 at the time of writing. There were prospects of an ingathering from members of the Utah Church.

WHERE TO SEND CHURCH FUNDS.

Inquiries have been made as to whom offerings intended to apply on the church debt should be paid. Some have sent to this office but it is better that money for the church should be paid directly to the church officers. The Presiding Bishop, E. L. Kelley, advises that whenever possible such offerings should be paid to the local bishops or agents. Parties who do not find it practicable or convenient to do this may send direct to Bishop E. L. Kelley, Box 125, Independence, Mo., from whom they will receive due credit. Bishop Kelley also informs us that any such amounts received from saints residing in districts will be added to the apportionments of such districts. A hearty response has come from many of the districts and scattered members in answer to the epistle of the bishopric sent out some time ago, and if the good work is kept up it will be an easy matter to free the church altogether from debt. A united effort of the saints will accomplish the result.

CHARLES H. LAKE.

Far out upon the Island of Aiana, one of the low islands of the South Pacific Ocean, five hundred miles from Tahiti, occurred on June 15th the death of Bro. Charles H. Lake, minister in charge of the South Sea Island Mission. News of the sad loss has but just reached Independence, coming from Sr. Lake to her sister Mrs. Alexander Kenty, the delay being due to the time required to reach Tahiti from the outlying islands.

Bro. and Sr. Lake were appointed to the island mission by the conference of 1912 and went to their field during that summer. They had previously spent about five years in that mission having been appointed in 1906, and their return home was due to Bro. Lake's failing health, but finding that the climate here was less congenial than in the islands, he resolved to return and spend the remainder of his days there in the service of his Master.

He had been afflicted with paralysis which grew somewhat worse and two weeks before his death he suffered from hemorrhage of the lungs which so weakened him that his work was suspended. He expressed full confidence in his Savior and was cheerfully willing to depart. His age was about forty-five. Sr. Lake expects to remain at Papeete keeping up her work of writing, etc., for some time, probably till early spring, when she will return to the states.

Bro. Lake has been faithful in his labor, having given himself unreservedly to the service of his fellow men. His reward is sure.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Bro. John Zahnd who has charge of the Englewood Mission has arranged for a series of meetings to be held at the mission beginning next Sunday. Bro. Ammon White will be the principal speaker and the effort that is being made with advertising ought to bring out a good attendance. Bro. Zahnd believes in advertising and if there is anyone in Englewood who will not be made acquainted with the services, it will not be Bro. Zahnd's fault. Bro. G. E. Harrington spoke at the mission on Sunday morning last, and Bro. Ammon White in the evening.

The Sunday services at the stone church were of excellent quality throughout. Bro. J. A. Gillen spoke in the morning giving increased faith and spirituality to the saints. An excellent missionary sermon on the subject of baptism from Bro. John Zahnd confirmed the members present and pointed out the way of life to the non-members. The saints usually enjoy a sermon on the first principles. Bro. W. N. Robinson, secretary of the general Sunday school Association, addressed the Sunday school.

Two sacrament meetings were held in the afternoon—the young people in the upper auditorium with Bro. D. J. Kral and W. N. Robinson in charge, and the adults in the lower auditorium in charge of Bro. G. E. Harrington, R. M. Elvin and others. One confirmation and several blessings were administered at this meeting, followed by the administration of the sacrament. Many good testimonies were given and in the latter part of the meeting the central theme was the providences of God in behalf of his people, with especial reference to the drouth. Several bare testimony that the Spirit indicated to them that more troublesome times would eventually come though not now, but that God would provide for the faithful among his people and that they need not fear, but that those who put their trust in riches would find their riches melt away. The saints were urged to faithfulness and diligence so that God could bless them, and so that they could hear his voice when he should call.

Our aged brother, S. F. Cushman, has returned from Maine where he has been laboring in gospel work along the rocky coast for the last seven years. He is seriously afflicted and sought the administration of the elders, with the prayers of the saints that should the Lord desire him to still labor he might be healed. He expressed abiding faith in the Lord with a willingness to depart whenever the Lord should call or to continue his labor here as may be best.

The Stake Sunday school convention will meet here on Friday next at the usual hour, at which a large delegation is expected.

The mission tent which has been in operation all summer in various parts of the city, has again been moved into the southeastern part of town near the Walnut Park Mission. The nightly meetings are bringing good crowds and there is considerable interest.

Many rural communities, villages and towns are becoming distressed for water, the usual sources of supply having failed. In some cases farmers have to haul water five miles for their stock, and threshing has been retarded. In consequence of unusual dryness, and shortage of water, the danger of fire is very much increased. Independence has a good supply of city water which is obtained from the Missouri River.

From Elder George P. Frisby, the present head of the Church of Christ, or Hedrickite, we learn that the total membership of that organization is 150, eighty-two of whom belong to the branch at Independence, the rest are scattered through Ohio, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri. There is one other branch besides the one here, which is in Illinois. There are five elders, there being no officers higher than elder in the church.

The Stake conference is to meet at this place next Saturday and Sunday, and we look for quite an ingathering of delegates from the different branches of the Stake.

Several good showers on Tuesday and Wednesday have brought relief from the long continued drouth. They are appreciated as showers of real blessing.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Sunday school, 9:30 a. m. attendance, 290, collection, $6.99. The last tribute of respect was paid at the 11 o'clock hour to Bro. Andrew Atwood, funeral conducted by Bro. Fields, the dark side of the picture of life was turned to the wall, and the beautiful bright side turned to full view.

The usual prayermeeting was held at 2:30 p. m. 8:30 p. m. preaching by Bro. E. L. Kelley, thoughts of what shall we do to be saved, as outlined in the Scriptures were clearly presented which if followed to the end will insure eternal life.

Monday evening was Priesthood meeting, and a goodly number were present, and a good time had, subjects of interest to all were discussed to the satisfaction of some at least.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

Our branch is in good condition and a lively interest is being taken in the work in general.

Bro. F. C. Keck was with us Sunday, August 31st, and preached to a full house both morning and evening and the following week occupied at the tent which is now situated at the corner of Valley and Sherman Sts. The tent is under the management of Bro. Pickering and Pierce. Bro. Keck is a speaker of great force, one who carries conviction with every word, who teaches as "one having authority," and his command of Scripture is marvelous; but above all he has that gift of earnestness so dear to the heart of the earnest seeker of the truth, which comes to his hearers the conviction that he really and truly, from the depths of his heart, believes what he teaches. There is a good prospect of his work bearing fruit in this branch of God's vineyard.

Bro. Keck preached his farewell sermon Sunday night, September 7th, and bid us good-by, enroute for Independence. May the Spirit of light and truth ever be his to enjoy in the prayer of his brethren.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Bro. J. D. Stand and S. M. Reints are now located with the gospel tent at Gridley and are opening up a new field for our work. We wish them abundant success. Bro. C. W. Duell and Chas. J. Cady will initiate the new district tent at Madera, 185 miles south of here, about the middle of the month. With two tents and four or five missionaries, with the local work in the branches there will surely be work accomplished.

The Sunday services in the city were all good. Bro. Jas. E. Kelley preached the morning sermon and Bro. C. A. Parkin spoke at night. The auxiliaries were both good.

We were pleased to meet Bro. and Sr. Chas. Clark and Bro. J. Turnour on the occasion of the visit of Ringing Bros. Circus here. We were pleased to find them so interested in the church. They spent Sunday in the city where they attended the morning service.

The Oakland Sunday school was larger than usual there being 69 present, and all seemed happy to get back to work after a vacation of two Sundays at reunion. The Religio was excellent. Sr. Fannie I. Morrison Mehan read the first issue of "The Oakland Religian" of which she is editor in chief which was amusing, entertaining and instructive. Another issue will be read September 28th.

Bro. Hiotaro from Honolulu, a young Japanese brother, landed here on Friday and spent Sunday in the church services in Oakland. He took part in the Religio by reading an article. He is on his way to Graeceland College. Bro. E. Ingham spoke in prayermeeting last night of confirming this brother when a boy and by impress of the Spirit made promises, which are now in process of fulfillment. Success to Hiotaro.

The Pacific Coast Quorum of Elders had a special tent at the reunion in which they held a number of interesting meetings. Bro. J. A. Saxe was ordained to the office of high priest by Bro. F. M. Sheehy and J. E. Kelley. Bro. J. A. Law was chosen to fill his place in the quorum presidency.

Bro. G. J. Waller was the morning speaker in Oakland Sunday to a well filled house. The evening attendance was also good when the pastor spoke.

THE ROUND TABLE.

In Section eighty-five of the Doctrine and Covenants provision is made for a "school of the prophets" to qualify the ministry for their work in the building up of Zion and for missionary work. Why is there not such a school now? Do we not need it as much as at any time in the past? How is such a school brought into existence? Is a revelation needed or can it be done by act of general conference?

The school of the Prophets had a beginning in the days of Joseph the Seer, but conditions were such that it could not be maintained and it lost its place in the church temporarily. As its original institution was by divided direction, we can afford to wait for divine direction in its re-institution. Of its need there can be little doubt, and that need has existed from the day the school was broken up at Kirtland, about 1836, but conditions have been such as to forbid the work being done, and may be so even now. The establishment of the School is dependent upon the ordinance of the washing of feet which is itself dependent upon certain conditions. When the opportune time comes for this school to be again started we doubt not but that the Lord will direct it.

If children who die before the age of accountability are saved in the kingdom of God, having never been tempted or tried, while others are subjected to temptation and trial and have to work out their salvation, is not God partial, and would it not be better to die in infancy if the reward is sure then?

Little children who die are saved through the redemption wrought out by Christ, because of their innocence, they being without sin. There is nothing in their lives for which they could be condemned and it would a partial God who would permit them to be lost with the wicked. There is a difference between salvation and reward, salvation being a gift of God through Christ to all who are worthy, while reward is given in return for service rendered, every man according to his works as the Scriptures declare. Paul speaks of some in 1 Cor 3:15 who may be saved though without any reward because their works are burned. For every struggle and victory man will receive a corresponding reward which may not be available to those who do not meet the temptations of this world. In D. C. 58:1 it is said "Blessed is he that keepeth my commandments, whether in life or in death; and he that is faithful in tribulation, the reward of the same is greater in the kingdom of heaven." While children who die are free from the danger of losing their salvation they seem to be denied some privileges which are afforded to those who live to maturity, but in all cases the justice of God is shown.

is it right to do business, such as selling goods, on Sunday?

The law of God requires that his people shall carefully observe the day as the Sabbath and avoid all unnecessary work. It says; "And that thou mayest more fully keep thyself unspotted from the world thou shalt go to the house of prayer and offer up thy sacraments upon my holy day; for verily this is a day appointed unto you to rest from your labors, and to pay thy devotions unto the Most High; nevertheless thy vows shall be offered up in righteousness on all days, and at all times; but remember that on this, the Lord's day, thou shalt offer thine obligations and thy sacraments, unto the Most High, confessing thy sins unto thy brethren, and before the Lord. And on this day thou shalt do none other thing, only let thy food be prepared with singleness of heart." D. C. 59:2. "On this day they should refrain from unnecessary work; nevertheless nothing should be permitted to go to waste on that day, nor should necessary work be neglected. Be not harsh in judgment, but merciful in this." D. C. 119:7 This sets forth the general rule as to the observance of the Sabbath showing that all work that can be avoided on that day should be avoided, but that necessary work should not be neglected. Circumstances frequently occur in the daily affairs which make it necessary to sell and buy upon the Sabbath in order for man and beast to be fed, or to save from decay or loss certain perishable things such as fruits, and emergencies may arise necessitating selling other things than food, but the practice of selling when the necessity does not really exist should be avoided.

When a priesthood bearing member falls into transgression, when does his commission as an officer of the church expire, and his authority cease, at the time of the act of wrongfulness or sin, or when the church shall take official notice and action?

The official acts of an officer are legal so long as he holds a proper license to act for the body. An officer knowing himself to be in transgression of such a serious nature as would justify putting him under silence if known, should voluntarily refrain from official work, but should he perform such it would be considered legal until he is put under silence by other authority.

ave, and we emphasized the following point. The manifestos, suspending the practice of plural marriages, and understood by the church in Utah to provide abolition of polygamy cohabitation, as testified by the leading witnesses, including Jos. F. Smith, in the senate investigation, was a "revelation"—"an inspired document," as testified, and adopted by the Utah church Oct. 1890, why was not that "revelation," that inspirational document adopted by the church, in Gen. Conference assembled, printed and bound with the revelations of their D. and C., and sent abroad to the nations? Why is it, the revelation on polygamy is retained, and sent out to the nations, and the manifesto suspending plural marriages is suppressed? The two elders have not answered yet. The manifesto did not change their belief. They believe that polygamy is a divine principle, and teach that it is so. They defend the principle with zeal. They boast of temples built, and "Baptisms for the dead," and that too, in Salt Lake City, and other places in Utah,—outside of "Zion, her States" and out side of "Jerusalem."

Well, we expect to return there after the "Home-Coming." For this latter event, the city was decorated with multiplied thousands of flags, national colors, and other bunting which with transparencies gave the city the appearance of a chivalric, patriotic, and military Alhambra. One must pause to know, for a moment, if it be a real city, or has he been transported to the mirage reflection in the clouds? But I must conclude. I am very apt to take an excursion in the metaphysical regions of abstraction, and will alight—while I am near home.

Hopefully moving along,

BRANDEN Fla., Aug. 25.

Dear Ensign:—I note in ENSIGN Aug. 21st by Bro. Wesley Gibbs of Mill Springs Missouri, in which he has resolved to send to the Bishop one dollar the first of September, and to send one dollar the first of each month for five months to be applied on payment of church debt. I have resolved to do this. Few of us would misone dollar in this way, and I suggest others follow.

Who'll be next? I have sent my dollar to Bishop E. L. Kelley. A non-member said they would give me five dollars for the same purpose.

Mrs. T. E. Sutton.

WIRT, Ind., Aug. 20.

Editor Ensign:—It has been quite a while since I contributed to your columns. And thinking some might wish to hear from us, we will send a few lines. I reached my field of labor June 15th and began operations in Louisville, was associated with Bro. J. W. Metcalf in our labors there and in New Albany, for three weeks. At Highland Park the saints have a neat little chapel, and quite a lively branch with Sunday School, Religio and midweek prayer meetings, presided over by Eld. C. H. Ferguson who has the confidence of all, and Bro. Henry Oliver branch priest another live wire. There is quite an energetic band of saints in the Louisville Branch. They have been hindered some on account of some troubles that have lately been adjusted and are now in good working order. The New Albany Branch is practically disorganized on account of a number having moved away. Bro. E. A. Jeagers acting president, secured a schoolhouse in the edge of the city where Bro. Metcalf and I held forth a few nights to small but interested audiences. We were kindly entertained here in the homes of Mr. Nagle Hammersmith's who are not members, but friends to us Bro. Jeagers proposes keeping up the meetings here as he has the privilege of the schoolhouse, I predict for him success as he is a very enthusiastic worker. We next visited the Byrville Branch which is practically dead, probably for the same reason that many of the workers have moved away, while there Bro. C. N. Maynon teacher was elected president of the branch and Bro. Lee Byrn, deacon. We trust that through the efforts of these brethren the work will be revived there. From here I went to Tennessee to attend their reunion near Puryear beginning July 12-20.

Through the kindness of the saints of Kentucky and Tennessee who bore the expense of the trip and with the consent of the ones in charge I was privileged to attend their reunion, which was a success in every sense of the word and was said to be the best ever held in the district. Thirteen were baptized during the reunion.

From there we came back to Indiana Via Rome, Ind., to attend the Southern Indiana District reunion which convened near Derby July 26th to Aug. 3rd which was a good reunion though not so largely attended as the Tennessee reunion.

The saints around Derby supported this reunion, entertaining the visitors in their hospitable homes. And every body seemed happy notwithstanding the severe drought and extremely hot weather that prevailed.

There was no sickness. And all the meetings were well attended. Eleven were baptized. After the reunion Bro. Barmore and the writer continued meetings in the vicinity of the Gerald Schoolhouse with large crowds till Wednesday we returned to the Cummings Schoolhouse. The writer holding forth there over Sunday, while Bro. Barmore held forth at Badger Schoolhouse. Monday night I preached in Derby leaving next day by boat str "Tell City" Via Louisville thence to Madison and Wirt.

We had a pleasant journey up the Ohio in company with Sr. C. H. Fish and children of Indianapolis also Sr. Mary McPeak and Sr. Rose Davis who had been to the reunion and were returning home. That evening we held preaching services on the boat some becoming very interested engaging me in conversation for about 2 hours. We stopped a day and night in Louisville, and had the pleasure of attending the saints prayermeeting at Highland Park. Sr. Fish and family continued the journey with me to Wirt, Ind., where we have been holding forth each night with increasing interest.

We are at present domiciled in the beautiful and pleasant home of Bro. Ed Ford. We are expecting Bro. Chbs. H. Fish of Indianapolis down next week to join his family her and help us out in the meetings.

From here we will probably go to Indianapolis and spend considerable time in that city doing missionary work as per advice of minister in charge. I am having lots of calls for preaching more than I can possibly reach and do justice to the work.

I may have to go to Kentucky to meet Judge J. F. Hight of Vienna, Ill. in debate this fall as propositions have already been signed. But it is not an assured fact as yet. Desiring to be remembered by all the faithful,

Your Brother,
J. R. McClain

BOURBON, Mo., Aug. 20.

Editor Ensign:—Have thought of writing to your paper for some time, but declined, feeling my inability to write anything instructive. Will give a few points from a discussion I had with a lady, a leading member of another church.

We were talking on some Scripture we could not understand alike when I told her I had started to read the New Testament through and understand it as I read it. She said that was impossible and I might as well quit. I asked her what it was written for if not for understanding. She said part of it was for understanding and part was a mystery and always would be. She said she knew enough to live by and was well satisfied with what religion she had and asked me if I was satisfied with what I had. I answered "No." She said I had better hunt a different kind. I told her I was perfectly satisfied with the quality, but not with the quantity; all I want is more of the same kind. I want to learn more of the same dear old Jerusalem gospel, and the more I know, the better life I can live. The more I understand our dear Savior's life the better I can, follow his pure example.

I don't think any of us know enough, but right here let me give a few quotations which are beneficial when we think we know enough to live as Jesus would have us to and can't learn any more.

"But when the comforter is come he will guide you into all truth." What is truth? John says, "Thy word is truth." Hence it will guide us into ALL of "Thy word" or the Scriptures and not a part of it.

"If any lack wisdom let him ask of God who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not." So our Father will give us the wisdom desired and needed if we but ask him the same as we would give our little ones instruction. Would like to receive instructive letters from any of the saints, will try to answer all.

Your sister in Christ,
Mrs. Robert Wright.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. Aug. 21.

Editor Ensign:—The reunion of the Southern Nebraska and Fremont Iowa, districts, held at Morton Park, Nebraska City, is now a thing of the past, and notwithstanding the dry weather and continued heat, was quite well attended. The purpose of the assembly was kept constantly in view, and the services were held promptly on time, four sessions per day, with Sunday school extra, the two Sundays over which it continued. (Aug. 8 to 17).

The general committee consisting of Bro. E. D. Briggs chairman, with Bro. H. A. Higgins and W. M. Self, and sister Ruby Faunce, representing the Southern Nebraska District and Elders T. A. Hougas, and Nathan Mortimore representing the Fremont Iowa District, did full duty toward the success of the reunion. Bro. Jones of Plattsmouth, and Mortimore of Hamburg, with Bro. E. O. Briggs, chosen to care for the Park grounds, were faithful to duties and did their work well.

The cooking and table service was chiefly volunteer work, and was in charge of Sr. Higgins, Sr. Briggs, Waldsmith Faunce, Woolsey, and others. This department had a warm time owing to the weather, but remained devoted faithful to the end.

The reunion was organized by the selection of J. Arthur Gillin as president, he being missionary in charge. He selected as assistants the presidents of the two districts, W. M. Self of Southern Nebraska and T. A. Hougas of Fremont. C. Scott was chosen as secretary, and with H. A. Higgins was made press committee. H. A. Higgins and T. A. Hougas were the choristers, and sister Ella Cox organist.

The preaching was of a high order, and largely along the lines of the development of saintly character, that is, affecting our practical lives as saints; being done by Apostle J. A. Gillen, Evangelists F. A. Smith, Chas. E. Butterworth, and Elders T. A. Hougas, W. M. Self, G. R. Wells, O. Salisbury, E. F. Robertson, and Columbus Scott. The prayer meetings were unusually well attended and held promptly on time, the time being well occupied. The Spirit was present to witness the acceptance of the saints, and their sacrifices in holding the reunion, as evidenced by the fervency of the prayers, and earnestness and fervor of the testimonies. W. M. Self baptized three persons during the reunion.

At 2:30 Friday, the 15th, the interests of Graceland College were taken into consideration, the various phases of the question relating to it being presented and ably discussed by Thomas A. Hougas, one of the trustees of Graceland, who made a plea in its interest and for its success.

This meeting evidently resulted in the saints getting a better understanding of what the college is doing, and will cause some at least to look upon it with greater favor.

Although space forbids the mentioning of all the singers by name, it is but just to say in behalf of the choir that their work was a highly enjoyable feature, and was a work of sacrifice on the part of some who were heavily burdened with other duties. In this connection Elder "Gomier" and his "gobstick" will not soon be forgotten.

At the business session it was decided to hold the reunion in the Fremont district next year.

The saints all seemed encouraged and we think the reunion proved a success both spiritually and financially.
Hopefully,
C. Scott.

CORRESPONDENCE

BLV Okla, Sept. 2.

Dear Ensign:—I saw a letter in the ENSIGN of the 21st by Bro Gibbs and the resolution that he has made, I think it is a good one. It looks to me the only way that we can ever pay off the debt.

Surely each and every member should sacrifice the small amount of one dollar per month for six months that would leave the church in a fair good way to prosperity.

Bro. Gibbs wanted to know who would be next. I will say that I will adopt the same resolution as he did; now who will be next? My prayer is that God will so bless the members of the church with good health and strength and so bless them that they may see the necessity of complying with the will of God.

I hope that all in this latter day work will pay their tithes so that the good work may go on and many souls be brought to God. I ask the prayers of all the saints that I may be ever found striving and at last meet them in heaven.

Yours in the gospel work,
Mrs. Anna A. Minnear.

FAYETTE, Ohio, Aug. 25.

Editor Ensign:—We are opening up the work about seven miles east of Pioneer, Ohio, just over the state line of Michigan and Indiana. A most beautiful region of country, well improved, and under a high standard of agriculture. Our center of operation is school house No. 4 Gorham T. P. As the schools open next Monday, our effort will be somewhat limited, as the board will not open the building for religious services after the teachers take their places.

We "opened up" in the city of Breakfast Foods—Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 3, in a tent pitched on Liberty St., and the first Sunday eve—some time during the night—every rope on the west side of the tent was cut in twain. Whether the work was done by some religious guy, or otherwise, we do not know, the tent careened to the east, but the work of righting and readjusting, was not very tedious. The tent was moved during the week, to a point nearer town, on Hamblin Ave. where we continued until the "Home Coming Celebration" attracted all the enthusiasm and interest, when we dispersed till next month.

The Utah church has a local branch organization there, and this enables them to act as though they were popular. We have one of their members—a Bro. Reick—ready for the water. He attended every one of our services, and abandoned his own, or their own. He informed me that he never heard the question of B. Young's assumption to the presidency, discussed before. He cannot reconcile Sec. 42, D. and C. (1835) with Brigham's introduction of the revelation on the Eternity of Marriage. Of course not. Jesus condemned the plural relation both in time, and eternity. He condemned the idea of marriage at all, in eternity. In time he said: "For this cause shall a man leave father and mother; and shall cleave to his wife; (singular number) and they twain (two)—not six or a dozen—shall be one flesh." Matt. 19:5. To eternity or after the resurrection, he charged that the Sadducees were in error, and grossly ignorant of "the Scriptures, and the power God," for entertaining such dogma,—"Jesus answered and said unto them, ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God. For in the resurrection (those who obtain that world through the resurrection of the dead, i. T.) they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven.

A CLEAN HEART.

BY S. S. SMITH.

"Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."—Psalms 51:10.

The doctrine of a clean heart we wish here to affirm. We see in it the greater regeneration. We hope more importance is not given to it than is sanctioned by the law. We might be reminded, the essential things of our religion must be kept in view if success comes to us. The law of liberty distinctly and essentially requires the reinforcement of our religious nature to a higher degree, which means stronger reverences, mightier incentives to right living, and more constant loyalty in pursuit of noble ideals. Fundamentally it means more resolution to obtain the true regeneration, more faith in God, and a desire, not by compulsion but by love, to do the right and live the true life.

A fluctuating loyalty, and a remitting faith only indexes failure, for the ideal of a man and his adherence to it will ever mark his course to his future destiny. Therefore the utility of our ideals can only be measured in proportion to their correctness and perfection. Confusion may arise if it is true, from our conception as to what are the real essential things. To determine this the closest study should be had of God's work, together with a singleness of purpose in purity of life, that we may have the Spirit's grace as a living benefactor. These requirements and the incentives that impel them, must ever be considered more than conventional tradition on historic precedents.

Our study then should be to find out the will of God, and sense the divineness of the truth, the solidarity of the right, the holiness of the pure, and the glory of spiritual power, which opens up such a vast field that we can always see room for improvement. Revelation, regeneration, holiness, consecration, immortality and eternal life are some of the great words of our cause; and when interpreted in the light of reason and the Holy Spirit and sought with that consecration and loftiness of purpose in terms of true genuine simplicity, we can but expect the soul to gain that vitality and grasp on the right and wholesome in human experience. It therefore demands more, not less, of true consecration and co-operation with God and man.

ABNORMAL APPETITES AND HABITS.

The work of the Church is exhibited when the individual comes under the redemptive power of the gospel, and controls abnormal appetite and eradicates obnoxious habits that resent persistent interference. That man is not fully converted who fails to relinquish an evil habit under gospel tuition because he may think his faculty of self government is not capable to cope with the strength and malevolence of a habit of years cherishing. In this way so many become defeated, and where there should be exhibited strength there is only weakness. Their hopes are blighted by their long continued indulgence, and no longer are they the masters of themselves, but mere puppets in the hands of a power they care not to resist.

The stupendous harm of these things is not seen at first. Like the tiny tiger cub, innocent and playful at first, yet in time tooth and claw develop and it becomes a beast to be feared. The apparent harmlessness of it at first seems an incentive, and amusing though it may seem, in time if indulged in will gain strength that will domineer over manhood.

THE TOBACCO EVIL.

"Avoid the use of tobacco."—Doc. and Cov. 119:3. "And again tobacco is not for the body, neither for the belly, and is not good for man, but is an herb for bruises and all sick cattle, to be used with judgment and skill."—D. C. 86:1.

Could the Lord have spoken more plainly and timely on this great evil? The filth and excessive waste caused by the use of tobacco is a serious handicap. In most public places now-a-days is found the nauseating spittoon reeking with filth. Hogs could be no more filthy than they who cast their spittle promiscuously about, and before the air with their smoke. The evidence of their imposition on others is seen everywhere.

If the one using the poisonous weed was the only one to suffer, it would not be so bad, but the innocent are involved at every turn. It is with a sad heart we see the awful picture and its baleful consequences, but we desist in making it more vivid. Those enthused with the gospel of Christ can only think of it in terms of disgust. It is hard to think those of the covenant could be under its power, but there are many. Can they break this yoke of bondage? I think so. At least it is for them to make the effort.

Some think to curb this tendency is to restrict their liberties. The same argument could be made by the man who has suicidal intent apprehended in the act; or the murderer whose diabolical deed was frustrated by an officer. Some men's "liberties" only lead them to do that which discomforts and discommodates others. We should consider, to be free in Christ Jesus is not a condition of bondage to the lusts of the flesh. At least our cause must concern itself very immediately with that which tends to bondage, and how to emancipate from its slavery. It is not to capture and control the people as they are where the gospel finds them, but rather the purpose of reforming and refashioning them "that ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust," that the bodies of men might not be bruised, and the souls of men ever helped.

Our Creator's intent is not further dominion for the sake of dominion, but only to recommend what he knows is for the best, that we in the exercise of our agency may be free from the dominion of the subtle power of the devil. Everyone must be free from hackneyed pollutions, and chronic disorders before he can fully realize the great possibilities of his being. Productiveness in the fruits of the gospel is contingent on a divorcement from the "pig trough" philosophy of some men. Man cannot be free with these things, but only when we leave them behind us will we realize the greatest possible growth.

It certainly is possible make the ethics of the revealed will of God the controlling and uplifting principles of modern life, for Zion's glory and redemption. We have a real purpose and mission in life, and in our hands are placed the tools with which to build the Zion of latter days. This should give us courage to do great things, for upon us rests heavy responsibilities. The world is a stage, but sometimes we play by merely saying the words of the author, without creating and expressing our own part, and thus we fail to make our role vital and important to mankind. To do this we must "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us," and tobacco is included and will have to go if we "run with patience the race that is set before us."—Hebrews 12:1.

THE HABIT OF INEBRIETY.

The evil and bestial condition of the drunkard of the underworld, possibly was not foreseen by him when he took his first drink. The sometimes gay banqueting, pampering, and clank of glasses in fine form and festivity in youth, means the potters' field at the finis.

Malt whiskey, beer, wines and other liquors are boldly advertised today as strength builders, and tonic stimulants in a way to catch the innocent. Beer especially is recommended as an excellent beverage for mothers. In this way through the law of heredity they fasten on the unborn child a craving for drink.

They proclaim in the daily papers, magazines, and bill boards that their article is an excellent aid to digestion, to nourish the body, and stimulate the circulation of the blood, give strength and elasticity to the muscles and invigoration to the mind. They say it assists in keeping the entire system in a normal and healthy condition, and stops the inroads of disease and old age. In fact to hear the liquor manufacturer tell it, its the thing for every ill of life,—a perpetual fountain of success, health and happiness for ever more. Let the simple warning be here registered, "it will do no such thing." The very opposite is the result.

The Lord has spoken: "Be not addicted to strong drink in any form."—D. C. 119:3.

"That inasmuch as any man drinketh wine or strong drink among you, behold it is not good neither meet in the sight of your Father. . . . And again strong drinks are not for the belly, but for the washing of your bodies."—D. C. 86:1.

The passages of Scripture applying to the drunkard represents him as a lost man. His condition is "contention," "complaining," "wounds without cause," "redness of eyes," "eyes behold strange things," and "thine heart shall utter forward things," and his inheritance is "woe" and "sorrow." (See Prov. 23:29-35). In prison today many a man is reaping the fruits of his evil sowing in drink. The blasted health and wrecked lives of multitudes is a testimonial of the evil of the liquor business. Many a pure woman has been smitten and disgraced, and is enduring a life of godless years in shame and degradation because she was heedless of the consequences of this nefarious business. Their wanton look tells their life's story.

We can add to this long train of miseries, those of loss of courage, (Hosea 4:11); erring and bad judgment, (Isaiah 28:7); reeling and staggering, (Psalms 107:27); sickness, (Hosea 7:5); poverty, rags and gluttony, (Prov. 23:21); defilement, (Dan. 1:8); woe, (Isaiah 5:11,22); and damnation (1 Cor. 6:10).

Besides all this it is a loss of time, business, conscience, money, health, family, character, feeling, life, and soul itself. It has catered to every crime. It is an abettor to intolerance, arrogance, and hypocrisy. Its cant, craft, and falsehood are iniquitous. It has ruined homes, debauched manhood and womanhood, created crime, rapine, lust and insanity.

It is the greatest law breaker of the age. It has filled almshouses and sanitariums with its wrecks, homes for children it has yearly supplied with blind and diseased babies. It has blighted the hopes of millions and strayed the centuries with its disease and death. It has ruined the mental, moral and spiritual in man. It encumbers labor with a terrible load. It excites riot, robbery and blood shed. It shortens life and leads to incurable diseases. In every way it diminishes comforts and takes from life the great boon, happiness. In all it is one of the greatest sins of the age, "A bar to heaven and a door to hell." It is altogether wicked. It has ruined millions, and no matter how healthful, steady, or clear headed you are it will ruin you too if you tamper with it to excess.

Moral and spiritual force must be the foundation of all true reform. Change the hearts of the people and there will be no need to enforce the law. If the lower is reached and corrected, the higher will come as a natural sequence. One man of evil and ignoble life is as a contagion to those near him. He spreads moral blight everywhere. Men who are church members should at least have self respect for themselves and the church to which they belong to that extent that they will shun this evil in every way.

Every effort at self-denial stops the leak of one's own mentality, and he gains in stability and self-possession, which are stepping stones to spiritual peace, light and power. Such evils should not be once named among us; but we should seek to live up to ideals which are even higher than the moral standard of the best of the world. We never should let the world lead us in such things, for the postulate of the church is ever to lead. If we do this we will have an enrichment of life unsurpassed and our lives by example will have a most salutary effect on others.

"HOT DRINKS."

This includes drinks that are hot, no matter what the constituent parts of the drink may be. The term "hot drinks" we believe especially refers to tea and coffee, as they were about the only hot drinks that were taken at the time the instruction was given and was a common appellation of the time. This view is strengthened by the action of the general assembly as early as 1837 when it voted "not to support stores and shops selling spirituous liquors, tea, coffee, or tobacco." (See Church History, Vol. 2, p 120). Hyrum Smith said in a sermon at Nauvoo that "hot drinks" referred to tea and coffee. The best definition of temperance is "the moderate use of any beneficial thing, and the total abstinence from that which is detrimental." The opinion of many eminent men is that the action of tea and coffee on the system is bad. Some of our greatest specialists attribute a number of diseases to the excessive use of these narcotics.

The "Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette," a famous medical authority, says: "Medical examiners for some of the Life Insurance Companies have added the term 'Coffee Heart' to their regular classification of the functional derangements of the organ. Coffee shortens the long beat of the heart. Coffee toppers they say, are plentiful and as much tied to their cups as the whisky topper. The effect of coffee upon the heart is more lasting and consequently worse than that of liquor."

A practical knowledge of the effect of such things on our bodies, including the science of human life itself, is necessary in order to glorify God in our bodies. It weakens the body and impairs the mentality, and makes one less trust-worthy. It is one of the great evils, for it rarely fails to lead to other excesses.

God has given us instruction as to how to live, both spiritually and physically, and it is always best to do what God says; but some of us think we know more, for we put our judgment against God's and go right ahead and use it. Is it any wonder so many today are ailing when they run riot after these things? God designs for us healthy bodies, but if we do not follow him we must suffer the consequences of a broken law. If we honor this law as well as hygiene, no need to have diseased bodies, and by so doing we will not have to call on the Lord so repeatedly for his healing.

The admonition "Cease to be unclean" has an inward significance as well as an outward one. It will be undoubtedly a chastening obligation to mothers to know they have undermined the wholesome teaching of the public schools on narcotics by giving their children tea and coffee. What consistency is there to teach the child the bad effects of these things, then indulge them to their heart's content? The effect of this undue stimulation on their young bodies is altogether bad. Some authorities say, of the two, beer does not have the detrimental effects to the extent of coffee.

If we will honor the Lord's advice in the Word of Wisdom, we shall see many a cloud of gloom, many an ache and pain dispelled that would otherwise continue to hover near; and happiness, joy and triumph will be our more frequent companion, and our usefulness be extended, and eternal reward crown our efforts.

OTHER EXCESSES.

Sometimes we see some strange transitions in the lives of those who dally with taste. The drug habit illustrates this abnormality as well as any. The most fantastic likings of the abnormal mind is catered to readily by the multitude of patent drugs on the market, each one bearing their special recommendations. Sometimes there is that enslavement to those who habitually use them that they are more fiendishly than human. It is a pity those pandering to morbid and vicious tastes are so general that anything in the way of a protest is the exception and stands out in vivid contrast. In every nation from savagery to civilization can be found compounds and drug concoctions that destroys manhood and self-control, and administer to degrading tastes with wicked results.

Much of this moral blight in character which has proven so abominably degrading, generally was begun in tender age through the advice or example of those who should know better. But few opiates or narcotics; no matter how baneful the outcome of their use, but what can boast of the sanction of some of the medical fraternity. Not that all have sanctioned such, far from it; but there are some who for sinister motives have lowered the dignity of the medical profession by sanctioning what is wrong and perverse to the right ways of life. We would not leave the impression that all drugs come under our censorship either, for many things are beneficial when rightly used, and others are not. It is the right use to which we put such things that counts.

We therefore have need for constant watchfulness that we are not induced to fellowship and debasing sin. If right living is habitual the individual's habits are marked by orderly fashion, but if indulgence of abnormal sense and catering to the unstable and false standards is had, one can but expect discord and final disaster.

We might well advise ourselves what an over-indulgence of sense becomes when matured in the human heart, and cultivate an appreciation of the lesson of the finalities of evil, instead of overlooking wholesome restraints and infantile regulations, and doting on a frivolous start in life. A good race is determined by a good start as well as a good ending.

UNIONS AND TRUSTS IN ANCIENT ASIA MINOR.

About the year 190 B. C., Thyatira came under the power of Rome, and though in the days of the republic it suffered much from oppression and extortion, great commercial prosperity came to it with the inauguration of the empire. About the time that St. John wrote the Revelation it was at the height of its wealth and prosperity as a business city. It is known that there were more trade guilds in Thyatira than in any other city of Asia, for inscriptions tell us that there were guilds of linen-workers, wool-workers, dyers, bronzesmiths, potters, bakers, tanners, and slave-dealers. The selling of ready-made garments was an important business of Thyatira, but whether there were the accompaniments of sweatshops, long hours and scanty pay, we are not told.—Correspondence of The Christian Herald.

THOUGHTS ON THE RESURRECTION.

F. C. CHRISTIE.

The resurrection of the dead is, and has been, a subject of much importance, for we know, as Paul of old has said, that this mortal body cannot inherit the kingdom of God; and that this mortal shall put on immortality; but how shall they all come forth, and after what manner do they come forth? The Scriptures give the best evidence.

We find in Rev. 20:12, 13, "And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God. . . And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them, and they were judged every man according to their works." Rev. 22:12: "And behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me to give every man according as his works shall be." In both places it speaks of "all" or "every" man, and they are to be judged and rewarded as their works shall be.

Again, in 1 Cor. 15:40-42, states that there shall be different glories. This seems to be good doctrine, since the Apostle Peter makes the declaration in 1st Pet. 4:5, 6: "Who shall give an account of him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead, for this cause was the gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the Spirit." Also 1 Pet. 3:18: "For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit; by the which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison, which sometime were disobedient, when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah."

By this Scripture is shown that the gospel is preached to the dead, and it is evident that they were not members of the church in this life, or had made no preparation for the life beyond. Therefore we wish to examine further on this subject. Micah 4:1-5; and also Isa. 2:1-4; state "that in the last days it shall come to pass that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established, and that many nations shall come and say, Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and he shall judge among many people, and rebuke the strong nations, and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks, and not learn war any more; but they shall sit, every man, under his own vine and under his fig tree, and none shall make them afraid, for the mouth of the Lord of Hosts hath spoken it."

This shows some of the conditions that shall obtain during the millennial reign, or the reign of peace. Again, in Isa. 11:6-9 states that "the wolf shall dwell with the lamb; the leopard shall lie down with the kid; the calf and young lion and fating together, and a little child shall lead them. The cow and the bear shall feed, and their young ones shall lie down together. . . The lion shall eat straw with the ox. . . And they shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Notice that the knowledge of the Lord shall be had in all the earth. The question is, are these the ones who have been resurrected? We say No. That these are the ones called the wise virgins mentioned in Matt. 25:1-12 who have taken the Holy Spirit for their guide, and are still alive when Christ comes again.

For more evidence on this line read latter day revelations. Doctrine and Covenants 45:10; "And in that day, when I come in my glory shall the parable be fulfilled which I spake concerning the ten virgins, for they that are wise and have received the truth, and have taken the Holy Spirit for their guide have not been deceived, verily, I say unto you, they shall not be hewn down and cast into the fire, but shall abide the day and the earth shall be given unto them for an inheritance, and they shall multiply and wax strong, and their children shall grow up without sin unto salvation, for the Lord shall be in their midst and his glory shall be upon them and he will be their King and their Lawgiver. This plainly shows that the wise are those who are here and alive at the coming of Christ. And the ones who are to inherit the earth.

Again in Doctrine and Covenants 63:13. "When the Lord shall come, and old things shall pass away, and all things become new, they shall rise from the dead and shall not die after, and shall receive an inheritance before the Lord in the Holy City." Now, notice. "And he that liveth when the Lord shall come and has kept the faith, blessed is he. Nevertheless, it is appointed unto him to die at the age of man: Wherefore, children shall grow up and become old. Old men shall die, but they shall not sleep in the dust but shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye." Here we have the children who are alive when Jesus comes, are to remain and grow up until they become old men, and then they die and are changed in the twinkling of an eye, as Paul said "at the trump," etc., 1 Cor. 15:52, referring to a dispensation of a thousand years' reign to begin at that time. The children are to grow up and they are to multiply and wax strong. Again, in Matt. 22:29, 30, Jesus said that in the resurrection there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage. So Doctrine and Covenants 45:10, and 63:14 certainly are correct in the statement that the children of the millennial reign are the wise virgins and the ones to marry, multiply and replenish the earth during that time, and not the resurrected beings.

Let us reason again from Isa. 65:17-25: "For behold I create a new heaven and a new earth, and the former shall not be remembered nor come to mind. . . There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that has not filled his days, for the child shall die at an hundred years old, but the sinner being a hundred years old shall be accursed. And they shall not build and another inhabit. They shall not plant and another eat, for as the days of a tree are, the days of my people. . . And they shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth for trouble, for they are the seed of the blessed of the Lord and their offspring with them."

Notice that they build and that their seed are the blessed of the Lord. Verse 20 shows that none will die until they are an hundred years old, but he that fails to keep the covenants, or fails to join himself to the people of the Lord, for he has had no devil to tempt him, and there is no curse on the earth, and Christ being the king; so he being a hundred years old and must die, too, and he be changed, but can not get celestial glory because he has not lived for it; so he must take a place with those that were honorable men of the earth who were resurrected at the beginning of the millennial reign or just after those of the celestial glory were resurrected, as you will find in Doctrine and Covenants 85:28: "And after this another angel sounded, which is the second trump, and then cometh the redemption of those who are Christ's at his coming, who have received their part in the prison which was prepared for them that they might receive the gospel and be judged according to men in the flesh." Again, in verse 29, same section, "And again another trump was sounded, which was the third trump, and the spirits of men who were to be judged and are found under condemnation, these are the rest of the dead, and they live not again until the thousand years are ended; neither again until the end of the earth." But the rest of the dead cannot come forth in the resurrection until after the thousand years are ended, as you will see by the last quotation.

Some have said that the resurrected dead of the celestial glory are to be on the earth during the thousand years. All right! let us reason together on this. In Doctrine and Covenants 63:13, it says that the resurrected dead shall inherit a place in the Holy City, and not an the breadth of the earth. So let us reason that this city is the seat of government somewhere. And when anyone entitled to celestial glory dies during the thousand years, they are changed in the twinkling of an eye, and are caught up to the city, as it so states in Doctrine and Covenants 98:5. "And there shall be no sorrow because there is no death. In that day an infant shall not die until he is old, and his life shall be as the age of a tree, and when he dies he shall not sleep (that is to say in the earth) but shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye, and shall be caught up, and his rest shall be glorious." Sec. 36:12, 13: "And righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood to gather out mine elect from the four quarters of the earth to a place which I have prepared, a holy city, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming; for there shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion, a new Jerusalem. And the Lord said to Enoch, then shall you and your city meet them there." This shows that the city is to come at the time of Christ's coming.

Again let us consider 1 Thess. 4:16, 17 in which we find the dead in Christ are to rise just the same as in Doctrine and Covenants 89:27. Both agree but Paul does not tell us as much in his writings. Verse 17 agrees with Doctrine and Covenants 77:4: "For ye are the church of the First Born, and he will take you up in the cloud, and appoint every man his portion." So you see we truly are to meet him in the air, and also our city is to meet Enoch's city.

Now, it does not say where on earth the city or cities are to be, but it does say in Section 63 of Doctrine and Covenants that the resurrected of the celestial glory are to have an inheritance in the city. Furthermore, Paul's statements do not conflict with the Doctrine and Covenants on this point when you understand that Paul referred to the dispensation of the thousand years. Rev. 21:4 compared with Doctrine and Covenants 63:13; 98:5, agree that there will be no death, for the sting of death is taken away when Christ comes, and the change that comes at death is the change to immortality in the twinkling of an eye. This to my mind makes plain that the resurrected beings of the celestial glory inherit the city, and the wise virgins are those who remain abroad on the earth at the coming of Christ, and are the ones to inherit the earth, and are to build houses and inhabit them, and their children are to grow up without sin unto salvation, and on their inheritances on the earth.

Again D. and C. 85:5, "And they who are not sanctified through the law which I have given unto you, even the law of Christ, must inherit another kingdom."

assisted by divine help." The divine help they claimed was necessary, Joseph Smith claimed to have received many years before in his revision of the Bible, and the work stands today as a perpetual testimony that there was inspiration in it.

After the church had had opportunity of reading and examining the book, it was adopted by the church in the following resolution passed Sept. 13, 1878:

That this body representing the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, does hereby authoritatively indorse the Holy Scriptures, as revised, corrected, and translated by the Spirit of revelation, by Joseph Smith, Jr., the Seer, and as published by the church we represent.—General Conference Resolutions, p. 48.

This indorsement did not cause the church to dispense with the King James Version, and the latter is largely used today by ministers and members.

Some have misunderstood the nature of this work in supposing that it was a literal translation. We understand that the main part of the work was but a correction of the King James Translation, many of the corrections partaking of the nature of improved readings, made by the spirit of inspiration or revelation; the other part being certain additions which were made by direct revelation.

As an illustration of the corrections made may be noted the statements in Exodus 7 and other places that the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart so that he would not let the people of Israel go. The Inspired Version says that Pharaoh hardened his heart. Another is in Ex. 23:3 "Thou shalt not countenance a poor man in his cause." But the Inspired says: "Neither shalt thou countenance a wicked man in his cause." An instance of the improved reading is in the Lord's prayer, Matt. 6:13, where it reads: "Suffer us not to be led into temptation," instead of "Lead us not into tem; tation."

In Matt. 5:27-30 is found an instance of the added parts. The whole passage, with the added part in parentheses is as follows: "Behold it is written by them of old time, that thou shalt not commit adultery. But I say unto you, that whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her in his heart already. (Behold, I give unto you a commandment, that ye suffer none of these things to enter into your heart, for it is better that ye should deny yourselves of these things, wherein ye will take up your cross, than that ye should be cast into hell)." Other important additions are found in the first nine chapters of Genesis, and other places.

A friend in Scotland said to a boy:

"What do you have for breakfast hereabouts?"

"Porridge," was the answer.

"And for dinner?"

"Porridge."

"And for supper?"

"Porridge."

"Goodness!" said the friend. "Porridge every day for every meal! Do you never have anything else?"

"What else would you have," said the boy.—Washington Star.

THEY ALL BEGIN THAT WAY.

BY JOHN NELSON GOLTRA.

The fellows were all at your club that night

(It's the finest club in town)

The wine flowed free and they all felt fine

As story and song went 'round.

You boasted that "Wine has no terrors for me,

I can leave it alone when I say"—

But old "Buttons" winked with a knowing smile

"They all begin that way."

The bar was a glitter, the lights were bright,

And the game was merry and free,

While no man spoke of the days to come,

For no one seemed to see.

You bragged of your powers of self-control

As the men "lined up" that day—

But the barkeep smiled with a sodden smile:

"They all begin that way."

The day of anguish had come at last,

The night had been full of pain,

Friends sought in vain for a ray of hope

That could never come again.

The pall was dark and the end was drear

When the hulk of manhood lay—

And the sexton growled with a dismal growl:

"They come too soon that way."

He had left his home with broken hearts,

And with lives o'erwhelmed with gloom,

For they knew their loss was multiplied

By the hopelessness of his doom.

Not a ray of light nor a glint of hope

Could brighten the cheerless day—

And Satan grinned with a fiendish grin:

"I get them all that way!"

MORMONS AND THE EXPOSITION.

It is charged that at the Alaska-Yucon, Pacific Exposition at Seattle in 1909, "the display for the Mormon Church was given in the government building, under government sanction, and to all appearances at government expense," for which reason the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church is raising a cry of alarm in the Interdenominational Council of Women for fear the Mormons will undertake to repeat the display at government expense at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, and a call is made upon "all good men and women of our church to begin an agitation," that will be effective against such a possibility. We doubt that the Mormon display was made at government expense, though it is not to be disputed that the Mormon Church of Utah has mixed church affairs with government affairs to an extent unwarranted by the law of the church as it was held in the days of Joseph Smith Jr., and the civil law of the nation. We doubt if there is any church having its position relative to the separation of church and state more clearly defined than the Reorganized Church which has been held by the courts to be the continuation of the original Church organized by Joseph Smith in 1830, and from which the Mormon Church is an apostate body.

CORRESPONDENCE CONTINUED.

KINMURDY, ILLINOIS, Aug. 25.

Editor Ensign:—Thinking that a word from me and news from the Southeastern Illinois District might be of interest to your readers I write you.

I have been laboring with Bro. L. C. Moore since arriving in the district June 3d. Most of the time we have spent with the district tent endeavoring to reach the people by this means through the hot summer months. We had a good interest at Cold Corners, some eight miles north of Wayne City, where we preached in the tabernacle from June 19th to July 6th. A number were interested but none baptized till the reunion when Bro. S. S. Smith baptized two young ladies from that neighborhood.

Bro. Moore and I conducted meetings in the tent at the Hazel Dell school house from July 10th to 27th, the school house being about half way between the Brush Creek Branch and Johnsonville. Good interest.

The district reunion was held with the Brush Creek Branch about seven miles south of Xenia, Illinois, from August 1st to 10th inclusive. There was a good attendance at the reunion; Bro. J. W. Rushton, William Lewis and Henry Sparling in addition to the district missionary force and local ministry were present. The meetings held were very instructive and by following Bro. Rushton's suggestions we are in hopes to see the work of the district handled more systematically in the future.

We have been holding tent meetings at this place since last Wednesday night and are having fair attendance and some interested in the gospel message.

In gospel bonds,

W. R. Dexter.

CREEG, Okla., July 16.

Editor Ensign:—A few lines from Eastern Oklahoma, am striving to do the work which my heavenly Father called me to do. I am not free from the trials of life and do not expect to be until the warfare of this life has come to an end.

On the night of the 6th of this month after closing a busy day's work, assisting in Sunday school at ten o'clock, preached at eleven o'clock, administered baptism: to two at 2 p. m., administered the sacrament at 3 p. m. and had prayer and testimony meeting until 5 p. m., preached again at 8 o'clock. This ended the busy day's work and when I retired for my night's rest with a weary body, a beautiful light appeared in the room. I heard a voice say, "Be faithful, look up and lift up your head for your redemption draweth nigh. I'll soon come to reign with the pure in heart." All of my trials and hardships vanished away, and I cannot find words to express the joy I passed through. Indeed our Savior is with us if we will be faithful and do his commandments.

On the evening of the 13th I was called upon to moderate in a debate between H. C. Auston of the Freewill Baptist faith and Willie Peacock of the faith of the Church of Jesus Christ. H. C. Auston affirmed that all the human family that did not go to heaven went to hell and forever stayed there in a lake of fire. W. W. Peacock denied.

Bro. Peacock showed from the Scriptures that God was a just God and would render justice to all the human family as stated by Abraham in Gen. 18:25. "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right." And that God had appointed a day in which he would judge the world. (Acts 17:31). Bro. Peacock I brought many passages of Scripture to prove the justness of our heavenly Father; such as Isaiah 11:4; Eccl. 12:14; Psalms 9:7, 8; 98:9; Rev. 20:12, 13.

Mr. Auston began his affirmative argument with the Greek lexology, but Bro. Peacock soon captured his own weapon and turned it against him and then he wanted to rule it out. The next proposition Bro. Peacock affirmed that the Book of Mormon is of divine origin and that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God.

Upon this proposition Bro. Peacock brought forth one of the finest arguments in behalf of the Book of Mormon I ever listened to. He began with Joseph's blessing, (Gen. 49:22), and brought forth evidence from the Scriptures showing that Joseph's seed came to this Western Hemisphere. He proved by four of the leading historians of the day that Joseph's seed became a great people here in this country and that they had a knowledge of the Lord, and became wise in arts and civilization and culture. He showed by the prophecies of God that a book was to come forth in the last days, or in "the hour of God's judgment."

He was greatly blessed with the Spirit of his calling and had fine liberty of speech. Often the congregation would sit spellbound. Indeed a great victory was won for the truth.

Mr. Auston tried very hard to refute the arguments, and did it in a gentlemanly way. He was very nice and I hope he is seeking light, and may the Lord help him to see the light. Evidently much good was done in the debate.

I am here in a new place trying to open up the work. Crowds are small but good interest. Bro. J. R. Richardson and family and Bro. Charlie Leggett and wife live here and are doing what they can to get the gospel before the people. I will go from here to Pittsburg, Okla., and try to open up the work in some new place, and thence to the reunion in northeast Texas at Dalby Springs. May God bless the Ensign in carrying the gospel to the people.

Your brother,

E. A. Erwin.

MADISON, South Dak., Aug. 28.

Dear Ensign:—I note in a letter in the Ensign that our beloved church is in debt $75,000, and wishing to do my part towards liquidating the debt I send one dollar now and will send one dollar each succeeding month for five months. I hope each member that possibly can will do the same and those that are able will send more than one dollar. I am sure we will not miss it but receive a blessing for so doing. I believe if we each strive to do so we can pay off the whole amount in five months. Let us each one strive to make ourselves and many others happy by paying the whole debt.

It is certainly too bad to have some of our most successful preachers have to return to their trade and work to support their families when they should be supported by the church and could be if we all did our duty. Dear Brothers and Sisters let us strive to pay into God's store houses sufficient so our elders may be in the field where they are so much needed and not have to worry for fear their loved ones are not provided with the necessities of life. I for one mean to do more in the future than I have in the past to help swell the fund to provide for the elders' families and pay the church debt. Who will join me.

Your sister in the true faith,

Mrs. C. C. Waste.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Sarah A. Doty, Ovid, Mich.—Remember me in your prayers, dear brothers and sisters. I pray for all in the church of God.

T. S. Day, Henryetta, Okla.—We have not had an elder with us for about two years, and one of the priests and teacher are absent from the branch. During that time I have done what I could to keep the work going, but with discouraging results.

Mrs. Nannie Myers, Claudell, N. M.—Will you ask the saints to pray for me that I may have more of the Spirit to guide me in the way of right and give me a better understanding, and that I may have strength to bear all persecutions and be faithful. I am the only saint in this country and have much opposition.

Mrs. Carrie Ralston, Dederick, Mo.—We live just two miles south and two west of Dederick, and any saints or any missionaries coming this way would be welcomed.

John Braddy, Womble, Ark.—I was ordained a priest four years ago, and have been faithful to my call as opportunity would permit. I have preached several times, and baptized two dear souls. They live at Big Fork, Polk Co., and I ask some elder in this field to confirm them.

M. E. Roberts, Coweta, Okla.—I am a well-wisher of the cause of Christ. My wife is longing for an elder to come this way as she is ready for baptism. Several have told me that they would help to get an elder here. I live 25 miles east of Tulsa and 30 west of Muskogee.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE STUDY OUTLINE.

For convenience the Domestic Science course has been outlined in two parts. The first part deals with the main classifications of foods and the directions are more definite than for part 2 in which entire subjects may be taken up as developed in the text-book referred to.

The length of the lessons and the way of working them out has been left to locals though the thought of your superintendent was that one text book was sufficient for a local providing it was studied by the leader and then read and discussed in class. Most locals will find it satisfactory to work out the experiments and recipes at home. The above suggestion is only one of many that might be made and if you will describe local conditions, I shall be glad to recommend specific ways for your case.

I suggest that chapter 1 be read first and discussed and then chapter 5 studied as a preliminary to the outline.

The text used is "Elements of Theory and Practice of Cookery," by Williams and Fisher, published by the Mac-Millan Co., New York City.—$1.00.

NOTICES.

To the scattered saints of Saskatchewan District, Greeting:—Having been elected superintendent of Home Class Department of Religio I take this means of reaching you and ask you to send me your name and address if you wish to take up this work. I will then send you instructions and supplies. Let us all arouse ourselves, improve our opportunities, and "work while it is yet day." Let us be found among the "wise virgins and one way to do this is by studying the Religio lessons, even though we live five miles and miles from any other saint. God will be near to bless if we but put forth an effort. Hoping to hear from everyone I remain your sister in the gospel,
Mrs. S. W. Nelson.

Hill Hall, Sask.

University of Missouri, Columbia, Sept.—Missouri farmers who are in doubt as to what kinds of fertilizers to use, what types of silos to build, what varieties of grain to grow, what feeds to use for greatest gains, and all other information concerning the farm can obtain the information by writing to the College of Agriculture, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

The College is organized to help farmers with all the problems of the farm. Every farmer in Missouri can make use of the College of Agriculture. It exists for all of the farmers of the State. A post card or a letter may be the means of solving a knotty farm problem and turning loss into gain.

FAR WEST QUORUM PRIESTS.—At the conference to be held at the German Stewartsville Branch, October 11th and 12th, a meeting will be held with a view to reorganizing the 15th quorum. By order of priests' meeting held at the late Stewartsville reunion.
D. H. Schmidt.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT.

Elder Chas. N. Burch has been appointed to labor in the Northern Michigan District for the remainder of the conference year. The First Presidency and Presiding Bishopric concur in the above appointment.

EDITORIAL

WHO ARE THE VICTORS?

Speak, History, who are Life's victors,
Unroll thy long annals and say,
Are they those whom the world called the victors,
Who won the success of a day?
The martyrs, or Nero? The Spartans
Who fell at Thermopylae's tyrant,
Or the Persians and Xerxes? His judges,
Or Socrates? Pilate, or Christ?

ETERNAL JUDGMENT.

"Of the doctrine of . . . eternal judgment."
Heb. 6:2.

This is given by Paul as one of the principles of the doctrine Christ. Under the teachings of the Christian ministers people have come to think of judgment as being synonymous with punishment, and eternal as meaning that the punishment will be without end.

Eternal judgment is the law of just recompense for both good and evil, and since God does not change, this law which expresses upon this point his eternal purpose, does not change either; but continues perpetually in force. This does not necessarily mean that any punishment which God may seem proper to place upon any of his children is to continue forever unabated, for the word judgment embodies the idea of justness as well as justice, and justice cannot exist unless it be governed by mercy.

Being the law of just recompense which is forever in force, it must appear that every act of man, every word, and even every thought, must be ultimately met in the results what follow. "Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap," is ever true, though so largely overlooked by the world. Of the evil, the Scriptures declare that "every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward," Heb. 2:2; and of the good the Lord said that they who sacrificed and labored in behalf of righteousness should "receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting." The basis of eternal judgment is that "He shall reward every man according to his works."

Men go on in sin, sometimes forgetting the misdeeds of the past or perhaps thinking because they have been committed in secret that no one knows of them. Some see only the penalty of the civil law threatening them, and if they can but escape that they take no thought of the future. The preaching of the world has been such that many others think it matters little what they do in the way of sin, providing that they sometime confess Christ when all their sins will be taken away, and they will be thereby fitted for a heavenly abode. But mercy does not destroy justice, and in many instances mercy can only find its proper application after justice has accomplished its work.

As an instance of this may be noted the transgression in Eden. The penalty was "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die," which penalty was executed in the man and woman being cast out of Eden, and out of the presence of God, which was spiritual death, and left subject to the physical death which comes to every man. But the Lord said to Adam: "I have forgiven thee thy transgression, in the garden of Eden." Gen. 6:55, Inspired Version. The forgiveness thus granted did not stay the penalty of God's law, but brought to man's relief the law of mercy which was to be made fully effective in the resurrection and restoration to primal conditions.

It is folly for men to deliberately continue in sin in the hope that forgiveness, which they may sometime be able to attain, will relieve them from any and all consequences of their sin. The man who through drink has spent his fortune, and destroyed his health, cannot by repentance and the securing of forgiveness have that which was lost restored to him. The law of recompense still operates notwithstanding he has been forgiven, but the mercy of God through forgiveness will eventually supplant justice when justice has completed its work. The prodigal son never regained the place in his father's house, notwithstanding he had been forgiven. He was not equal with his brother who had faithfully served his father, and even while he had place in his father's house he was still meeting the consequences of his former conduct in the eternal loss which he sustained.

Eternal judgment does not mean perpetual torture, but the perpetuity of God's justice, and men who are under the necessity of reaping a harvest from an evil sowing, may still find the law of mercy operative after the harvest is completed, or when "he has paid the uttermost farthing." In this way both the justice and mercy of God are exemplified, and the truthfulness of God's word is preserved, and ample provision is made for the ultimate and eternal happiness of every soul.

Bro. Vm. Osler of Ribstone, Alta., writes that it had been erroneously reported that Elder T. J. Jordan was president of the Alberta District. Bro. Jordan is president of the Saskatchewan District, and Bro. Osler is president of the Alberta District.

A New York Church, whose congregation is largely foreign, recently opened a bar in its basement at which intoxicating liquors are sold for the benefit of the members. It is not necessary to say that the attendance increased, and that anxieties as to raising the pastor's salary faded away, until one day the police raided the place, and now they are following old-fashioned methods again.

That slavery and peonage are prevalent in the Philippine Islands is the assertion of Dean Worcester, of the Philippine Commission in his report to the Insular Government. In many places children are captured and sold as slaves, or in some cases bought from their parents and sold in the islands or sent to China. Efforts toward stopping the traffic have so far been ineffectual, and the charge of peonage is carried up to the very doors of the Philippine Assembly.

The Indicator publishes tables made up from the report of the Department of Commerce showing that there has been an increase in the quantity of liquors imported during the last fiscal year. The value of liquors imported in 1911 was $18,004,908; in 1912 $19,334,605; and in 1913 $20,743,129. The preliminary report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue also shows an increase in the amount of domestic liquors withdrawn from bond, there being 143,220,056 gallons of spirits for 1913 against 135,826,789 gallons in 1912, and 65,245,544 barrels of malt liquors for 1913 against 62,108,633 barrels in 1912. In view of the growth of prohibition these figures are somewhat puzzling.

Bro. C. W. Hawkins writes that the home of Sr. R. L. Morss of San Jose Cal., has been destroyed by fire so that she has lost the addresses of her relatives and friends. She would like them to communicate with her that she may know where to write to them. Sr. Morss is a sister of Brn. Rudolph and Eli Etzenhouser.

No. 12.

PERSECUTIONS OF THE CHURCH.

Persecution is defined as "the infliction of loss, pain, or death, for belief." It is a weapon used only by the unjust—never by the good, for the good could not use it and still be good. While the persecutor usually gains victory, it is but temporary for the inevitable adjustments of time eventually reverse the result. Truth and right need no such weapons for if defeated today they will be victorious tomorrow, while victorious error and injustice will fall in disgrace. The spirit of persecution comes from beneath; the Spirit from above leads to charity and love toward all men.

Divine truth as held by the children of God has been persecution's object of attack in all ages of the world, and the greater the disparity between that truth and the belief of the persecutors the greater the severity of the persecution. When persecution takes the form of inflicting loss, it may be the loss of property, the loss of friends or family, the loss of liberty, or the loss of reputation. The pain inflicted may be physical or mental.

The gospel of Jesus Christ as restored in its ancient fullness in latter days has given occasion for many persecutions to be brought upon its believers. When Joseph Smith as a young boy told the minister that God lived, and that Christ lived, for he had seen them in vision, his claims were met only with ridicule from his auditor and the community. Later when he was engaged in the work of translating the Book of Mormon, men sought by threats, by false arrests, and other means to hinder or frustrate the work. Mobs broke into his house, and other buildings, in search of the plates from which the translation was being made. All sorts of false and ridiculous stories were circulated, many of them of a character to inflame the public mind against him.

Strange as it may seem these things were generally instigated and conducted by the leaders and ministers of the various denominations in that country, and were invariably aimed at the belief held by this man and those associated with him rather than against the individuals for the individuals' sake. An instance of this is given in the account of Lucy Smith, mother of the Prophet. During a time of severe persecution when most of the family had fled from the attacks of the mob, and she and her husband were left alone, he being sick at the time, there came a Quaker to the house when, according to the account, the following conversation ensued:

Quaker: "Friend Smith, I have a note against thee of fourteen dollars, which I have lately bought, and I have come to see if thou hast the money for me."

Mr. Smith: "Why, sir, did you purchase that note? You certainly was in no want of the money?"

Quaker: "That is business of my own; I want the money, and must have it."

Mr. Smith: "I can pay you six dollars now,—the rest you will have to wait for, as I cannot get it for you."

Quaker: "No, I will not wait one hour; and if thou dost not pay me immediately, thou shalt go forthwith to the jail, unless (running to the fire-place, and making violent gestures with his hands towards the fire) thou wilt burn up those Books of Mormon: but if thou wilt burn them up, then I will forgive the whole debt."

Mr. Smith (decidedly): "That I shall not do." Quaker: "Then thou shalt go to jail."—Joseph Smith, the Prophet, and His Progenitors, p. 192.

A waiting constable was called and Joseph, Smith Sr., was lodged in jail for debt in violation of the constitution of the land. The motive of this persecutor was identical with those of the ancient Romans under Nero, when the Christians were offered life and liberty if they would but yield their belief in the truth. In both cases the destruction of truth was the real aim.

Joseph Smith, Jr., was under the necessity of moving from place to place in order to complete the work of translation, and when the work was completed efforts were made to prevent its publication. After the church was organized and the work of preaching was begun, the persecution took on more violent forms, and men were dragged from their beds into the woods by the heels, beaten and otherwise mistreated, and were coated with tar. As the number of saints grew this form of opposition became more general, and even more violent, being manifest in every place where the church was found.

At Kirtland, Ohio, where the headquarters were for a time established, the opposition grew, being aided by some who had been in the church but not being able to endure persecution and maintain the standard of righteousness required, withdrew and finally joined the forces of opposition. In 1837-8 this opposition became so deadly that many had to flee for their lives, and ultimately nearly all the elders of the church with their families, left in a body, and the place became almost a deserted town.

In Jackson County Missouri opposition developed almost from the first approach of the earliest missionaries in 1831, and by April, 1833, a mob of three hundred developed bent on driving the church out of the community, but becoming surcharged with whiskey broke up in a row. In July violence again broke out, the printing office was destroyed and Bishop Partridge and Charles Allen dragged from their homes and tarred, and other unjust acts committed. The saints were required to leave the county, a thing which was impossible upon short notice without extreme loss and suffering. In October the fires of persecution raged still more, and by November their fury resulted in the burning of many homes, the plundering of others, the plundering of crops and stores of provisions, and men, women and children to the number of twelve hundred were driven or dragged from their homes, many of them in the dead of night, leaving their possessions, and were driven across the Missouri River from the county.

They settled in Clay, Caldwell and adjoining counties establishing new homes upon lands purchased from the government or from earlier citizens in that region, their numbers being augmented by others coming from the East. But here their former persecutors followed them and stirred up the old fires among their neighbors. Imprisonment without just cause came to some, Joseph Smith and others being kept at one time for six months without trial upon false charges and then taken out by a constable and told to get out of the country. At a place in the eastern part of Caldwell County known as "Haun's Mill," where there was a settlement of about twenty families of the church, having a mill belonging to Jacob Haun, a blacksmith shop, and a number of houses a mob of 240 made a surprise attack killing seventeen, two of whom were children, wounding many others, and even mutilating the bodies of the dead. Of this event the historian Bancroft says: "Never in savage or other warfare was there perpetrated an act more dastardly and brutal." Under an exterminating order of Gov. Boggs (the Haun's Mill massacre being one event in its execution), the membership of the church were forcibly driven from the state into Illinois during the winter of 1838-39.

In Illinois a new start was made and the city of Nauvoo was established upon the bank of the Mississippi in Hancock County which in a few years became the largest city in the state. Here the persecutors of Missouri followed and soon the mob spirit began to stir in that state followed by various troubles. In June, 1844, Joseph Smith and others who were awaiting trial in the Carthage jail were attacked by a recently disbanded company of militia and others, and Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum were killed in a most brutal manner, and some others wounded, the statement having been made that "the law could not reach them but powder and ball would." Under continued persecution that part of the church which remained at Nauvoo and vicinity was compelled to migrate in 1846, from whence they journeyed westward. Many stopped at various points in Iowa, forming settlements of a more or less permanent character, while the rest traveled on under the leadership of Brigham Young to the Salt Lake Valley.

Through all these persecutions we would not have it understood that the members of the church were free from error, and unwise actions and words, but in no case has it ever been shown that these things were in the least degree justifiable causes of the injustices that were cast upon them. Nor would it be unexpected that some acts would be committed in self-defense under the stress and excitement of the times. Slavery sentiments, political influence, had their part to play, as well as religion in the troubles that arose. Nor do we look upon the persecutors as all having acted with a full knowledge of all the conditions, for false and inflammatory reports were circulated against the saints which were believed and acted upon by otherwise good citizens who no doubt thought they were doing wisely in driving these people from their settlements.

In later years the violent forms of persecution have largely ceased, but the circulation of false stories, and gross misrepresentations continue. They flow from pulpit and press alike, and are sent out in the form of books by women's councils and other organizations. But the church still exists, and it still grows, notwithstanding its ministers and members have these reproachful falsehoods to meet everywhere. Perhaps the minds of some have been blinded by them, but the truth is mighty, and it is able to shine through the dark clouds of persecution so that sooner or later the honest in heart will perceive its rays and will follow wheresoever the light leads. In some instances the persecutors themselves have seen this light and have come in to repair so far as possible the previous wrongs.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

The Stake Sunday school convention and conference have been the leading events of interest among the saints of Independence and surrounding branches. A goodly number of delegates and visitors attended from various parts of the stake, and altogether the occasions were inspiring and delightful. Bro. Earl Corthell, stake superintendent, was in charge of the convention, Harry Barto was elected secretary to succeed Amos Allen resigned. Little business was done and the convention was largely devoted to educational work. At the conference Bro. G. E. Harrington, W. H. Garrett and M. H. Bond, of the stake presidency were associated with the minister in charge, Bro. John W. Rushton, in the presidency of the conference with Bro. Lester Haas and M. H. Siegfried as secretaries. Business occupied three sessions and was done with good feelings throughout.

According to reports received at the conference the Independence Branch numbers 2580 members, the Second Branch 331, and Kansas City Central 365 members. The total membership of the stake is 5483, having made a gain of 185 during the six months. Bishop Bullard reported receipts in the regular funds of $7,792.02, and for the special fund on church indebtedness of $784.70; a total of $10,540.72.

One of the important items of business of the conference was the decision to hold a reunion in 1914, and the appointment of a committee of seven to take charge of it. It was voted to request the committee to make ample provision for proper recreation at the reunion.

The stake secretary was directed to publish notice of proposed change of the Rules of Order section 170 referring to a stake presidency. The rules now provide that the presidency of a stake shall also be the presidency of the branch in "the city of the stake," but by this proposed change the general conference will be requested to amend, so that the central branch will have its own president separately from the stake presidency, relieving the stake presidency from local cares so that they can look more fully after the work of the stake.

The remains of Bro. C. H. Woodford were brought Tuesday from Portland, Ore., where he died while on a visit to his mother, paralysis being the cause of his death. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at the church.

The refreshing rains of the last week have been in great contrast to the dry weather of the summer. A cool atmosphere has also come bringing relaxation from the heat.

The quarterly priesthood meeting was held Monday, the subject of discussion being "sleep." Bro. Warren read a paper which was good and many brethren followed in discussion.

A week's open air meetings have been planned to begin next Sunday evening upon the lawn of Bro. A. L. Yingling, corner of River Boulevard and Waldo St. Bro. J. W. Rushton will be the speaker and the sermons will be on the subject: "Our Belief in Religion."

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Preaching at 11 a. m. by Bro. Ammon White; a very interesting talk on "Those who are willing, and do, are they who shall remain in the land of Zion."

At 2:30 p. m. a very interesting time was had, prayer and the spirit of prophecy was manifested to the edification of the saints.

At 8 p. m. preaching by Apostle Peter Anderson. He showed the necessity of the Latter Day Saints organization, tracing every dispensation, showing that before the ushering in of such dispensation, a preparation was made, and a warning given, as of "One in the wilderness crying, prepare ye the way of the Lord," and that an angel should fly through the heavens, restoring the everlasting gospel.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Admission Day was celebrated by the largest assembly of people and the most extensive parade ever known in Oakland. The native sons and daughters managed the affair.

Bro. F. M. Sheehy reports a good reunion at Myrtle Point notwithstanding the rain. They say Oregonians are well-footed any how. He and Bro. C. E. Cramley were the principal speakers.

Bro. H. J. Davison writes cheerily from Stockton where he is doing good church work. Bro. Corbellus is building up his business again; recently destroyed by fire.

Bro. C. W. Hawkins tells of a very spiritual sacramental service in San Jose last Sunday, also of the farewell sermon of Bro. C. J. Cady before joining Bro. C. W. Denel in tent work at Madera. They are commencing to prepare for the district conferences to be held there about February 28th. Bro. Stead and Reiste are prosecuting the tent work at Gridley. The interest is fair—they will give it a thorough test before leaving.

Bro. G. J. Waller sailed on the ninth for his Honolulu home after a profitable sojourn with us. He carries with him the good will and best wishes of the bay cities saints.

The sacramental services in our two city branches were very good and largely attended. The evening sermons were by Bro. James E. Kelley in Oakland and Bro. J. A. Saxe in the city. Bro. Kelley is sojourning for a time on the Oakland side at the home of our worthy Bro. and Sr. Geo. Tate. J. M. Terry.

CHICAGO, CENTRAL BRANCH.

The past week has been a week of rejoicing here. The saints did their duty by turning out to hear the wonderful message of truth presented by Christ through his servant, Bro. J. F. Curtis, one of the Twelve. On Wednesday night his subject was "Marriage and Divorce." He talked to the point and made things so plain that (as is often said) a blind man could have seen it. On Friday night his subject was "The Lord's Vineyard."

Bro. Curtis' way of presenting a point is such, that it has a lasting effect, and it is the writer's opinion that what he has planted here will grow in the hearts of many. He was the speaker Sunday morning also. Bro. H. P. W. Kier was the speaker in the evening.

C. L. Wainwright.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., FIRST BRANCH.

Wednesday at the regular branch business meeting, several measures, relating to the good of the branch, and preservation of the building, were passed. Good attendance at the meeting. Friday evening the Religio also held its monthly business meeting. As there was not much business on the slate, a short program was given. Bro. Coventry Archibald talked on "What will the city of Zion be like? There is also some good music.

Sunday morning, the 7th. Especially fine Sunday school session. The supt. Bro. Harry Tilden, gave a gratifying talk commendatory of the excellent order prevailing generally in the school. Bro. Tilden has won our respect and admiration, by his executive ability, his kindly manner and his unwavering devotion to duty.

The morning sermon as also the evening was by our pastor B. J. Scott, and were both from the heart. Bro. Scott has a very sympathetic delivery, and the morning sermon being especially to the membership was very feeling. At six o'clock the monthly sacrament service was reverently observed. We were glad to see the room well filled, and there was an especially fine showing of young people.

Two babes were blessed at this meeting by Bro. B. J. and W. W. Scott. They were James Bryon Archibald, and Mildred Irene Taylor.

Last Wednesday evening eight people braved the stormy elements to attend prayermeeting.

Friday evening after regular lesson Religions gave a nice program. Bro. B. J. Scott gave a short but succinct history of the "Temple Lot Suit." Bro. Russell McKee read the "Volunteer," and Mrs. Nell Heikes, Edna Christanson and Elma Dobson rendered a fine solo and instrumental numbers. We have some talented young people in the art of music, and they are such willing workers too, we are justly proud of them. Sunday school on the 14th was entertained by a talk by Bro. John Bear of the 2nd branch who also delivered the morning discourse. Bro. B. J. Scott occupying his pulpit at the 2nd branch.

Bro. Roy Fifer was the speaker at the 3rd branch in the morning.

The Woman's Auxiliary held an interesting meeting in the afternoon and Bro. Scott preached to a good sized audience in the evening.

Bro. Scott will begin a weeks' series of meetings commencing on the 15th at Wyatt Park Mission.

And so we are busy and happy in the grandest work in the world, toiling in the Master's vineyard.

Reporter.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Our regular sacramental service was in charge of Bro. Archibald, assisted by Bro. Cooke, Trowbridge and Reeves. The sacred emblems being passed by Bro. R. Lob. Lloyd and C. J. Remington. Remarks were made by Bro. Archibald, pertaining to our worthiness in partaking. Mrs. Keller, reporter for a Chicago journal was present and expressed herself as being pleased with the service, stating she always felt a good spirit when in our midst.

Bro. Archibald then spoke we believe by the Spirit's direction, telling of the nature and purpose of the work, the zeal and trials of our people, the latter largely brought about through false reports, and misrepresentations of the press, and admonishing our friend to be truthful in her work and the Lord would bless her.

We were pleased to again see her at the morning service of Sept. 14th when Bro. W. C. Carl of the Lansdowne Branch delivered an excellent discourse on the subject of Service. He very nicely drew the comparison between our country's soldiers, and those in God's service. He said a service of love was far better than one of fear. The thought of obedience and acknowledgment of our superior officers was very nicely impressed upon our minds.

Bro. Archibald very ably discoursed the evening of Sept. 7th on the subject of "Future Life." The regular priesthood meeting was held at 6 p. m. the same day.

Bro. Geo. Reeves creditably occupied the evening of Sept. 14th. His subject was "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

Bro. Cooke reports having been working in the gospel cause in Brentwood, Mo., and Bro. Sparling has been holding tent services in East St. Louis Illinois. Bro. Archibald speaking there Friday evening Sept. 12th.

The St. Louis district conference will convene in Bellville Ill. Sept. 27th and 28th.

Our pastor, also pastor of the Cheltenham Branch, Bro. T. J. Elliott, occupied at Cheltenham sacrament service the morning of Sept. 14th returning in evening to take charge of our evening services.

The dear little babe of Bro. and Sr. J. Bourgeret has been very ill and was remembered in our prayer service the first Sunday of the month, and since an administration on last Wednesday has been very much improved.

Owing to the illness of Sr. H. C. Burgess, wife of our Sunday school supt., he was not with us the morning of Sep. 7th. We are very sorry because of our sister's affliction and trust she will soon be able to take her place among us again.

In Bro. Harold's absence Bro. Rob. Lloyd very ably occupied. Sr. S. R. Burgess with her class rendered a very pretty song. The morning of Sep. 14 our superintendent having returned, rendered us a short talk on the "Factor of Safety" admonishing us in our Christian work to ever have a reserve factor of safety to rely on.

The Religio is doing nicely. A Book of Mormon normal class has been organized with our state superintendent Bro. G. S. Trowbridge, as teacher. A recent feature of entertainment was moving pictures of an instructive nature in charge of our president Bro. A. W. Smith.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., AUG. 29.

Editor Ensign—I have seen nothing in the ENSIGN in regard to the Joplin reunion and auxiliary work. Of course to say the reunion was a decided success would only be stating it mildly; but the Sunday school and Religio work occupied every afternoon, and to see T. W. Chaburn and his four daughters' united efforts, with the help of a number of other good, earnest workers was bound to make the auxiliary work a success and it was admiring to see Sr. McNichols pick up the little tots of the camp ground and organize and develop them into a choir, and such lovely voices they had under her training; it was inspiring to hear them sing.

The last meeting of the auxiliary work was the best I ever witnessed. All those present felt the presence of the good Spirit to a great degree.

J. T. Curtis.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., AUG. 29.

Dear Ensign—As I have just returned home from a little missionary work I thought I would write to the dear ENSIGN which I have been a subscriber of for nearly twenty years, but have written very few letters for its columns. But as I have done considerable missionary work in south and southeast Missouri and sowed the first seed of the gospel in many places where I see by the letters in the ENSIGN that it is beginning to bear fruit. I feel to rejoice to think that I have been an instrument in the Lord's hands for good and I am still striving to do all the good I can in the service of my Master. I have baptized three in the last three months and Bro. Tankard and I started from East Independence August 24th and went to Lake City and preached on the street, then to Buckner and preached on the street, then to Levasy and talked on the street, then to Napoleon and got the use of the American Union Church and began services Sunday night with a very good audience, and continued three nights. Then we went to Waterloo and occupied the miners' union hall five nights with very good crowds and L. d. a full house the last evening. We came to Atherton and held two meetings in Mr. Heiffer's hall; it is fine for preaching to all, so if any of our elders wish to, they can preach there any time.

I found Bro Tankard to be an extra good companion in missionary work, and he is a true servant of the Lord. We found very few people that professed any religion at all, but we did lots of good by going from house to house, talking to the people and giving them tracts.

In gospel bonds,

BELLAIR Ill., Sept. 1.

Editor Ensign—Bro. Henry Sparling came home with the saints from the S. E. Illinois reunion and preached 13 nights and two afternoons while here.

The afternoon services were in reply to one, Rev. Cuppy, a "Church of Christ" minister who preached on Spiritual gifts, divine healing, revelations, false prophets, etc. The second day, he preached one hour with Bro. Sparling following a like time. A good spirit prevailed and altogether a pleasant time was enjoyed. Those who know Bro. Sparling need not be told that the truth did not suffer.

I am a Latter Day Saint today and rejoice in this great and marvelous work. I have wholly depended on light from above. I can say that I know that this work is true.

The Book of Mormon is true. It makes no difference what the world says. They may say yes, or no, but that is no testimony to me.

It requires push, pressing forward, and we glory in the persistent vim and determination that are manifested in some of the workers to get the truth before the people.

My daughter will be married the 14th of Sept. to Roy D. Graham. I hope they will receive wisdom and knowledge in this great latter day work.

With kind regards to all.

Sr. Mary Ferguson.

RANGE, CONECHUB CO. ALA., Sept. 9.

Dear Ensign—In this place and vicinity are dwelling about twenty-four Latter Day Saints. We are more or less poor in this world's goods, but in an humble way are endeavoring to gather together treasures where moth and rust do not corrupt. We are an observant people as all of God's people should be, and when we read in a recent issue of the ENSIGN that the Church of the living God owed a debt of $75000 we were sorely grieved, but griefs do not pay indebtedness, so, poor as we are, we began to bestir ourselves and with old Bro. S. M. Long in the lead we talked the matter over and decided that it was our duty as children of God to give our little mite to help lift the burden of debt from off the church, and further that we are willing to give, and to give gladly, and with thanksgiving, and little offerings until the debt is fully obliterated, and in our humble way we desire to go further than that, for we are anxious that there be funds in the Lord's treasury for the purpose of the caretaking of our missionaries' families, while they are laboring in the vineyard of the Lord.

We also desire to have the Lord's treasury so replenished and filled that his church may be enabled to send more elders into the field. For this purpose we will gladly do our share also, and if all of the saints will do likewise, the debt will soon be paid and the treasure house of the Lord be filled. Let us go to work now, and do this thing, and not be sleepy and slothful, and then the God of heaven and earth will bless us with a full, pressed down and overflowing measure, as he has promised by the prophet Malachi. Let us pay our tithes from this on as it is our duty to do. Let us live so the Lord can bless us as he desires to bless us. May he keep and guide us all by his Holy Spirit of truth, and may we live for that is the prayer of your brother in the truth.

H. P. Jacobson.

MINOT, N. Dak., Aug. 23.

Dear Ensign—A good sister said to me at our North Dakota reunion this summer "If you only knew how much good it did us isolated saints to read letters from the missionaries in the church papers, I believe you would write oftener." This is my apology for this letter. But on the other hand I saw a statement in one of the general convention programs this spring which said "A wise man says little but saws wood. How big is your wood pile?" I think that many of our missionaries who do not write often, are among that class. I am glad to report that I am still in the faith of the gospel and laboring as best I can to advance the cause, but cannot report any great accomplishment.

I hardly feel like asking space to note each place visited and experience had though no doubt many of them would be interesting to many. Since the general conference I have baptized 16 nearly all of them grown persons who have heard the gospel for some time and been convinced before I came among them the results of other's labors, or my previous work among them.

I was called home the first of August to marry a couple not members of the church, they were Roy Neal and Anna Neil. The lady only changed one letter in her name in taking up her husband's name. Two weeks later I had the pleasure of baptizing the bride couple with the bride's brother Percie, thus starting the lives together in a wise way taking Christ through the Holy Spirit as a companion with them. Bro. Wm Sparling just returned from a trip across the line in Montana some miles north of my home where he made a new opening and baptized six. He and I are associated together in tent meetings here in Minot, we are having just fair attendance, trouble in the city between the Police and laboring men over the use of the streets for speaking has interfered some.

Many no doubt will remember me writing about a year and a half ago about a Sunday school that all went out when I came to attend and speak after their session, this was at A namoose, N. D. well I was there this summer and baptized the Supt. of that school and her husband, also the two girls of Bro. A. Fife, they have now a Latter Day Saint Sunday school and they have invited the Evangelical minister to preach after the Sunday School but he would not accept.

A year ago I went to Sheldon, N. Dak. we had no members there then, and preached, great persecution arose, but through it all Sr. H. Bullis and her daughter Bulliah believed and were baptized. This year Sr. Bullis attended the reunion her husband came with her and I had the pleasure of baptizing him, he was counted an infidel. Sr. Bullis in the prayer service testified that she had found that all I had declared to her about the gospel to be true.

I would like to tell you of some interesting chats I have had with several (recent) converts but my letter is getting too long, suffice to say that they are very pure witnesses for Christ and his truth.

I love the saints of God, and to read of the work and its triumphs. I hope to keep the faith, make as much progress as is possible, and unreservedly give my all to the spread and advancement of this true gospel of Christ. Pray for me.

WINNIPEG Manitoba, September 8.

Editor Ensign—While I believe that every one or nearly so in this part of the Lord's vineyard is interested to a large extent in the gospel message, I do not remember ever having seen a letter in the ENSIGN from this local, so thought that I would take the liberty of dropping a line or two for the purpose of letting you all know that Winnipeg is living in hope. We have a membership of about 98 all of whom (at least I believe so) have had their times of trial and their times of joy and rejoicing in the gospel message. Speaking for myself it brought a great hope into my life which I believe has come to stay. For the last three months we have been enjoying a great feast as far as preaching the glad tidings is concerned, having with us Bro. Ward L. Christie, whose time appears to be completely taken up to the last minute, in trying to get the great message before the people of the world (and the church too) being occupied very near every night of the week in the market place in the city, and while I am about it I wish to say that nothing but a well established belief in the message that he stands to declare would enable him with Bros. N. Wilson and D. Arey to stand before a body of people who are made-up of pretty near every denomination in the civilized world, infidels included, when after having stood for an hour or perhaps two preaching the word, a whole battery of questions are let loose on him, some for information, some for curiosity, some to confound, some to criticize, all of which have to be answered in an intelligent and kindly way. Standing there one night I heard the following remark passed by one of our faith who had been listening, "well if nothing else, that was the place to come to get an education," which I am satisfied that anyone who has been down to the market and listened will heartily endorse.

August 31st Bro Christie occupied in Zion Brotherhood Church and I believe that he is invited to preach there again on Nov. 2nd. Prejudice is being broken down in this part and the eyes of the people are being opened to the truth and to the knowledge that our God is a live God who is still able and anxious to bless and nourish his children as in the days of old. May the good work roll on.

Yours in gospel bonds,

W. Hadath,

Sec. Winnipeg Branch.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

R. M. Bradley, Nianga, Mo.—About five years ago when Bro. A. M. Baker preached here, one who heard him, like Andrew of old, findeth his brother saying, "This man preacheth more Bible than I ever heard," and he took reference to his brother, and the brother seeks further through reading of our doctrine. Two years ago when we had the tent here he came though too late to hear a full sermon, but at the close said to the minister: "Come out to our place Tuesday and I will be baptized by one who has authority." Then Bro. McFadden came and went out there and baptized some more.

J. W. A. Bailey, Ravenwood, Mo.—I have been here about four weeks with the district tent. At first it was hard to get the people out but after a week or so they began to come until at last we had a tent full. About the end of the third week I was challenged to a discussion by a young minister of the non-progressive Christian Church who was holding meetings at Parnell. He only wanted two nights but I wrote out propositions for six nights, but he would only sign for two. So we had it, the account of which Bro. E. S. Fannom, my moderator will write later; but this much I will say, they gave me a surprise with a treatment of eggs. I baptized four yesterday at this place.

W. H. and Ella Ackelson, Wellington Col.—We are among the isolated saints but are trying to live up to the gospel light. We have had lots of sickness this year but the Lord has blessed us at different times for which we feel thankful. We have three boys and a baby girl. The older ones attend the Congregational Sunday school and we have taken up the home class work in our own quarters. Saints, pray for us that we may do something in this part of the Lord's vineyard.

Abbie L. Webster, Winter Hill Mass.—I could not do without the ENSIGN as it has been such a help to me. I send them out to others when I find those who will read them. Long may the silent preacher live to carry the angel's message to the children of men.

Hulda Filian, Independence, Mo.—I have been thinking about the blessed gospel work and what it has done for me. It has taught me to put my whole trust in God. I am at the Order of Enoch House, and I hear the gospel taught in its fulness.

Mrs. K. Poort, Mansfield, Mo.—The ENSIGN is our weekly preacher. I have had severe trials the past year. I lost my husband in November, 1912, and now a new barn worth $1,000 and some stock was destroyed by lightning. When I saw the barn go down I said: "How good that the tent is paid." Some years ago I was very sick, and when administered to the Spirit said I would be healed but trials were coming, and that I would be tried. It is true, one trial after another, and I wonder sometimes if I will hold out. Let us all try to be strong in the faith.

REUNION MINUTES.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.—Reunion held at Irvington, Aug. 15-24, just closed. This reunion was considered by those in attendance who had attended reunions in this district in the past, to be one of the best ever held in the district.

Brs. F. M. Sweeney and James Keuley of the Twelve, J. M. Terry and Bishop C. A. Parkin were chosen to preside over the reunion Bro. E. F. Adams secretary. The organization was completed by choosing a chorister, organists, ushers, police and a press committee.

The preaching was up to the standard. The prayer and social services were most excellent. The saints coming from every part of the district, whose souls were hungering for the "Bread of Life" were not disappointed, they had a feast of good things. Many were heard to remark, "O! that did my soul good, I can go back home encouraged and strengthened to fight the battle of life."

The best meetings of our reunion were our prayer meetings, language neither spoken nor written, can describe the feelings of saints who sit and weep under the heavenly influence of the Holy Spirit, therefore I will not attempt it; but suffice it to say, that God was present with us by his Holy Spirit and all present were made to rejoice under its divine influence. The gifts of the Spirit were manifest to the edifying and encouraging of many.

Brs. G. T. Griffiths and C. Ed. Miller, on their way to Australia, stopped off and in their characteristic way gave us reasons to think they had not lost faith in God and his work. The prayers of saints have gone up to him whom they trust, for these self-sacrificing soldiers of the cross that they may not only reach their destination in safety, but may return home to their loved ones when they have filled the mission on which they have been sent.

Forty-six tents were located on the ground and every available room in the town was occupied by one or more of our people. The attendance was very much larger than last year. A new reunion committee was chosen in whose hands power was given to select the place and appoint the time where and when the next reunion shall be held.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

A CLEAN HEART.

BY S. S. SMITH.
(CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK.)
YOUTHFUL INDULGENCE.

We sometimes pride in the spunk and tumult of angry passion of our child in babyhood, yet when older we see him in his flaming wrath lay his brother low we cannot see only in regret the bitter outcome. Could we only see the outcome manifested at maturity of the wanton desires which will be satisfied regardless of the rights of others, we would give our children luxurious indulgence to every whim and folly of their babyhood and youth. As parents we may hold an unrelenting hatred in bitter feud against the neighbor across the way, little thinking our insane passion and pride innoculates the children of our own hearthstone for many years to come. Our vainglory, pride and hate saddles on to our posterity a burden of no small magnitude which may be damaging to their souls as well as to ours. Perpetual hating should then be avoided as a thing of unholy tendencies.

THE SIN OF ENVY.

A good definition of the word "envy" is "Pain, uneasiness, mortification, or discontent excited by another's superiority or success, accompanied with some degree of hatred or malignity, and often or usually with a desire or an effort to depreciate the person, and with pleasure at seeing him depressed. Envy springs from pride, ambition or love mortified, that another has obtained what one has a strong desire to possess."

Scripturally speaking, "Wrath killeth the foolish, and envy slayeth the silly one."—Job 5:2

"A sound heart is the life of the flesh but envy the rottenness of the bones."—Prov. 14:13.

Envy is but a work of the flesh. Like hatred and malice it seldom is concealed. Like the leakage of the barrel that reveals its inner contents. The envious words generally come with venom and pierces like the adder's bite. It is a cunning method of Satan to rob the soul of the grace of God, and it always hinders the soul from growing. The spiritual lives it has blighted are legion.

Similar to the moth in the garment it soon destroys the man. It can be compared to the scorpion confined within the circle of fire where it stings itself to death. Like a cruel tyrant whose pleasure is in ambition, selfishness and self exaltation at the expense of others, so envy would exalt itself. The way seems hard to them when others receive more praise than they. They are always distressed if they cannot have the best.

The most detestable of his kind is one who seeks to weaken or injure those whom he dislikes, or supplant a rival, who will indulge in dark hints and cowardly innuendoes when he dares not to make a specific or open charge to which he could be held accountable. The one who will profess friendship to your face and when away a fiendish delight in lowering and disparaging you with others at every opportunity is doing acts that are dastardly and contemptible. Such ignoble creatures would without hesitation destroy your reputation because of their envy or dislike, especially if they are abetted in their scheming by others of their ilk.

If God's word speaks truly, the liar and slanderer is classed with the thief and murderer. The man of the "clean heart" will see no enticement in such nefarious work, for the "clean heart" has back of it "a right spirit" within him.

A QUICKENED CONSCIENCE.

Our remedy is ever predicated upon our faithfulness to the great principles of our cause. We must make it so specifically individual that it will be the impelling force of our nature and thus go behind all social reform and supply the fountains with a righteous personal motive and aspiration. It should arouse and intensify the conscience. Futile will be our efforts to efface individual sin, until there is a sense of quickening on the part of the conscience to the magnitude of the error.

In this age of specialization, the church must also quicken its pace in holding itself definitely to the function of moulding personal character, realizing the need of contact daily of the divine mind with the human, that the nature of God may be manifest in us. Our lives thus inspired will be enabled and emboldened, and will react upon the surroundings and we will see improvement sanely and logically developed. To do this we cannot disregard material laws which have come with the sanction of the good of humanity.

CLEANLINESS IS GODLINESS.

That which ignores proper sanitation, dietetics and exercise, pure air, wholesome food and drink must necessarily be wrong. Our mission in this regard, primarily, is to start the individual right on the track of wholesome thinking, which we know will improve the mental and moral condition, and such advancement is sure to work out for him a better bodily condition as well as spirituality. Simply because the public has not adopted these views does not reason against the utility of them. It is in keeping with the gospel of Christ that the church membership should be clean in body and mind.

If the wise provisions of the Word of Wisdom were more generally carried out we would have less sickness and disease in our ranks. It is always, certainly for the best, to have pure food and drink, pure air, and general cleanliness and sanitation, because the best in the material life more surely approaches the higher spiritual life. "Be ye clean in your bodies and in your clothing" is certainly no less a command than other features of the law. Cleanliness is said to be next to godliness, but is more, it is godliness, for it is one of God's attributes.

GROWTH.

Possibly our greatest concern in view of Zion's redemption should be that of growth. To illustrate this principle we could do no better than use the one the Master gave when he said, "Consider the lilies how they grow." A constant transition appears from the gentle enfoldment when the delicate green first shows, to the stage when the beautiful white flower delights the eye. Should we become impatient at the slow growth of this procedure and seek to loosen the sheath that holds from view a delicate beauty, our efforts are futile, for the flower is not ready to leave the fostering care of its covering.

So it should be with us, each stage should be a gradual unfolding which only is complete when full time for perfection is accomplished. We should not seek to break apart from the natural and God appointed environment. The nurturing hand of an allwise Providence in its gentle guidance will bring the correction of habits and set the individual free if we only let it. God's tender love never injures or wounds the responsive heart. His blessings are sure to follow if we are subject to the Spirit's gentle entreaty, and the result will be inevitable, "first the blade and then the ear, then the full corn in the ear."

Some, it is true; under gospel tutorage develop more rapidly than others; but who can say those of faltering feet in the greater overcoming of what may have been far worse material conditions, of cast, race, or heredity, may have a richer inheritance than we who have not had such things to encounter. The standpoint from whence the start is commenced, as well as the handicap of troublesome difficulties encountered on the way, must all be considered in connection with the successful outcome as to who has made the greatest success of life. Probably like the slow unfolding palm leaf, it may mean an even greater and more enduring growth than all else.

PHYSICAL AND SPIRITUAL CLEANSING.

The Apostle Paul speaks of "The redemption of our body," also "Glorify God in your body," which poise certainly should be sought, and the sooner we fall in line the sooner we shall gain spiritual equilibrium and become a factor of merit in the great issue of life. The Pharisees were rebuked of Jesus for cleansing merely the outside of the platter and cup and giving no notice to the inside which was reeking with defilement. Not that they were to leave their bodies unwashed, but his thought was that while they kept the outside clean they were to purify the inner man of its "ravening and wickedness." By cleansing the outside is helpful in making clean the inner, so the outer symbols should be at least at par with the inner spiritual regeneration in order to have a unified, conscious and harmonious whole. Thus not only physical but spiritual regeneration also is what we want.

It is true so many of us are content to rest supinely in the evil habits and besetting sins of carnal flesh making no efforts to shake loose from sins of pollution, and we seem not to recognize in the realm of common sense the principle holds good, "The moment growth ceases that moment decay begins." Thus if the spiritual of our nature is not kept alive we will be dominated by the carnal. The carnal seems always self-assertive while the spiritual has to be cultivated and nurtured.

Rest assured no sin is forgiven by God until we precede it with repentance. We need to be reminded that growth requires the control of means, or in other words the utilization of circumstances, for the increase of wisdom and faith and social purity is not a matter left to hapazard in the problem of our salvation. Forgetfulness of this fact relinquishes ground to weakness and moral and spiritual decrepitude.

ALL GROWTH DEPENDENT ON GOD.

There are many agencies that contribute to the growth of material things, and it is a matter in which the entire solar system has to do; we can then but be impressed that spiritual growth also involves a correspondingly large number of factors. Peter declares: "Giving all diligence, add to faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

To a limited extent we are responsible for the helpful as well as unhelpful conditions around us, as well as our associations. In identifying our spiritual life there must therefore be that corresponding approach to the divine; for the realization of such a noble station to which Paul referred, "Till we all come . . . unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ," cannot be attained without the association and help of Divinity.

When this great privilege is fully sensed and accepted as possible, the well-springs of hope burst forth and a desire to drink in all its potential possibilities, for the magnifying of God's great and holy name, and the good of men; there will be evidenced spiritual wisdom and power and "a clean heart;" for the aspiration of hungering and thirsting after God is sure to win the highest beatitude.

THE SIXTH CHAPTER OF REVELATIONS

In the columns of the ENSIGN, of August 21, in the department of "The Round Table, I notice a question which calls to mind an incident of what I believe to be God's inspiration to me, and enables me to perhaps throw a little light on the subject.

A little less than a year ago a brother and I were holding a series of meeting in a little village up the way, when one day a man of another denomination passing through the village, made the assertion to a lady, that "the Latter Day Saints were afraid to try to preach from the sixth chapter of Revelation." Of course we were informed of the matter in due time.

To me, (being new in the work, in fact the first series of meetings I participated in) it sounded like a challenge. The brother, older in experience and perhaps being used to such things from the world, gave but little attention the matter. But with me it was different. I felt that the matter should be publicly answered. So I tried to persuade the brother to speak upon the sixth chapter of Revelations that evening, but he felt directed along other lines, which did not satisfy me, so I still urged the matter, which resulted in the brother telling me that if I wished I could make a short talk on the sixth chapter of Revelations at the opening of the meeting.

The time came at last, for us to go to the hall where we were holding forth, and as yet I had received no interpretation of the chapter under consideration, but with stubborn persistence I determined to make the attempt, at least, to speak a short time upon it.

Only a few moments before I was to open the service, I opened my Bible and read a part of the fifth chapter and the sixth, and in the snap of a finger, the twinkling of an eye, like a flash of light in the dark, the understanding of it came to me.

First we must bear in mind that the book of Revelations is one of symbols, and also must understand that there may be more than one symbol or set of symbols, conveying the same idea, or illustrating the same thing.

And again there is no assurance that every chapter was placed in its particular order when it was compiled and printed; there may be the mistakes of men in placing them in their present order, therefore, all the more necessary that there be inspiration in the understanding of them.

As I understand the fifth chapter of Revelations, it is mainly, almost exclusively given to an illustration of the praise and glory given to Jesus Christ, conveying the thought that he alone, is worthy to open the book.

Now before the book is opened the seals must be broken. So the question arises, what are the seals? I said in the beginning of this article, that I believe to have received my understanding of this matter from God, and will, therefore, proceed to give it in the following:

I believe the seven seals to be God's decrees of the things which have, which are, and are to take place upon the earth and in heaven. All things must be fulfilled before the book can be opened.

In the first verse of the sixth chapter of Revelations, we understand the first seal was opened and, John saw, "a white horse; and he that sat on him had a bow, and a crown was given him; and he went forth conquering, and to conquer."

Now let us see—"a white horse,"—white is, and always has been a symbol of purity; also the sign of trust. So we can look for something good, something in the form of peace, in the meaning of the white horse. Then, "he that sat on him had a bow." He was going to be able to protect himself; aye, to make war if needs be; aggressive, if you please. "And a crown was given unto him." Now we all know that the crown is symbolical of authority. The crown was given to him, he didn't take it, therefore the authority was given him by some one who was able to give, and that which he was to do, he had authority to do.

"And he went forth conquering, and to conquer." He was not going to fail in his conquest, then, but would accomplish that which he was sent to do.

Now, dear reader, I believe there can be only one logical application to the above, and that is the restoration of the gospel.

Let us make the comparison: White horse—symbol of purity and truce; the gospel restored in its purity, a truce to the nations of the earth from God. "The bow," a symbol of protection and warfare. Have not the elders of the restored gospel, been able to protect themselves in the face of adversity, and successfully make war against false doctrine and error? Yes. "A crown was given him"—Authority. Was not the restoration given the authority at the hands of an angel, sent of God? Yes. "He went forth conquering, and to conquer." Have not the elders of the restoration, successfully met their opponents and conquered? I think so.

Now we go on to the opening of the second seal. "And there went out another horse and that was red; and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another; and there was given unto him a great sword." Again we have the horse; red—the symbol of blood, the sword being the symbol of war. It would be useless for me to go into details or try to give any sort of concise report of the war, bloodshed, and discontent which have taken place since the restoration, and now exists, as all know what has past, and our social and political condition the world over at the present time. The red horse, with its rider and sword,—a very fitting symbol, indeed, of the past and present conditions of the world. "Power was given him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth."

The third seal was opened, "And I beheld, and lo a black horse; and he that sat on him, had a pair of balances in his hand." A black horse—symbolical of menace, of impending dangers, dark days and undesirable conditions. "A pair of balances in his hand." A balance is the symbol of justice, of equality, of weighing out to men that which is rightfully theirs. Let us see—has not that been the cry of the laborer from the birth of the first trade labor unions?

"Give us justice, our rights, put us on a more equal standing with our employer!" And again the great socialist movement in politics, striving for, pleading for, aye, demanding equality! Then last but not least, the woman's suffrage movement, clamoring for recognition,—equality or equal rights with man. Justice, if you please. Whether or not these various elements are justified in their demands, matters little. The fact of the case is that they are a menace to the semi-peaceful conditions of the world; forebodings of the dark days, the grievous times spoken of by Paul to come in the last days. And in the Doctrine and Covenants we are informed that every man that does not flee to Zion shall take up his sword against his neighbor. Who cannot see the rampage of the black horse and its rider with the balances?

In connection with the black horse, a voice spoke from the midst of the four beasts, saying, "A measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny; and see thou hurt not the oil and the wine."

The high cost of living is the problem of today.

Various attempts are being made to regulate the prices on food supplies, which the wheat and barley may represent. And again the intoxicating liquor business is another problem of the age which must be dealt with in the near future. Then comes the great question of the oil supply of the world, which is practically controlled by one syndicate whose power sooner or later may be broken but not without a struggle.

This lines up our present day conditions and is heralding in the time when the fourth seal will be opened.

"And behold a pale horse; and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him." Then will the grievous times be upon the inhabitants of the earth, and time of destruction and consumption of all things, as decreed. The earth, defiled under such wicked and contentious conditions of carnage and bloodshed, will cause the souls of those who were slain for a testimony of Jesus and his church, to cry out.

"And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar, the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony they held." They called upon the Lord to judge and avenge their blood on them that dwelt on the earth. White robes were given them and they were told to wait a little while till their fellow servants and their brethren that should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled. So, brethren of the true church, some of us are yet to be killed for the testimony of the Word.

Then at the opening of the sixth seal, the sun is to be darkened, the moon turned to blood, the stars fall from heaven. The kings of the earth, the great men and the bondsmen will call upon the rocks and mountains to fall upon them, to hide them from the wrath of the Lord.

The opening of the seventh seal and what is to follow, is as yet, I believe beyond our power to understand, until it is fulfilled. But be that as it may be, every decree of God must come to pass, and when the last is fulfilled, the last seal is opened, then will come the time for the opening of the book.

And who is worthy to open the Great Book? The Lamb—the Son of God who holds the keys to hell, death and the grave.

The book spoken of in Revelations, chapter 20, verse 12, as, "the Lamb's Book of Life," is undoubtedly the same that is sealed by the decrees of God, and spoken of in Revelations 5:1. which must remain closed until the last decree of God is fulfilled in regards to it. When judgment is set, and all will be judged by him who is worthy and able to judge, then will the book be opened.

The Servant.

AMERICA'S RESPONSIBILITY IN THE MATTER OF INTERNATIONAL PEACE.

Sir Edward Grey recently made some very significant statements in regard to Anglo-American friendship and international peace. In a speech of welcome to Mr. Walter Hines Page he said: "If Mr. Page comes to us with proposals arising from the desire of his government to find some way of making more remote the appeal to blind force between nations he will find in this country and from the British Government a ready response. Of all great Powers in the world the United States is most fortunately placed for taking such an initiative. It is beyond the reach of menace or aggression from any neighbor on the American continent. The idea of menace or aggression on land towards the United States is both physically impossible and intellectually unthinkable. And on either side they enjoy the protection not of a channel but of an ocean. And, after all, with all those natural advantages they have also, we know, the capacity and the resources, if they desired it, to create both a military and a naval force greater than anything the world has ever seen. Now if, from such a quarter, peace proposals come, they come beyond the suspicion of having been inspired by any feeling of pusillanimity, by any national necessity, or by any desire to secure an advantage in disarming or placing at a disadvantage any other nation who can injure them. In other words, if there are to be proposals to make war between other nations more remote, it is from the United States most certainly that these proposals could be made in the world at large with full dignity and with a good faith which is beyond suspicion. One thought more. Great as is the friendly feeling between the United States and Great Britain today, it is a friendly feeling which I trust will still grow and develop; but to whatever degree it develops and however strong it becomes, I believe it is their wish, and I am sure that it is ours, that that friendly feeling between the two countries, though it may serve as an example to all nations, should never be a menace to any."

A CLEVER HORSE.

We have often said that there is as much difference in horses as in people. They differ in looks, in color, in spirit, in endurance, in disposition, and in intelligence. There is no denying that there are many stupid horses. Many of us know also that there are not a few so clever as to startle us with what seems an almost human faculty. One of the best we ever owned, with an absolutely perfect disposition, could free herself from the halter with a facility that was at once astonishing and amusing. When one device for preventing this trick was apparently pondered over by her and its secret solved we tried another. At first last we matched her shrewdness, and the first morning she was found with the halter on she seemed, to our imagination no doubt, to be amused by the look in her eye that we had been too much for her.

A story from a Massachusetts town has just come to us of a horse that has learned how to turn the water on to the trough in his stall by working the faucet with his teeth. He never turned it off, however, and so it was taken out and a shut-off placed near the rear of the stall. His owner avers that, standing in the stall untied, a rope behind him, he has now learned to turn around, reach out some three feet and open the new faucet.

But they have their limits. We know of one which will come from any part of the stable and back into the shafts when the carriage is headed toward the exit. Turn the carriage the other way and she will promptly walk into the shafts with her nose over the dash-board.—F. H. R.—Our Dumb Animals.

THE SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD.

From France comes a wise remark on the recent efforts of scientists to determine the seven wonders of the modern world. Their choice was as follows:—wireless telegraphy, the telephone, the aeroplane, radium, antiseptics and antitoxins, spectral analysis and X-rays. Of the seven wonders of the ancient world, only one was of practical utility, the light house of Alexandria; the others were notable only for size or beauty.

"But," says the French writer, "what importance will these seven modern marvels have in the fortieth century when the learned men of that age look back upon them? We can no more predict or understand the seven wonders of the future than could the ancients predict those of the twentieth century. We cannot tell from what quarter of the globe the new knowledge will come. Is not that one reason more for men, no matter to what country they belong, to put forth all their power of investigation in a common effort and to work together to discover some of the marvels of which they are still ignorant?"

THE POWER OF THOUGHT.

BY J. E. VANDERWOOD.

"Be not deceived, God is not mocked,"
We reap just what we sow.
Our thoughts are little things; yet seeds
From which character must grow.

The thing we contemplate the most
Is what we soon shall be;
So thought, and thought alone doth rule,
And shape our destiny.

Let bestial thoughts possess thy mind
And thou wilt bestial be,
Let thoughts of love and truth abound
And soon thou wilt be free.

So brother, whoso'er thou art
Remember now, today
Thy thoughts may lead to depths of sin,
Or to the narrow way.

If lifted up thou would'st be Direct thy thoughts on high,
And follow virtue, love, and truth—
Why wilt thou sin and die?

We have our choice of pain and peace
Our thoughts determine all,
By strong and noble thoughts, we yet
May scale the highest wall.

The power of the unconquered will
Can make our life a song;
Uplifting, cheering, and serene,
To make another strong.

WHY I AM A LATTER DAY SAINT.

I became a member of this church because I believed the doctrine, and was promised by the preacher that all the blessings pertaining to the church of God were to be found in this church, that God was directing the church, and that it was the only way I could be saved in the kingdom of God. I joined the church because I wanted to live the best life it was possible for me to live.

Now after twelve years of membership, during which time I have attended at intervals the leading churches, the question arises—Why do I remain a Latter Day Saint?

If I have been deceived by the preacher who converted me to this church, then I will look elsewhere for salvation, but if his words were true and he was commissioned by heaven to baptize me as were Saint Peter and Saint Paul of old, and I have been the recipient of the blessings promised then will I remain where I am. I am determined not to be fooled because it would be an awful thing to hear the words "Depart from me" at a time when I was expecting to enter into the joys of eternal bliss. Then the Latter Day Saint church is so unpopular. I don't like to be unpopular by nature.

The sum and substance of the whole matter is this: What will be the outcome of my life as a faithful Latter Day Saint? and what will the outcome of a faithful life as a member of a popular church? I have found by actual experience that if I work for one man that I cannot look to another man for my reward.

If God is the author of the many divided churches he will reward all the faithful members of the same. He could not do otherwise. But if he has not built up the many different and contradictory creeds, if they are the work of MAN, then must their membership look to MAN for their reward. It could not be otherwise. I read in the Holy Scriptures that many will be teaching in the name of Christ and will deceive many. Now there are but a few Latter Day Saint preachers so I know this Scripture must find its fulfillment elsewhere.

I have found the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints to be God's own production, in letter and in spirit. If I live faithful I will be placed with the faithful saints of former days, because I with them have been faithful to the commandments of God and am entitled to the highest reward. I know that I as a man could not offer any one a mansion in the kingdom of heaven, because I as a man am confined to this earth and will soon perish. If the many full filled churches are the production of men, then their membership will not bring them inheritances in the kingdom of God, unless the Father above uses a means of saving them when they have departed this life.

For me the call—"Come unto me" means now, at the present time. I read in the Scriptures that there is only one way to come Christ. If I come to one that he has sent I am coming to him. Christ says that he who receives whom Christ sends, receives Christ. The Scriptures say there will be many saying "Come." The man who says "come to me" and honestly admits that Christ did not by revelation send him, I know is without authority and his promises are a man's promises, so I am not deceived by him unless I am willing to be deceived. He has chosen the ministry as a profession. He will receive his reward in this life and a strict examination at the hands of God in the life to come. He will be called to account for his great assumption: representing God without authority. If the blind lead the blind they will all fall into the ditch.

But how about the ministers who say that they have been divinely chosen for their work.

I will examine what they have to offer. What is it? Is there any one of them who, when I am sick will lay their hands on me for my recovery? If not, why not? The words of the Apostle James: "Let him call for the elders of the church; [Not churches. J. A. F.] and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up." If the ministers of the popular churches refuse to do the work Christ and his ministry did is it not a self-evident fact that they are unable to do it?

I will examine what they have to offer further. I hear in the different churches from their ministry that there is a great lack of devotion and spirituality among all the church. (They have a habit of calling the man, separate and distinct denominations "the church.") They say their church is almost devoid of power, that there is but little interest among their members in trying to co-operate with God in the salvation of the world. If that is the case, and it is, it is plain to be seen that God is not co-operating with them, therefore I am not attracted to that kind of a church.

I am a Latter Day Saint because the old Jerusalem gospel is again being preached with authority in the world by this church, preached as it was in, the good old days when its representatives were imprisoned and killed. I am living now in the good and golden age for salvation, when the gospel sound in its fulness is again heard, (although sad to relate the first messenger to blow the gospel trumpet in these latter days was imprisoned and slain.)

History repeats itself. Many churches in the day Christ was on earth living on the words of dead teachers, rejecting the living ones and misunderstanding the dead ones. Christ told them plainly "In vain do ye worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men." So today many preachers are teaching for doctrine the commandments of men, opposing the living teachers who are teaching the same message the ancient teachers taught, as the popular churches rejected God's ministry in Christ's day saying: "We have Moses and the prophets." Today the same class say: "We have Christ and the Bible, but they follow neither the Bible nor Christ.

I am a Latter Day Saint because the Latter Day Saints follow both. There is no especial credit attaching to any member of this church for its existence. God is its author, and to him be all honor for establishing his church in these latter days.

He who is supreme in power and majesty, who created the heavens and the earth, and who is now working as he did in the days of the Apostle Paul for the salvation of men, has confirmed me with power, adopted me as a child in his kingdom, so that I can say with Job of old: "I know my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God."

GRACELAND COLLEGE DAY.

October 5 will soon be here, and that is the day, the first Sunday in October, which has been duly set apart by the General Conference as Graceland College Day.

In undertaking the work of Graceland College we are going through each department as critically as possible to enforce every possible economy. The farm, the hotel, including board and room rent, and the various industrial departments should be made to pay and carry their own burdens. We believe that the studio departments, piano, vocal, and oratory, should, both collectively and separately, be placed on a self-sustaining basis. Also, we believe the Commercial Department and the shop work should be able at least to come out even. But when it comes to academic work, we know of no institution in which tuition and incidental charges meet all of the necessary expenses. To place the tuition at such a figure would make it prohibitive. But this deficit can and should be kept as small as possible, and that we propose to do.

Graceland is of special value in the help it renders to worthy young men and women of the church who desire an education. On this feature alone, it should appeal to all of us, and should receive our support. In this sense it is not local, nor should it be made to depend too much on local support.

We are asked often, "Of what value is it to me?" In the first place, this work can never succeed on the basis of selfishness. The church needs trained men for the future work rising before it. In the second place, the benefit will eventually be felt in every branch and district of the church, for young men now being prepared will be among our future missionaries. In the third place, we hope the time is not far distant when a successful department of extension work may be added to the educational work and carried by the church to every branch, and to every person desiring help in self-improvement, whether they desire help as far as a college degree, or special preparation for some particular line of work.

These features are in addition to the ones usually urged: that it is a standing advertisement that the church does not believe in ignorance, but in wisdom and knowledge, and that we fear no test of truth however critical. Also it is an advertisement within the church that the position of the church in all ages has been for enlightenment. Graceland looks to the necessary care of the young men and women, and especially of the sons and daughters of our missionaries. It promises the advantage of a school of our own, as pointed out in the resolution of the conference of 1869. (Church History, volume 3, page 520). Within the limits of this sketch we can only touch in parts upon these features of the value of the college to us.

At present the college has a larger debt than at any time in the past, but it has also very much greater assets. This increase of assets is shown despite the fact that we have made a depreciation of about one thousand dollars a year, in accordance with good business practice. In other words, about that amount should be spent each year for the repair of the buildings and upkeep of equipment, and so is charged as depreciation. The net assets over the whole of this present indebtedness is greater than were the total assets nine or ten years ago, which simply means that the cause of the present indebtedness is the securing of greater equipment, more buildings and land. However, this policy should not be followed, but the debt should both be reduced and finally paid off, and then kept paid off. The trustees should then be expected and required to work within the limits determined by the body.

Some of you have paid your endowment. Many others have not. This feature of the work has not been dropped, but we have not pushed it this year, at the request of the Presiding Bishopric, so as not to interfere with their efforts to raise the special fund needed. Part of this money asked for by the Presiding Bishopric—as requested by the joint council—will be used for the reduction of the college debt, and we urge that the college be remembered as well as other institutions in this connection.

But if only this special fund is raised, we would not be any better off than we were a year ago, as there are the regular tithes and offerings and the regular expenses to be met as in the past, and this special fund is an extra for the immediate reduction of the church debt.

So now comes the College Day collection. This collection is primarily for meeting the running expenses of the college. This year the present indications are that we will have a large enrollment, which will mean additional funds for the running of the college. The year 1911-1912 the deficiency was only $5,200, and this was more than met by the offerings and endowments. We hope to make it as low or even lower this year, regardless of the size of the College Day collection. So if this is generous, as it should be and we hope for, we shall have from that source additional means to apply on the college debt. Let us make our help liberal, as the money will be strictly applied as stated to the necessary expenses of the college and to the reduction of the debt. This money is immediately needed, because if we can pay off our running accounts for last year, we shall then be able to deal for cash in the running expenses this year and so make better terms and run the college more economically. Can we make good? Will we?

ABIDING FAITH.

MRS. E. S. LOSEY.

When the golden sun is slowly sinking in the west,
And all nature worn and weary, seeks its quiet rest,
When my heart is sick and fainting with its burdens here below,
And my soul cries out in anguish, "God in heaven, bid me go!"
Then the moonlight softly filters through the softening eastern sky,
And the stars come one by one, like myriad diamonds from on high,
And I wonder as I watch them, some there are that shine so bright,
While others faintly twinkle till I scarce can see their light,
Still on every pleasant evening there see I them in their place
And the moon seems never weary showing forth a beaming face.
Why should I—a mortal—the best loved creature God hath made
Weary of this life he gave me, why should I his plan unbraided?
Even though I shine so faintly like the faintest star above,
God's great mercy will reward me, I will share within his love.
But I cannot be contented with the light of moon or star;
I would fain reach out above them to the sun's great light afar;
O my soul cries out within me, Father help me by thy grace,
That I may be sometime worthy to behold thy loving face,
Even though I gain the glory of the star or moon above,
Still, my Father! I will trust thee—trust thy pity and thy love,
And my faith shall never waver and my hope shall never wane,
But I'll still work on in heaven till thy presence I attain.

Do not let the empty cup be your first teacher of the blessings you had when it was full.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY IN REUNION.
CAPACITY.

The following account is by Sr. M. A. Etzenhouser. We feel we speak for all who had to stay at home, when we say we appreciate hearing of the interest in and success of our work at these places. Are there not others of our field or local workers, who will let us hear from them occasionally?—Ed.

FIELD WORK.

Perhaps it would be of interest to you readers to hear of the work of the Woman's Auxiliary at the New Philadelphia, Ohio, and Montrose, Iowa reunions. At New Philadelphia the reunion committee gave us a session every day for Auxiliary work (that is Religion, Sunday school and Woman's Auxiliary work.) This time was from 9:30 to 10:30 each day. Besides this, during the morning preaching Sr. Hattie Griffiths conducted summer school work with the children, thereby relieving tired Mothers, besides teaching the children many useful things, picture frames, book marks, horse reins, doll hats and napkin rings. . . . Finger exercises were taught, suitable songs sung and each day a story told during the rest period of each session. Sr. Griffiths was assisted in her work by many of the young people who willingly helped in the teaching and story telling. The attendance would average about thirty, and to see the bright happy faces of the children, and hear the expressions of gratitude from the mothers, more than repaid the efforts put forth. Quite an interesting display of the work of the children was shown on the last day of the reunion.

Sr. M. E. George, President of the Kirtland district of The Woman's Auxiliary conducted three afternoon classes taking up the departmental work of the Auxiliary; there being a splendid interest shown. Our young brother L. F. P. Currey took his class of young men out under the trees and there they had heart to heart talks on their every day problems and how to meet them. They reported that they did not have nearly long enough time as their session was so interesting. The young ladies were taken care of along the same lines by Sr. Etzenhouser.

The reunion committee besides the morning sessions, gave us two evenings. Bro. S. A. Burgess gave us a lecture along lines of Social Purity. His text was "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." There were also short talks, subjects as follows:—Eugenics, The Boy in the Home; and Bible Story telling. We also taught hammock making to some of the grown-ups, and altogether we had a very interesting and profitable time, and will ever look back with pleasure to our meeting with the saints in New Philadelphia. Toward the close of the reunion one of the members of the reunion committee came to us and asked "Is there anything that we could do that we have not done, that we might yet do to help you in your work? And we felt like answering from the heart, "Nay verily, never have we been treated better, and never have we met a committee that has been so liberal with us in giving so much time." We almost felt that they had been too liberal and so stated to them. They answered "We wanted to treat you right."

At Montrose, Iowa we were given the afternoon for Auxiliary work. This time was broken into somewhat by sight seeing. Just across the river was historic Nauvoo with its many places of interest to the saints, and down the river was the Keokuk Dam the opening of which took place during our reunion, but all things considered, we had a very profitable time. In our special line our program work was as follows:

Class work: Ailments of children, Sr. Maggie Wright in charge. Sr. Wright is a practical nurse and so was qualified to handle the subject in such a way that valuable help was given to the young mothers present.

Telling fibs to your children, and government of the child in the home was the subject of a round table discussion that Sr. Lacey had charge of. This proved very profitable and interesting.

Sr. O. R. Miller taught a class of sisters how to make a tailored button hole, and so showed us along what practical lines the Domestic Science department may be conducted.

Bro. Albert Carmichael conducted a men's class; subject "Social Purity." He strongly advised that fathers make comrades of their boys and that they teach them eugenics when they reach the proper age.

The young women's department was represented by the young women who formed a class and discussed "What should be the young woman's attitude toward those of the opposite sex?" All took part, and afterward some came to us and stated that they would not forget the advice given. Bro. Elder A. Smith gave us a thirty minute talk; subject—Bible story telling and its value in the home. This was done in his own interesting manner. Among other things he told us how Billy Sunday tells a Bible story. Altogether we feel that friends to the cause were made and good accomplished.

PASTORAL.

INDEPENDENCE BRANCH.—To the Priesthood:—
Dear Brethren:—In the interest of the young people and recognizing the excellent influence that is exerted in a prayer-meeting, and knowing that those who are called to the priesthood are to be leaders in all good things, they are recognized as such by the people generally, and whether we wish to think it is so or not, it is a fact just the same, that the laity take observations and they form estimates of us from what they are able to discover about us. Whether they are justified in their conclusions regarding us as to our spiritual, or moral worth, is a question, but undoubtedly we can measure up more satisfactorily if we are in action where we expect them to assemble and where it has pleased God we should all be, when such can be done.

Therefore I am writing this letter with the view of, at least, enlisting your co-operation among the youth and middle aged of the church. You may or may not be aware that there has been very little interest for some time in the young people's prayer-meeting, and I believe it is due to some extent, to a lack of attention on the part of the younger members of the priesthood attending there, however, the presidency of the branch intend so far as possible, to strive to make the young people's prayer-meeting one that will not only be largely attended, but will give forth the manifestations of spiritual fervor that will convince those who are in attendance that lives are being consecrated to God, wholly and solely giving heart worship to our heavenly Father.

I hope that you will not fail me in making, if necessary, an extraordinary effort to be with us on the Wednesday evenings of the week. Come with thoughtfulness, with prayerful hearts and determined that you will participate in the services, whether assisting in the stand or among the audience, but be sure and be on hand so as to be available as needs shall determine by direction in the services.

Very sincerely yours,
G. E. Harrington.

DIED.

SCHUNK.—Thomas F. Schruuk, husband of the late Sr. Lucy Schruuk who died Oct. 24, 1911, was born at Uniontown, Penn. Aug. 14, 1840. Died Aug. 26, 1913 at Colfax Sanitarium. He was married to Lucy Hammond in 1869. There survives him two sons, John of Atkinson, Neb., Francis of Osterdock, Ia. and five daughters, Mrs. Mary Mosier, Mrs. Ella Mosier, Mrs. Dora Wilder, Miss Inez Schruuk, (all of Osterdock, Ia., Mrs. Pauline Eledge, of Colesburg Ia., and eighteen grandchildren. During the Civil war he served in the 15th Reg't Ia., Vol. Infantry, marched with Sherman to the sea, was in the grand parade at Washington D. C. at the close of the war, He was favorable to the church and made the elders welcome to his home and assisted them financially. The deserving needy found in him a helpful friend, he assisted them in a way that they could help themselves, the most consistent form of charity. He added an honorable family to the community noted for integrity and virtue. The funeral services were held at Bethel Chapel (between Osterdock and Colesburg Ia.) Sunday Aug. 31, 1913 at 2 o'clock p. m. Elder Jas. McKiernan of Farmington Ia., in charge. The interment was in the Cemetery near the Chapel.

PRAYER ANSWERED BY CROSSES.

I asked the Lord that I might grow

In faith, and love, and every grace;

Might more of his salvation know,

And seek more earnestly his face.

'Twas he who taught me thus to pray,

And He, I trust has answered prayer;

But it has been in such a way

As almost drove me to despair.

I hoped that in some favored hour

At once He'd answer my request,

And by His love's constraining power,

Subdue my sin and give me rest.

Instead of this, He made me feel

The hidden evils of my heart,

And let the angry powers of hell

Assault my soul in every part.

Yea more—with His own hand He seemed

Intent to aggravate my woe;

Crossed all the fair designs I schemed,

Blasted my gourds, and laid me low.

"Lord, why is this?" I trembling cried!

"Wilt thou persevere thy worm to death?"

"'Tis in this way," the Lord replied,

"I answer prayer for grace and faith."

"These inward trials I employ

From self and pride to set thee free,

And break thy schemes of earthly joy.

That thou may'st seek thy all in me."

Rev. John Newton.

KEEPING THE COMMANDMENTS.

"Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Matthew 28:20.

Neglecting some of the commandments of God while observing others is a common fault of the followers of Christ. Perhaps no man has followed Christ so perfectly as to have kept every commandment, but the purpose of every man should be to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." The extent to which a man keeps the commandments determines his nearness to God, for the sin of disobedience now as in Eden removes man far away.

Neither the name Christian nor Saint borne by man is any guarantee that he is keeping all the commandments of God. Such a name only means that he has taken it upon himself to do this to the best of his ability. But many of the professed followers of Christ are failing to observe some of the commandments so plainly given in the Scriptures, largely for the reason that they have been taught that such commandments are no longer in force, and because other commandments—of men, have taken their places. One such is the universal commandment relating to baptism, which has been partially or wholly discredited by most Christian people, sprinkling or pouring infants being substituted for the immersion of believers as taught by Christ and his apostles.

Of those who worship according to the commandments of men Jesus said: "In vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men," showing that any substitutes whether of doctrine or ordinances are not acceptable to God, nor acknowledged by him. He further said: "I know that his commandment is life everlasting." The commandments given of God through his Son and his ministry point out the things which are essential for man to do in order to gain life, and only by doing those things can eternal life be had.

The saints, as members of the one body of Christ, are not free from the tendency to neglect some of the commandments. The command: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength," must be observed equally with the commandment to be baptized if one would gain a fullness of life. To take but a casual interest in our service to God while giving great attention to selfish interests, is failing to fulfill the whole law. To spend six days and $100 in personal pleasure and a part of one day and perhaps $1 in the service of God is not worshipping him "with all thy strength."

Perhaps the greatest failures of the people of God are made relative to the commandment: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Individuals may have come up to the standard required here, but God has instructed his church that this should be done collectively, but so far the body has failed to put this law into full operation. If saints think the Christian world blameworthy for not having complied with the first principles, what must be our attitude before God who sees that we have failed to comply with the more advanced principles in dealing with each other? "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me."

Every commandment is a part of the great law of life, and obedience to every one essential. Jesus directed his apostles to teach the people to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." The true followers of Christ will seek to know and to do all the commandments which the Lord has given.

LATENT POWER.

There are times when to keep silent and still requires more strength of character than to speak and act. A display of great mental or physical power will not in many cases meet the demand of a critical situation so well as absolute self-restraint.

Jesus when met in the garden by a great multitude having swords and staves showing great military power, reproved the active Peter for defending him. He could have called twelve legions of angels, but he didn't. He could have called down fire from heaven upon his enemies, but he didn't. When standing before the high priest listening to the accusation of false witnesses he held his peace. Before Pilate when accused of the chief priests and elders, "he answered nothing." He was able to heed the challenge of the rulers and the soldiers to come down from the cross and save himself if he were the Christ, but divine love, wisdom, and power, were shown forth in far greater degree by his self-restraint than would have been by a miraculous deliverance.

In all these things the strength of the Son of God is shown. It would have been weakness for him to do otherwise. But how is it with men? Too often criticism or complaint will bring a resentful response if not a counter charge. An injustice is oft the occasion for the exhibition of physical force. The power of silence and self-restraint is that which all men need to know and use.

The counsel of the Lord to his disciples to be "wise as serpents and harmless as doves," requires the ministry to speak the proper thing at the proper time. To tell of the choice blessings of God to those who despise his truth is like casting pearls before swine. To boast of mighty miracles and of faith before the unbelieving is to subject God's gifts to contempt. Under these conditions silence is precious and utterance is sin.

Many occasions arise in life when it would be well to observe the command: "Be still, and know that I am God." In other instances a few moments careful thought before speaking or acting will save many troubles. This is especially true in a business meeting as so often appears, when the unwise form of a motion hastily made involves an assembly in trouble from which considerable time is often required to become extricated. The hasty word is more often an evidence of weakness rather than of strength and wisdom.

So long as you do not quarrel with sin, you will never be a truly happy man.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 13.

THE APOSTASY.

The Satanic power of opposition which was so desperately exerted to prevent the inception of the work leading to the restoration of the gospel, and which was manifested in the numerous acts of violence which followed the church and its leaders, did not stop with its attacks from the outside, but sought in various seductive ways to gain admission into the church by influencing its members to thoughts, beliefs, and acts which would lead to their moral and spiritual downfall. That the adversary found some success in this is one evidence of the divinity of the work rather than the contrary, for that which is of God always meets the strongest and most subtle attacks of the enemy.

Men may be deceived but God never. Of the work of the adversary a revelation given in 1831 said:

Behold, verily I say unto you, that there are many spirits which are false spirits, which have gone forth in the earth, deceiving the world; and also Satan hath sought to deceive you, that he might overthrow you.—Doctrine and Covenants 50:1.

That men should be found in the church who by hypocrisy should deceive some is strictly in harmony with history, and the teaching of Christ that "the kingdom of heaven is like a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind." The church was also warned in the same revelation that

There are hypocrites among you, and have deceived some, which has given the adversary power. . . . But we unto them that are deceivers and hypocrites, for thus saith the Lord, I will bring them to judgment.

Further warning was given in the following:

Ye are commended in all things to ask of God, who giveth liberally, and that which the Spirit testifies unto you, even so I would that you should do in all lowliness of heart, walking uprightly before me, considering the end of your salvation, doing all things with prayer and thanksgiving, that ye may not be seduced by evil spirits, or doctrines of devils, or the commandments of men, for some are of men, and others of devils. Wherefore beware, lest ye are deceived.—Doctrine and Covenants 46:3.

These statements, with many others which might be quoted from the revelations, show that the adversary had already sought, and would continue to seek, among the members of the church to accomplish his work of deception and seduction, and only by faithfulness in keeping the commandments, and diligence in prayer, could the saints hope to be free from this influence.

From the time of its organization in 1830 the church had a rapid growth, gathering people of all classes and nationalities. The principles and organization to which they gave support were new the country was new, and the advantages of the press were very limited so that the opportunities of the members of becoming thoroughly familiar with the law of the church were not of the best. Under these conditions it is not strange that some failed to keep all the commandments, and that the zeal of some was greater than their wisdom. The unceasing persecutions wore out the patience of some and they gave way to feelings of resentment and opposition. All of these things prepared the way for failure.

Of an estimated membership of 150,000 to 200,000 in the whole church at the time of the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith in 1844, the city of Nauvoo, Ill., and its environs (the headquarters of the church) contained probably about 25,000. Difficulties and troubles had already had place among the aints involving some of the elders in consequence of which some left the church of their own choice and others were expelled as far back as 1838. Spirituality waned and when the prophet was taken in death the body of the church at Nauvoo became an easy prey to the ambitious of false leaders.

Joseph Smith, son of the prophet had been designated by his father in accordance with the law of the church, to be his successor, but he was only twelve years of age at that time and the church must wait for his leadership until he should attain his majority. Brigham Young held a prominent position as head of the quorum of apostles and had in previous years labored diligently in the gospel work. In opposition to a number of others he asserted his claims to temporary leadership of the church, and his strong personality aided by his position enabled him to gain control over that part of the church at Nauvoo, excepting such as chose to follow other leaders in leaving the place, or to follow no leader.

The great body of the church away from Nauvoo never acknowledged the claims of Brigham Young, but many of them becoming confused over the state of affairs followed no leader but their own counsel. In 1846 under the pressure of persecution Brigham Young led his following from Nauvoo across Iowa to points near Council Bluffs and Omaha, and ultimately to Utah, many dropping off by the way and settling in colonies especially in Iowa. Gradually the order of the church, its doctrine and organization were changed. At Winter Quarters, (Council Bluffs) Mr. Young secured his election as president of the church, or more properly speaking, his following, for the church at large had been given no notice of any such election and had no opportunity of being represented in it. He assumed the position without an ordination to that office in direct violation of the law of the church.

Upon arriving at Salt Lake he required every member to be "re-baptized" and every minister to be re-ordained, a procedure unwarranted by the law of the church. Soon doctrines began to be taught which had been unknown under the leadership of Joseph Smith such as a plurality of gods, a plurality of wives, that "Adam is our god," that an enemy or apostate could be saved by shedding his blood, that Christ was not literally the Son of God, that the accepted word of God was supplanted by the authority of the "living oracles," (the priesthood), and many others, all of which were contrary to the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants adopted by the church under Joseph Smith.

The rule of the church that a man must be called of God before being set apart to any office, was discarded, and the rule was adopted by which the president of the apostolic quorum should succeed to the office of president. The endowment of the Holy Spirit which was given to the elders in the early church at Kirtland, Ohio, by which they were qualified for the work of the ministry, was degraded to the level of human ceremonies involving secret oaths and covenants of a nature altogether foreign to the gospel originally received. In practice the original law of the church requiring strict obedience to the law of the land was disregarded, and the civil law violated in many points.

These things but show the fulfillment of the warnings divinely given against being "seduced by evil spirits and doctrines of devils," and because they failed to heed the warning they were overthrown and lost their standing in the gospel. With the advance of years these doctrines and practices have been largely abandoned or modified by the church in Utah. The original church under Joseph Smith held to the doctrine of present revelation, and continued to receive such until his death, but under Brigham Young the people in Utah received no revelation, nor have they under his successors.

Prophetic statements in the revelations told of this very result. The failure was man's however, and not God's. But there were many faithful ones who upheld the pure principles of truth, and diligently opposed the corrupt doctrines and practices followed by those of the west, and in due time among these moved the Spirit of God leading them in their work of clarifying the truth from false doctrine and in bringing about the reorganization of the church upon the original principles. The Lord's work has not been frustrated, and the original church as reorganized, having the leadership of the legal successor who was properly called and ordained, is continuing the work of the gospel as begun in 1830.

The national convention of church organists by its expert condemnation of some of the old hymns has revived the criticism on church hymns. The advance of the world in "technical skill" along various lines has developed criticism of more than the hymns of Christianity. The ancient truths, some of which are expressed in the soul-stirring hymns, have not been exempt from this criticism, and modern civilization thinks it has largely outgrown the old-time precepts and has found a better way of worshipping God than is taught in the Bible.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

The change of the temperature from the 100 mark of two weeks ago, to near the frost line has restored the normal vim and push to human activities. The services at the stone church were better attended than for some time, excepting perhaps conference Sunday, and the evening audience was unusually large. Elder W. E. Peak was the morning speaker. He defined the "church of the devil" as mentioned in the Book of Mormon as a general term including all who work evil, and not as applying to any particular organization. In likemanner the "Church of the Lamb of God" might in a broad sense be held to include all who are working right eousness according to the best light they have, even though they are not within the church organization. Scriptural evidences were used to support these views.

The time of the afternoon prayermeeting was well occupied with the prayers and testimonies, the spontaneous theme being the evidences of God's goodness as shown in miraculous manifestations. Elder John W. Rushton was the evening speaker.

The tent meetings which have continued through the summer in various parts of the city were brought to a close on last Sunday at Walnut Park. A basket dinner was prepared which gave opportunity for the saints to come in social contact with their neighbors and friends, and in the afternoon a musical program was rendered in which the Independence orchestra and choir took part. Sr. Bencie Griffiths has faithfully looked after the musical part of the services during the tent season and her closing effort was indeed commendable, and appreciated by all. Bro. F. C. Keck has been assisting Bro. Jenkins for several weeks.

The decision of the Public Utilities Commission fixing the telephone rates to Kansas City at five cents, has been made permanent by the Commission upon the agreement of the two telephone companies. An attempt was made last Spring to raise the rate to ten cents but upon appeal the Commission ordered the old rate retained until a hearing could be had. The present agreement and decision of the Commission makes the five cent rate permanent.

Kansas City has passed an ordinance prohibiting minors of opposite sex from riding in motor cars, between the hours of 9 p. m. and 6 a. m. without a parent or reputable chaperone.

Bishop Kelley addressed the elders at the priesthood meeting on Monday evening, setting forth some points of the law relating to temporal things, and answering questions. The other divisions of the priesthood met in quorum capacity to discuss questions relating to their duties and the church law.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Sunday school convened at the regular hour with an attendance of 207, a falling off from the usual number; collection $4.78. Bro. Fields gave a very interesting talk to the children.

At the 11 o'clock hour Bro. G. W. Eastwood talked concerning the financial part of the church. All were profited. At 2:30 p. m. was the regular afternoon prayer service and a good time was had; all who were there in possession of the Spirit, surely enjoyed being there. The evening hour was occupied by Bro. Earl Corbith who gave an interesting talk on the relation existing between parent and child, showing that one of the most important duties of a parent to the children was to see that they grow up in the fear and adoration of the Lord, and one good way to do this is to see that they are at Sunday school and church, and under the immediate watchcare of parent.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

On the morning of Sunday Sept. 14 we had the pleasure of listening to a good sermon by Bro. B. J. Scott of the First Branch and on the 21st we had with us Bro. J. L. Bear Sr. of Independence Mo., who, having grown old in the work, has many experiences to relate concerning God's dealings with his people. As one looks upon this tottering old man whose hoary head bowed down with years of service, whose life has been spent in the cause of truth, one can not help but feel that he is another testimony to the truth of this glorious work in which we are engaged, and feel a desire to press onward, ever upward, until we achieve the goal into which this old servant of God will soon be ushered.

The tent meetings have been discontinued on account of the recent rains flooding the tent with mud and water. There is some sickness among the saints in this vicinity, hence some depression of spirit, still the most of us are willing to put all trust in "the Giver of all good" and say with him of old—"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Bro. J. A. Anthony preached in the city branch Sunday morning. Bro. G. S. Lincoln being the evening speaker from the text "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me." The Oakland speakers were Apostle J. E. Kelley at 11 a. m. followed in the evening by Dr. W. P. Bush.

Bro. J. A. Saxe and Kenneth Richmond held services Sunday morning at Irvington, where they had a spiritual time though few in number. Bro. Saxe holds regular services there trying to keep the remnant together and is doing a good work.

The church improvement committee gave a muscle on the 12th under the management of our branch chorister Dr. W. P. Bush. It was a great success, the program being of a high order and the numbers were well executed. Mrs. Cuderian with her violin, Bro. Claude Walker with his vocal powers, dimmutive Jessemae Bush and her violin, Sr. Ethel Crocker at the piano, also Sr. Kaela Ingham, Bro. Robert Taylor in his reading, also Sr. O. J. Teal, Miss Christiana Walter made the piano breathe out beautiful music. Dr. Bush and his cello and Sr. Mandy Smith in her all around work, made up the pleasing performers. Doctor said we could look for another one.

We went to Sacramento on Saturday last and spent a very pleasant Sunday with the branch there. The Sunday school was well attended, quite an array of children. Sr. Blair in charge. We enjoyed talking to the children. At the morning hour we spoke with good liberty on "The bride hath made herself ready." The Religio at 6:30 was interesting. Bro. Bean in charge. We spoke again at 7:45 with good spirit and liberty on "I will build my church." The day to me was a very pleasant one. We are grateful.

Bro. T. J. Lawn is slowly recovering from his accident which came near costing his life. We also found Bro. C. W. Earle still confined to his home though in an improved condition. We also called on Sr. Twardell who is suffering from paralysis. We found a comfortable and welcome home under the roof-tree of Bro. William N. Dawson. May peace and success attend the Sacramento Branch.

The Windsor appointment was omitted this month on account of hop picking but we expect a rousing meeting there on Oct. 12th. A number there should be baptized. We hope they will.

CHICAGO, FIRST BRANCH.

A former branch member, Sr. Ida Brown, now in Oklahoma, was recently inquiring through these columns if First Chicago were dead. We are not dead and can prove it.

A year ago the church, we had just finished paying for on Homan Ave., was sold and a lot bought in a fine residence locality at Gladys and 44th Ave's. In three months we were worshipping in a fine new 28x50 ft. brick church. The lower auditorium has an assembly room 27x30 ft., a good sized kitchen with gas stove, sink and large pantry adjoining; two toilets with lavatories, coal room and furnace room. The upper auditorium has a slanting hard maple floor with 18 inch drop. The aisles and rostrum are covered with green brussels, the floor and wood-work varnished. This room has a seating capacity of 200. The pews are of dark maple. It is lighted by electricity, with gas for emergency, and heated by steam. The property is worth $7,000 with only $1,500 indebtedness. Four years ago we had scarcely anything and were in a rented hall facing a car line. This is one evidence of life. Of course we have been subjected to the vicissitudes of joys and discouragements but withal there has been peace and harmony.

Elder David Dowker, our missionary, and wife lost their three months old baby, April 18th, following this Sr. Dowker was sick for a month; a little later the others of the family took their turn, but at present all are enjoying good health.

There have been many changes recently in our membership. Bro. S. C. Good and wife, L. A. Hartshorn, wife and daughter Frances, B. F. Logan and wife, moved to New York in June, taking away in each a good efficient worker of ten to thirty years experience in the branch. For many years Bro. Good was branch president and Bro. Hartshorn deacon and had charge of the construction of our present church. About the same time there were added in their place Bro. Elmer Hoover and family, Elmer Riner and wife and Bro. C. F. Gillet and wife who moved here from Milwaukee to obtain branch privileges. Bro. John Petterson and wife by baptism. These are saints who realize their responsibilities. More recent additions are Sr. Paula Wipper, Bro. George Varrell's wife, Ethel and Chester Shaw by baptism. We note the following marriages by which Grace Mead became Sr. V. A. Reese and Ada Hartshorn became Sr. Rude Richter, all worthy young saints.

The following of the traveling missionary force have preached for us since general conference: Elders Anderson, Brackebury, F. A. Smith, Burr, McDowell, Macgregor and J. F. Curtis. The general church chorister gave us a fine sermon the latter part of July. Sr. Ella Houston is a paralytic sufferer in the hospital. Bro. Davis Rodgers has been here in the hospital for several days. Sr. R. F. Sly is very poorly. These need your prayers.

If Bro. Macgregor sees this will he kindly send his address to the undersigned at once.

Sr. Maggie Hoover has lately been the object of God's wonderful healing power. For fifteen years she had suffered from dreadful attacks of fainting, sometimes accompanied by violent convulsions. Eight weeks ago she witnessed an accident down town which brought on a fainting spell. Being alone she was taken to a near by drug store and after the doctors had worked over her for a while was pronounced dead, and taken to the county morgue, where she lay for five hours before signs of life were manifested. At another time she was in this condition for forty eight hours and two doctors advised Bro. Hoover to bury her, and told him that he was foolish to think of her living again in this world; but the "wisdom of the wise shall perish." The evil overtook her life in various ways. When her oldest child was real small she was taking her down stairs strapped in a baby carriage when an attack came on her and all went to the bottom of a long flight of stairs, yet with no serious injury. Bro. Hoover has come home from work several times and found her on the floor lifeless, the little tots caring for themselves as best they could. Two or three times in the winter he says he found her in this condition sitting before an open hearth with the baby on her lap, who was kept from rolling off into the fire only by God's protecting care. When in convulsion she was possessed with tremendous strength, very difficult to control. The medical profession had no name for this malady, but concluded it was some injury to the spine. A noted Milwaukee clairvoyant came to her home one time and upon witnessing this strange power which possessed her said: "She is a natural born medium; that power would be worth thousands of dollars to her if developed." There were times when strangers coming into her presence would throw her into this unconscious state and she would be taken possession of by a spirit which would cause her to tell people whom she had never seen before of their past, present and future. This gave her a reputation she did not covet. Wealthy people of Milwaukee rode to her door in carriages and offered her $10, $15 and $25 for a "reading," for they had heard she had a wonderful gift. She constantly branded it as being from the devil, for a gift from God would not cause such misery and suffering. Snidely,

August 24th, she had been feeling poorly all day but determined to go to church at night and hear Daniel Macgregor preach. Near the close of his sermon an attack came on her and Bro. Hoover supported her head upon his shoulder until the meeting was dismissed, then asked Bro. Macgregor to administer to her. The assembly was called to order and those who had faith with us in the ordinance of laying on of hands were requested to be seated and those who had not to quietly pass out. Then the servant of the Lord anointed her head with oil, and laying his hands thereon, by the authority of Jesus Christ rebuked the evil power which possessed her and commended it to depart. Immediately consciousness was restored and she says she felt "empty" and "deserted" from then on for three or four days. Since then life has been new. Her own children look strange to her. The blotchedness has gone from her face, and body until everyone can notice a marked contrast in her looks. She is able to do as much work now in one day as she would do in a week before, and suffer for it. I have not mentioned one-hundredth part of the sufferings she endured while Satan had thus bound her, because of space, but sufficient to emphasize the following points: 1. Satan could put her life and her children's in jeopardy, but as in Job's case, he was not permitted to have power to take life. 2. That this spirit was akin to that of clairvoyance. 3. That evil spirits are subject to the authority of Jesus Christ wherein he said: "These signs shall follow them that believe: in my name they shall cast out devils."

KINGFISHER Okla., Sept. 15.

Editor Ensign:—Just a few items about the Indian Fair at Weatherford Okla. Bro. Christensen put up the district tent and we held some very interesting meetings, among them, five were baptized. There were about five or six thousand Indians, and about three thousand white people on Wednesday the second day. The rain spoiled the remainder of the fair, but we visited the camp and did some very effectual missionary work. We now have two meetings appointed with them in the near future. There were Indians from Montana, Washington, and other states. About one hundred chiefs were in full dress parade every day of the fair. This was the only gathering of its kind in the world.

Our hearts were saddened at the news of Bro. Charley Lake's death in those far away islands. May the Lord bless the lonely companion he left in that distant mission.

Rains have at last broken the drought here and the cool weather has brought relief to many.

My home and mission address is Kingfisher, Okla. As bishops agent I call attention to all the saints in the Western District of Oklahoma, to the special call of the Bishop for help to pay the debt. It only means $1.00 each for the membership of the district. Please let me hear from every one as soon as practicable.

Your co-worker,
Hubert Case.

BOLCROW Mo., Sept. 21.

Dear Ensign:—I as a Latter Day Saint am glad to say that this work is true. While I have not belonged to the church very long, I have seen enough of the Lord's work in my own family to convince me it is true. I belonged to the Methodist Church for about fifteen years and thought I was all right. I tried to live a true honest life, and read my Bible every night. But Bro. Torrance had the Ensign sent to me for a year and gave me other books and papers to read, and I got to studying to see if it was really right or not. I decided I was on the wrong road. So last conference at Guilford I was baptized, and took up this latter day work and am proud of it.

There are not very many saints right close here. My wife and I both belong. We attend meeting when possible for it is about ten miles to our nearest branch, which is Guilford Mo. I ask an interest in your prayers that I may grow stronger in the faith, and help to spread this glad news to others.

Your brother in the faith,
Bert Hoyt.

SPRINGFIELD Wis., Sept. 13.

Editor Ensign:—I arrived home from the reunion on Labor Day. It was a joint reunion of Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois districts. We had a grand reunion and God was present with us by the influence of his Holy Spirit, causing all hearts to rejoice and gave us a message through some of the saints warning us to live better and to come up higher, to be pure in heart for the time was near for the coming of the Savior.

Dear saints let us all try to improve a little each day and let our light so shine that others may realize there is a reality in the religion of Jesus Christ. We know this gospel is true, so let us live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. I want to live in such a way that when Christ comes to make up his jewels I may be accepted of him. I ask an interest in the prayers of God's people that I may be faithful to the end.

Your sister in the true faith,
Mrs. Agnes Williams.

LOCUST GROVE Okla., Sept. 8.

Dear Ensign:—I have just been reading your welcome news and do not think I could get along without you, as we are some of the isolated saints. I read where some have been sending in their little mite to help pay the church debt of which we all as Latter Day Saints know is their duty. You will find enclosed $6.00 to pay on the church debt.

I am strong in the faith, yet we read we must show our faith by our works. It seems at times I am not doing much works, not as much as I desire to do. I hope to live in a branch some time in the near future where I can be at the service of the saints to use me as the Lord wills. I know this is the true work of God. I have a strong desire to live upright. May God help us all in so doing.

Your Brother and Sister in Christ,
W. J. and Eva Reser.

WINFIELD KANSAS, Sept. 12.

Dear Ensign:—I will try once again to write a few lines to the Ensign so that the readers of this paper may know that we are still at work in the Master's cause in this part of his vineyard.

Bro. J. Arthur Davis and the writer have been holding tent meetings in Wichita Kansas. We had good attendance and those who were present seemed to be interested in our doctrine. When our meetings first started the people were of the opinion that we were Mormons, but before the close of our meetings they had a different opinion of us. We did not baptize any, but the good seed has been sown in many honest hearts, and much prejudice was broken down. So we hope and pray that what few saints there are in Wichita may continue on faithful and that others might be gathered into the fold.

We came to Winfield Monday, and are now trying to hold tent meetings here. Bro. Davis preached a few nights on the street with a good crowd of people around him listening to the gospel message. So we trust that many will come out to hear the gospel as it was taught in the days of Jesus Christ and his apostles.

If any of the saints living in Southwestern Kansas are desirous of having meetings held at their homes, or towns, please write to us and we will try to answer your calls. If any wish to write us, please send mail to Winfield Kans.

So may the good work press on to victory and that the saints may come up higher day by day in the prayer of your young Bro. in the field of labor.

A. C. Martin.

MAYFIELD Ky., Sept. 12.

Editor Ensign:—Please find enclosed one dollar for renewal of the dear old ENSIGN as I do not see how I can do without it. It is the only preacher that I get to hear. We are isolated from church privileges and if there are any saints in this place I do not know anything about them outside of my family, consisting of my husband and two of my daughters. But still we are thankful that we can read such good sermons and so many good letters from the saints that we do not give up in despair.

We are among a good many different kinds of religious people at this place and when we tell them we are Latter Day Saints they want to know something about them. Oh how glad I would be to have our tent to come to this place and hold about two weeks meeting, but if I were only able to care for the elders I would sure be proud for them to come. The Christian people are holding a tent meeting at this place at present having a good crowd to come out night. We had the pleasure of hearing a debate between the Christians and a steel preacher one night at the court house on whether it was right to have music in church worship or not. The Christian preacher said it was wrong; the other one said it was right.

Well dear saints, I ask you all to pray for me and my family that we continue in the true faith. If there are any of the saints who have some good church tracts and literature they can spare and will send it to me so I can distribute to the people so they can find out what we believe and teach. I give my papers to those who will read. If you have any to spare send them to my address. Now asking the dear saints to pray for me and my children that they may all come into the one faith. Ever praying for the redemption of Zion I remain in the one faith.

Mrs. Seanea McGregor.

AMONG THE INDIANS OF NEW YORK.

Route 18, LEWISTON, N. Y. Sept. 6.

Tuscaroras Indian Reservation. With my wife and daughter and Bro. B. L. McKim, we are located with gospel tent upon the grounds of the Council House, in the center of this reservation.

We came here from Lockport, N. Y. by invitation of the vice president of this tribe, and placed our tent on the national council grounds in the center of the reservation by the advice and consent of a number of the leading chiefs, but against the emphatic wish of the government school teacher, a Rev. Brown, Baptist.

Of course he raised the cry "Mormon," and succeeded in raising some prejudice, but we are overcoming that.

This people are quite intelligent, and dress and live like our white people, and still hold their tribal form of government and among themselves, speak their own tongue.

The most of the younger generation are educated so that they speak and read English quite well and some of them are quite highly educated. One often meets a student from Carlisle.

This reservation is about three by four miles in extent and contains about three hundred and sixty-five souls. These are a portion of the "Six Nations," but the greater part of them are located in Canada.

These people seem inclined to hear us and are treating us very kindly bringing us vegetables, fruit and milk, and coming to talk with us and inviting us into their homes. We hope to be able to benefit them by our ministrations among them.

At Lockport, where we preached two weeks, we had quite an interest and made friends for the work.

Near Naples, where we first put up our tents, we had a good interest and baptized one, and left an opening for winter labor.

This is the place where Bro. Booker and Etzenhouser were with the tent last year. We found many friends awaiting us there. We do not think that we lost any friends for the cause while there. At this point, also, we baptized one Sr. Anna C. Brink. We feel that the Master will bless her

Sts. Eliza and Alice Chase have contributed much to our work this summer both by way of visiting and talking the gospel, and by telling the story in song. A gospel tent without the assistance of such workers would get pretty slow.

Well, as we were locating at this place (The Tuscaroras Reservation) we were told by a man who announced himself as "a physician of twenty years of Niagra Falls," "that we were 'ought to be horse whipped.'" However, when we enquired of our offense, he did not specify and we thought of the young girls pronunciation when she came across the word "physician" in her speller. After spelling it out carefully and considering it thoughtfully she triumphantly exclaimed "Fizzen machine," and we wondered whether she was not correct in her announcement. But leaving all jokes out of the question, we also thought of the experience of the apostles whom the angles loosed from prison, enjoining upon them the task of standing in the temple and speaking "to the people all the words of their life." They were taken and beaten and commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus. "And with them we rejoice that we are worthy to suffer shame for his name."

Pray for us here. We have held two services so far, commencing the 4th and the attendance has been good. May the Master's cause triumph.

Sincerely your brother in Christ,
A. M. Chaso.

38 Regent Square, Heavitree Exeter England Aug. 30.

Dear Ensign:—I arrived safe at the above named place on the evening of the seventh of Aug. I said good night to my brothers and sisters at Independence Mo. on the night of July 8, some time after 9: p. m., arrived at Columbus on the 9th about 5 p. m. and made my home with Bro. and Sr. Green who were very good and kind to me. I visited many of the saints. On the 12th I preached for the saints in the South branch and had splendid liberty and good attendance. They all seemed much pleased with the effort. I met with them in prayer meeting, and at night preached for the saints at the North Branch. Our beloved Bro. Griffiths of the Twelve was in charge. Had fine noerty in presenting the truth. The saints were delighted.

On the 16th I took the train for New Philadelphia Ohio, to visit Bro. and Sr. Meredith who were baptized in Skewew Wales, just before I left for America the last time. They are a credit to the church. I was treated well by the saints. Dear Bro. and Sr. Thomas and their whole family could not be kinder than they were to me. They know how to treat a missionary, God bless them. On the Sunday I had a very hard day's work. I walked three miles to Sunday school, preached at 11 o'clock; prayer and testimony meeting in the afternoon, four or more to administer to, and preached again at night. A pleasant feeling manifested by the dear saints, and they also helped me on my way, and then I had three miles to walk back to my stopping place. How is that for a day's work for a man 73 years old. on a very bad road torn up by the flood?

On the 21st I boarded a train for New York. Arrived there about 6 a. m. on the morning of the 22nd. An agent of the Canard Company was on the train to take charge of my baggage. I delivered my trunk and suit case tickets to him, I wanted my suit case on the voyage but I could not get it all the way across. I met Bro. Green soon after my arrival in New York. We spent a very interesting day together in visiting the saints. I visited Bro. Potts and family who took me to see the new church, took supper with them, he also remembered that it required means to travel. His wife and daughter and her daughter, also Sr. Bose, came to Liverpool with us. We six dined at the same table, second cabin. Bro. and Sr. Richards came back also.

We had a lovely voyage, scarcely a ripple on the water. I never saw the sea so quiet in all my travels, but very hot the firemen could not work, so our voyage was longer.

Dear Bro Greenwood was at Liverpool to meet us when we landed, and was a great help to us. I stopped with Bro White and his kind daughter and husband Bro. and Sr. Schofield, during my stay in Manchester. The mission conference has passed off very pleasantly. On the 6th left for London. Our noble secretary Bro. W. R. Armstrong came and saw me off. I remained in London one night stopping with Bro. and Sr. Cliff.

I arrived in Exeter at 4:30 on July 7th. I stopped with Thomas Nicholls for two nights, bought some furniture, rented two rooms, and am doing the best I can for the interest of the work. I have some interested. I have baptized Mr. and Mrs. Allen, and now there are eleven of them in the church, father, mother, and nine children, the result of my kindness and teaching. So I am well repaid for my effort, if I accomplished no more. I am made to realize that the power of darkness is still here, and would destroy my interest, but He that is for me is mightier than all that can be against me. The weather has been very fine, but very hot and dry. Heavy rain most of last night, it was very much needed. I am pleased to say my health is very good. My kind regards to all the dear saints in the Independence Branch.

Your bro. in the truth of the gospel,
Wm. Newton.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Mrs. Florence Shores, 300 W. Hull St., Denison, Texas. —I ask the prayers of the saints for my oldest brother who lives at Chanute, Kansas, who has met with an awful accident in a gasoline explosion and was terribly burned. He doesn't belong to any church, but he has heard Bro. Lee Quick preach, and has more faith in this church than any other. It seems we have more trouble than we can bear. My grandmother has been in bed helpless for five months, and my sister's husband is down with typhoid fever. None of my people belong to this church but myself and I don't know what I would do without this gospel. Pray for us.

The gospel is the fulfillment of all hopes, the perfection of philosophy, the interpretation of all revelations, the key to all the seeming contradictions of the physical and moral world.—Max Muller.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE INSPIRATION OF THE BOOK OF DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

BY ELDER J. F. MINTUN.

Note.—The "Doctrine and Covenants" is a book containing mainly what the Reorganized Church accepts as the revelations of God to Joseph Smith, Jr., to which have been added the later revelations given to his son Joseph Smith, the present head of the Reorganized Church. The book was first published in 1835 and has passed through many editions since that time. The Utah Church publishes a Doctrine and Covenants but which has been radically changed from the editions published in the lifetime of Joseph Smith, Jr.—Ed

There are degrees of inspiration, but in the examination of any book or subject prejudice should not rule in any degree when considering its inspiration or what degree of inspiration it may possess. We are not left free to give to inspiration a meaning suited to our prejudices either favorable or unfavorable. The same kind of proof that is accepted as conclusive in support of the inspiration of the Bible should be accepted as proof in support of the claims of any other communication or book.

This book, and the communications in it, like all others that claim any degree of inspiration came through man, thus standing on an equality with all others in this regard. As every one through whom inspired communications have come have been opposed, and much of an uncomplimentary character said of them, even of the man Christ Jesus, so with the man through whom the communications contained in this book have come, and the things said about him are about on a par with what has been said about others, so of the human agency through which these communications have come we have nothing to boast as to reputation, but since the inspiration of other books or communications is not predicated on the reputation of any man or men, so we make no claim for the inspiration of this book by reason of reputation, but we put its examination on an equality with other books claiming inspiration in this regard.

Since man did not create himself, that which comes to him that relates to himself and his well being and more fully perfects him by satisfying a longing that is a part of himself, must come from the source that gave him powers to be satisfied,—a higher source,—hence an inspiration, or an enlightenment superior to the natural. Even Thomas Payne, an infidel writer, admits that there are thoughts "that bolt into the mind of their own accord, which has been a real help to him in solving the problems of life." This inspiration does not relate to the present only and must come from Him who holds the future in his power.

There is in the book of Doctrine and Covenants such information as will, if accepted, answer to the demands of the human soul relating to nearly every phase of life and their demands, and since the publication of these communications found in this book, they have found support in the events which have transpired, and in the results of scientific research.

The existence of the book and the nature of its contents supports the highest principles in support of inspiration as believed in by those who profess to believe in God and his Christ and their character. The first is the principle of petitioning and receiving answer thereto, for be it known that the contents of this book that makes claim to being inspired has been received in answer to prayer, and the second principle is that the thing received must partake of the nature of God,—good,—good in the abstract and good in the concrete,—good, not only for the recipient at the time of receiving but good in the ultimate, and this must include the good it will be to the society of which the recipient forms a part, if that received is utilized.

At the time these communications were received the religious world believed and taught, and they believe and teach the same thing now generally, that any one who desired had a right to represent God as a minister without any delegated authority from God, but there were a few who believed in the word of God as found in the Bible that did not so understand the principle that governed the right of one to act for another, and they did not understand that this was the way it was represented in Bible times. The principle governing in Bible times was that "No man taketh this honor upon himself," to minister for God, either in Old or New Testament times, but men should be "Called of God as was Aaron," (Heb. 5:4). Jesus Christ did not take the honor of representing God upon himself. "So also Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest, but he that said unto him Thou art my Son," and "Thou art a priest forever," or minister forever. (Heb. 5:5,6). This is supported by the testimony of Christ himself in which he says, "I am not come of myself, . . . he hath sent me."—John 7:28,29; 8:42; 13:30.

These men held to the Bible views as above proven desired to represent God in ministering the word to the people, and believed that if God desired them to so labor he could and would inform them and instruct them just the labor he desired them to perform, and how to perform it. With this faith they prayed and many communications found in this book prove that God recognized their faith and answered their prayers and the information they sought for was given and in accordance with this instruction they were inspired to act and they were blessed as were the ministers of God in days of old.

It was tacitly admitted generally by all who professed faith in Bible teachings that God was unchangeable, but in a practical way were denying it. This is proven by the varied theories which were being taught which were called the gospel of Christ, and yet all of them differed in some respects from what was taught by Jesus Christ as he claims the Father had authorized him by commandment to teach. Many were not satisfied with this condition, and were longing for the unchangeable gospel with its ordinances and blessings. In the book of Doctrine and Covenants are communications that not only assert that he is unchangeable but informs the people how they can prove his unchangeability, promising that he will upon the same conditions do for the people what he has always done in other gospel dispensations, and in every age of the world when they were obedient to what was commanded them.

Those who were obedient to the principles of Faith, Repentance, Baptism and the Laying on of Hands with prayer by those authorized of God were recipients of the Divine Unction, or Holy Spirit, and through that Spirit, the representative of God and his character on the earth, each individual member of the church into which he had entered by obedience to these principles, was given some manifestation of God such as would be the most profitable to him. The book of Doctrine and Covenants contains the information that the same God will so manifest himself today, and thus inspire those who desire to be in touch with God to act in harmony with the same principles, and those who have thus acted testify that this information is true, hence the communication in which the promise is made, and the information how to be governed to receive these promises is inspired.

Among various religious organizations the theory was, and to a limited extent is now advocated that a person once in grace is always in grace, or that God has elected some to be saved and such ones cannot fall away; and this theory is so fixed in many minds that they have concluded that if God called or elected that one should act as an apostle or prophet that such one could not fall. This is apparent in this, that because Brigham Young and some of his associates, ministers' in the apostolic office, are spoken of in one of the communications in this book as called of God therefore the corrupt doctrines which they introduced in the name of the church is no evidence that they fell from grace but the spirit of the work in which they were called to act as apostles is shown in the work which they did, and hence the conclusion that the work of calling these men, and the spirit controlling the church in which they were thus called was bad. But these parties have let their prejudices in favor of the erroneous idea of election lead them to overlook the communication which was given previous to the organization of the church in which Brigham Young was called to be an apostle, and from which he fell away into the very opposite spirit that governed the church. This communication thus informs us that "although a man may have many revelations, and have power to do many mighty works, yet if he boasts in his own strength, and sets at nought the counsels of God and follows after the dictates of his own will and carnal desires, he must fall." This, while not in agreement with the teachings of uninspired men, is strictly in harmony with the statements of Jesus Christ in Matthew 7:22,23, in which he says, "Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity," and with the Apostle Paul in which he says that those who were once enlightened and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost and the powers of the world to come may fall away, and if they do it is impossible to "renew them to repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh." Since these were both inspired and this communication is in agreement with it there is proof of its inspiration.

God's unchangeability sustains the fact that the will of heaven must be maintained, not only in the commands to be obeyed, but in the organic structure of the church which is the "body of Christ," and that each official in that organization must do his duty to preserve order which is the highest evidence of divinity, God not being the author of confusion. (See 1 Cor. 14:33). The same organization is taught in this book, and the duties of each official is quite clearly outlined. The Bible gives information that it was the inspired plan that baptism must be obeyed, the laying on of hands must be observed, and the Lord's supper is to be administered till Christ comes again, but just what official of the church was to minister and just how to officiate is not made clear, for which reason some of these are rejected by those who profess to worship God and some reject all of them, and still others who believe in them in as many different ways. But in the book of Doctrine and Covenants additional instruction is given of God so that none need misunderstand the importance of each of these ordinances, and how to observe them as God has intended, so that we need not walk in darkness as to God's will, thus proving that we are following Christ and inspiration.—See John 8:12.

In this age when morals are becoming lax and still more lax, and selfishness is seriously afflicting social conditions till the thought of gaining prominence in sought by doing others harm, or by destroying their influence that the position they occupy may be secured for self, or for one who is in agreement with themselves, and it is thought that to secure this position for such one will advance selfish interests. Even the relationship between husband and wife is considered a bondage, and so many are seeking relief from its supposed fetters and the God-given duties imposed by such relations, the book of Doctrine and Covenants gives in unmistakable terms; such information as will if followed cure all these ills that afflict society. Here we learn that one who has been in Christ and who becomes a murderer has no forgiveness in this world nor in the world to come, so that no encouragement is given that they can make their peace with God at the last moment, as so often taught now-a-days, while it is taught by the same parties that the one killed if he had not become a member of some church will be eternally lost, thus destroying the principle of justice, and that which destroys the principle of justice is opposed to God and inspiration. This book then is in harmony with inspiration, and that which is revealed in the Bible, for there we learn that "no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3:15). In this age when ministers are using so many fables and manufactured stories in their business of leading men and women to God, and fairy tales and false stories are so universally used in the education of the child, the inspiration of the Doctrine and Covenants is clear that truth and truth alone preserves and sanctifies, and this is supported by the teachings of the Christ who says that he is the truth, and that no man comes to the Father but by him.—See John 14:6.

The relationship of husband and wife is made so plain in this book, with the consequences of disobeying this relationship that if fully appreciated would bring about a healthy condition in the home and society that is very rarely seen, and yet which the church of Christ should maintain. This book informs the husband that, "Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else, and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit," and tells the church that "If he repents not he shall be cast out." This is proof that the church represented by this book would if her laws are executed keep herself free from adultery or polygamy. The author of the communications in this book possessed an inspiration that opposes the "free-love" idea, and the animal idea that marriage is only for convenience and can be adjusted to suit the will of the parties as conditions change. Higher and holier thoughts are presented governing marriage is this: "Whoso forbiddeth to marry, is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made." Here is inspiration, it is FAR superior to what the religious world is generally supporting.

In agreement with the inspiration of the teachings of Christ to govern in a general way between man and man, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, ye even so to them," we have this in this book, "Thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor, nor do him any harm." Instruction is given that the poor are to be cared for each receiving according to his just wants and needs and circumstances, and provision is made that this condition may continue.

The Creator is interested in man and all that relates to health, and to the highest social and civic conditions, instruction being given in this book governing what we should eat and drink, and what not to eat and drink, and his fatherly interest in the welfare of the human race is further shown in the advice given when to take sleep, and how to deport one's self at all times that nobler and better conditions may be attained in this present life, and that man might be better fitted to enjoy the future existence. And all this information is in harmony with the latest discoveries of science relating to health and social conditions.

To save the transgressor in the church and to keep the church pure there must be some plan of dealing with him that no injustice will be done to either the church or the transgressor. God alone could give that, and he would not be apt to overlook this necessity. In this book is information that looks first at the reclaiming of the erring one, but if in applying the law they will not be obedient and turn from their transgressions, instruction is given how the church is to proceed to relieve them of the transgressor, who to remain in the church would not be benefitted and would do damage to the church. In every step to be taken governing the disciplining the members of the church the principle of justice mingled with mercy is prominent, and the attention of all is called to repentance thus clearly emphasizing the inspired utterance the "goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance, thus proving that the good of the transgressor is to be considered first, and that repentance is the means to secure it, hence "He that sinneth and will not repent shall be cast out of the church."

Inspiration is most fully shown to many in the character of the instruction given relative to the justice of God represented, and when this is presented in contrast with the horrifying and infidel creating theories of rewards and punishments, as has generally been taught since the apostate condition of the church began, it presents strong proof of the inspiration of these communications as contained in this book relating to the judgment, and yet is in harmony with the inspired instruction of the Apostle Paul in 1 Corinthians 15:35-42, and elsewhere in the Bible but overlooked by many when dealing with this subject. In the justice expressed in this communication we find that which draws men to God for in it is so much of goodness represented, and this will compel every knee to bow and every tongue to confess to the glory of God. Even Satan cannot justly say that he has been unjustly dealt with, but that God though superior in power, while exercising it in love, mercy and justice toward humanity, it has also been exercised in justice to him, and he has been justly given his own. This shows more than any other one thing that which inspires men to love God, and the principle thus shown inspires us to love all in whom it is shown, that is, though we may have power to do an enemy harm yet we will deal justly with him.

Much objection is found with the claims of the inspiration of that which is contained in the Bible because of the characters of those who claim to represent it, and if there is anything which an honest soul loves it is to see a ministry representing in their lives the evidences that is claimed for that which they represent, and in this is a prominent feature of this book, and the proof of the inspiration of its contents is the purity required in those who are called to assist in the work that it represents. One must surely be inspired to even conclude that the carnal nature can be brought up to so high a moral and spiritual standard, and to bring one's self up to these conditions they must have the help of inspiration, and a work that cannot be assisted save by those who have been developed to such conditions which are more than human, must in its very nature be inspired. I call special attention to these extracts taken from this book, from which many others of a similar character might be obtained:

"Faith, hope, charity and love, with an eye single to the glory of God qualifies him for work."

"Put your trust in that Spirit which leadeth to do good; yea, to do justly, to walk humbly, to judge righteously."

"No one can assist in this work, except he shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope and charity, being temperate in all things whatsoever shall be entrusted to his care."

All these statements were made before the organization of the church that advocates the inspiration of the contents of this book, in which the character of those who were to build up a work claiming for its beginning, its ending, and its complete nature inspiration, and shows not only the inspiration of the contents of the book and of the work this book represents, but it justifies us in supporting the value of inspiration upon human lives, and upon the world of which these lives form a part.

The limit of this article has been overreached otherwise further evidences of equally a convincing nature would be presented in support of the inspiration of the book of Doctrine and Covenants, but we believe that what is presented should satisfy.

May God guide the reader in the consideration of the above.

THE DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL AT INDEPENDENCE, MO.

At a business meeting of the branch held last June, the feasibility of instituting a summer vacation school, such as had been so successfully conducted in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, by Walter W. Smith and his assistants, and by Bro. W. E. LaRue and associates in Brooklyn, New York, was discussed, the decision being that the effort might be made, provided the branch should not be required to finance the venture, it being already overburdened. A board was appointed consisting of Bro. G. E. Harrington, Ellis Short, O. K. Fry, W. H. Garrett and D. J. Krahl; subsequently, Bro. Short advised that he could not serve, and Bro. M. A. Etzenhouser, who received the next highest vote, at the business meeting was added to the board to fill the vacancy.

Shortly after their selection, a meeting of the board was held at which it was definitely decided to proceed with the work, and the preliminaries were arranged. There was some division of opinion with the branch members, though not shared by the board, as to the necessity and advisability of holding such a school in Independence, where conditions such as exist in crowded cities, did not prevail, but the board deemed it of sufficient importance to at least give the matter a fair trial, and having the advice and support of President F. M. Smith, and others in doing so, they proceeded energetically to set it in motion.

The president of the board, Bro. G. E. Harrington, secured the financial aid of quite a number of the brethren and sisters to enable him to secure the necessary material for a beginning, and also engaged the valuable services of Bro. W. E. LaRue as superintendent. Monday July 7, was designed as the opening date, and the following appointments of volunteer assistants were made: C. E. Harrington, W. H. Garrett, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, and Mrs. A. V. Closson, Hammock department, Mrs. W. A. Blair, Willow Baskets, W. E. LaRue in charge; Mrs. A. L. Yingling, Mrs. William Pooler, Mrs. Arthur Allen, Mrs. D. J. Krahl, Mrs. O. K. Fry, and Mrs. O. L. James, Incian Basketry; Misses Emma Criley, Corrinne Haines, Vivian and Hazel Brackenbury, Pearl Flanders, Vena Crenshaw, Grace Lewis, Helen Purviance, Marian Smith, Mrs. Charles F. Blake, Madeline Crick, Pearl Haigler, Marcine Smith, and David Krahl Jr., Raffia and Miscellaneous department; Mrs. E. L. Kelley, Mrs. Emma Kennedy, Mrs. Cassie Haines, Mrs. Lillie Haines, Sewing; Mrs. W. B. Kelley, Mrs. E. G. Haberlein, Mrs. James Kelley, Mrs. Rufus Smith, Mrs. J. A. Gardener, Embroidery; Mrs. M. T. Short, Mrs. G. E. Harrington, Mrs. Robert Kemp, Mrs. H. H. Robinson, Crocheting; Mrs. Clifford R. Smith, Mrs. Russell Etzenhouser, Mrs. O. L. Leeka, Mrs. Jess Roberts, Mrs. William Anderson, Mrs. Laurie Layton, Mrs. Hawthorne Monroe, and Misses S. J. Cushman, Edith Orrick, and Pearl Moxon, Kindergarten; Dr. Anna Mather, Calisthenics, and Misses Fern Donaldson and Esther Carstensen, Record Clerks. Mrs. O. L. James, and W. LaRue, Choristers. Miss Ruth McMullen Pianist.

It was surprising as well as encouraging to see the enthusiasm with which the children entered into their work. The first period, from 9.30 to 10.25 a. m., was occupied with songs, Bible stories, habit talks, and addresses from visitors, and among the visitors being Mr. Christian Ott, Mayor of the city, Prof. George S. Bryant, principal of the high school of the city, and Rev. L. E. Floyd, pastor of the Baptist church, of Independence, all of whom expressed themselves in complimentary and appreciative terms regarding the work being done. Sr. James held the attention and interest of the children splendidly in the singing, until she left for the west, Bro. LaRue taking up the work with credit.

There was an enrollment of 371, and an average daily attendance of about 305, (the six schools in Kansas City, Mo., during the same period with an enrollment of over 800, had an average attendance of 385.) The work period was about fifty minutes each day for five days each week, the term being six weeks. In this time the following pieces were made: 85 hammocks, 17 towels, 16 dresses, (some of them by little eight year old girls,) 36 pieces of embroidery—an average of two to each worker,—30 pieces of crocheting, 24 willow baskets, 30 Navajo baskets and other raffia work. In Miss Criley's department there were 272 pieces finished and 10 unfinished.

The Kindergarten was one of the most interesting departments and attracted a great deal of attention from visitors. There were six tables at which the little tots made doll hammocks, paper rings, or ropes, picture books and sand forms, and their play period under the direction of the instructor was very much enjoyed by them; no record of the number of pieces completed in this department was kept.

A donation day was held the last Wednesday morning of the school and the superintendent and others were well pleased when the announcement was made that $100.01, had been contributed; envelopes were furnished the school and the contributions about filled one of the large willow baskets made in the school. Besides this donation, a collection had been taken the previous Wednesday for the General Association, 40 Bible House, New York City, to aid in the establishing of the new schools next year, which amounted to $7.00. There were other contributions amounting to $151.37, Sweeney Bros. contributing $3.20, in ice cream and cones for treats for the children, and the Central Lumber Co. $3.00 in lumber to make shuttles and boards for the hammock workers. The total receipts were $266.27, and the expenses for supplies and services were $231.26, besides the $7.00 for the General Association making $238.26, leaving a balance $28.01.

The closing exercises were held Thursday evening August 14, and consisted of songs, Kindergarten work, calisthenics, addresses and reports, the main auditorium of the church being well filled. At the conclusion the work was exhibited in the Dining Hall to an admiring and appreciative inspection, universal expressions of approval and delighted surprise being manifested. Friday morning the school assembled as usual, and after short exercises, the pupils were marched into the dining hall where the work was distributed to the workers, and the first Daily Vacation Bible School of Independence was ended, with results most gratifying to all engaged in the work.

The assistance cheerfully and even enthusiastically given by some of our faithfuls, was very much appreciated; we had one little Hebrew boy among the hammock workers. We were also pleased to have a visit from the superintendent of the work in Kansas City, in company with a Settlement Worker of the city, who expressed much pleasure in what they saw and heard. The unusually hot weather prevailing this summer, made the work trying and wearying at times, but none failed on that account. It was encouraging to see the unity and diligence shown to make the work a success, and the results were worthy of the efforts made. The telling of the Bible stories command the most earnest and absorbed attention from the children, and the "tellers," Sr. M. A. Etzenhouser and Bro. LaRue were most heartily applauded, as were Mrs. E. L. Kelley, D. H. Krahl, J. A. Gardener, Prof. Bryant, and Rev. Floyd, and others who occupied. All were sorry to have Sr. Etzenhouser leave to take up Reunion work.

We believe it will well repay the efforts of the saints in every branch of average size to take up this work, for the sake of the good they may do among the children both of our number, and others who are willing to attend; the good to be accomplished is incalculable, if faithful earnest and persistent efforts are put forth. We feel assured that so far as possible, those engaged in the work here, will gladly render any assistance they can to aid in its promotion.

"IS HELL THE GRAVE?"

In the ENSIGN, for September 4, 1913, appears an article under the above caption. I trust my purpose in referring to some of the statements of this article may not be misunderstood or misconstrued.

First, we notice the caption, "Is Hell the Grave?" in connection with the following statement: "Some religious teachers contend that the grave is hell and that the punishment therein is oblivion."

Then the brother, who so ably wrote the article proceeds to show that these "religious teachers" are wrong—that they are indeed teaching that which is not true.

But who are these "religious teachers?" And where is the proof that they teach that hell always means the grave? The brother does not tell us who they are, nor does he furnish us any quotation from their writings. Are they representative men of the doctrine of mortal soulism? If so, would it not have been better to furnish some proof. And if not, is it not unjust to our opponents, and unprofitable to be represented in this way?

If I understand the claim of Mortal Soulists (that is, that man is wholly mortal and therefore unconscious after death,) it is this: The Hebrew sheol and its equivalent, hades, refer to the grave; but the Greek Gehenna, refers to the final punishment of the wicked, after the judgment, when their conscious being will be permanently blotted out in literal flames of literal fire.

If there are other religious bodies who believe that hell always means the grave (which is quite possible) I am anxious to know who they are and who it is that so represents their belief.

I confess that I am sensitive to any misrepresentation of our opponents positions, no matter who they are. Justice demands that we should make every reasonable effort to represent them correctly, we cannot afford to do otherwise. We can, indeed, well afford to be magnanimous with those who differ from us in belief, and all this without the least compromise of principle.

We do not claim, however, that the author of the article referred to above, had the remotest intention of misrepresenting those whom we believe to be in error, nor do we know that he did; but if not, these few lines will at least serve the purpose of bringing before the preachers and writers of the church a matter of vital importance, we believe, to all lovers of truth and right.

PRAYER.

BY ELDER J. A. TANNER.

One of the greatest helps in the Christian warfare is prayer, and he who does not appreciate it is very unfortunate indeed. Prayer is the secret to success. It is the key that opens the door to spiritual blessings; it is the means that brings one nearer to God.

The poet says: "Prayer is the sincere desire of the soul, whether uttered or unexpressed." This being one definition at least of prayer we can understand why Jesus said to his disciples: "Pray always." Prayer is one of the expressions of faith. He who prays to a Creator and divine Being evidences faith in such. If he supplicates for blessings he still manifests faith; if he offers thanksgiving and praise for blessings received, he indicates that his faith has been rewarded with results.

Prayer should be consistent, and each person who prays should study to know WHAT TO PRAY FOR AND HOW TO PRAY. When we can learn our absolute needs we have partially solved the logic of prayer. When we learn how to pray we have solved, to an extent, the power of prayer. He or she who has besetting sins and weaknesses that are difficult to overcome, and constantly before the throne of grace presents their needs, keep before their vision the necessity of fighting and putting forth every degree of strength and energy to overcome and master self, through prayer and the struggle put forth, they realize they are gaining ground, and hope for success, and finally succeed.

Is there not power and logic in prayer when it helps a man to the high altitude where he is the master of the situation? He or she who can master self, and curb every passion, and eliminate all that is inimical to their best good is on the high road to salvation.

In the above we have a person who is capable of helping the weak. He is strong and mighty, and can reach down and take a weak brother or sister by the hand and lift them to more solid ground, hence in a sense become "saviors."

At one time the disciples of Christ sought him with reference to prayer, and He taught them to pray, and said in part: "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive other men their trespasses." In this statement we can see a remarkable consistency set forth; to the extent they were willing to go in forbearance and a forgiveness of their brother, just to that extent could they expect their Heavenly Father to forgive and forbear with them.

Now carry out the logic of this teaching and what does it present? Simply this: That as we are willing to serve Christ, and to the extent we keep the commandments of God, and to live a practical and spiritual religion, to that extent may we expect the gifts and blessings to be showered upon us. We are instructed to pray in secret and in public, in silence, and vocally; also to pray for one another; for our families; for our possessions. The true Christian and praying man will take God into all of his life, and that means that not only is God with him in the religious services, but with him in all of his business; in his work; in his vocation; and what a pleasant thought to have God with you in all you do wherever you go, and to know you can always talk with him through the medium of prayer.

God has instructed us that we should go to the house of prayer upon his holy day, and there offer up our oblations and prayers to him. How thankful we should be to our Creator for his wisdom in setting aside a day of rest wherein we can lay aside the toils of life, and go to the house of prayer and draw in our scattered thoughts, and wandering minds, and as one we can center them upon God and Godly things, and when we do this in the spirit of God's purpose, what peace and comfort and joy comes into the soul as a reward for service, and it more than compensates one for the effort made.

Let us study to know God and his will and then study to pray wisely, consistently, and fervently and with reverence, so that we may be in a frame of mind to always want to do his will and never want to do that which will be displeasing to him, by neglecting to pray or to desecrate his Holy Day.—Central Church Bulletin.

THE ROUND TABLE.

If I understand aright, the only authority the Reorganized Church has that Joseph Smith gave the revelation on the rebellion is that of the Utah Church which published the revelation in the Pearl of Great Price at Liverpool in 1851. While you claim the Utah Church to have been in apostasy, you nevertheless accept this revelation, and at the same time reject the other brought out by the Utah Church a year later advocating polygamy. If their authority is not to be relied upon in one case, is it in the other, and is it consistent to accept one revelation as genuine and reject the other as spurious, when both were put out by the same church in Utah?

The revelation on the rebellion so far as we know has never been formally indorsed either by the original church under Joseph Smith Jr., or by the Reorganized Church, but its genuineness is generally conceded. The purported revelation on "celestial marriage" has never been indorsed by the church, but on the other hand has been condemned. (See general conference resolution No. 530) and is generally repudiated. In this attitude of the Reorganized Church relative to these two documents first published by the Utah Church there is nothing inconsistent. The revelation on the Rebellion is purely prophetic and though not published during the lifetime of Joseph Smith Jr., it is corroborated by many other prophetic statements made by him of which we note the following: On March 7, 1831, a revelation said; "Ye hear of wars in foreign lands, but, behold, I say unto you, they are nigh, even at your doors, and not many years hence ye shall hear of wars in your own lands." (Doc. and Cov. 45:11.) January 4, 1833 Joseph Smith wrote to Mr. N. E. Seaton editor of a paper published at Rochester N. Y., in part as follows: "And now I am prepared to say by the authority of Jesus Christ, that not many years shall pass away before the United States shall present such a scene of bloodshed as has not a parallel in the history of our nation." (Church History Vol. 1 p. 261.) Again in 1844 in a letter to Hon. J. C. Calhoun, dated Jan. 2nd while pleading for redress from the wrongs suffered by the saints in having been driven from their homes, he said that if such redress was not given by the nation that "God would come out of his hiding place and vex this nation with a sore vexation; yea, the consuming wrath of an offended God shall smoke through the nation with as much distress and woe as Independence has blazed through with pleasure and delight." (Ch. Hist. Vol. 2, p. 710.) These statements are corroborative, but John Hyde, an apostate elder from the Utah Church, in a book published in 1857 in which he seeks to prove Joseph Smith a false prophet says that he heard Joseph Smith say on April 6, 1843, "I prophesy in the name of the Lord God, that the commencement of the difficulties which will cause much bloodshed, previous to the coming of the Son of Man, will be in South Carolina, (it probably may arise through the slave question), this a voice declared to me, while I was praying earnestly on the subject, December 25th, 1832." (Hyde's Book, p. 174.) The revelation having its fulfillment in the Civil War is proven true, and there can be no consistent doubt but that it was given through Joseph Smith Jr. as all believers in him concede. The polygamous relation is entirely different. No evidence, direct or corroborative, is produced showing that it was given by Joseph Smith, but the whole document is directly contradictory of his public and private teachings. It is in conflict with the doctrine of the church, and the revelations given by Joseph Smith and accepted by the church. It compromises with crime, misrepresents the Bible, and its one prophetic statement proved an utter failure. The Utah leaders could have had no motive for publishing the revelation on the war if it were not true, but a motive is clearly seen for forging the polygamous revelation in the necessity of providing some means of justification for the abominable practices already indulged in when the document was first announced by Brigham Young. All the facts support the claims of the Reorganized Church.

MY BOY'S FIRST DAY AT SCHOOL.

He is just six years old, and it has always hurt us to even think of having to hand him over to some one else to help teach and train. Now the time had come. My restless night before reminded me of younger days when excitement kept me tossing and wakeful.

I tried to take it calmly; but when breakfast was over and brother had said "the blessing" "hisself" and papa called him for a good-bye chat before going to work; and then gathered us close for a family prayer, especially in behalf of the little man about to experience a change in life which would work for good or ill or both,—why it made us all solemn and tearful.

Finally, son broke the silence that ensued by a question (of course); something about electricity which I do not recall; but I thought, as I saw the cause for his question (an electric iron lying near), that I should rejoice at his privilege; and I remembered the desire of the Lord that we gain knowledge of countries and peoples and books; and I remembered that the surest, the surely successful cure for all his special ills of disposition has always been a story, a true one. (How he loves to sit on our laps and listen to us read to him especially of the early American history of war, invention and independence.) I realized how often I have felt disheartened because I could not give him all of this that I would like to have and that he so craved. And this was one reason I felt reconciled to let him make the start.

His face was one smile as I put on his favorite suit and his tie, tied four-in-hand ("like papa's," bless him) and a kerchief in the pocket.

He ran ahead with others on our way, but as soon as the big school building came in sight he ran back to me and slipped his hand in mine; the smile still there, a flushed face added.

As we chatted, he was sure he'd like his teacher. And after she and I had had a little talk, and he found he must have a "double slate and pencil" by way of material, he could hardly stand still. When he came home after his first real session, he told us all about it adding, "Oh yes; and we each counted; and when I got to twenty one, she said, "That-will-do!"

I hope he will always tell me everything. I rejoice that so far in his short life, he has shown that tendency; we have aimed to train him so. Of course his honest little face has at times showed the battle he was fighting, preparatory to a full confession: but it comes. He declares he is never going to give any other child's mother the chance to tell me his mistakes first.

But, ah,—already he reports the vulgar words and nasty expressions used by big boys on the way home from school. And I see I must keep my boy's confidence. It is of vital consequence.

Mothers! we are all having the same experience, and let us for the sake of all our little ones, interest ourselves in their experiences while away from us, so that we may know he better way to combat the impurities of word and deed which our children are daily subjected to. In this way only, will we ourselves be able to devise ways and means to protect them; and to possibly insure against their yielding to evil influences the first time, or the second time, etc., as the case may prove to be.

Too many risk the consequences of neglect in these matters, and severe punishments or the juvenile court are among the sad results, covering years to come.

LOCALS, PLEASE TAKE NOTICE.

Because of the enlarging of the work of two of our departments and preparations for more systematic study than we have yet had, it is necessary for us to call upon the locals for financial assistance.

As no date is specified for the remitting of the annual assessment we kindly ask that if it is a convenient time for you now that you will send in to the General Treasurer Mrs. J. A. Gardner your annual assessment of 10 cts. per member.

We are sure you will appreciate the efforts that are being made by the Superintendent of the Home and Child Welfare Department to supply you with a course of readings that will help you to a better understanding of child nature and therefore wiser ministrations as parents.

To those who are interested in Domestic Science we may say that Sr. Bortha L. Donaldson superintendent, has prepared a new leaflet which is to accompany a text book. These will form a very comprehensive study of the first principles of cookery and we feel will meet the demand in a very satisfactory way.

Should any of the locals or friends feel inclined to send an offering at any time in addition to their assessment it will be gratefully received for the extension of our work.

Send all remittances to Mrs. J. A. Gardner General Treasurer 707 S. Fuller Ave. Independence, Mo.

By order of the Advisory Board of the Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Whereas our heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom, love, and mercy, has deemed it wisdom to permit to be called to her reward since the last assembling of our district conference one of our most devoted workers,—Sr. Mary Beall, and whereas said sister has been in the Master's service many years and has served our district as an officer and because of this close association in the great work she has been endeared to our hearts, be it resolved, that we in behalf of the West Virginia District express our sincere regrets for our separation from our sister by adopting these resolutions of condolence: and be it further resolved that we express our deep sympathy to her bereaved husband and relatives, and cause to be spread upon the minutes of the conference these resolutions and also copies be sent to the church publications.

GRACELAND COLLEGE DAY.

October 5th next is the time for this Special Educational Benevolent Work.

Next in importance to our missionary work of the church stands the proper education and training of the youth of the church. This one cannot be successful without the other in building up and establishing Christ's work. Already we have a school which is inferior to none in advanced instruction with high moral culture. It is also upon commendable lines of approved criticism; free toleration of thought and speech and good spiritual stimulus to the student under non-sectarian influences. This is Graceland College, located at Lamoni, Iowa, in the interest of which the college day has been set apart.

This institution although of but a few years growth, and without the help of special endowment, is already recognized in many parts of the country through the good accomplished by its graduate workers reflecting its educational, moral and uplifting influences. All friends of advanced education and true development of the young will certainly be pleased with the excellent work of Graceland, and since its special and important helps are largely to the burdened, toiling and laboring classes, every one should at once feel a special duty to arrange to give the struggling institution a good material uplift.

Graceland College Day, directed, fixed and established by resolution and action of the Annual Conference of the church, and by this direction held out by its officers everywhere as a special benevolent work of the highest good to the body, through the education and training of the young who so much need its work, should not fail to receive the hearty approval and liberal help of every friend and member of the body. This is the only day in the year given to the gathering in of a fund to help our educational work and all should feel a pride in making the day a success. The college is just now entering upon the work of its year and needs every cent that can be gathered upon this day to help meet the demands of the college upkeep and running expenses for the year. We should have thirty thousand helpers upon this special day. Will the readers of this be one of them and also awaken an interest in his neighbors and friends so they may also prove helpers in the good work?

The presidents of branches everywhere where we trust will take special interest in this work; it is a part of the Lord's work, and his servants should be upon the watch tower and call the attention of his people to the needs of his work.

Also every bishop and bishop's agent in all the world should be a ready helper and promoter of this work both before and upon the day of gathering.

We are aware of the claim made by some that this fund should be paid from the church treasury, the tithes and offering fund, and to this we have never offered objection; but the body in General Conference a few years ago decided that the fund for running expenses be raised by special offerings for that purpose, and it is not in the interest of the work nor wisdom that we refuse to abide by the majority decision. Let us abide the rules until they are changed. This is in harmony with faith, wisdom and true discipleship.

What is needed in every department of the Lord's work is officers, stewards, in charge who will steadfastly push forward his cause. Give their first and best efforts to advancing the cause of Christ. "Seek first to build up and establish the kingdom of God." Doing this we have his promise that "all things shall be added."

With men and women of faith leading, and pressing forward, every department of the work, the establishment of the cause of truth will soon be accomplished; the young of the church will be saved and made helpful workers with him. But we are in the midst of a great conflict and must bravely battle for victory. "Be forewarned in every good work," as the apostle urged.

In such a struggle it absolutely requires that we properly train and direct the young soldiers, so they may occupy as the aged hero passes, and so work with the Lord, in the preparation of the church, the Bride, and His coming. How many can we depend upon in these emergencies when help is needed?

The answer we shall receive, or should, by the first Sabbath in November, and as in the past with the Lord's help we feel that the good of the college may be safely trusted in the hands of the Saints.

In making your reports, please do so addressing the president of the college, S. A. Burgess, Lamoni, Iowa, or the undersigned, Box 125, Independence, Mo.

Trusting that we may acquit ourselves as laborers in the interest of the Master's house and that his blessings may follow, I am,

Hopefully in the truth,

E. L. Kelley,
Presiding Bishop.

CUTS FOR PUBLICITY WORK.

Elders and others who have an opportunity to get into newspapers or magazines with articles on the history and doctrines of the church may now secure some excellent cuts from the Bureau of Publicity to assist them in this work.

One or more of these cuts may be secured without charge on condition that the cost of mailing both ways be paid, and the cuts be returned in good condition at the earliest possible moment after they have been used. Our supply of cuts is limited and they should not be kept out of the office longer than is absolutely necessary.

We have the following: 1. Joseph's Smith, the martyr 2. President Joseph Smith. 3. President Frederick M. Smith. 4. The Hill Cumorah, place of finding plates indicated by an arrow. 5. Home of Joseph Smith, room where the second vision was received indicated by cross. 6. Kirtland Temple. 7. Carthage Jail, where Joseph Smith was assassinated.

All requests for these cuts should be addressed to the Bureau of Publicity, Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

THE CHURCH AND EDUCATION.

"Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth."—

1 Cor. 8:1.

The church of Jesus Christ has always stood for education in the highest degree, not that form of education which aims to fill the mind with knowledge for the sake of knowledge, but that form which in addition to educating the mind to know also educates the heart to do.

The gathering of knowledge for its own sake, in the words of Paul, "puffeth up," but when the object is to acquire knowledge as a means of power in the performance of righteous service to God and man, it but acquaints the possessor with his own needs before God the source of all true knowledge, and puts him in the attitude of humbly seeking for further light.

While knowledge is essential to growth of character, it is not the only essential. Many persons become educated in knowledge but are sorely lacking in those virtues of character by which their knowledge might be made of value to themselves and others. True development can only come from a wise and proper use of knowledge coupled with a purpose springing from a true faith in God. In the early days of the church, the Lord speaking of the service to which his servants were called, said "And faith, hope, charity, and love, with an eye single to the glory of God, qualifies him for the work. Remember, faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, brotherly kindness, godliness, charity, humility, diligence. Ask and ye shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

The teaching of Peter also to "add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge," etc., shows that faith in God is the first great step toward knowledge, followed by virtue. Without these learning is but self-battery, and often becomes a weak substitute for virtue and honor. God is the source of all knowledge, and faith and virtue it men make their approach to him possible, and open the avenues by which truth can come.

That the Lord desired an educated people is shown in the instruction given to some of the early men of the church who were appointed "to do the work of printing, and of selecting and writing books for schools, in this church, that little children also may receive instruction before me as is pleasing unto me." The ministry of the church were also admonished to "study and learn, and become acquainted with all good books, and with languages, tongues, and people."

Because that God has blessed the church with the gifts of the Spirit, and many men without education have been called to the work, some individuals have thought there was no necessity of becoming educated, but the foregoing instruction disposes of that thought. The Lord in calling men has ignored many men of learning, for the evident reason that their learning was not coupled with faith in him. The first essential qualification for real service to God and man is faith, and the second is virtue or righteousness. Knowledge comes as a result of these, as well as by study, for the Lord has said: "Seek learning even by study, and also by faith."

The spirit of the gospel is one of enlightenment, of lifting up toward righteousness, and the saints as individuals and as a church should work in harmony therewith. The establishment of Graceland

College was one step leading toward a fulfillment of the divine requirement in the matter of education, and every co-operative effort upon the part of the saints helps to bring its realization. This institution has for its purpose not only the training of the mind, but the heart also, teaching the young to do as well as to know, and casting about them those uplifting influences which strengthen faith, and increase virtue.

Graceland is not a theological school, but an institution established under the fostering care of the church for the educating of the youth of the church, with such others as might choose to avail themselves of its opportunities, under an environment favorable to the giving of true knowledge. Institutions of learning are abundant in the land, but it has come to be a common complaint even with the theological schools that their students graduate with a doubtful faith in God and the Holy Scriptures. Under these circumstances the advantage of an institution which is able to send out graduates strong in faith as well as knowledge is to be prized.

Graceland is but one means of many which the church may use in the education of its people. The ministry who are called from the workshop and the plow, and from every walk of life, and sent into the world bearing the gospel message, need help in their efforts to acquire knowledge, and the church should provide for such so far as practicable. The divine institution of the school of the prophets is designed for this purpose, but until such time comes as this school can be established every other means that can be used should be used to help the men of the ministry qualify for their work.

In the field of education there is much for the church to do. Higher ideals are needed, and diviner purposes than the world has, and these can only come through the church which has been divinely established under the restored gospel.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 14.

"THE DARK AND CLOUDY DAY."

The disruptions affecting the church for several years subsequent to the death of its president and prophet in 1844, left thousands of the saints unsatisfied with the several leaders which arose assuming to lead the church. Many did not know whom to follow but in their distress turned to one or another of the leaders only to meet with disappointment in consequence of the introduction of doctrines and practices more or less in conflict with what they had formerly believed. Some turned to other leaders only to meet with a repetition of the experience. Many came to the conclusion that there was no faithful or true leader to be found and either quietly withdrew awaiting the coming of greater light and a renewal of their hopes, or turned away in despair to follow other inclinations of their own.

That some evilly disposed men had found place in the original church the history of these years clearly shows, but nevertheless the events of that time were but the natural results of preceding conditions, and were just such events as were necessary to bring about the declared purposes of God in the establishment of the work. God's hand was over his work and it was not to be frustrated, and though his faithful children passed through a "dark and cloudy day" yet the providences of God were sufficient to meet the needs of the faithful, while the unfaithful saw not the leadings of his hand and were consequently led away by false leaders.

After one of the disastrous experiences of the saints the Lord said that he had suffered it "that those who call themselves after my name might be chastened for a little season, with a sore and grievous chastisement, because they did not hearken altogether unto the precepts and commandments which I gave unto them." Again the Lord said:

"When men are called unto mine everlasting gospel, and covenant with an everlasting covenant, they are accounted as the salt of the earth, and the savor of men. They are called to be the savor of men. Therefore if that salt of the earth lose its savor, behold, it is thenceforth good for nothing, only to be cast out and trodden under the feet of men. Behold here is wisdom concerning the children of Zion; even many, but not all; they were found transgressors, therefore they must needs be chastened." Doc. and Cov. 98:5.

"My people must needs be chastened until they learn obedience, if it must needs be, by the things which they suffer. I speak not concerning those who are appointed to lead my people, who are the first elders of my church, for they are not all under this condemnation." Doc. and Cov. 102:2,3.

From these statements it appears that while the saints had obeyed many of the commandments they had not obeyed all, and that this condemnation rested upon a portion of them only,—not all. For the failure of some to live up to the new covenant of the gospel the Lord permitted chastisement to come upon them, and said that such chastisement would continue to come until they learned obedience. It is further shown that those who would not be reproved and corrected by chastisement would be "cast out and trodden under the feet of men."

These things had a literal fulfillment in the years from 1844 to about 1852, when thousands were led away, not only from that part of the country which the Lord said they should occupy if faithful but should be scattered from it if unfaithful, but in large measure from the restored gospel with its divine gifts and blessings. The introduction of corrupt doctrines and evil practices into some of the factions which arose, brought the name of the church into ill-repute, and also the name of Joseph Smith who was falsely accused by those who went to the West of having been the author of polygamy.

Controversies arose over questions of leadership, and the right of priesthood, and there came a searching of the law of the church with such diligence as never had been known before. Some who chose to follow their preferred ways discarded the law, while those who chose to follow the divine revelations contended for a strict obedience in both individual and collective procedure. It was a time of sifting in which each member was being drawn to his own element, but in the midst of it all there were those individuals who had not followed the ways of error nor sin, who saw with spiritual eyes the influences of the adversary in the evils which were leading so many away from the truth, and in the midst of darkness sought diligently the guiding hand of their God. Nor were they disappointed.

In evidence of the over-ruling and directing hand of God the following may be noted in the experiences of Edmund C. Briggs relative to the workings of the Spirit with him. In his tenth year, the news of the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum Smith came to the family, and while the elder members were discussing it, he relates that a strange power came over him which he had never before experienced, and immediately he was wrapped in vision. In the vision a voice uttered the words distinctly: "Joseph, the son of Joseph, is the prophet of the church." Subsequently to this he was again shown a vision which he relates as follows:

"In the vision I stood north of the city of Nauvoo, Illinois, and saw the woods and prairie north and northeast of the city, with scattering houses in the timber, on the hill, and down the sloping plain to the low land along the river. While I viewed the city I saw a thin mist like crape, descending from the northeast of the city. It settled down on the trees first, but did not stop its course until it settled down closely over all the city; and while I stood wondering in my mind what it was, a voice nearby, to the right and a little back of me said: 'It is the spirit of whoredom, and it will be poured out upon the church first, and then it will be poured out upon the whole world. And immediately I stood in a room. A fireplace was in the west end. The door and casing were made of heavy lumber, very nicely finished and polished. The window casings, mantelpiece, and baseboards were of the same material, and resembled black walnut lumber; and while noticing the fine workmanship, I saw two women near the east end of the room. They were clothed in nicely fitting black and wore bonnets fastened like the Shaker, tied close under the chin.

They walked side by side as though they took hold of each other's arms, but yet they did not. Each was in tears, crying and wringing her hands as if in distress, and one of them said, "Is that so? They walked toward the fireplace, and again one of them spoke out in her sobs as though her heart would break, 'My God! is that so?' By this time I was much moved by sympathy for them, and I exclaimed, 'My God! what does this mean?' And again one of them said, 'If it was not for the future, I would not do it.' I then seemed to understand that they were being taught something repugnant to their feelings that caused them great sorrow and anguish of heart as they sobbed and wrung their hands and slowly walked toward the fireplace.

"And immediately I saw two Mormon elders following these women. They, too, walked side by side, and their raiment was fine broadcloth in shining luster. They were gleefully talking together, making rather awkward gestures with their hands. I then noticed the contrast between the women and the men. The first were in agony of soul; the others were in a mood of laughing indifference, full of glee. The first in plain dead black; the others in, fine broadcloth. And while I gazed at them in wonder and astonishment, again one of the women exclaimed, 'My God! is it so?' And I repeated in the anguish of my heart, 'What does this mean?' and a person I had not noticed before seemed to stand at my right and said, 'They are being taught whoredom under a new name to take away the reproach, and whoredom sits a queen over all manner of corruption.' And immediately after I saw a pail of blood splash on the floor just behind the men, and the person standing at my right passed behind me, went up to them, took hold of one of their coat collars, showed me the seams of the collar, then took hold of one of the sleeves and pointed to the seams of the sleeves, then took hold of the skirt and showed me all the seams of the coat, and around the skirts, and every seam was lined with blood, and he then said, 'That is murder, and murder is the sister of the queen; and the queen and her sister sit and preside overall manner of corruption that flesh is heir to.'

These boyhood experiences with others of similar character, gave this man a clear understanding of the conditions that were then developing among people at Nauvoo, and prepared him to stand in opposition to the evils which he saw, and to make a strong defense of the truth. Nor was he the only one who received divine insight into the conditions of the times, for many were able to stand for the truth in opposition to the false and seductive teachings which were brought in by some who had been overcome. As God preserved his ancient Israel in the darkness and bondage of Egypt, so he cared for his children through the "dark and cloudy day," and out of the mists his truth came cleared of the obscurities which had been brought upon it by men. In harmony with the law of the church Joseph Smith Jr. had publicly designated his son Joseph as his successor (he was twelve years old at the time of his father's death), and hence the Spirit's words to Mr. Briggs were in agreement therewith. In the next number we shall see how the Spirit of God led various individuals in assembling the faithful and preparing them for a reorganization.

Bro. A. M. Chase writes that he has established his field address at 445 N. Tioga St., Ithaca, N. Y. He desires to hear from saints or friends in that district in reference to missionary work during the remainder of the conference year. He says: "with my wife and daughter and Elder B. L. McKim we just closed a very interesting meeting among the Tuscarora Indians and left with a promise of returning and holding a series of meetings in the winter."

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

The special services which have been in progress the past two weeks at the Eaglewood Mission, closed Sunday night, and Bro. Zahnd who is in charge reports that the success of the effort exceeded their expectations. Bro. Ammon White was the principal speaker, being relieved four nights by Bro. Zahnd and one night by Bro. Frank Pierce. The interest was good and the mission was several times taxed to its capacity, and a goodly number who never had heard the gospel came to hear its sweet message, and some are near the kingdom.

Bro. Walter Bullard, son of Bro. W. D. Bullard, died rather suddenly from hemorrhage last Friday morning. He had been in poor health for several years, and had come to Independence last summer from Colorado. He had been able to be about and death came rather unexpectedly as he was doing some light work in the yard. The funeral was held Sunday at 1:30 p. m. at the church, the sermon being by Bro. Joseph Luff.

The Liahona the Elders' Journal, the mission paper of the Utah Church published in this city has for its new editor

Joseph E. Cardon, of Logan, Utah. He succeeds Joseph A. McRae.

Elder Robert M. Elvin was the morning speaker at the stone church and Elder W. H. Garrett spoke in the evening. Being absent from the city we did not hear these sermons.

Bro. Paul Craig of Omaha has been here for a few days renewing friendships and visiting relatives. Bro. Paul has pastoral charge of the work at Omaha but is still interested in matters here, especially along the musical line.

On Thursday evening the 25th a branch was organized at the Walnut Park Mission, named the Walnut Park Branch, by minister in charge, John W. Rushton, and G. E. Harrington and M. H. Bond of the stake presidency, and Richard Bullard of the stake bishopric. The new branch numbers fifty members who chose Elder J. J. Boswell president, Walton Wood priest, Harry Smith teacher and secretary, and Bro. Philips deacon. The Ensign congratulates this new organization and trusts the blessing of God will attend it in its work.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Bro. J. E. Soderstadt gave a very interesting talk to the Sunday school on the duties of the patrons of the library, it being a free auxiliary to the school.

At the eleven o'clock hour Bro. P. A. Sherman was the speaker. Some good lessons were taught, and if his advice is heeded much good will result. Parents are not watchful enough but after the wound is inflicted, then comes the distressing time of healing which leaves a dreadful scar.

At the eight o'clock hour Bro. H. W. Gould was the speaker and in his usual good natured way treated us to a feast of good things. His remarks were drawn from the thought of Christ learning obedience by the things which he suffered, and it was applied to us relative to the things we are made to suffer in this life, they being our teachers.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

The morning sermon of September 21st was delivered by our pastor Bro. T. J. Elliott his subject being, "God's people a tried people." In the evening Bro. George Vandell of the Lansdowne Branch was the speaker selecting as his text, "Pure Religion and undefiled before God and the Father, is this, to visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

The young people's prayermeetings are very much enjoyed by those privileged to attend.

Last Friday evening the Religio was given a treat in the way of a fine talk by Apostle Rushton, who came to St. Louis to be in attendance at the district conference which was held at Bellville Illinois, Sept. 27 and 28. He is reported to have addressed the assembly the morning of the 28th, and Bro. Archibald in the evening.

A prayermeeting was held in the afternoon and priest-hood meeting at 4 p. m. The ladies aid society held a session.

Owing to conference no services were held in St. Louis but Sunday school.

The choir is starting practice for several cantatas to be given for special future services.

Bro. Clark of Oakland California, was an attendant at the morning service Sept. 21st, and addressed the Sunday school. A host of friends, Brothers and Sisters in the faith, in St. Louis extend their deepest sympathy to Sr. Charles Jones in the loss of so beloved a companion. The undersigned feels especially sad as she always felt he was near to her, as he was the means of instructing her in the gospel and inducted her into the kingdom. He was truly a servant of God, and we feel assured was ready to meet the Master and prepared to receive the highest reward. How happy can Sr. Jones feel in such a hope. May she be blessed in bearing the separation.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., FIRST BRANCH.

Sunday morning Sept. 20th, the Sunday school was enlivened by very good music. The songs were spirited and were sung with evident enjoyment. After the lesson period the juniors entertained the school with a sunshine program which was greatly appreciated.

At eleven o'clock Elder M. Shaw of Independence, preached on the "Restoration." The brother gave us abundant food for thought in this discourse, and it was much enjoyed by those who heard it. At six o'clock the saints were cheered by a spiritual prayermeeting, and at eight o'clock Elder B. J. Scott spoke, his subject being the "Laying on of hands."

Wednesday night prayermeetings show a gradual increase in attendance and interest.

The Religio is forging ahead, thanks to our dear young people. We now have six nice classes.

On Friday 19th a number of the members of the Ladies Aid Society went to the home our aged Sr. Charity Cook, for a farewell demonstration of our respect and esteem. A delicious dinner was served, and an afternoon social intercourse followed which we think will linger long in the memory of all there and be a source of pleasant recollection to our sister. The occasion for this was the departure of Sr. Cook for a new home in Kingston Mo. Long years has this sister been a faithful worker in the Aid Society, never missing a meeting unless sick or absent from the city. We regret her departure and shall miss her greatly.

On Thursday evening the 25th we had a grand good time at a reception given by the branch to pastor Bro. B. J. Scott and family. It was held in the basement of the church, so that we might have plenty of room. Baskets, boxes and packages were brought in profusion, by the members, and when their contents were disgorged and spread upon long flower decked tables, prepared to receive them "a feast fit for a king" greeted our eyes. Welcoming speeches were made by Bro. W. W. Scott, Coventry Archibald and D. C. Wilke. Bro. B. J. responded in a happy manner, and when we departed for our homes after a very pleasant evening we felt that a loving bond had been cemented between pastor and flock.

Sunday the 27th Bro. Scott spoke on the "Temporal Law" at the morning preaching hour. This was the beginning of a series on this subject to be given in the future.

At 2:30 o'clock the funeral sermon of our aged Bro. Wm. Hawkins was held; Bro. Hawkins died Sept. 26th at the home of his daughter Sr. Clara Martin. He fell asleep as peacefully as a child. For many years he has been well known in this city and to the members of the church. As long as he was able, to go he was constant in attendance at services, but at late years, increasing age and infirmity kept him an unwilling prisoner. His testimony was firm and unshaken to the last. He was eighty-seven years old. Bro. Scott preached the funeral sermon. The remains were taken to Lamoni for interment.

Sermon in the evening by the pastor on "Judgment." Good sermon, good attendance and interest.

Mr. J. P. Tilden, husband of our dear sister, Agnes Tilden has sold his grocery business and we believe ultimately will leave our city. Sr. Tilden has been in failing health for some months and in the hope of benefiting her, they will seek another climate. We are sorry to lose so faithful a worker as she is.

BENNINGTON HEIGHTS BRANCH.

It is a pleasure to again write to your valuable columns that you may know of our faith and trust in the gospel work and the joy and pleasure it gives us when engaged in the work.

As our long dry season and also the hot weather is over we are thinking of having a series of meetings at Bennington Heights soon.

Next Sunday we will have the pleasure of participating in institute Sunday school work of Independence Stake. Every body welcomed.

Mr. Silas Winn who is also a member of our church from Washington is visiting with his brother D. F. Winn our branch president. We are sorry to lose one of our young sisters Miss Grace Curtis who is now working at the Saint's Sanitarium at Independence.

As I read Bro. T. W. Chatburn's letter in last week's Herald explaining the rough treatment he got in Arkansas recently and a lengthy account in our city paper here (K. C. Post) of a Catholic priest in New York City brutally murdering his wife and throwing her body in the Hudson River and other things almost as bad happening all around us, it caused me to wonder how, oh how can people argue "the world is growing better."—Then what manner of people should we as saints be?

I often wonder "will I have on the wedding garments? will I have sufficient oil in my lamp?" May the Lord help us all to this end.

KANSAS CITY MO., FOURTH BRANCH.

43RD AND GARFIELD.

At the close of the very hot weather, the rain and cool breezes are refreshing and should give added zeal and zest to those that are trying to serve the Master.

Several from here attended the Stake Sunday school convention and conference on the 12th 13th and 14th inst. and our school will try to profit by the instruction received. Glad to note that the Stake is to have a reunion next year.

Some of our number have moved to other places, thus depleting our ranks, but we trust will be workers for God wherever placed.

Our president, L. A. Fowler has announced that on Sunday Oct. 5th will be a rally day for the branch. We note also that on Sunday Oct. 5th is college day. May Graceland be well remembered.

Mrs. Alice Armstrong.

The Fourth Branch will hold a rally day on Sunday October 5th, and all day services will be held at the church at 43rd and Garfield. Bro. B. J. Scott will be pres. ut, and all members old and new are urged to come and have an enjoyable time. Bring your lunch. Sunday school at 9:45.

L. A. Fowler, Pres.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

Much of an encouraging nature is noted in general conditions. The work is moving steadily on, with a good fair attendance, and the houses are frequently full, with nearly if not quite all of the seats taken. One of the best indexes is supposed to be the prayermeetings and our attendance at these meetings has increased by gradual, steady growth to about fifty. Preaching services are well attended and the spiritual power is increasing in a very gratifying manner, corresponding to the better observance of the financial laws under the administration of Bro. Frederick Adam who is now able to give greater attention to that arm of the work since Bro. Goodrich came and relieved him from the duties of presiding over the branch.

Our mission at Long Beach is progressing. Six children were blessed last Sunday, their parents being non-members but looking towards the kingdom. The attendance at Sunday school is about twenty, and at preaching services twenty-two to twenty-five, due largely to the untiring efforts of Sr. Packard at whose home the services are being held.

Some very remarkable results have attended the ministrations to the sick in the cases of Sr. Howland who is now attending church again after a siege of several months unable to leave the house or even come down stairs. Also the infant daughter of Sr. Addie McWhorter, 13 months old which was taken with whooping cough, which not yielding to administration and home remedies, or even the care of physicians, developed into dropsy and declared by three doctors to be beyond their skill, to the extent that they refused to come any more, saying it was useless expense for them to come; so after a whole night in prayer sent for Bro. Goodrich under whose administration the power of the diseases was broken and the child went to sleep and recovery began. The husband said "God sent Bro. Godditch as a special messenger to heal the baby." The facts are covered by the written testimony of Sr. McWhorter.

Ringling's great circus has come and gone, but one incident shines out, wherein as a result of the teaching of Bro. and Sr. Clark who are valued members of the professionals in the circus for a good many years, a new member to the church was added while here: Mr. Claus. McKInney came and was baptized at the church Sunday afternoon, was confirmed at the same time; the good influence was enjoyed by all present.

Some interesting Lamanite developments are expected in the near future.

R. T. Cooper.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Bro. Emery Parks, a young priest, was the morning speaker in the city and occupied advanced grounds as a gospel expounder. Bro. E. Ingham preached a good logical sermon in the evening. The Oakland satists were disappointed in not hearing Bro. James E. Kelley in the morning, he being prevented from attending. The pastor stood in the breach morning and night.

My missionary companion is taking a needed rest and change because of the condition of her health. The mother of Dr. W. P. Bush is giving her a home at Oakdale, 109 miles from here, on the foot hills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Sr. Anna Smith is with us, having been called because of the sickness of her daughter Maud, for whom we ask prayers.

Bro. Stead and Reiste have closed their tent work at Gridley and will locate at Marysville or Orville—probably the former. Bro. C. W. Dewey and C. J. Cady have erected their tent at Madera but encountered very hot weather which hindered their work. It knows how to get hot over the San Joaquin Valley.

Bro. C. W. Earle was able to attend church last Sunday, the first time for three months. Bro. Davison preached morning and even in Sacramento last Sunday—both efforts well spoken of. Bro. C. A. Parkin spent Sunday at Stockton occupying morning and evening. He reports good attendance and interest.

CORRESPONDENCE

Wray, Colo., Aug. 30.

Editor Ensign:—About the first of May I started for my field of labor for the summer. My first stop was at Mt. Washington, Mo.; then at Council Grove, Kansas, where I found Bro. and Sr. Piteburger letting their light shine; they are anxious to have their neighbors hear the gospel, so they had me preach several times for them in a private house, but only a few came out to hear the truth. My next stop was at Sylvan Grove, Kas.; there I was warmly received by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nefzgar, they got the M. E. Church for me to preach in; the minister, Mr. Joseph Kerr, was very courteous to me and used me like a gentleman. I believe that is a good opening; and should be kept open. Mr. and Mrs. Nefzgar will give an elder a good home while he preaches there, he will procure the opera house. Mr Nefzgar is a son of old Sr. Brooks of Arlington, Iowa. Also a brother of Sr. Frank Crawford of Independence.

My next stop was at Burlington, Colo.; there I opened in a sod school house, had a fine crowd; preached in another school house five miles north where I found Bro. Shumate and Muester firm in the faith also their respected families. Next I stopped at Hugo, where lives Mr. and Sr. Shippy. She is a faithful isolated saint, and her good husband, a son of the late Charles Shippy of Arlington, Iowa, is always glad to have the elders stop to see them. On the 15th of July Mr. Shippy's brother, Algie Shippy, and a neighbor were hauling hay and a thunder bolt struck Algie, a noble young man, and killed him and also one of the horses, and stunned the other man so that he scarcely was able to drag Shippy from from the load, to keep him from being burned up.

From Hugo I went to Glen, my son in the gospel. Elder J. R. Sutton sent his son with his auto after me. It was a cold ride of about 40 or 47 miles. I received a warm welcome from them all. I filled Bro. Sutton's appointment to a very crowded house of interested listeners. Then to Colorado Springs, where I got a warm welcome from the Clarks and Russels, and all the saints. I made good use of the soda water at the Manitou Springs; I believe that is God's medicine. When I closed meetings there I visited the isolated saints at Bristol, Bro. and Sr. Disart; also at Fowler, where I received a welcome at Bro. and Sr. Will Hand's, formerly of Holden, Mo. I also preached for the Falcon saints. Then across the range to Delta, Co., to Paonia and Delta. There I found S. Twombly holding the fort bravely; there we held meetings at four different places with good interest at most of them. The saints in that part are considerably discouraged on account of the third failure of the fruit crop, many of the fruit raisers are in very tight circumstances and some will lose their farms on account of the failure of the crops, no peaches, and apples are scarce. The nights were cold, or rather cool there, but the days were the hottest that they had witnessed for a number of years.

From there I came back across the snowy mountains again to Colorado Springs and held another week's meetings, then to Denver for a few days, preached one night to a fine crowd to the new mission; while there I stopped with our genial Bro. and Sr. Bartlett; that is a splendid place to stop and feel at home. Then on Thursday I came here by invitation to assist at the Wray reunion; and now the reunion is in full blast, with Bro. Twombly, Anderson and Tabor at the head as presiding officers. The attendance is quite good for the time of the year, while those who have any grain are busy threshing. The elders present are: S. Twombly, Jr R. Sutton, P. Anderson, J. S. Roth, L. Fike, F. Robertson, J. Curtis, F. A. Russell.

When the reunion closes I expect to remain here in Wray by invitation to continue the meetings for several weeks; then to Burlington, then to Mahaska, Kas., then to Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Perry, Iowa, then to Missouri.

The good Lord has blessed me to a marked degree when presenting his truth. I have baptized nine this summer, and two more told me they were ready, a Mormon woman and a Christian, if I am not mistaken. It has been very, very hot and still is terribly dry here. Corn is a total failure in these parts, and small grain very poor. May God bless all of his children, is my prayer.

J. S. Roth.

NAYLOR, Mo., Sept. 12.

Dear Ensign:—As I never have written to your columns thought I would take the pleasure of writing. I obeyed this latter day gospel five years ago. Bro. A. M. Baker baptized me. Can say I am trying to hold out faithful and serve my Lord and am very thankful for the many blessings my heavenly Father gives me. I have been reading the letters from the brothers and sisters from parts of the world where they are sending in money to help pay the church debt off and I am sending in $1.00 for myself and am sending in $3.00 more. My Aunt Kiska Venable gave me a dollar to send in for her and my sister Rhoda and my papa. So that makes $4.00 in all. Trusting that in a short time from now there will be enough money sent in to pay the debt. I would be glad to hear from any of the satists who wishes to write to me. Would answer all letters. Will close my letter for this time by asking all the saints to pray for me that I may hold out faithful. May the Lord's blessings be with all the saints in this world is my prayer.

Your sister in the gospel,
Miss Eva B. Potter.

WINSLOW, Ind., Sept. 4.

Dear Ensign:—I thought perhaps a few lines from this part of the Lord's vineyard would be available through the silent preacher.

Bro. Jacob Halb of the first quorum of seventy and the writer are laboring together at present. We are holding meetings near Winslow in a new opening. We are blest with the Spirit in declaring the word, notwithstanding the opposing power is at work, and storming the fort, but with God as our captain we are able to hold the fort well fortified by the Spirit, and many are interested in the true gospel. Some are near the kingdom.

I rejoice in the gospel work and the more experience I have the stronger I grow, both intellectually and spiritually.

Almost every place we go we are deprived of the use of some churches by reason of prejudice existing among those who ought to be our friends. Oh! that we only had a gospel tent where the opportunities would be much greater for those who desire the angel's message. Will the saints of the Southern Indiana District take under consideration the creation of a district fund to purchase a tent, sometime in the future? There are approximately 400 members in said district and the small sum of 25 cents each would be required to purchase a good tent. The matter could be taken up at the ensuing district conference to convene in October at Indianapolis, Ind.

The saints are rejoicing at the progress of the work in this field although slowly but surely, and we have reason to praise King Immanuel for the blessings received realizing now is the time to work. Let us pray for more laborers in the field and sacrifice more for the Master.

Your servant for Christ,
Chailes Nolan.

WICHITA, Kas., Sept. 6.

Editor Ensign:—Tomorrow night will close a series of meetings in Wichita which began about eleven weeks ago, with good results, as five have been baptized by the writer and there has been ten children blessed since the meetings began. We have had with us in the meetings of the missionary force, Bro. J. Arthur Davis, W. E. Peak, and young Bro. Martin of Independence, Mo.

This may seem small to some in regard to numbers for the work of eleven weeks but we are well pleased to see that many, and we feel that we have done a greater work than can at present be realized, as we have sowed the seed on some good ground if the greater portion has fallen on stony ground. There are some now that are almost ready and it will be no surprise to the writer if the water is again troubled before long.

The above brethren gave us some grand sermons, and their work will be long remembered by those who heard. We also wish to mention Sr. Maude Peak who came with her father to help him in the work, and the many cheering songs that were sung under her leadership, were inspiring and instructive. Sr. Peak and her father left here for Alexander, Kas., a week ago, where he will hold a few meetings on his way to his field in Idaho, while Sr. Maude will go to Great Bend, Kas., where she is principal of the schools.

The tent will be taken to Winfield, Kas., Monday and Bro. Davis and Martin will hold forth for some time, as we are in hopes of seeing a branch there before long, as we have about a dozen very nice saints in Winfield and Arkansas City.

May the Lord bless the people and keep them humble and pure that the work of the kingdom may spread and the honest in heart be gathered in before the great and dreadful day of the Lord shall come, is the prayer of your brother.

LOVELAND Okla., Aug. 29.

It has been a long time since I wrote a letter to the church papers. A few things as I see them, and some of my experiences may help some one. I do not get to read all that goes on in Herald and Ensign from the fact that all the saints do not take the papers where I go. I miss some good reading matter that I would appreciate. I am in my 61st year and can hardly realize this is so. I was 33 when baptized.

I first heard the gospel preached by D. H. Bays and was baptized by I. N. Roberts in Bell Co., Texas. I received of the Spirit baptism to the convincing of my mind beyond doubt that this gospel is God's power today. I am thankful to be able to say I have never for one moment doubted this work being God's work and I want to say to the church, and the world as well, that this knowledge is all that has kept me alive to the church. Not just knowledge received at first and no more, but live upon live, here a little and there a little.

When it comes to trials, I have had them thick and fast. I have been rotten-egged six times; lost a little girl six years old while we lived in Arkansas, and my wife has been afflicted with epilepsy for sixteen years and is still afflicted. I soon spent all of this worlds goods I had when I began in mission work twenty-three years ago and for eighteen years I have contended against poverty the worst enemy I have had to contend with. I have often wondered why men and women who are willing to work so hard for the Lord, had to be so poor and pressed while others have abundance. This has been my trial. I hate ignorance and a certain grade of poverty and I have them both. To live on an allowance so small and then get that so irregularly for twenty-three years gets discouraging and gets no better. I read the papers and attend all the general conferences, and see so many of the saints well supplied, I read of so many traveling, visiting, having such good times, eating, drinking, sleeping bathing in salt hot water, and cold soft water, sight seeing, going around the world, good clothes to wear for self, wife and children, and all well educated. I then compare myself and wife and children with this class, and I get so dizzy-headed, and so far off to one side that I often feel tempted to get busy in business of some kind and take one visit with wife before we die.

Now I do not envy my fortunate brothers and sisters, I do not feel like I would like to see them suffer as we do, but I would like to have some of the sweet too. I am not envious but the knowledge I have of the gospel is mine to stay by the help of the Giver. But how about being one. I cannot do it to save my life. It does make differences about the feathers, and birds of the same feathers flock together. pretty feathers stick together, fine feathers and fine living and fine land, and money go together. Poor clothes poor estates, ugly feathers, no land, no home, no money, all go together. If I were back where I was when I began mission work and knew what was to be endured because of sacrifice and poverty I would not undertake it. I fear that after all I will have to go to the prison house because it is written that he that fails to provide for his own household is worse than an infidel. My family has not been and is not now being provided for.

I am just home from Wawaka Texas where Bro. Case met Jos. S. Worlicke of Dallas in debate. Have preached every night except one since coming home. Large crowds and fine interest, some to baptize Sunday. A letter from Bro. Aylor says, Sam! go to Dallas. I go next week. My wife has had no allowance for two months and not one dollar yet has come from Northeast Texas as tithing, and calls coming thick and fast—"Come on, Bro. Simmons we need you badly." I am not tired of the church work, I see iniquity and poverty, aristocracy and missionaries' wives without supplies. I am into it for the better or for worse; which will it be.

Sam W. Simmons.

Dear Ensign:—I wish to notify your many readers that the undersigned has changed her address, or will in one week's time from that of "Colton" to 620 W. Fifth St. Santa Ana Orange Co., Colo. There is a tinge of sadness takes the place of the very pleasant influence that pervades my whole being in the early morning, when I moved about my quiet home, so cool and restful, when I remember that this is perhaps the last Sunday I will spend in this my God given home as I have believed it to have been. But all of God's gifts are for a purpose, and that purpose is fulfilled sooner or later, and so I feel that the purpose of this has been fulfilled, that is, the time has been outlived by me. Whether any good has been accomplished by my being here will be known when the records come in at the last day.

Some of the few saints who lived here have moved away, so that we can no longer have the weekly prayermeetings. Neighbors who became interested in our publications are now afraid to read any more. It disturbs their feeling of security in their own faith, and not being sufficiently interested in religious affairs to make an investigation would rather drop the question, and remain quiet, but they are good neighbors. The Ensign has done a silent work of teaching truth, and removing prejudice. That puts the membership of the Reorganization on a better footing, and they are regarded more cordially by many than heretofore.

How I have wished their spiritual eyes were open to see the depth, and beauty of much that its pages contain. To me they are good to the soul, and by way of thanks for the gift of it (the paper) these many years. I will say that what it has been to me these few years past in transforming what would have been lonely sorrowful hours, with the highest degree of enjoyment that one can desire from religious reading, cannot be estimated. And may its interests as a purely missionary paper continue to be zealously guarded. I often remember its writers—not as individuals, but as writers—before the Lord that they may keep themselves in a position that the good Master may use them to give to the people the Spiritual force that is needed, and at the time it is needed as has often been experienced, and that God's blessings may go with it.

In bonds,
Sr. E. B. Burton.

Infinite toil would not enable you to sweep away a mist, but by ascending a little you may often look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvement; we wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which could have no hold upon us if we ascended to a higher atmosphere.—Sir Arthur Phelps.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE ORIGIN AND CAUSE OF CHURCHES.

F. J. EBELING.

The origin and cause of things has always been a fascinating study of all the scientists and philosophers in all ages. Many lives and countless thousands of dollars have been employed in seeking the cause and origin of things temporal, and before any proposition becomes an established fact, it must pass through the most crucial test; but when it comes to that which assumes to give mankind the best within the gift of the Creator (eternal life) it is accepted too often without question.

The church being the medium through which we are to secure eternal life, should be one whose cause and origin is in God, and that fact should be well established before we entrust our soul's eternal welfare to it. Since a stream can rise no higher than its source, neither can a man rise higher spiritually than the organization of which he is a part. And if an organization began by human efforts alone, it must remain human as long as it exists. Divinity cannot be governed by humanity.

Before any man of ordinary business forethought will invest money in land or property of any kind, he will search carefully the records back to the beginning to see if the title is safe to invest upon. And up through each and every transfer; but should he find the original claimant to be false, he would go no further, but reject the effort at once. So should an individual who is about to intrust his soul's salvation in a church, be more prudent than the business man, who has only a few dollars at stake. If in the examination of any church, claiming to be the true one, we run it back to the beginning and find it at fault, having only a human origin, we should at once refuse to invest, regardless of its wealth, popularity, or influence. It is a safe investment we are looking for in the by and by, and not personal gain here.

Notwithstanding all the many churches in the world, only one can have a divine origin; and the only way by which to determine this is to trace all the claimants back to their source, which we shall proceed to do.

We need not occupy space to establish the fact of the universal apostasy, for the church of Rome is the only one having its origin prior to the time of the Reformation, and held by all protestant churches to have been in apostasy.

I shall quote mainly from that most excellent work: "Corner Stone of Faith" by Rev. Charles H. Small, B. D., M. A., and endorsed by such eminent men as Rev. John Henry Barrows, D. D., L. L. D., President of the World's Parliament. On page 35 he gives the foundation of all sectarian churches.

"The Roman Catholic Church is the oldest church. From that church came all our churches, however far the Reformation may have moved them from their original position. And so it has seemed proper, in considering the different existing denominations even in this new and modern land, to begin with that oldest of churches today extant. The method of our treatment will then be, beginning with the Roman Catholic Church, and showing what it is in America, to take up other denominations of Christians, beginning with that which has departed last from Roman forms, and following with others in order as they have separated themselves more and more from the original."

Well does this eminent author claim that all the churches of the Reformation, however far this side of it, had their origin in the Roman Catholic Church. We as members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, can truly congratulate ourselves upon not having our origin in a reformation but rather through a restoration of original Christianity. A reformation could not meet the demand, for the great apostasy had played such havoc with the apostolic church that nothing short of a restoration would suffice.

After the reformers had done all they could, the best they could give to the world was a reformed Roman Catholic Church. And since that church was divested of all governmental authority, what authority could she transmit to those churches which sprang out of her?

There are but two ways by which divine authority to represent God on earth can obtain. One by succession through ordination; and the other by direct revelation from God. Outside of these two means there is absolutely no authority from God. Vain and fruitless has been the efforts of some to run their origin back to the first century. Invariably they become entirely lost in midnight darkness of the great apostasy. All those who have attempted have acknowledged their defeat.

The most conclusive evidence that they do not have the authority possessed in the apostolic times is the fact that they do not have the apostolic church now. It is utterly vain to spend time trying to prove themselves the church by apostolic succession when they cannot produce the church now in its ancient form and character. What would be thought of one contending for a piece of property, claiming it came to him from generation to generation, and when called upon could not produce the piece of property but another of entirely different description from the original? Just as inconsistent are they who claim the church from the apostles.

Now since all Protestantism denies revealed authority in these days they entirely cut themselves off from that source. Hence we are led to ask since they all sprang from Rome who themselves say had no authority and having received none from heaven, by what divine right do they exist?

We shall now proceed to show this human origin, and in nearly every instance you will find their source of inspiration in founding a new church was a fight or quarrel over some doctrine, tenet, government, church policy, or political question. Our civil war furnished the cause for the starting of many churches, all having different and divergent theories of church government.

All churches are of the following forms. 1. Hierarchical, in which the authority is vested in one man with subordinates. 2. Prelatical, in which the authority is vested in the order of clergy. 3. Representative, in which the authority is vested in a representative body. 4. Independent, in which the authority is vested in the local church. These are the grand divisions of governmental authority, over which great controversy which has been going on for centuries. And none of them have ever thought of referring the great question to God for decision. Surely God cannot be the author of all these different forms of church government. Although they piously tell us they are all the branches of the same vine, we are reminded that Jesus says, "By their fruits shall ye know them."

In doctrine, Protestantism contends over the two great divisions: Calvinism, as the Augustinian system, and Arminianism. The former holds salvation to be only by election, the other by free grace, being diametrically opposed to each other. They evidently did not both emanate from the same fountain of eternal truth.

Again Christianity is divided into two great contending armies, viz. Catholic and Protestant; the former with all their ancient traditions, claiming to be the true and only church; the latter with all modern development claiming they are the church. Catholicism teaches that the way to Christ is through the church while Protestantism teaches the very opposite—that the way to the church is through Christ. Catholicism teaches seven sacraments necessary to salvation, viz., Baptism, Lord's supper, Confirmation, Penance, Extreme Unction, Ordination and Matrimony. Protestantism generally accepts only the first two. There are many other material differences between the two great bodies, but this is sufficient to prove that both could not have originated in the divine Source of all truth.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

As is well known by all students of Christianity this great body had its origin in a quarrel between Henry VIII, King of England and the Pope of Rome over the divorce question. This unfaithful king became infatuated with Anne Boleyn, and because the Pope refused him a divorce from his legal wife Katherine, he influenced his Parliament to grant him the divorce on the pretext that it was not legal for a king to have his brother's wife. The Parliament yielded to his lustful whim, and the separation effected. In the course of thirty years reign, he divorced two wives, murdered two, and lived with two. This great church began in a quarrel, the result of a king's lustful ambition, and its foundation was laid in blood. The historian says, "It is to England that we turn to find the beginning of the Episcopal Church as it exists today, and to the time of Henry VIII who threw off allegiance to the Pope of Rome. . . However, the opposition that had been gathering and smoldering in England for two centuries burst forth when Henry VIII renounced the authority of the Pope and the Anglican Church as we know it was established, but not fully however, until it had passed through many critical periods."—Corner Stone of Faith, page 83.

We learn from the history that this great church, is purely human, gradually taking on form through a long seige of controversies, finally evolving into the Church of England. It is well named.

To call it the church of Christ or God, would be a misnomer, for God and Christ were not consulted, and it was wholly by human legislation that it was established. No direction from heaven was ever claimed for it. None of its leaders ever went to God to seek divine guidance. Since their church is wholly human all others growing out from it would also be human.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF AMERICA.

The American Episcopal Church in the transitory period of the new country from the Colonial under England to that of an independent nation, met serious questions constantly arising between the churchman of England and the churchmen of the new nation. However, the numerous quarrels between them had been going on long before the colonies became a union of states. The new growing political condition was not consistent with the old established church forms of the old country, for there was a growing sentiment against the church's interference in matters of state. An entire separation of state and church was demanded by an increasing population. In consequence of these conditions the church was compelled to adjust itself accordingly, and there came a separation of the Episcopal Church in America from the church in England. Therefore we have the Protestant Episcopal Church of America.

Their first minister in America was Rev. Robert Hunt, who began services in the English colony at Jamestown, Va., in 1607. In 1789 they accepted the English Prayerbook, with revisions.

"After the Revolution a new era began, and the development and life was essentially American."

On page 85 we find this terse and logical narrative by the historian:

"While the Episcopal Church in the United States has no legal connection with the Church of England, it nevertheless owes its existence to that church. The relation is that of mother and daughter, but the daughter has set up housekeeping for herself entirely independent of her mother. The American Episcopal Church was established by chaplains, ministers, missionaries and members of the Church of England." Page 83.

Truly has this learned writer of church history said the Protestant Episcopal Church was a daughter of the Church of England, a daughter of the Church of England, then a granddaughter of the Church of Rome, which all Protestantism acknowledges to be the "Mother of harlots." Hard name it is true, but John the Revelator calls her by this name. Now if she was a mother she must of necessity have children, and her children would be the descendants from her. I shall leave the intelligent reader to say who the daughters are.

In the formation of this proud and powerful church do we find where God, whom they professed to serve, was in any manner consulted? Did any of their leaders go to God in solemn prayer and seek his guidance? Did God give them any direction how to form the church, and whom to ordain? No such intimation have we anywhere on record. The inspiration behind the movement was political evolution. Purely human, having root in corrupt Rome, and budding through the bloody branch of the Church of England.

THE REFORMED EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

In this church we have an apology offered for the mistake of its mother, the Protestant Episcopal Church, who tried to reform its mother, Church of England, who tried to reform its mother, the Church of Rome. So the best the Reformation can possibly give us is reformed Roman Catholic Churches.

The church now under discussion had its rise and inspiration in a quarrel between the "Low church party" and the "High church party" over "certain ritualistic tendencies." Of the origin of this church the historian says:

"The Reformed Episcopal Church had its origin in the disaffection of certain persons by reason of the restrictions placed upon them by the Protestant Episcopal Church of which they were members. They were the Low church party and were opposed to certain ritualistic tendencies of the High church party. They objected to the restriction against non-episcopally ordained clerical men entering their pulpits, and against their officiating in other Protestant pulpits. The controversy culminated in 1873, when the Reformed Episcopal Church was organized in New York, under the leadership of the Rev. Dr. George D. Dummins, Assistant Bishop of Kentucky. He was made bishop of the new organization. Another leader the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Cheney, of Chicago, a presbyter who had been deposed, was also ordained a bishop." Page 115.

Can you see any divine guidance in the formation of this church? Simply a number of dissatisfied members got together after a quarrel and ordained several men who had left some other human organization, and ordained them bishops." What authority did this ordination confer upon those two men to officiate in the name of the Lord? No more than they could have received in a lodge room which makes no claim to the great mission of saving souls. If any of those men had any authority at all they lost it when they left the Protestant Episcopal Church, whose ministers lost theirs when they quarrelled and left the Church of England, which lost its authority when it fought and left the Church of Rome which had itself no authority to give in the first place. We certainly run into a vortex of mysteries in an endeavor to get an abstract title to the self styled church of Christ.

THE MORAVIAN CHURCH.

This is not as large or powerful as the other churches we have been considering, and dates back to about the middle of the 15th century for its beginning, but like all the others its origin was wholly human, and like the rest traces its lineage back to the Roman Catholic Church. Of its origin we read:

"The Moravian Church traces its origin back to the fifteenth century, when in 1467 several Bohemian Priests were ordained by Waldensian bishops who had received episcopal ordination from Roman Catholics. But there was a revival of the church in 1722 in Saxony, where a few had fled from persecution. Count Zinzendorf became their protector and leader. They soon after settled the town of Hurnhut. In 1733 a number of Moravians, led by General James Oglethorpe, came to this country and settled in Georgia. Five years after they removed to Pennsylvania, where they built the towns of Bethlehem and Nazareth."

It will be noticed the leaders of this church received their ordination from the Waldensian bishops who themselves were ordained by Roman Catholic priests. This ordination, like all the others, and all to follow, is to be traced direct to Rome. And since a stream can rise no higher than the source of supply, Protestantism can offer no more salvation than Romanism. As said by the historian, "From that church came all our churches, however far the Reformation may have moved them from that original position."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This great ecclesiastical body began to take on concrete form as the result of the outburst of the Reformation, mainly through the preaching of John Calvin and John Knox, formerly Roman Catholics. They were followed by such men as John Rogers, John Witherspoon, Archibald Alexander and Gilbert Tennent. But like all man-made systems had to pass through its tentative periods, and gradually develop to its present standard.

The 16th and 17th centuries were buzzing with religious reforms, not through any revealed action on the part of God, but wholly as a result of the corrupt practices, and intolerance of the then prevailing church, which had its beginning as a legitimate fruit of the great apostasy.

Calvinism, desiring to get as far away from the Papacy in its doctrine that salvation came only through the church with the Pope at its head, jumped to the other extreme and founded a church on the idea that all any man or set of men could do, would count not hing salvation, that salvation was only by election. This in short is the inspiration of this great religious body. Those founders, however sincere they may have been, had no authority to build other than they received from the Romish church, and since they quarrelled with the Romish church and started one peculiarly different, they lost all authority they had with her.

In the absence of any claim to divine authority in bringing into existence the Presbyterian Church, we are compelled to stamp upon its banner, "Church of man." As an evidence of its human origin. I quote an extract from the article of Theodore L. Cuyler. "Why I am a Presbyterian." In speaking of the Westminster Confession of Faith which every one of their ministers must acknowledge before receiving ordination, says:

"It is not a faultless symbol of faith. The seventh article of the chapter of God's decrees contains a statement of what is known as the doctrine of 'predestination,' a theory which is rarely held, and never preached, among us. Its utterances, also, in regard to the salvation of infants are unhappily worded."

When the leading men of the great body are constantly under the necessity of apologizing for the mistakes and blunders of their creed, it is an insult to intelligence to ask a thinking person to accept it as coming from God. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SOUTH.

What is the cause of the rise and development of this church, a rebellious daughter? Do we hear the voice of God, a visitation of an angel, authorizing it? No, but like all the others its mother and grandmother included, had its origin in contention. Of this the historian says. Page 147:

"The cause of the disruption and of the formation of the Presbyterian Church South was the adopting of the 'Spring Resolution,' by the Old School Assembly at Philadelphia, in May, 1861. They were introduced by Dr. Gardiner Spring of the New York Presbytery, and declared that it was the duty of Presbyterians to support the government and preserve the union. They were adopted by a vote of one hundred and fifty-six to sixty-six."

The inspiration of this church is a defeated ministry over the slave question.

THE CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This church presents to us another rebellious daughter, who left the parent Presbyterian roof because of a desire for more ministry to meet the great demand for preaching in the Cumberland Valley. The mother church adhered strictly to its time honored policy of sending out only educated ministry; but the synod of Kentucky had ordained some men whom the parent body thought did not possess the literary attainments, hence the split.

"The Cumberland Presbytery from which this church originated, was organized as a separate body in 1810. The former Presbytery of Cumberland had been dissolved by the synod of Kentucky in 1806 because they had ordained to the ministry men unqualified by literary attainment or theological views." Page 149.

No divine sanction here—just a quarrel over educated ministry.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The origin of this faction dates back to 1688. We will let one of her own ministers inform us of the cause of its being. Taken from a sermon by the Rev. J. G. D. Findley, pastor Newburg, N. Y.

"We trace our genealogy back to the 'land of the heather'. We are descendants from the Reformers of Scotland, especially from the Covenanters and Seceders who in that land contended so nobly for religious freedom and a pure gospel. The Reformed Church as an organization apart from the Church of Scotland, sprang from a refusal of many of the Covenanters to accept the Revolution settlement of 1688. This recognized the King of England, (William) as head of the Church of Scotland. Those who protested against this as usurpation which virtually destroyed the church's independence finally became incorporated as the Reformed Presbytery."

The Associate Church grew out of the movement headed by the Erskines in 1733 in protest against the evils of patronage and the corruptions of doctrine then prevailing in the Church of Scotland."

The causes inspiring the formation of this body, as you will see were two quarrels, one body protesting against the "Revolution Settlement" and the other protesting "the evils of patronage." Both holding more or less to the Calvinistic doctrine, finally united, and hence the United Presbyterian Church. God, Christ, the Holy Ghost, or the voice of heaven are not hinted at in the launching of this church, but like all the others, simply an outgrowth of human opinions, upon temporal questions. How can we expect such to have the power of God with them, when God had absolutely nothing to do, not even consulted in the formation of them?

There are several other branches of the Presbyterian family, but we will not occupy space in giving their history and origin, suffice it to say, they all, however, had their foundation in quarrels and contention, similar to those we have noted.

THE STILL SMALL VOICE.

There are many kinds of voices in the world and Paul says, "none of them is without signification."

Animals have voice without speech; yet every voice signifies their manner of communication between them.

Man possesses the superior organization and mobility of tongue and lips by which he produces the different sounds called speech; and by the production of these different sounds he is enabled to express his ideas.

He has the faculty of acquiring the different forms of speech which usage has made to represent ideas in all the different languages.

With that wonderful fleshly organ, the ear, he distinguishes between the voice of kindred and friend, bird and beast; and can perceive musical sounds for eleven octaves; yet he has not heard the still small voice.

That which we hear in the ear is an audible voice, and not a still voice. There are voices that are not audible, and tongues that are not flesh; yet they speak to us. The Psalmist David gave evidence of their speech when he said: "The heavens declare the glory of God: but the firmament showeth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge. There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard."—Psalms 19:1-3.

The planets do not leap from end to end of their orbits, but inch by inch, and line by line, they circle the heavens.

The forest spring that

"Midst its herbs

Wells softly and visits the strong roots

Of half the mighty forest yet tells no tales

Of all the good it does," speaks to us as with a voice.

The grass springs up so noiselessly, that it does not even disturb the ear of an angel. How beautiful are the messages that are brought to us by the lips of these silent messengers, that speak to us of God's handiwork!

Has he not bidden the isles to keep silent and the mountains to sing? Doth not wisdom cry? Who hath heard her voice?

"She crieth in the chief places of concourse, in the openings of the gates: in the city she uttereth her words, saying, How long ye simple ones will ye love simplicity? And the scorners delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge? Turn you at my reproof: behold I will pour out my Spirit unto you. I will make known my words unto you."—Proverbs 1: 21-23.

How? By the still small voice.—1 Kings 19:12.

Christ said "the words that I speak they are Spirit;" and again he said, "I am the truth."

He was truth personified in the flesh. His voice was Spirit, and Spirit is truth. Only a few heard the audible voice of the Master when he was among men, and not all who heard his voice gave heed.

Utterances may be given the still small voice of truth, but if it be not heard with the "hearing of faith" it profiteth nothing, even though it be from the lips of the Master. Who may hear? "Everyone that is of the truth heareth my voice" said the Master. We are the offspring of God who is the Father of all truth. We were of the truth before we took up our abode in these "clay cottages." And having brought a souvenir of it with us no human detective can search out its hiding place. Only the searchlight of truth may detect its hiding place and bring it to light. No wonder when we hear the truth it sounds like a message we have heard before.

When may we hear? "Today if ye hear his voice harden not your hearts."—Psalms 95:7.

Oh, do not let the voice depart and close your ears against the truth! The voice of the Spirit will teach you a deeper speech than your mortal ears have ever heard.

Reader, if you would have a knowledge of things as they were, as they are, and as they will be, give heed to the still small voice. This is the mystery hid from the world and the secret of success of all God's people—but hark!

"Behold I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me."—Rev. 3:20.

"The voice of rejoicing and salvation is in the tabernacle of the righteous." Will your voice be heard there?

Mrs. H. C. Pitsenberger.

Council Grove, Kas., August 18.

Let us not try to keep pace with the extravagance of the age, but remember this is to be a time of sacrifice for our people; not forgetting irregularity and economy as part of our life discipline, and withal cultivate benevolence and charity toward all. Be honest with your God and with each other, and prosperity will crown your efforts.—Bishop Richard Bullard.

"You must repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, for all men must repent and be baptized, and not only men, but women; and children who have arrived to the years of accountability."—Doctrine and Covenants 16:6.

What else in life is so well worth while as showing a wanderer God's road?

AN INDIAN ORATION.

Many speeches made by savage Indians in the olden times have been preserved to us. Usually they have dealt with the injustice of the white to the red men. Some of them are models of mournful eloquence. Those of us who had the old-fashioned school reader remember the remarkable speech of Red Jacket. He had been the friend of the white men and had been betrayed. Also fragmentary speeches made by Red Jacket, Pontiac and Tecumseh have been preserved to us. In them is something of the fire and the pathos of the Hebrew prophets.

But one of the most unique orations of the red men, that has been preserved to us, is that of a Flat Head chief who made his way from northern Montana in 1832, to Washington City for the purpose of learning about the "White Man's Books of Heaven." He had a dim knowledge of the Bible. From it he had heard that the white man had knowledge of the "great hereafter." He did not want it because it might bring riches and power to his people, but he wanted to know where the red man was to go "after life's fitful fever."

Let him tell the result of his visit to the "great white father" in his own words:

"I came to you over a trail of many moons, from the setting sun. You were the friends of my fathers, who have all gone the long way. I came with an eye partly open for my people, who sit in darkness. I go back with both eyes closed. How can I go back blind to my blind people? I made my way to you, with strong arms, through many enemies and strange lands, that I might carry back much to them. I go back with both arms broken and empty. Two fathers came with us. They were the braves of many winters and wars. We leave them asleep here by your great water and wigwams. They were tired with many moons (of journeying) and their moccasins were worn out (on the trail.)

My people sent me to get the "White Man's Book of Heaven." You took me to where you allow your women to dance as we do ours and the book was not there. You took me to where they worship the Great Spirit with candles, and the book was not there. You showed me images of the good spirits and pictures of the good land beyond, but the book was not among them to show us the way. I am going back the long, sad trail to my people, in the dark land. You make my feet heavy with gifts and my moccasins will grow old in carrying them, yet the book is not among them. When I tell my poor, blind people after one more snow, in the big council, that I did not bring the book, no word will be spoken by our old men, or by our young braves. One by one they will rise up and go out in silence. My people will die in darkness, and they will go a long path to the other hunting grounds. No white man will go with them, and no White Man's Book to make the way plain. I have no more words."—Albuquerque Journal. By courtesy of Mrs. J. A. Teacher, Amarillo, Tex.

THE GRAND OLD HYMNS.

The grand old hymns may not meet the artistic requirements of the "technical perfectionist," but they have served to express the sentiments of generations of singers. Those who have had their faith renewed and their hope revived by "Nearer, My God, to thee," by "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," by "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," by "Just as I Am, Without One Plea," by "How Firm a Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord," may not have been able to "appreciate" the technical excellence of the artists, but these immortal hymns were very far from being the "meaningless nonsense" which is all the artists can see in them or get out of them. The millions who have been "led by the kindly light," whose faith has "looked up to the Lamb of Calvary," who have prayed in song that "the lower light be burning," whose sinking souls have cried "Throw Out the Lifeline," who have been soothed by the calm beauty of "Galilee" whose arms of Christian faith have been nerved by "Onward, Christian Soldiers," who have been inspired to beautiful deeds of brotherhood by "Rescue the Perishing," "Bringing in the Sheaves" or "Scatter Seeds of Kindness"—those who have been wafted, peri-like, to the very gates of the heaven of their hope did not stop to "analyze" the technical imperfections of these magnificent expressions of their joy and gratitude, their faith and longings. They could not always have told when the meter halted or the melody was "off a grace note." But they were comforted and inspired, they were soothed and soled, they were lifted up and carried onward. They were enabled to voice through them the secret aspirations and the open triumph of their souls. They unburdened their hearts of grief and found pouring into them the healing that comes on the wings of song. They got and they gave what is not contained in a very large proportion of the "concert music" which satisfies the esthetic ideals of the expert, and the experts may be left out of the equation whenever they retard the fulfillment of the real mission of the church hymn.

The "selections" which exploit the proficiency of the performers need not be discarded. On the contrary, there is a place for all the music that will lend dignity, variety and effect to the service of the church, for which nothing is too exalted as a matter of merit, but in determining merit in this connection there are other considerations to be kept in mind than mere technical perfection. Discarding as "meaningless nonsense" the immemorial vehicles of human faith, hope, prayer, gratitude, exultation and exaltation is like tearing down Old South church to make room for a playhouse or razing Independence hall to make way for a skyscraper, for they are built upon the bedrock of human faith and hope, of prayer and courage, of ideals and aspirations and achievements, of the eternal verities that are not less eternal because they are often clothed in the home-spun of the common people. For it was "the common people" who "followed Him gladly," not the artists and "technical perfectionists."—Kansas City Journal.

THE ROUND TABLE.

What position does the church take in regard to dancing, balls, theater and opera going, and similar worldly amusements?

The following resolutions of general conference show the position of the church on the matters mentioned: "Resolved that the practice of dancing should be discouraged, and that members of the church should be urged to avoid the practice, as being one likely to lead their minds from Christ and his gospel." No. 317. "Resolved, that we consider the practice of dancing and card playing as unbecoming true Christians, and should be avoided by all saints." No. 377. "Resolved, that the practice of theater going should be discouraged and that members of the church should be urged to avoid the practice as detrimental to spirituality." Conf. Min. 1912, p1589. While the church has not been disposed to lay down any arbitrary rule relative to these things, its teaching and influence have been against its members indulging in all such things as tend to lead them away from Christ.

I understand that the law of tithing as held by the Reorganized Church requires one to pay only one-tenth of what he has left over and above his living. If this is true then is it not a fact that no one would have a surplus left over on which to pay a tenth except the rich?

As to tithing the rule is to pay one tenth of the increase. What a man possesses at the time he comes into the church is his increase up to that time. What he gains each year above his living expenses is his annual gain upon which he pays a tenth. Gain is not necessarily surplus. A man may have a farm worth $10,000 upon which he owes $5,000, but if at the end of the year he has 1,000 left over above his living, it is a gain, but not a surplus, and he pays one-tenth as tithing. This is a just rule, for the poor man who gains nothing, owes nothing as tithing, and the man who has gained much, pays much—every man according to his ability. The opportunity of making offerings is open to the rich and poor alike.

Is there a temple at Nauvoo, Ill., built by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints bearing the name "The Mormon Temple"? Did the church ever use that name on any building?

The Reorganized Church has built no temple anywhere, and no building built by the church bears the name given in the question. A temple was begun in Nauvoo in 1841 under the direction of the original church but was never completed sufficiently to be dedicated and about 1848 it was burned. A temple was built in 1833-36 in Kirtland Ohio, which is now in the possession of the Reorganized Church. It is open to the public and thousands of people of different creeds visit it each year. The name of this building as placed upon the front wall is "House of the Lord."

Could you tell me where Cain got his wife? The Bible says Adam and Eve were the first people on the earth, and they had two sons born to them, and one named Cain took unto himself a wife. Where did he get her?

It seems that in giving the genealogies of all those ancient worthies who lived prior to the flood mention is seldom made of others than those who as priests of God were called to officiate for him. That Cain was a priest is shown by his offering sacrifices. Other sons and daughters were undoubtedly born to Adam and Eve of whom no mention is made, and these must have intermarried to form new families. The Inspired Version of the Scriptures seems to indicate that Adam and Eve had many children prior to the birth of Cain. It also says that "Cain took one of his brother's daughters to wife." The lack of details upon these points need not cause us to doubt the things that are given.

CORRECTION.

In issue of September 25th, Round Table department, page 6, column 3, the word relation occurs in the place of revelation. The sentence should read, "The polygamous revelation is entirely different."

WOMAN AND CHILD WELFARE.

(Conclusions reached by discussion of September reading by Independence local).

"We must all live for and with the children. Indeed, what else is there in all the world worth living, working, dying for? We adults pass on after we have transmitted the sacred torch of life; and the only test of state, home, church, school, or civilization is whether or not it brings childhood and youth to the fullest possible maturity."

In this effort to bring their children to the "fullest possible maturity," many mothers, unconsciously so into the lives of their posterity seeds of selfishness and find themselves continuously sacrificing time, comforts and pleasures in various forms, that the family may have a more carefree existence. By keeping the family in touch with the problems of housekeeping and home making, and letting them share responsibilities and sacrifices, are they properly developed, looking toward the "fullest possible maturity."

WOMAN'S VOCATION

"The soul of woman is restless till it finds the fulfillment of its deepest desires in motherhood." One of our faithful mothers vividly portrayed to us the inborn mother-love of girls, all normal girls, she claimed. The love for dolls and babies develops into a natural longing for children of their own. She cited the instance of a friend who, like so many young girls, declared she did not want children and she never, never intended to have them either! She married in due time, and after several years a child was born. She then acknowledged that she had,—like Hannah with Samuel, like Sarah with Isaac, prayed many times in earnest longing for this blessing.

The question arose as to whether woman is really "growing independent of and indifferent if not averse to wedlock." One sister was firm in her conviction that clean, wholesome men and trustworthy are growing fewer as the years roll by, and that since men in general, have yielded to more of life's temptations than have women, they are becoming more and more corrupt, and so women hold aloof from them, preferring rather to tread life's pathway single handed, than risk the disappointments resulting from marriage with a degenerating, dissipated man. That any normal woman would prefer to marry a man whom she could trust, and so—could love.

WOMAN'S PREPARATION FOR HER WORK.

"In what should she be skilled?" "The study of the child is in our day the subject to which the greatest teachers and greatest teachers of teachers are devoting their best energies." "She must be teacher and spiritual guide to them,"—and in order to do this work faithfully and well, the mother must prepare the mind and body of the child during all its unborn months.

To illustrate this point: we had listened to a piano solo, well rendered by a young pianist just in her "teens." One who had always known the girl's mother arose and told us of the mother's ungratified longing to become a musician. And expressed her great pleasure to see the desire of that mother so splendidly developed in the child. Also stating that she had herself taken great pleasure in trying to satisfy and develop longings and talents in her children, of which she herself had been deprived.

The mother's part is that of "teacher," in truth. In this connection mention was made of training children receive outside of the home. In the Sunday school recently a child remarked to one of the officers, that she had such a nice teacher; that she always brought her class gum to chew after lesson, because it kept the children quiet! Surely parents need to meet together with teachers occasionally, and agree to disagree on certain methods of training.

The question of reverence among children for the home and church (for their elders and the Lord) was dwelt on as one essential to the "opening of their minds to understand and their hearts to feel." That children should be taught that the place for a good lively romp and races and noisy play is out of doors; that the mother with her usually highly taxed energies and oftentimes "nerves," must be considered, in that she needs a reasonably quiet home; also that for the good of the children (and their companions to come), they need this training. "What if chairs are broken! What is that compared to a child's disposition—ruined?" Some so argue.

In order for the children to enjoy indoor play without being destructive, parents must begin early to see that such play takes place out of doors. When a child has reverence for mother and the contents of the home she keeps for it and although it may use every corner of the house every day and much of the contents, they need not be "used up" for years to come; that this training will result in due reverence for the house of the Lord.

WOMEN IN PUBLIC LIFE.

Our discussion was somewhat exciting concerning this phase of the subject. One of those in charge of the lesson announced herself a suffragette "she guessed." Her defense,—The reason women desire to enter into politics is because they can accomplish their aims quicker, since they are not and will not be led and bribed by office seekers and money.

Another arose and made the following comparison. Said she: "I was just thinking of a mother who, tired from her morning work and anxious to sit and sew in the quiet, while her child napped, hesitated at the sight of blocks strewn about the room, left from the little one's play. She finally stooped and picked them up, because she thought she could no it quicker and better. But when the child awoke there was nothing for it to do. The disorder which should have been left for it to remove (for the good of all concerned) had been looked after by another.

Just so it is with women who will enter into politics. She thinks she can do things quicker, but neglects her present duties for principles and methods which she could bring about in more permanent form by instilling them into the minds and lives of the husband and children about her. Her influence in training the voter is quite necessary as with the child. The woman in politics is merely picking up the blocks of disorder for politicians."

Most men would appreciate the interest and few would not be influenced by the reason and depth of love and feeling which a mother alone feels, when the life and morals of her young are threatened.

Another with great feeling quoted the following lines from the lesson reading and in splendid terms commended the work of women in public life, uttering an earnest defense of "votes for women." After mentioning numerous offices in various states to which women have been elected even to representatives and senators, the paragraph reads, "They have championed bills to prevent traffic in women, to compel the reporting of venereal diseases, to provide for the medical examination of school children, to compel wife deserters to support their families, to enforce pure food regulations, to establish public libraries, and many other progressive measures."

Instantly another arose and in equally as eloquent a mood, desired to quote from the remaining lines of the paragraph, viz.—"It is to be observed, however, that in many States where women have not the suffrage, laws are being passed to accomplish the same work of progress."

We here adjourned, leaving the last word to this sister.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT.

By mutual agreement between the First Presidency the Presiding Bishop and the Minister in charge, Bro. Earl F. Hall is appointed to labor in the Des Moines District during the balance of the conference year.

Elbert A. Smith,
For the First Presidency.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT

As and for the district of Eastern Colorado: Saints and friends of the district of Eastern Colorado:— Please take notice that upon the recommendation of the district conference at Wray, Colorado, September 6th and 7th, Bro. Arthur H. Mills, 358 Emmerson St., Denver, Colo., has been duly appointed Bishop's agent in and for said district in place of Bro. C. E. Everett, resigned, and also acting agent, Sr. C. E. Everett, duly resigned.

We take pleasure in appointing Bro. Arthur H. Mills to this office according to the recommendation of the district. Bro. Mills is a good accountant and strictly business in his methods and will make a good and safe agent. We specially recommend him to the saints and friends of the Colorado District and trust that all will be ready to help him along with his work.

We also tender the special thanks of the Bishopric to Bro. and Sr. C. E. Everett for their continuous and faithful work in the office of agent for the past number of years. Hope and trust the Lord will bless them in their efforts in other lines of his work.

Please remember the address of Bro. Arthur H. Mills, 358 Emmerson St., Denver, Colorado, and each and every one resolve to perform his or her faithful labors in connection with the agent so that there may be plenty and to spare in the district after its legitimate work has been fully performed.

Trusting that the Lord will remember and bless his own workers everywhere, I am in behalf of the Bishopric,

Very respectfully,

E. L. Kelley,
Presiding Bishop.

Independence, Mo., Sept. 25, 1913.

MARRIED.

WHOLF-GEETING.—At the residence of Bro. and Sr. Wm. M. Aylor, South Chrysler Street, Independence, Mo., Wednesday, September 17, 1913, Mr. Lawrence Wholf and Miss Sallie Geeting, both of Kansas City, Mo., Elder W. H. Garrett officiating. They will reside at 2123 West Prospect St., Kansas City, Mo.

SURWALD-BEAMAN.—At the residence of the officiating minister, Elder W. H. Garrett, Independence, Mo., Sept. 17, 1913, Mr. Joseph Surwald, of Mattison, Colorado, and Sr. Eva L. Beaman, of Kansas City, Mo. They will reside at 720 Wheeling Ave., Kansas City, Mo., for the present.

REITZEL-LOAR.—At the home of the bride's father, W. S. Loar, West Sea Ave., Independence, Mo., Sept. 9, 1913, Mr. Charles Reitzel of Waterville, Kansas, and Sr. Nettie Loar, Elder Richard Bullard officiating. They will make their home in Kansas.

DIED.

BRANTWAIT.—William Brantwait, son of Edward and Frances Brantwait was born July 26, 1871, in Jones County, Iowa. Departed this life at his home near Vinton, Ohio, Aug. 19, 1913, after an illness of three weeks of malaria and typhoid fever. Age 42 years and 24 days. He was united in marriage to Mary V. Wood May 24, 1898, at Lamoni, Iowa. He united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Saints at the age of 14 and lived a consistent believer in the faith and died firm in the hope of a glorious resurrection. Besides his grief stricken companion, he leave an aged father and seven sisters to mourn their loss, and wait for the great reunion that will come in a world where parting is unknown and sorrow never comes. He will be sadly missed. He was an honest, industrious man, a good neighbor, and a kind and loving husband. He met life's trials and joys fairly and unflinchingly. His call came and he passed on to receive his reward, and as he often remarked that if his work on earth was done, that the Lord would take him, if not he would leave him here. He is at rest with the pure in heart. The last sad rites were held August 21st at his home church, conducted by Elder A. B. Kirkendall. He was laid to rest in the Mt. Tabor Cemetery by funeral director, H. K. Butler.

PETT.—Elder John Pett was born at Eddington, Eng., September 27, 1824, fell asleep in Jesus, September 11, 1913, at his home in Crawford County, Iowa. Was a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of L. D. S. for fifty years. His dying words were, "The Lord is my Shepherd." A good man has passed away. He leaves to mourn their loss six sons, four daughters and a goodly number of grandchildren. The funeral service at Galland's Grove Church was largely attended, Sept. 14th. Sermon by J. F. McDowell assisted by Charles Derry.

BARKER.—At Rolfe, Iowa, Sept. 13, 1913, Sr. Delphine Barker, wife of Bro. Alexander Barker, died of dropsy. She was born near South Bend, Ind., March 11, 1849. Was baptized by Elder J. W. Wight, January 21, 1881. Her life was such as to win the confidence and love of all who knew her. A husband and daughter are left to feel the loss of one dearly beloved. Funeral service at the home September 16th, conducted by Elders Robert Fish and Edward Rammie.

MCARTHUR.—Minnie McArthur was born Jan. 9, 1886; was baptized July 31, 1902, by I. N. Roberts; died August 26, 1913. Funeral service by C. J. Clark. She is survived by her husband and one child, also by her father, Vigor Jernigan, and several brothers and sisters. Sr. Minnie was a saint indeed, loved by all. She was never known to say an unkind word to or about anyone, and nothing but good was ever heard about her. (From Dixonville, Ala.—Ed.)

CALHOUN.—Mary J. Calhoun was born July 4, 1830; was baptized March 16, 1868, by Thomas Waddell, the first missionary sent to these parts by the Reorganization. Died August 31, 1913. She leaves one sister, one brother, two daughters, Lorena McArthur and Helen Hall, and several grandchildren. Funeral services by L. F. West. (From Dixonville, Alabama.—Ed.)

LOVE DIVINE WITHIN ME DWELLS.

BY PATRIARCH CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

O love of God, divine, supremel

That fills my heartwith thankfulness,
And rushes on, a living stream
Of never ending grat. fulness.

It makes my heart to overflow

With love divine, for God on high;
It helps me bear my cross below,
Though all my foes are standing by.

Love reaches out both far and wide,

In breadth, and length, and height, and depth;
A swelling flood, a living tide,
To love and work while I have breath.

Love helps me know God's will divine—

A depth of soul I cannot tell;
It makes me feel his work is mine,
That I with him may work and dwell.

For I with him communion hold,

He sups with me, and I with him;
This knowledge makes my heart grow bold,
As I rejoice, and live with him.

Love makes me love his children too,

The rich and poor, the high and low;
I've tried with them my work to do,
And teach all men their God to know.

Love makes us kind in word and deed,

Though men may rage, and scoff, and hate;
We clothe the cold, the hungry feed,
At morn, and noon, and when it's late.

Love gives the hearth a brighter glow

For all God's children, here below;
It gives our life a deeper flow,
As each dear saint we learn to know.

For such the cup of joy o'erflows,

And all is joy and peace below;
And day by day he lives and grows,
Until his God he learns to know.

O then, like God, we shall be free

From sin, and pain, and sorrow too;
And Christ shall dwell with you and me,
For each of us his will shall do.

O, happy day when love, divine,

Shall all the hearts of men o'erflow!
And every heart and soul rejoice,
That they both God and Christ may know.

Near Union, Neb., Sept. 26, 1913.

PREJUDICE.

Prejudice is the disposition to pass adverse judgment upon a matter without regarding the evidences upon which a just judgment might be based. It is incited by a consciousness that opinions already held have been accepted without sufficient evidence, and are in danger of overthrow should the claims of any other matter differing therefrom be considered. It flourishes most in hearts where conceit and self-satisfaction abound, and where the waters of life are either absent or have become stagnant through non-progression. It is invariably associated with bigotry, envy, intolerance, and malevolence, and is generally followed by misrepresentation, revilement, and persecution. It tends to poison and clog the deeper channels of thought, but opens wide the floodgates of passion, blinds the eyes to truth, and crowns present opinions with infallibility. It dogmatically asserts what it approves and as emphatically denies what it does not approve and bars the door against conviction. It is never found where honor is, and liberty is its strongest enemy. Truth and right have no need of it, and when used to fight evil and error it defeats its own purpose. It is without virtue and can offer no valid excuse for its existence.

From The Tryon Graphic we learn that a debate was begun at Tryon, Neb., on Monday Sep. 22nd between Elder Rudolph Etzenhouser of the Reorganized Church and Rev. W. H. Zenor, pastor of the Christian Church at that place. Elder C. W. Prettyman is moderator for Bro. Etzenhouser and Rev. Charles A. Shook is moderator for Rev. Zenor Mr. W. J. Woods being chairman. The two questions under discussion are: 1. "Resolved, that the Book of Mormon is of divine origin, and as such is worthy the consideration of all people." 2. Resolved, that the Bible is a full and complete revelation from God to man." Thirty-two sessions will be held.

DEATH OF BRO. P. T. PLUMB.

We have received the following from Bro. Wm. Johnson, of Seattle, Wash.

We have occasion to write a sad message indeed relative to the tragic end of Bro. P. T. Plumb. Bro. Plumb has been laboring in the Seattle and British Columbia District as a General Conference appointee for over two years, and without the least attempt at undue eulogy will say a good man has gone to his reward. He was at the hop fields at Claber, Wash., ostensibly to preach to the hop pickers, and while there he engaged in the picking to some extent. In the afternoon of Sept. 15th, he with some others decided to go bathing in the Chehalis river. His sister got beyond her depths and called for Bro. Plumb to help her out. He did so, and seemed to loose all control of his faculties, being an expert swimmer himself made it appalling to see him perish in so small a body of water. His step-father (Bro. A. Premo) went to his assistance but the effort was futile of effect, the physician that was in attendance at the time said his death was due to heart failure or congestion due to the cold water. How true the statement "in the midst of life there is death." Bro. Plumb was buried under the auspices of the Centralia Branch, and it was lovely to witness the tokens of regard manifest in the words of praise, and floral bequeaths to the memory of the departed. The church has lost a true representative, and the Saints a good brother and wise counsellor.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 15.

RECONSTRUCTION AND REORGANIZATION.

Out of the uncertainties of the latter day apostasy the Lord by the workings of his Spirit brought forth men full of integrity and faith. The sifting time had been eliminating those whose integrity was insufficiently strong to meet the trying issues of those times, though it must not be forgotten that many honest souls had through overconfidence in men been deceived and led away by false leaders, but to return to God and the truth upon discovery of their mistake.

As men began to feel after God and appeal to him for direction they were not disappointed. One of the elders of the original church under Joseph Smith was Jason W. Briggs, who after experiencing some uncertainties upon the question of leadership asked the Lord for counsel. He writes:

"While pondering in my heart, the situation of the church, on the 18th day of November, 1851, on the prairie about three miles northwest of Beloit, Wisconsin, the Spirit of the Lord came upon me, and the visions of truth opened to my mind, and the Spirit of the Lord said unto me, 'Verily, verily, saith the Lord, even Jesus Christ, unto his servant Jason W. Briggs, concerning the church: Behold I have not cast off my people; neither have I changed in regard to Zion.' Yea, verily, my people shall be redeemed, and my law shall be kept which I revealed unto my servant Joseph Smith, Jr., for I am God and not man, and who is he that shall turn me from my purpose, or destroy whom I would preserve? Wolves have entered into the flock, and who shall deliver them? Where is he that giveth his life for the flock? Behold I will judge those who call themselves shepherds, and have preyed upon the flock of my pastures.

"Therefore let the elders whom I have ordained by the hand of my servant Joseph, or by the hand of those ordained by him, resist not this authority, nor faint in the discharge of duty, which is to preach my gospel as revealed in the record of the Jews, [Bible] and the Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; and cry repentance and remission of sins through obedience to the gospel, and I will sustain them, and give them my Spirit; and in my own due time I will call upon the seed of Joseph Smith, and will bring one forth and he shall be mighty and strong, and he shall preside over the high priesthood of my church; and then shall the quorums assemble, and the pure in heart shall gather, and Zion shall be reinhabited, as I said unto my servant Joseph Smith after many days shall these things be accomplished, saith the Spirit."—Church History, Vol. 3, pp. 200, 201.

This remarkable manifestation was in harmony with the revelations already received by the church through the prophet who had stood at the head, and contains nothing indicating personal or selfish ambition. It affirms the unchangeable purpose of God, and directs the elders to fulfill their duty in preaching the gospel as revealed in the Scriptures. The prophetic features have largely been fulfilled in that the Spirit was then given, and has continued with the church, the seed of Joseph Smith was called upon by the Lord and his son Joseph Smith still presides over the high priesthood and the church after more than fifty-three years of faithful service, the quorums have continued to assemble, and the obedient saints have reinhabited the land designated by the Lord to be his Zion. The "many days" requiring a complete fulfillment have not all passed.

Independently of the work of Elder Briggs, Elder Zenos H. Gurley, Sr., by diligent labor in connection with Elder H. P. Brown had organized a local congregation at Yellowstone, Wisconsin. In his preaching he resolved to follow the word, and in doing so he found that the gifts and blessings of the gospel followed him. In vision he was shown the progress of the work and the voice of the Spirit said to him: "Rise up, cast off all that claim to be prophets, and go forth and preach the gospel, and say that God will raise up a prophet to complete his work."—Page 206.

Upon a later occasion when the Spirit of God was poured out upon a number of the saints so that even the children spoke in tongues, the Spirit declared to Elder Gurley in answer to prayer: "'The successor of Joseph Smith is Joseph Smith, the son of Joseph Smith the Prophet. It is his right by lineage, saith the Lord your God.'"—Page 208.

Many other manifestations were given to these earnest saints but these are sufficient to show how the Lord worked with them guiding them in the way of truth, and directing them in their work. A number of these men held authority as elders, having been ordained under the authority of the late Prophet, and their official work when done in accordance with the law of the church could not fail of acceptance with the Lawgiver. Under divine direction the work was extended, and in June, 1852, a conference was called at Beloit, Wisconsin, as which the church. (which was the faithful remnant of the departing multitude which once formed the church) declared its purpose to maintain the integrity of the Scriptures as originally accepted, and the gospel work. It also declared against false doctrines and corrupt practices which had led so many away.

From this time the prosperity of the work increased, missionaries were sent out, and many of the scattered flock were gathered in, and other conferences were held. The promises of God were oft reaffirmed, especially in regard to the call of Joseph Smith who would eventually come to lead the church. By divine command seven apostles were ordained thus forming a working majority of the quorum of twelve, a number of seventies were ordained, and other officers chosen. The work seemed filled with the Spirit of life, and moved forward, though not without periods of trial and discouragement.

One interesting incident of this period is related by Elder W. W. Blair in his Memoirs. He had been baptized at Amboy, Ill., in 1851, and had received personal evidence of its divinity in the baptism of the Holy Spirit which he says was as literal as the baptism of water had been, but he had seen the weaknesses of men manifested and had resolved that regardless of what others might do it was his duty to honor God and live in harmony with the light he had received. In 1856 he was visited by two young men, E. C. Briggs and Samuel H. Gurley, who had come from Zarahemla, Wis., to tell the scattered saints of the revival of the work in that region. Their relation of the promises that Joseph would soon come to lead the church seemed to him as idle tales, and after prayer they entered upon a discussion of the issues which lasted all night, and continued to near noon the next day without having convinced him. Just as the effort appeared fruitless, Elder Briggs arose to speak. Elder Blair writes:

"Just as soon as he began speaking, the Holy Spirit, such as had borne witness to me of the doctrine of Christ at the beginning, seemed to fill the room and also the persons of all present with its enlightening, convincing, and heavenly power. Bro. Briggs raised his right hand and broke forth with a prophecy directed to me, declaring what had been my desires and intentions, and declaring also that I would soon be released from my temporal affairs, would be called to the ministry, would be made an apostle of the Lamb of God, be called to preach the gospel and 'thresh the Gentiles by the power of God's Spirit'; and that the Lord would soon call Joseph, the son of Joseph the Seer, to be president of the church, and that the standard then erected would never fall. . . . The manifestation of the Spirit of God on this occasion was greater, more searching and assuring than any thing I had ever before witnessed."—Memoirs of W. W. Blair, page 9.

Writing of a visit he, with his wife, made to the church at Zarahemla, he says:

"Here we witnessed most interesting and convincing evidences that they were the Lord's people, for the love of Christ and the gifts of the Holy Spirit were plainly manifest among them. Here we learned further of the wonderful manner in which the Lord had blessed and guided them in respect to the work of reorganization and the coming in the near future of Joseph, the son of Joseph, to be the president of the church."—Memoirs, page 10.

The time of waiting for the new leader had seemed long, and the faith of some had weakened, but with the passing of years every promise was fulfilled. The multiplied testimonies of the Holy Spirit relative to his coming, which had been given in many parts of the country, to numerous individuals, were proven true in the events of 1860. Nor did Joseph Smith, who had not up to this time identified himself with any of the movements of the church, fail to receive divine intimation of where his work would lie and the place God designed him to fill, but this we leave for a later sketch.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

College Day was observed by the Independence Branch, and Elder S. A. Burgess, President of Graceland College addressed the saints both morning and evening. At the morning service he spoke of: the relation of the church and the attitude of both toward education. A collection was taken up amounting to about $94. At 4.15 p. m. a special service was held at which Bishop Kelley gave an address showing that the design of the college was that of a protection to our young people, and setting forth the advantages of an education under conditions such as obtain in our own institution. The rest of the time of the meeting was devoted to answering questions, Bro. Burgess having this in charge. Elder Burgess occupied in the evening also and described the present workings of the college, with its aims and prospects.

The sacramental and social services in the afternoon had a very large attendance, and the communion of the saints and the Holy Spirit brought renewed strength to the saints. The time devoted to testimony was well filled and it seemed all too short.

One of the commendable features of our sacrament was the work of the priests. They are usually all in their places directly in front of the stand at the opening of the service, and have their work divided and arranged under the direction of the presiding priest Bro. A. Morgan, so that the work of taking up the offering and of distributing the bread and wine of the sacrament, is all done quietly and quickly, without confusion, and with almost military order. This is as it should be, as it serves for the peace and welfare of the body.

The testimony meetings could be much improved by the saints taking thought of the nature of their testimonies with other features. Perhaps most of our large branches have at least one brother or sister, who occupies in prayer and testimony, or both, at every service, without thought of the wisdom and propriety of doing so, and while others who have not spoken for some time, are crowded out. Occasionally saints relate domestic or other affairs of incidental and trifling character which add nothing of value to the hearers. Dreams which mean nothing to the listeners are old in all seriousness. Again others speak of the faults of he saints and perhaps after some minutes of such recital, close by urging them to "come up higher." Another may have a favorite verse that is started at every meeting until by its misfitted repetition it loses its beauty and inspiration. All these things tend to deny the Spirit of God its work, and depict the spiritual character of the meeting.

A verse of heartfelt praise, a testimony of God's goodness, a modest relation of some special experience having a helpful point, a word of commendation of the good deeds of others, an expression of one's hopes and aspirations, are all such as will add comfort, strength, and encouragement to others. Speak only of the higher things of spirituality and faith in our prayer-meetings, and a higher spiritual atmosphere will gather there.

Bro. C. E. Guinand has been meeting with opposition the last two Sunday afternoons in his work upon Market Square in Kansas City. A Mr. Harris has been telling much of what he doesn't know about Joseph Smith, and next Sunday he says he will prove that he was a polygamist. If he does he will do what hundreds of others have tried to do and failed.

Bro. M. J. Siegfried visited Holden on Sunday in the interests of the temporal department of the work.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

The Sunday school had an attendance of 236 and a collection of $5.55.

At the 11 o'clock service Bro. A. K. Dilloe was the speaker and chose for his theme the saying of the Savior, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." His thoughts were presented in a very forcible manner and all must have been edified. He held that it was not a burden to serve the Master. There having been rewards promised to the burden bearer, and those rewards much more than compensated for any suffering the cross-bearer may have to endure, it being eternal life.

At 2.30, regular prayer service; it being also sacrament day a goodly number were present and a very enjoyable time was had, for surely the Spirit's presence was made manifest.

At the 8 o'clock service Bro. Charles Fry, our ENSIGN Editor, was the speaker and his selection of Scripture for consideration was Matthew 22:1-10 and Luke 14:16-24,—the Savior's parables of the marriage feast, and the great supper, where all were invited to the feast of good fat things, but all kinds of excuses were offered by those bidden; yet by the force of the operation of the Spirit, many were compelled to come to the feast. We were told that the attempt so frequently made to apply the prophecies made concerning Israel to the remnant of Israel, the Jews, is a mistake. A feast of historical facts were presented, and surely enjoyed by the hearers, if not, they surely have little interest in what is transpiring in the world. The very best of attention was given to the speaker and his remarks were appreciated.

Monday evening was the regular branch business meeting and the business coming before the branch was transacted in a very good spirit. There were 27 letters of removal granted to those who were desirous of joining the new branch at Walnut Park.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

The branch seems to be in a good spiritual condition and quite an interest is being taken in the work. The meetings are well attended, especially the prayer-meetings. We generally have from sixty to seventy-five in attendance and quite a few who are not of our faith.

The sisters have organized themselves into a society which they call "The Ready Helpers" whose aim is, to visit the sick and the afflicted, help the distressed and in fact help whenever the opportunity for help presents itself; and, being exceedingly practical in the application of their desire to do good, they have been able to do quite a good work in the past few months, as in following instances: A couple of them visited one of the sisters who was sick, and, rolling up their sleeves and tying on big aprons proceeded to scrub, scour and clean the house from cellar to attic; another, being a practical nurse, took care of the sister while needed.

And again: Knowing that our branch was in debt, and having a desire to help financially, they proceeded to appoint each a committee of one to raise money in her own way, and at our last business meeting surprised the branch by presenting it with about $60.00 which they had raised in the past few weeks.

This naturally brings to mind the suggestion—suppose every adult saint in the church would appoint themselves a committee of one on finance and get busy! How long would it be before our church, like the "Village Blacksmith," could "look the world in the face," for she would "owe not any man!"

We beg to note the severe illness of Sr. Will Pender, having been ill for some time, but now slowly improving. She solicits the prayers of the saints.

HOLDEN BRANCH

We are not dead, but steadily trying to go onward and upward. After the hot dry summer which seemed to take life from most of us, we are trying to renew spiritual strength and energy in the work of the Lord.

Two of our brethren have been called home, our deacon, Bro. Chas. Hayer, and Bro. McCarty who has suffered much the last few years.

The Religio society gave a special program last Friday night in behalf of Graceland College.

Sr. Abbie Ament spent a few days in Iowa, and resolved there and then to make her home in Des Moines, being united in marriage to Bro. Laban Thompson. Both are members of the Holden Branch and best wishes go with the young couple to their new home.

Sunday was observed as College Day. Bro. M. H. Siegfried was the speaker morning and evening, both young and old seemed to enjoy his effort, and a nice little sum was collected for the college.

Three have been baptized in the branch lately by Bro. R. O. Self. Prayer meeting was held at Bro. Parson's on Sunday afternoon and reported as being very good. Bro. and Sr. Parson are growing old, and he is very much afflicted, the saints gathering at his home in prayer and praise, bring comfort and cheer to their hearts.

CHICAGO, CENTRAL BRANCH.

We are glad to note a change for the better in Sr. Marguerite Wicks, who has been ill with typhoid fever since her arrival here from her home in Lamoni. She has been spending her vacation in her home in Lamoni, and on returning here to resume her work at the American College of Music, she was stricken with a high fever which developed into typhoid. For a time her condition was very serious. Her sister Mae Lewis, and another trained nurse have been attending her constantly.

Two weeks ago the saints were requested to remember her in their prayers at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting and the theme of the meeting seemed to be to the strengthening of the sick, both in prayer and in testimony. We had a good attendance and a large majority testified or bowed in prayer, while a goodly portion of the Spirit prevailed.

The following day we got a report to the effect that she had spent a good night and was improving, her temperature going down to a marked degree. Since then she has been gaining steadily until at the present time her temperature is normal. As a general rule it takes at least twenty-one days for the fever to break, but in this case it was about eighteen or thereabouts.

This shows that the Lord has had a hand in the matter and that he is watching over his flock and is ever ready to bless his children when they are deserving of it.

We are thankful to the Lord for this blessing which has been bestowed upon our sister, for we feel that it is a blessing and source of encouragement to us also, to know that He is ever mindful of us and that he is still performing miracles among His people.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Bro. J. E. Kelley spent Sunday last in Stockton where he held two interesting meetings. He returned on Monday to the bay cities. Bro. Sheehy was in western Oregon at last account looking after the work.

Sr. Maude Smith so far recovered from her illness as to be able to return home with her mother to San Lucas Mount-erey Co. We shall miss her from our church services in which she took such an effectual part as all around musician. We hope for her speedy return.

We enjoyed very much meeting with the San Francisco local on Sunday night and hearing read "The Star of the West" their paper by Sr. Dykes the editor. It contained solid food with enough spice to give it a relish. Long may "The Star" shine. We enjoyed the hearty social spirit of the meeting following, in charge of J. A. Saxe pastor, prayer by Elder J. A. Anthony, and sermon by the writer. Bro. H. D. Simpson preached the morning sermon which was well spoken of.

Bro. J. Lang arrived with his family this morning from Chicago with the idea of locating on the Pacific slope. Bro. Lang has long stood by the work in Chicago, giving room for the 3411 Cottage Grove Ave. mission which developed into the Central Branch.

We were delighted with a call by Mr. and Mrs. Hubacher and daughter and son Charles; the former three direct from St. Joseph Mo., our old home yet very dear to us. They are touring the west and called to see their son Charles who is located in the city.

Bishop C. A. Parkin was the evening speaker in Oakland to the joy of his hearers. Dr. W. P. Bush stood by him in the service also leading in the music.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Patrick Miguel, the Lineal Chief of the Yuma Tribe of Indians was baptized at the church in Los Angeles Sunday, Sept. 21, by Pastor V. M. Goodrich and confirmed the same evening by V. M. Goodrich, Frederick Adam and R. T. Cooper, Bro. Goodrich being voice. The confirmation was quite lengthy and very comforting and encouraging. Among other things he was told that "If faithful you shall be richly blessed in visions and dreams, and have evidences of the work and its truthfulness and be able to say 'I know it is true'" that he would be called to do a work and be a chosen instrument in the hand of the Lord to minister unto his own people and to others, that he should become a polished shaft.

After the confirmation he was presented with an Inspired Translation of the Bible, a Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants all in Morocco binding by the Religio of the Southern California District, the presentation being made by Religio District President R. T. Cooper especial stress being laid on the "plain and precious things" omitted from the King James Translation supplied in this inspired version and the Covenants to his Fathers in the Book of Mormon, the whole service being very impressive and accompanied by a marked degree of the Holy Spirit.

Quite unexpectedly on the following Tuesday Bro. Miguel came to Bro. Goodrich to relate the vision received on Sunday night, saying that the one thing that had troubled him and on which he had prayed for light was to know about the Inspired Translation, and he now feels assured on that point, the vision, in his own hand follows:

"Up to the time and even after I was baptized I doubted and was greatly troubled over the Inspired Translation of the Bible. However I trusted that the Lord would show me everything as I had always trusted him. On the night following my baptism and confirmation I went to bed rather early; contrary to my habit and it was not long till I went to sleep.

"I saw before me in my dream the Inspired Translation which was presented to me by Bro. R. T. Cooper that evening. I saw also along side of the Inspired Bible (King James) as it is. I saw a hand turning over the leaves of the two books and heard a voice say that the Inspired Book is correct. The hand of a finger pointed out certain places in the Bible where certain passages had been left out, the finger also pointed out to me in the Inspired where those passages left out in the Bible had been supplied. I woke up three times during the night but each time I went back to sleep the same dream appeared to me. When I woke up the fourth and last time it was daylight." Signed, Patrick Miguel, Sept. 22, 1911. Los Angeles Cal.

SAVE TIME.

As the Religio Quaterlies are now published at the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, it will be a saving of time to send all orders direct to the office of publication. To do so will not only save time in the delivery of the order, but extra trouble and expense in accounting and in the forwarding of orders.

CORRESPONDENCE

ROME MO., Sept. 16.

Dear Ensign:—I would like to write a few words to your paper that the saints may know what we are doing in this part of the vineyard. I had just closed a sixteen day meeting with the result that I have led five grand people into the waters of baptism. One old lady 85 years old, who was an invalid I had to baptize in a chair and she came out of the water praising God. She told me that she was converted under Bro. A. M. Baker's preaching. Bro. Baker and W. P. Bootman have a host of friends in this part of God's vineyard.

I had several pistols shot at me during my meetings, and rocks thrown at me, but the meetings went on well, and good came from our efforts. We have now in this place fourteen members; The Spirit saith a branch will be built up at this place if the proper effort is put forth. I will leave here tomorrow for Ava Mo. They haven't twice for me to come and hold some meetings for them. I have heard that they have the Baptist Church for me. I ask the prayers of the saints.

Your brother in the gospel
Jas. W. Dubose.

COLUMBUS KANS., Sept. 8.

Editor Ensign:—The writer in company with Bro. J. W. Thorpe commenced a meeting at the Stoney School House about one and one-half miles east of the above place. Mr. Ellis Davis and family kindly cared for us and procured the school house for our use. The old paths that our fathers trod were preached. Our congregations were small but very attentive. Three noble souls were baptized. The use of the Bath House near Columbus having been given us for the occasion. At 2 p. m. the bathers were held back until the ordinance of baptism was attended to. We repaired to Mr Davis' home for confirmation and to partake of the emblems of the body and blood of our Redeemer. The Spirit was present in power at the confirmation.

At Columbus we were entertained at the home of Bro. and Sr. Newton Randall. With the help of our worthy brother, Charley Randall, and the noble president of Columbus Branch giving us financial assistance as well as spiritual assistance, we were made glad. Tears were brought to the eyes of both old and young and we all had a foretaste of the great future. While the dust was six inches deep in places and old Sol was pouring down his rays, still we all felt it was good to be a saint, in latter days.

From this point the writer goes to Rogers Arkansas to open up a new place while our aged Brother Thorpe will unfold the truths of latter day Israel near his home in Joplin and at Seneca Mo. A splendid rain came at the close of our meeting cooling the atmosphere and bringing life to vegetation.

In bonds of the gospel,
George Edwards.

MANITOWANING, MANITOULIN ISLAND, Sept. 5.

Dear Ensign:—Just a few lines from this island seeing it has been so long since any one here has given notice of its existence—or of their whereabouts. Well! the Manitoulin is an island among many others in the Georgian Bay. It is said to be one hundred miles long and has area of fifteen hundred square miles, with more than one hundred lakes. These lakes abound with fish of various kinds,—white fish trout being in the lead. At this season of year and earlier, tourists are seen from all parts of Canada and the States. There are, it is said, nine thousand inhabitants here with three reservations of Indians, of the Chippewa Tribe. They have some fine homes, and Maquime Quang is a large village. As a farming section it is far better than we have in the East. Little Current, Gore Bay and Manitowaning are the leading villages.

There are one hundred and ten names of the Manitou Branch record. We have a good church building. Elder W. R. Smith presides over the branch and though now quite aged he makes himself useful. The saints are rather a good lot, who try to reverence God. The advice and counsel of the missionary is usually sought for and received with a show of appreciation. That baneful spirit of envy or jealousy, which has always found place in the church, does not seem so common here as may be seen in many other places. A very good example for those who are blessed with better opportunities. The saints, as in other countries are more or less scattered. The circuit I take, and have been taking for this year and part of last year takes in four, and part of the time five places. This takes me each day a distance of from eight to thirteen miles by horse and buggy, it being furnished by liberal brethren, gratuitously.

There are quite a number of saints living at Spanish, on the north shore. They have their Sunday school and meetings regularly, and are rather a good band of saints. At Cockburn Island there are about twenty-five saints with a good little church building. They also have their meetings Sunday school, Elder Malcolm McPhee in charge. The work there is not as thriving as it could be, but all things considered they are doing very well. The saints at Steelton and the Soo number about thirty and are presided over by Priest J. W. Thompson. They have a fine little church building situated on one of the best streets (Gloucester). The Mills, Millers, Thompsons and Campbells, and a few others are church goers. There are many of these saints throughout this mission who sense the missionary's needs and extend a liberal hand, for which I am thankful. There is a little band of a few saints in Soo, Michigan, though not in my field I have worked with them. They have no one to help them, only as an elder comes along. They have endeared themselves to me. We have and do encourage them to go sure though slow. The truck horse with his shoulders to the collar and traces that goes far better work than the stately horse that is always scoring. It is better to tell one of his faults and try to redeem him than to tell them to others to send out as thistle-blossoms to the winds. The spirit of envy and jealousy often lodge in the hearts of otherwise good saints.

With the outsiders here in some places the work goes slow. We have no desire to eliminate from the written word of God. The waters of life given them in God's way furnishes no satisfaction to their parched lips; so as James Cardinal Gibbons says: "The flower that supplies honey for the bee, also furnishes poison for the wasp."

Work for the missionary in winter here on the island is something like that of Nova Scotia, the men go to the bush for labor during winter. The winters are very cold here. It has been said that the glass has registered as low as 56. It requires youth, blood and plenty of grit to face this. May the Spirit of peace prevail with all the saints in my prayer. My mission address is Manitowaning, Ont. Home address, 2 Court Street, Auburn, Maine.

Your co-laborer,

EVFALA, Okla., Sept. 20.

Editor Ensign:—I just arrived here from looking after one of the lose sheep that I failed to find. In the ENSIGN of Sept. 11th was a letter from M. E. Roberts of Coweta, Okla., stating that his wife was ready to obey the gospel and wanted an elder to come there. I went to Coweta the 16th and enquired for Mr. M. E. Roberts but no one knew him. I called at the Post Office and the telephone office but no one knew of such a man. I found two by the name of E. Roberts but neither of them was the man. I walked thirteen miles when I got caught in a rain eight miles from town and had to call for a livery team, paid two dollars for the team, lost five dollars, besides one dollar railroad fare, and didn't find the man. Now if the good brother will state how far and in what direction he is from Coweta we will try it again, we hope with better success next time.

We hope to open all the new places and if there are any isolated saints in the district that can make arrangements for preaching please do so and we will help you all we can. We have many calls ahead of us now but will remember you all. I have preached over fifty times in the open air this summer, and at one new place, three miles west of Skitook, a mob came to egg me and break up my meeting; one man dared me to fight him. This mob was led by a Holiness preacher. He interrupted me several times during the meeting. He said hell would be full of men like me with their feet hanging out of the window. Bro. Z. B. Hogue lives in the neighborhood and was present at the meeting. He and some others walked out by me and the eggs were not thrown. Bro. Hogue presented twelve of the names to the grand jury, the Holiness preacher's with the rest. I think they will be judged every man according to his works. Some of them were part Indian, of the Osage Tribe. I think it will be some time before they will become a delightful people, at least it seemed so that night.

Why do the heathen rage and the people imagine vain things? And while Satan raged and the people imagined vain things there were two gentlemen and their families stated that I was telling the gospel story. We hope to see them obey the gospel when we return.

Next week all being favorable we are to occupy on the streets of this little city where our esteemed brother, T. F. Martin resides. This week the fair and street shows, ferris-wheels, merry-go-rounds, and picture shows, and all manner of games of chance draw the attention of the people away from the teachings of Christ.

Let I get this letter too lengthy I will close, ever hope full of the final victory.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., Sept. 17.

Dear Ensign:—It has been over a year since I have written to you. Not because I am not interested in the ENSIGN because I am. I certainly appreciated it more than ever during my sickness in the sanitarium. I am surprised at the number in Independence who do not take it. How can they keep up with the work without it? Some ask me why I did not let them know through the Ensign how I was getting along. I have been waiting to get over living on milk. I don't know when that will be so I will try and write now.

Last November while in the field I had an attack of heart trouble. I stayed in the field and preached five weeks, but got so bad I had to go home. I was sick at home nearly three months and then I came to the sanitarium and was there a little over five months.

I was put on a special diet of milk, skim, butter, and clabber milk at first, and after one days I was allowed new milk about half of the time. I lost a pound and a quarter a day for a long time on my diet, but since I began on new milk have gained about forty pounds. It is now five months and one-half that I have lived on milk diet and I am feeling fine; have been preaching for a couple of months, enjoying the best liberty I ever have.

I am closer to God than I have ever been and I thank him for my afflictions, for they have put me in the condition I have prayed for years. Through the dear ENSIGN I was to thank all the dear saints who visited me, sent me flowers, furnished me buttermilk, and the dear elders that administered to me, and all in the sanitarium who cared for me. The chapel service and the Sunday afternoon social service is a power for good. I received revelations through different ones of the priesthood that have had their fulfillment already.

I have preached in four of the Kansas City branches, at St. Joseph, at the reunion at Stewartville, and four places in Independence. Bro. Jenkins and I are holding a tent meeting in the east part of town to good sized audiences—when it don't rain. It seems good to get in tent work with Bro. Jenkins again.

I gained eight pounds week before last and preached all of the time in the tent. I shall soon go to my field of labor. I am now acquainted with the Independence saints as I never would have been if it had not been for affliction. Many noble saints here.

I am so thankful to God that I am able to preach again.

May the blessings of God be with his people all over the world.

SCAMMON, Kans., Sept. 20.

Dear Ensign:—I went to Heiler on Aug. 29th was met by Bro. Sutherland who took me to his home. The next day we commenced meeting in their school-house and had good crowds and on Sept. 14th we had the privilege of leading five noble souls into the waters of baptism making nine that have been baptized at that place the last three years. They have a nice little Sunday school, Bro. Frank Sutherland being superintendent. Bro. and Sr. Chezen have lived in this locality for the past ten years and it was through their effort that the work was started. If saints will live their religion, this work is bound to spread.

It makes me feel sad to see the saints taking up the world in dress and things of amusements. The word of the Lord to us is: Thou shalt not be proud in thy heart; let all thy garments be plain." How about the hobble and slit skirt and the low neck dresses etc. The dress evil is helping to ruin so many girls and boys. I often wonder why we want to wait and let the men and women of other churches take the lead in these reforms when the Lord has warned us of them before they came. Jesus has said yea the light of the world; Matt. 5:14. We as a church have this light but are we letting it shine or putting it under a bushel?

Will not some of our good writers (women) come out and let their light shine through the Ensign and Herald on this subject. And others may let their light shine by refusing to follow the dress fad. But probably I have said enough for this time, as some one may say "Bro. Quick, you are a crank." That may be. Will it take cranks to turn the dress crank?

We are now trying to pay a $75,000 debt it is because the Lord's people have not been blessed? "Ah no!" say's one, "I have been blessed with health, I haven't lost a days time." "Did you give the Lord his part?" "Well no, when my bills were all paid there was nothing left." Brother or Sister, how much have you spent the last year going to the picture shows, or the ice cream parlor, or to see the ball game, or many other unnecessary things?

The first elders of this church had it much harder than we do today, we can get on the cars and go one hundred miles in three hours for the small sum of two dollars while it would take them two or three days; we should be content to ride in the chair car unless on a very long trip. When I read of some of the more favored people, and some of the saints, taking their pleasure trips in the hot weather, then I think of some of the poor saints that are toiling from morn till night, some poor widowed sister washing for a living supporting a family of little children. I have heard a great deal about equality in the church, but have seen but very little. Will it ever come? Some of the poor are giving their little mite to help the church along, and a good many times when these good hearted, God-loving people have given us missionaries money, I have felt that it was sacred.

May the Lord bless all and as Jesus prayed for his disciples: "I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil."

Your Brother,
Lee Quick.

SOUTH ADDISON, MAINE, Sept. 17.

Dear Ensign:—Since I wrote you last I attended the Western Maine conference where I met with many of the dear saints who have been in the front of the battle for many years, and are strong in the faith, like Captain J. J. Billings, and wife, who have trained up their children and brought them into the chu. ch. Also John and Edward Blatlow, Hosea Eaton and Rose and Levi Gray, and a host of others too numerous to mention, who are all looking beyond for the fulfillment of the promises made to them in the law of the gospel.

On my way to the conference held at Little Deer Isle, I stopped at Bar Harbor and preached a couple of times and baptized an old lady who for years belonged to the Free Will Baptist Church. She was born July 29, 1839. She made 571 that I have led into the water.

From Stonington, in company with our young missionary in charge, Bro. Paul Hanson, we were conveyed to Little Deer Isle by Bro. Joseph Eaton with his fine trotting horse. There I called on his grandmother, who is ninety-nine years old the 16th of last July. Her grandmother died at the age of one hundred years, her father at the age of ninety-eight.

At Little Deer Isle we had a very good conference; the preaching was by Bro. Hanson, Farrell, Sheehy and the writer, the last staying over and preaching several times after conference.

Since I left my home in Independence, Mo., June 27th, I have averaged almost a meeting a day; have baptized three, and have many others near the entering door. I shall attend the Eastern Maine conference at Jonesport the 27th and 28th, and then go to Boston for Sunday, Oct. 5th, then Chicago for Sunday the 12th; then home for the winter. I have been wonderfully blessed this summer in dispensing the gospel, for which I feel to thank God.

I am yours truly,
J. C. Foss.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Noda Foster, Fayette Ark.—I feel so thankful that God was so merciful as to send Bro. James Davis to us with the true gospel that brought such light to us. I want the prayers of all the saints for my four children.

Harbor no thought, neither do any act you would be unwilling the whole world should know.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE ORIGIN AND CAUSE OF CHURCHES.

F. J. EBELING.
THE LUTHERAN CHURCH.

The beginning of this body really begins with Martin Luther throwing off the Roman yoke on account of the sale of indulgences, nailing his ninety-five theses on the church door at Wittenburg, Germany, October 31, 1517.

We have never been able to find that Luther ever claimed any divine appointment for starting a new church. While he himself objected to the calling of a church after his name, it soon took his name, and why not, since he was the one who started the opposition to the sale of indulgences, which was the inspiration behind the formation of this church.

While we admire the bold stand Luther took against the corrupt practices of Romanism, and will have to accord to him undying praise for giving us the Bible in the common vernacular, and cherish his memory for the great sacrifices made in throwing off the Roman yoke, still all this does not make a human organization divine. Man of himself can bring about much righteousness.

During the period of the opening of the new world many of his followers and some of the Dutch Reformed churchmen came here and settled in Delaware, Pennsylvania and Georgia. On the arrival of Rev. Henry M. Muhlenburg in 1742, they began a new era in Lutheranism in this country among the scattered emigrants.

As great as Martin Luther was in many respects, yet he did not seem to see the necessity of divine authority in the formation of the church which he founded. Many smaller bodies were founded and reformed, as direct descendants from the work of Luther, but as none of them claimed any authority for starting their church than did Luther, we shall pass them by as human efforts.

METHODIST.

This great body of people had its beginning with the desire of John and Charles Wesley to reform the Church of England.

They became grieved at the deadened and paralyzed condition of the Church of England of which they were members, and with an earnest desire to lift them to a higher spirituality, began holding revival meetings, in private houses, abandoned buildings, and the commons, in London. By their regular habits and established methods, they got the name "Methodist," which has ever since followed them.

The Wesleys had no intention of starting a new organization—that came as a natural consequence in departing from the old established ritualistic forms of the times. But finally, as the peculiar condition of the times demanded, it evolved itself into a church organization. In 1743 the General Rules for building together the various societies were prepared. The officers were not appointed by heaven's direction but upon man's volition. The historian says, page 223, "No church had been organized, only religious societies. It was the Independence of America and the need of appointing superintendents to carry on the work in this country that led to the formation of a distinct church organization."

Francis Asbury was ordained by Dr. Thomas Coke. Coke was ordained by Wesley. Wesley had been ordained by the Bishop of Canterbury, which Bishop received the only authority he ever had by act of the English Parliament. Purely human from start to finish.

Those men must have recognized some authority or they would not have ordained. We have no objection for them to ordain each other to confer the right or authority to act for this human organization, but when they expect God's recognition without having given him the opportunity of choosing his own servants to say whether he wants them or not, and then through them expect full salvation, is to expect more than consistency justifies.

Salvation depends upon those whom God sends and we can only receive Christ by receiving those whom he sends, but if men send them, God is under no obligation to receive them. Hear what Christ says about it.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me."—John 13:20.

By this can be plainly seen that before we can be received of God, we must receive those whom God sends, and if God has nothing to do with the sending, he will have to do with the receiving. God, in all ages of the world, sent men by revelation, and since those human organizations deny divine revelation in the formation of their churches, how could God have sent them? If Wesley had no revelation from God granting the authority to ordain Dr. Coke. Dr. Coke had none to ordain Asbury, and Asbury had none to transmit to his successor. Hence we must conclude the beginning of the great Methodist body is entirely without divine authority. According to the statement of Jesus Christ they present the following sad predicament: Whosoever received Francis Asbury received Dr. Coke, and whosoever received Dr. Coke received John Wesley, and whosoever received John Wesley received the Bishop of Canterbury, and whosoever received the Bishop of Canterbury received the British Parliament, which assumed its authority from Rome.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

We will let the historian say how much God was in the formation of this church.

"This church effected separate organization in 1845. The separation grew out of the pronounced opposition of the Methodist Episcopal Church to negro slavery, a stand which they took almost at the beginning. It was only after a protracted agitation that the conferences in the slaveholding States withdrew and organized their own General Conference, meeting for the first time at Petersburg, Va., in May, 1846."—Page 245.

Simply human opinions to the slave question was the cause of this church being in existence today. Had there been no slaves in this country, there would be no Methodist Episcopal Church South.

THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

The cause of the formation of this church was a quarrel over the office of Bishop.

It seems that every time a man got an idea in church government or policy differing from his associates, he was obliged, in order to have his own way, to start a new church.

"The cause of the expulsion of some from the Methodist Episcopal Church, which led to the formation of this body was the opposition of many to the office of bishop, and the desire for lay representation in the conferences of the church, which did not obtain in the parent body until 1872. The first steps toward the organization of the Methodist Protestant Church were taken in 1828. Two years later, in convention at Baltimore, a constitution and Book of Discipline were adopted, also the name." Page 249.

THE AMERICAN WESLEYAN CHURCH.

Was organized in 1843, and separated from the parent church upon the slavery question.

FREE METHODIST.

"This body, which organized in 1860 grew out of the expulsion of ministers and members, because of the manner of their opposition to what they considered innovations or departures from the rules of the Discipline. Their avowed purpose was to restore the simplicity of Wesleyan Methodism in doctrine and practice."

THE PRIMITIVE METHODIST.

"They arose in England about 1810 because of the opposition of the English Methodists to camp meetings, introduced there by Lorenzo Dow."

UNITED BRETHREN.

"This church was originated with the revival meeting of Philip William Otterbein of the German Reform Church, who was born in Germany, June 3, 1725, and Martin Boehm, a Mennonite preacher, who was born in 1725. It was at the close of a sermon that the latter had preached in a barn near Lancaster, Pa., that Mr. Otterbein embraced him, exclaiming, 'Wir sind Bruder,' (We are brethren). This, doubtless, had its influence in determining the name. There was no intention at first of organizing a church, but simply to preach the gospel among the Germans of this country. Organization, however, became desirable and necessary, and the church was formed in 1800." p. 261.

We are unable to discover any divine command in the establishment of this church which makes strong claims of being the true church. Not even inquiring of God to know whether he wanted them to form a new church. Just two man-made preachers put their ideas together and began working together, with no intention of starting a church. But by evolution, through human convenience they formed themselves into an organization, without a word from God.

THE CONGREGATIONALISTS.

"This church came as a result of all those who were opposed to the rule of priests and bishops, mainly from the Church of England. They are known also as Separatists or Independents. The two main bodies of them are the Puritans and Pilgrims, so noted in the early history of our country. They include those who came across in the Mayflower in 1620. After landing here they set aside the priests and bishops and ordained men of their own liking, allowing each congregation absolute power of government. By change after change they gradually developed into their present church government."

With all the interesting history attached to these people, with all their changes and evolutions, with all their strength and popularity, we fail to find any divine authority for the existence of this church; simply a result of some human ideas developed by a conglomeration of contending factions of the old mother church.

THE UNITARIAN CHURCH.

"Unitarianism as it exists today is a development. In the early church it had its beginning in Arianism. When the reformation had given an impulse to free inquiry Unitarianism appeared in various places, and spread to a considerable extent, not without persecution. The Unitarian churches in America grew out of a theological split among the Congregational churches of New England of which the Rev. James Freeman was pastor. Yet the controversy was almost entirely within the Congregational ranks, and twenty-eight of their oldest settled churches in New England became Unitarian very early in the present century. . . . The movement began at a time when Arianism was influencing Puritan Calvinism, on one side, and when, on the other side, certain Calvinistic beliefs were extravagantly emphasized by Congregational divines." Page 304.

This people really had their beginning in the great Arian heresy, which caused the first great controversy in the early church in the third century, whose doctrine was that Jesus Christ was purely human, and not begotten of the Holy Ghost. Their ideas sprinkled through the two grand divisions of the Reformation, Calvinism and Arminianism, finally resulted in those holding to the Arian views pulling away from those two man-made divisions and establishing a church suitable to their own peculiar notions. Thus by centuries of evolution we have the Trinitarian. In all their shiftings, divisions and sub-divisions we find no authority from God. No angel, no vision, not even a prayer for divine guidance, simply an evolutionary development of human ideas.

DISCIPLES.

We will now examine the title of this church which boasts so much as the church established on the day of Pentecost. We do not object to individuals forming themselves into societies and calling themselves after the names of their founders, or after some peculiar form of government, such as Lutherans, Calvinists, Methodists, Congregationalists or Episcopalians, etc., thus indicating their purely human origin, but we do think it inconsistent to form a society out of human ingredients and name it the "Church of Christ," as many people have done. By several lines we run this church claiming restored Christianity back to Romanism.

The Disciples look to Thomas Campbell and especially his son Alexander, as the founders of their denomination, as do the Baptists to Roger Williams. The Campbells came to this country early in the century from Ireland, where they had been seceders.

Alexander had studied for a time at Glasgow University. At first they were associated with the Presbyterians, but being convinced that immersion was the proper mode of baptism they became affiliated with the Baptists and were immersed. They joined the Redstone (Pa.) association, but shortly after Alexander Campbell and the church of which he was pastor went into the neighboring Association. There his teachings and influence prevailed so that after several churches that did not agree had withdrawn, the association was dissolved and the new movement was fully started. This was in 1827. They were joined about that time by the Rev. B. W. Stone, and his "Christian" followers. Stone had been a Presbyterian minister, but having left that body, was engaged with others in a great revival movement in Kentucky, Tennessee, and Ohio, p. 356.

The other line from which B. W. Stone came, called themselves "Christians." This doubtless is what caused the long struggle about the name, and which is not yet settled. Some contended they should be called "Disciples" and others "Christian." Of this movement the historian says: "The Christians own their origin to three district movements in the beginning of this last century. One was the revival movement, referred to before, under Barton W. Stone, and other Presbyterians in Kentucky. Another was in Vermont, where Abner Jones, M. D. a Baptist, was joined by some of his own denomination and by freewill Baptists in an effort to eschew sectarian names and human creeds. The third was in Virginia, where a Methodist presiding Elder James O. Kelley, who came in conflict with Bishop Asbury, started a movement with the Bible as the only creed. These three "Christian" bodies in different sections came together about 1806, taking the name of Christian. Afterward Stone and some of his followers joined the Disciples. The largest growth of the Christians has been in Ohio and Indiana. Their origin was purely American. They do not go back to the Old World for ecclesiastical pedigree, but they do claim to be spiritually descended from the church at Jerusalem, p. 367.

In this church we find a mixture of Presbyterian Baptists, Freewill Baptist, Methodist, medical men and Independents. All those various men, holding as many various views, living in a period when church making was the spirit of the times, gradually drifted together, and launched another human bark upon the sea of doubt, for Barton Stone, at the time settled the grave question of authority, by saying, "If we have authority to preach we have authority to baptize." He was right in his supposition, but on the other hand if they had no authority to preach they had no authority to baptize without a definite call from God none of them had authority to preach, hence none to baptize. Paul said in Heb. 5:4 that "no man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron," and since Aaron was called by direct revelation, through a prophet, and since none of these modern reformers ever claimed a revelation authorizing them to preach, they could not have been called as was Aaron. Not one of this great aggregation of church-makers ever once suggested the idea of going to God in prayer and see if he wanted them to start another church, but proceeded entirely on their own initiative.

From this conglomerated movement some others have departed over mere trifles and have gone to house-keeping for themselves. The most aggressive of those naughty children are the "Non-Progressive wing of Campbellism, who quarrelled over the organ, Sunday school, etc., and now proudly boast of the church established in year 30, A. D. at Jerusalem, at 9 o'clock in the morning, when in fact they were self established from the movement of Campbell, Stone, Scott, and Co., in 1827.

Now we have given a brief account of the origin of comparatively few of the many churches. However all the others had their beginning in a similar manner. Not one of them claiming divine revelation. Every one can be traced back to one of the three main branches of Protestantism, viz., Episcopalianism, Lutheranism, or Calvinism, which all three had their beginning in apostate Rome, which they themselves brand as the mother of harlots. By taking a view through the historic telescope, it looks as though they were calling their ancestors unkind names.

Since all those combined human creeds and churches have utterly failed to give to the world the divine organization. We will examine the claim of one yet not mentioned, and should we succeed in tracing it back through human organization to the old mother church, we will also reject it. The church we refer to is the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints founded by Joseph Smith who claimed he was authorized by an angle from heaven, in answer to earnest prayer. We can not find that Joseph Smith ever belonged to any other church or in any way indorsed them. He was just seeking earnestly which of all those churches were right, and which thus seeking he decided to read the Bible and follow it. He found by reading St. James the 1st chapter that whosoever lacked wisdom, and asked God should receive. He felt that if any mortal on earth needed wisdom at that particular time he did, and consequently retired to the quiet repose of the woods, and there poured out his heart's desire to God, taking God at his word.

Now hear the humble dispassionate, straight forward, and unambiguous account of how Joseph Smith began the work of church building. No quarrel with other churchmen about political, civil, or religious questions. He had never been ordained by any other body; Had never been spoiled or traditionized by any theological training. Just an earnest simple hearted appeal to the heavenly Father for the needed light. Contrast this narrative with the indefinite, quarrelsome, wrangling of the other originators of churches.

The following account is taken from Church History Vol. 1 p. 7-10.

"Sometime in the second year after our removal to Manchester, there was in the place where we lived an unusual excitement on the subject of religion. . . . I was at this time in my fifteenth year. . . . During this time of great excitement my mind was called up to serious reflection and great uneasiness, but though my feelings were deep and often pungent, still I kept myself aloof from all those parties, though I attended their several meetings as often as occasion would permit; . . . In the midst of this war of words and tumult of opinions, I often said to myself, What is to be done? Who of all these parties are right? Or, Are they all wrong together? If any one of them be right, which is it, and how shall I know it? While I was laboring under the extreme difficulties caused by the contests of these parties of religionists, I was one day reading the epistle of James, first chapter and fifth verse, which reads: 'If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given unto him.' Never did any passage of scripture come with more power to the heart of man than this did at this time to mine. It seemed to enter with great force into every feeling of my heart. I reflected on it again and again, knowing that if any person needed wisdom from God I did, for how to act I did not know, and unless I could get more wisdom than I then had would never know, for the teachers of religion of the different sects understood the same passage so differently as to destroy all confidence in settling the question by an appeal to the Bible. At length I came to the conclusion that I must either remain in darkness and confusion, or else I must do as James directs; that is, ask of God. I at length came to the determination to 'ask of God,' concluding that if he gave wisdom to them that lacked wisdom and would give liberally, and not upbraid, I might venture. So in accordance with this my determination, to ask of God, I retired to the woods to make the attempt. It was on the morning of a beautiful clear day, early in the spring of eighteen hundred and twenty. . . . After I had retired into the place where I had previously designed to go, having looked around me and finding myself alone, I knelt down and began to offer up the desires of my heart to God. . . . I saw a pillar of light exactly over my head, above the brightness of the sun; which descended gradually until it fell upon me. . . . When the light rested upon me I saw two personages (whose brightness and glory defy all description) standing above me in the air. One of them spake unto me, calling me by name, and said, (pointing to the other,) 'This is my beloved Son, hear him.' My object in going to inquire of the Lord was to know which of all the sects was right that I might know which to join: No sooner therefore did I get possession of myself, so as to be able to speak, than I asked the personages who stood above me in the light, which of all the sects was right, (for at this time it had never entered into my heart that all were wrong,) and which I should join. I was answered that I must join none of them, for they were all wrong, and the personage who addressed me said that all their creeds were an abomination in his sight; that those professors were all corrupt; 'they draw near to me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me; they teach for doctrine the commandments of men, having a form of godliness, but they deny the power thereof.' He again forbade me to join with any of them; and many other things did he say unto me which I can not write at this time.—Church History, vol. 1, pp. 7, 8, 9, 10.

From this visitation of the heavenly messenger we deduct the following.

1. This boy at the age of fifteen became seriously concerned about his spiritual condition, by attending a union revival meeting. Nothing strange about this, as that was the very object of those revival services.

2. He became confused as to which of all those contending factions were right. This shows he was not of an excitable nature, but calmly thought and meditated over the sad situations in the midst of this war of words and tumult of opinions.

3. He went to reading the Bible and came to James 1:5. "If any of you lack wisdom let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally." Nothing wrong about reading the Bible, this is just the thing that all the preachers urged the people to do. And if right to read it, it was right to believe it. Joseph Smith believed God meant just what he said, and expected an answer from God just as the Savior said, "Ask and ye shall receive."

The difference between Mr. Smith and the others was that he believed in going to God expecting to receive an intelligent answer, and the others did not believe God would give a definite answer to prayer and proceeded with church building without asking him. If we are commanded to ask God for light and wisdom should it be heretical to receive an answer?

4. He retired to a quiet place alone. This is not unscriptural, As Jesus said, whosoever ye ask in secret God shall reward openly?" And true to this promise he got an open answer. Not while the nerves were quivering with religious excitement, or the brain wandering from halucination, but a quiet, simple prayer in the quietude of nature's chamber.

5. He had no religious prejudice, for the object in going to prayer, was to ask God which of them were right, but altogether contrary to what he expected he was told that none of them were right. I suppose had God told him that any certain one of those churches were right, they of that church would have been his last friend and stood by him till death, because God passed these all by as men made churches, they became bitter in persecution.

6. He did not court popular favor for he said he was told that the sects were all wrong and their creeds an abomination in God's sight.

If this young prophet had been trying to deceive the people, he would never have done it by telling them this, but would have patted them on the back, "with a cunning smile in order to get in to their good graces to all the better deceive them." A deceiver will always come with fair "speeches and good words." He did not come in the popular garb of the day. He could not be classed as a wolf in sheep's clothing, for the sheep in that day were held to be the popular denominations. He did not assume any of their habiliments, but an entirely different one. Hence could easily be detected or distinguished from all the others. To say he was a wolf in sheep's clothing is altogether contrary to his debut to the religious world.

7. He was answered in no new or unheard of way, but in just the same way as recorded at the baptism of Jesus. Matt. 3. The answer came in a plain, positive intelligent way, and not in some indefinite, mysterious undefinable "feeling of the heart," of which we hear so much about in man made churches.

8. He gave the exact day, date, time and place where the divine personage answered his prayer. Those things are very essential when examining a witness in court.

SHIPOWNERS AND THE LAWS OF WARFARE.

The Economist reports a meeting of the leading shipowners of Sweden, Norway and Denmark, in an association representing and controlling nearly 2½ million tons of shipping, and composed of between fifty or a hundred shipowners. The meeting considered especially the unsatisfactory state of the laws of naval warfare, which not only allow private property on sea to be robbed or pillaged in time of war, but permit belligerents to declare as contraband food and peaceful merchandise of all sorts and descriptions. The following resolutions were adopted by unanimous votes:

"The general meeting of the Scandinavian Shipowners' Association expresses as its opinion that the right of capture of private property at sea is an obsolete relic of barbarism which cannot be reconciled with civilization and with the development of commercial shipping.

"The meeting further expresses as its opinion that in the interest of the international oversea trade only warlike materials, such as weapons and ammunition, should be considered as contraband of war.

"The directors are therefore requested to press upon the government of the Scandinavian countries the necessity of furthering these reforms by treaty without undue delay."

Occasionally we hear of a person reaching the age of one hundred years, but Gertrude Alto of Mexico Aztec Indian blood, living at San Diego, Cal., has been said to be the oldest person now living, being now in her one hundred and twenty-fourth year, and has never known a sick day. But Popular Electricity tells of Wah-Hah-Gun-Ta, a Blackfoot Indian who is one hundred and thirty-two years old. He was born in Glacier National Park in 1781, and he was the first red man in that territory to visit the national capital which he did at the time that Thomas Jefferson was president. He regards the event as a memorable one in his life.

The greatest man is he who chooses the right with the most invincible resolution; who resists the sorest temptation, from within and without; who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully; who is calmest in storms, and most fearless under menaces and frowns; whose reliance on truth, on virtue, and on God is most unflinching.—Sereca.

THE PEACE CONGRESS.

That great results are hardly to be expected from the influence of the Peace Congress at The Hague, is the view set forth by the Literary Digest in a review of a number of European newspapers upon the subject of the peace conference. It says:

"Sneers at the futility of The Hague peace conferences are plentiful as the delegates end their twentieth session in Mr. Carnegie's magnificent Peace Palace, amid the echo of the Balkan and Tripolitan conflicts. The fact that a great European war was averted in circumstances that once would have started a general slaughter is hardly mentioned. The most influential papers of France, Germany, and England refer to the gathering in a lofty tone, as if its doings were of no serious importance, except in an incidental way. The essays, the theories, the resolutions, are generally spoken of either as futilities or, at least, at the present time, Utopian impracticabilities. They are futile because they are impracticable, and impracticable because they take no account of human nature and the political and economic rivalries of the nations they are intended to influence and reform. Yet, admit some, the tendency of such congresses may ultimately conduce to the education of the world in the way of peace."

From the Paris Journal des Debats it quotes as follows:

"Doubtless such demonstrations as those at The Hague cannot be destitute of good effects, if it is only by asserting the principles of right and justice. They also serve to lay impartially before the public certain verities such as those expounded by Professor Guilde, of Munich, who acknowledged that Germany was responsible for the recent increase of armaments among European nations. But let the pacifists beware of quitting this domain of sentimental demonstration and launching out into the domain of instant practical realization. From the moment they begin to demand measures, that warrant and guarantee peace, even a police of the peace which could not possibly be created except by the gradual education of the majority of mankind, they at once betray the crudity of their Utopian dreams. Of course, the spectacle of their candid naivete is in harmony with the temper of a country whose characteristic it is in accepting fine theories to mistake them for possibilities. The newest heaven-sent remedies against war which pacifism proposes to this Europe of Balkan imbroglios cannot as yet be considered substitutes for the expedients handed down to us by the ancient wisdom of the nations."

The prospects for universal peace in the near future are not brightened by the following quoted from the London Standard on the inauguration of the Palace of Peace, the gift of Andrew Carnegie, and the discussion of the delegates to the peace Conference.

"Mr Andrew Carnegie does not, we imagine, add to his many meritorious qualities the 'saving grace of humor.' We cannot therefore suppose that his gift to The Hague, a 'Palace of Peace,' is an elaborate and expensive jest. The project has been conceived and we presume carried out in all sincerity; the magnificent donor of this edifice does no doubt really imagine that the gift is seasonable and appropriate. . . . But it was not the Hague Court that resolved the Morocco crisis of 1911, when Three Great Powers drifted very close to a quarrel. What could the Hague tribunal do on this occasion? What has it done to keep the Balkan nations from flying at each other's throats? One must really ask whether it is worth while for our own Government, or for any other Government, to take part in a repetition of the foolish farce of a conference upon peace among nations all armed to the eyes for war? We must face the fact that while every nation sincerely desires to keep the peace as long as possible, all of them are convinced that they have no guaranty against aggression but their own ability to defend themselves; and that no peace conference or whole volumes of international acts and declarations will give them any other."

In the place of the large school building containing many rooms, Colorado Springs has adopted the novel plan of building a number of small buildings each containing one room around a campus the inner part of which is used for a playground. It is said the cost of building is much less than of the large building, and the danger from fire is almost entirely eliminated. Other cities are considering the plan.

LAMANITE PROPHECIES.

Prophecies of the Yuma, California, Tribe of Indians, written by Lineal Chief Patrick Miguel from oral tradition, claimed to ante-date the advent of the white man to America. By courtesy of Elder R. T. Cooper.

I saw in a vision all the races of the past and those that are to come. Some were old, some were middle aged, some were youths and others mere children. The youngest of them was of a different color from all the rest. The color of his skin was white; his hair almost red.

Just as a man of many children would do, the Lord brought forth many toys and tools to his children. I saw implements of all sorts and sizes. I saw immense buildings. I saw ships. Yea! I saw all things which are to be used by man.

I saw piled up like great mountains all the provisions and all the riches of the world. All of this the Lord proceeded to divide equally among his children. The child whose skin was white was not satisfied with his share and tried to get also those which were given to his brothers. He cried—refused to be comforted and also refused to accept his share unless those things given to his brothers were also given to him.

His brothers held a council and fearing that he would cry himself to death, agreed to give him everything. This was done and the child was happy.

Further on this same prophet says: "From the shores across the pond (Atlantic Ocean) east of us, I saw many books tossed upwards to the four heavens. All but one failed. That one book reached the fourth heaven. The cover of the book became its wings and spread over all men on earth. The book flew and circled four times above the earth. I saw another book tossed up to the four heavens from this land and behold that too reached the fourth heaven and that too had wings. One changed into a male dove; the other a female and they were united in marriage by the hand of the Lord."

The four heavens are but the four periods of your history. The books shall not be united in marriage until the close of the fourth period.

I saw plants from which a book flew out and came to the Hom-qua-chan. No sooner had the book flew out, behold the plants withered and vanished. This is nothing more than the word of God which shall be preached to you. The tenets of which religion should be written on Mesque (Papyrus).

Los Angeles, California, Sept. 21, 1913.

THE ROUND TABLE.

Please explain Luke 14:26, 27. "If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple."

We offer the following from a footnote in Wilson's Emphatic Diaglott relative to this passage as a very satisfactory explanation of the use of the word hate: "This is one amongst many examples in the sacred writings of Oriental figurative language, where the expression is hyperbolic in order to render the truth meant to be conveyed in it more striking and impressive. Matthew in chapter 10:37 expresses the literal meaning of this passage, when he says 'Loves his father and mother more than me,' and in chapter 6:24 uses the word hate with similar force. So when we read in Romans 9:13 'Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated,' the meaning is, I have loved Jacob more than Esau; and that this is no arbitrary interpretation of the word hate, but one agreeable to the Hebrew idiom, appears from what is said in Gen. 29:30, 31, where Leah, being hated is explained by Rachel's being loved more than Leah. See, also Deut. 21:15-17. Something resembling what Jesus here teaches, is said by Philo (de Monarch, lib. ii, p230) concerning the duty of a high-priest that he was to 'strange himself from all his relations, and not out of love to his parents, his children, or brethren, to omit any part of his duty, or act in anything contrary to it.'"—Pearce.

I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns.

God employs no hired men: his work is done by his sons

They that know God will be humble, they that know themselves cannot be proud.

FIELD NOTES.

(The following items are furnished by Mrs. D. J. Kralh, General Secretary.—Ed.)

Sr. Rena W. Rich, Field Worker for Woman's Auxiliary in Massachusetts District, writes encouragingly of their Reunion work. Two afternoons were given in which each Superintendent of the Departments in Boston Local explained the work of her department and then gave opportunity for questions to be asked and discussed. Much interest was awakened, as evidenced by the large attendance, and the many good things that were said. All seemed to realize what a vast amount of good was going to be derived from these annual meetings. On the second afternoon a District Organization was formed with Sr. Rena W. Rich, President; Sr. Sarah Fisher, Vice President; Sr. Walley, Secretary and Treasurer.

We may add that the Boston Local is the only one fully organized, it having the six departments.

Brother L. F. P. Curry President of Pittsburg, District, writes for by-laws and literature, "so that a proper beginning may be made," in the organization of the Woman's Auxiliary there.

Mrs. T. B. Jackson, Boise, Idaho, writes: "The saints here wish to organize a 'Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service.' We have an earnest determined little band of saints and it seems to me, could accomplish much good along the line of your work. Can you send me instructions and literature, etc?"

Mrs. Fred S. Clark, Oelwein, Ia.: "We have organized a Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service and are taking up the work of the Home and Child Welfare Department. I am the only one here that is a member of the church, (that is, out here in the country). We have eighteen members so far and all take a great interest in the meetings. I am in hopes that it may be the means of opening up the gospel here; it has never been preached in this neighborhood."

Mrs. Eliza Brackenbury, Field Worker, So. Boardman, Mich.: "I have just visited the Auxiliary at Traverse City, Mich.; visited three branches and organized a local at Joyfield branch, where they took up the work of Home and Child Welfare and Sewing and Aid Departments; and I have organized a local at Bendon, they taking up the Home and Child Welfare work only. Have openings now for more work as fast as I can get to it; there is nothing like visiting the branches to get the work before the sisters."

Since General Conference $201.05 has been received by the Woman's Auxiliary from various sources, for the Children's Home; three sisters from Bly, Oklahoma, sending thirty dollars each.

THIS CITY PLEASURE MAD—JUDGE LATSHAW SEVERE ON PARENTAL LUNACY IN PARTICULAR.

Keep your daughters and your motor car sons at home, he advises. Are there no more simple pleasures in life?

When the crimes of a great community are paraded, practically all of them, before one thinking man several years, that man soon comes quick to analysis of the cause of evils.

Judge Ralph S. Latshaw, in whose criminal court most of the serious crimes of Kansas City and Jackson County come up for judgment, spoke this morning of the joyriding epidemic among youths. Said he:—

"The one condition that more than others contributes to their delinquency is the inordinant desire for excitement, pleasure and dissipation. That is eating at the vitals of our young people, dissipating their energies, drowning their ambitions and ruining their lives. It is a serious condition and one very difficult to remedy.

Parents Set Bad Examples.

"Parents set a bad example to their children by indulging in luxuries and dissipations. All classes of society are pleasure mad—nickel shows, dance halls, pool halls, joy rides, make up the day dreams of the youth and their nightly pleasures. There is not that satisfaction that comes from real accomplishment and earnest, serious effort apparent in the undertakings of young people today. Their whole desire is to have a good time.

"The motor car has contributed its part toward the ruin of many women, and especially boys and girls. Henry Ward Beecher said: 'Give a boy a horse, and he will ride it to hell.' A motor car will take a boy to hell much quicker than a horse. It goes faster. There is something in the excitement of the rapid whirling through the air that throws off restraint, and distances soon covered from home and home influences throws off all responsibility and so intoxicates the mind that the moral sense is blunted.

As to the Motor Car.

"In the first place, no boy under 21 years should be permitted by his parents to take out a motor car after dark without being accompanied by his parents or elders. I told a man, whose son was giving him lots of trouble, that the first thing he should do was to dispose absolutely of his motor car, take the boy out of school and put him to work for a year or so. But there are no general rules; every case is a concrete problem to be solved by itself.

"No mother should permit her daughter to spend a night away from home with girl friends, or with anyone else, excepting near relatives. Such occasions offer opportunities for evasions and falsehood and many a girl's downfall leads to a night away from home, and the fond parents supposing she was staying with a girl friend.

"The mother who serenely goes to sleep while her daughter is out night riding in a motor car or attending a public dance, will lay awake many nights in return, with blanched face and furrowed brow.

The Pace That Kills.

"People are living too fast. The forces for good must get together and understand these conditions; they must instill into the young mind nobler ambitions, purer thoughts, loftier purposes; they must take the children back to the simple pleasures without the excitement and dissipation and vice that characterize many of the present forms of pleasure.

"Above all things, parents should take a sane view of life and by example as well as precept, give their children a real chance in life."—Kansas City Star. Sept. 9.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT

In and for the District of Southern Missouri. Of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The Saints and friends of the Southern Missouri District:—Please note that upon the recommendation of the district of Southern Missouri, Bro. G. A. Davis, Thayer, Mo., Box 262, has been duly appointed bishop's agent in and for said district in place of Bro. Benjamin Pearson, resigned. We commend Bro. Davis to the saints and friends of the Southern Missouri District in his work and trust that he may be blessed in his labors and be able to travel over the district and meet with every branch and member of the society, fulfilling fully the duty of agent, and appointing special solicitors or helpers whenever needed.

The Bishopric extend special thanks to Bro. Benjamin

Pearson for his faithful and truly worthy work in the Bishop's office in the capacity of agent in the past and hope that he will continue to labor in the Master's vineyard whenever and wherever opportunity offers.

To the Saints and friends of the Southern Missouri District, we especially request that each one take an interest in helping along the Master's work. Each one should try to move forward the special work that he has in hand in this life, first the Lord's work as stated by Jesus when he was here. This is prominent and we have the promise that if we do this first, that which we are personally interested in outside of this spiritual work shall be successful. If we can all move as children of faith and diligently lead a helping hand, we shall be able to overcome and receive commendation both here and hereafter. Trusting that each one may be blessed of the Lord to fulfill his work and remember the agent, Bro. G. A. Davis, Thayer, Mo. I am

Confidently in the triumph of the truth.
E. L. Kelley,
Presiding Bishop.
Independence, Mo., Sept. 27, 1913.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of the Seattle and British Columbia District.—As bishop's agent I am making an appeal to you in the interests of the General Church debt. Let us as a district meet this obligation immediately. Let each one send me your $1.50 now. I have received some but this should not be passed by one of us. I expect to visit each branch in the next three months, but this will serve the isolated ones. Let us do it now, that the bishop may have a clear sheet to present to us next conference. We can do it if we will but try. Any donation or amount will be accepted more or less.

Wm. Johnson.

PASTORAL.

To The Presidents of Branches, Spring River District; Dear Brethren:—The time has fully come for us to move up higher in having our work more completely systematized and more in order. Who knows how soon the Master may come, and how happy for us if he finds us so doing.

The First Presidency has urged and is still urging better reports from the district presidents, and it is not possible for that officer to report his district property, only with the cooperation and promptness of branch presidents in reporting at the several conferences of said district. Our quarterly conference will convene at Vera, Oklahoma on Oct. 11, 1913.

We earnestly desire to be able to send to the first presidency a full report and the real condition of the district, from the coming conference. Will you please help us with a prompt report of your branch?

A cold statistical report is not sufficient, with that, we want to know the spiritual condition that we may be able, if necessary, to assist you with missionary help.

Are all your members attending services? If not give the cause if you know. Are all your members in good spiritual condition? If not, why? Are the lesser officers of the branch aiding you as the law provides? If not, give the cause if you know. Are all holding the priesthood active or are they inclined to shirk their duty, and responsibility imposed? Are your meetings regular? Do you have priesthood and council meetings? How often? Are your officers in harmony with you in branch work? Finally, what is your greatest need to aid you to success? Do you need help?

Will you kindly aid us in this matter. Advise with your secretary today. Get up your report, have it approved and send to me at once at Vera, Oklahoma or to Mollie Davis, Pittsburg Kansas, 115 W. Jefferson, and thus assist us in keeping the first presidency in good humor.

Yours in bonds,
T. W. Chatburn, Pres.

Spokane District.—An effort has been made to pay off the church debt amounting to $75,000; each district has its portion to pay, I have checked the records and find it will be $1.50 for each member, this sum may be increased to suit sender, we have $350 all. ted this district. This amount should be paid to the bishop's representative or the bishop before the holidays, if you send the undersigned the money it will relieve the bishop of work. Let each person perform his part and the amount assigned us will soon be paid and all laboring together will be blessed of the Lord. Titling may be sent at the same time, not many has responded to recent notice. The harvest is over and the Lord is waiting for the tenth.

Your co-laborer,
W. W. Fordham, Bishop's Agt.

S. 238 Haven St.

To the First Seventy.

Brethren in Christ:—In counsel together this the 24th day of September, 1913, we concluded it advisable to send this epistle to you without assuming that you had not taken thought along the same lines, but to stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance.

Your calling indicates active and continuous labor in the ministry. It calls for your family, as well as from yourself, a peculiar sacrifice which none can make except by a living faith. 'Tis true that we have met with discouragements by reason of our families' not being properly cared for, although in a few instances it has been caused by our brethren of the ministry and their families' not being willing to make the sacrifice necessary to live within the provisions made. This has come about for various reasons, all of which it may be necessary for us to correct or to render assistance in correcting, as individuals, as families and as a Quorum, and while doing our part we should let our moderation be known to all. It is very easy it seems, to see wherein others have been or are at fault, and we seem to further see that if we were in their position how much better we could do than they are doing. We are assured that the most effective way that the correction of past mistakes may be made is for every man to learn his duty, and to stand in his own office and calling.

Those who have been called to and have taken upon themselves the office of a Seventy should, so far as health and the conditions of their families will permit, place themselves subject to the requirements of their office, and if it becomes necessary to adjust home conditions, and do so as speedily as possible, so that no failure of the church fulfilling its purposes can be legitimately laid at our doors. Place your families in such a position that they can enjoy church, social and educational privileges at a minimum cost, and then when placing your name for appointment give information of your needs and just wants, taking your family into your counsel in making your conclusions, and then they will be more willing to be subject to the sacrifice necessary to live within the specified amount.

By standing as a unit in our sacrifices and faithfulness to duty we can more consistently and effectively suggest and assist in outlining the policies and will encourage others to more fully carry out the law of God by which more laborers may be sent into the vineyard and the nations warned, and the families of all may be cared for within the purview of their "just wants" without the necessity of political enforcement of a changed condition, thus proving to the whole world that the gospel has in it all that is necessary, when properly executed in the spirit of love, to redeem from the bondage of sin and Satan, and to bring about a condition by which all will understand how to utilize that which they have as God would have them, not by force, but by reason of the enjoyment that is had by so doing.

The voluntary contributions that come into our possession to satisfy legitimate needs should be used only as would assist in building up the kingdom of God and more fully establish his righteousness, we in our expenditures being an example of how that should be used for which we must give account to God.

Your department should be always as "men of God," whether in public or in private, whether at home or abroad. Minimize your desires to legitimate necessities, and eat such things as are set before you in a manner to show you are appreciative of the kindness shown. Do not make any unnecessary burden to those whose hospitality you may share.

Do not try to assume pulpit airs, neither be careless of the earnestness and devotion that should be shown in preaching the word. Put self in the back ground, and even in all you say and do, bear witness to the Christ, whose witnesses we are.

Information that any of you can give us for the good of the Quorum or any member of it we will receive with gladness, and any assistance we can render any of you are ready at all times to do so far as we have ability. We have considered with sympathy and prayerfulness the trials that come to our notice, and we are made glad to know of your deliverance therefrom. Be patient, brethren, and cheerful in your warfare, and gather lessons from all these trying experiences that will better fit you for your peculiar responsibilities; and no matter how great the trial or how dark the day, we beseech of you, do not give up and lay down your weapons. To yield to these conditions is to acknowledge our own weakness and lack of faith in the grace and strength of God being sufficient for our day, and besides, this act of yielding would please Satan too well. It is he that endures unto the end that will be saved. Our sincere prayer is that none may fail, but that all may prove the power of God unto salvation.

We greatly need your support and prayers that we may render to the Quorum and to each member of it the official and brotherly service that we should.

Your brethren in hope,
James McKiernan, Pres.
J. F. Mintun Sec.

HOME DEPARTMENT WORK.

I have been receiving so many letters from home department members bearing testimony of the benefit the writers are receiving through this department. Those letters have been a source of great encouragement to me. I know there are a great number of saints who are isolated or unable to attend the Religio locals who might be receiving and enjoying the same benefits that many others are today.

The Religio has been studying the Doctrine and Covenants, a book given to the church through the kindness of our heavenly Father. We would like to have the name of every saint enrolled with some religio society or with the Home department. If space would permit I could give you more information regarding the department and its work. I would appreciate it so much if every saint (all non-members are also welcomed) who is not attending the regular meeting of the Religio in the locality in which they reside, would send me their names and addresses, and name of district in which they live. I will write and give you detailed information. I realize that this appeal means a great amount of tiresome work on the typewriter, but when I know that in this way I may be able to do some little good for the advancement of the work of God, I feel fully repaid for the time and energy devoted to the work.

I trust that many may feel an interest in the work and send me their names. I am desirous of doing all in my power that each one may receive the assistance that many today are obtaining through this department of Religio work.

Your sister,
Mrs. Eva Holsworth.

EDITORIAL

DESERTION.

The crime of wife desertion is one whose seriousness is seldom considered in its true light either by the public or the officers of the law. The offense has become so frequent that by many it is looked upon more as a social fault which may readily be forgiven than as the crime against the family and against society which it is.

A man recently sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for bigamy by Judge Latschaw in the criminal court at Kansas City, said to the judge: "My mistake was that I didn't divorce my first wife before I married again." The judge replied: "No, that was not a part of your duty at all. It was your place to stick by this first wife and forget about all other women. You had six children. Any father with human principles would have been true to them at least. You have ruined two lives, one, that of your trusting mate, the other, that of an innocent girl."

This man without any provocation left his devoted wife and six dependent children, for another woman who remained uninformed of his standing until the charge of bigamy was lodged against him. Not only two lives have been ruined but six children have been made orphans, unless he shall repent and upon his release come back to be a father to them—if it be possible. Strange as it may seem the law seldom or never punishes for wife abandonment which is the far more serious offense as compared with marrying a second wife. The abandoned wife cannot help herself, and if the second wife knows of the circumstances she is worthy of little sympathy, and if she does not know she cannot even then be held free from blame, for a woman who marries a stranger without knowing something of his life is just the one to make possible such situations as the above. She is on a par with the man who receives stolen property.

Under the law of the church the abandonment by a married person of his or her companion for the sake of another, is counted one of the most serious offenses. As to the penalty prescribed it is made parallel with murder and the second offense of adultery which the law says "shall not be forgiven." These three offenses are the only offenses which are not to be forgiven the offenders by the church upon their repentance, but the law says "they shall be cast out.—D. C. 42.

The gospel calls to high ideals of social and domestic life. "Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else," is the voice of inspiration to this age, and regarding the tendencies to laxity in morals it is further said: "I give unto you a commandment that ye suffer none of these things to enter into your heart." If these precepts were lived up to there would be no abandonments and no separations, and society would remain undisturbed by the frequent scandals which now so often arise.

KNOWING THE TRUTH.

The necessity of knowing the things that vitally concern men is everywhere conceded. The evidences of the natural and material things have been sought out and the facts of truth systematized into the various sciences and made the basis of further study and research. This work of acquiring knowledge has been based upon the exercise of the physical senses through which alone it has been claimed that knowledge could be had. So exacting has been the scientist that he would accept nothing but what could be demonstrated by actual experiment, such as he could see with his eyes, hear with his ears, or feel with his hands, and he has been strong in his denial of anything that could not be brought under this test.

Thus the scientist's attitude has been against such spiritual experiences as come to the children of God by which they "know of the doctrine," or "know that Jesus is the Christ," or by which they have assurance of immortality and eternal life. Judged by the world's test today it would have to be decided that Job had no more than a belief when he said "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." But if any credence is to be given to the teachings of the Bible it certainly teaches that any man may gain a knowledge of things outside of the material world, and that knowledge be just as certain as that acquired by actual demonstration with material things.

Sir Oliver Lodge, the eminent English scientist, has been devoting some time to psychical research in an effort to determine the existence of spirit beings, and whether there is a continuation of life after the death of the body. Of his work he says:

"Already the facts so examined have convinced me that memory and affection are not limited to that association with matter by which alone they can manifest themselves here and now, and that personality persists beyond bodily death. The evidence to my mind goes to prove that discarnate intelligence, under certain conditions may interact with us on the material side, thus indirectly coming within our scientific ken; and that gradually we may hope to attain some understanding of the nature, of a larger larger, perhaps ethereal existence, and of the conditions regulating intercourse across the chasm."

But the greatest concession made by this great scientist is in this statement: "The methods of science are not the only way, though they are our way, of arriving at truth." He discovered some things in his psychical researches, by methods which were contrary to those customarily followed by scientists, and thus he finds that "the methods of science are not the only way of arriving at truth." Sir Oliver is coming back to the Scriptural standard, by loosening the tie that has bound him to the material realm, and after all the things of spiritual sight are admitted to the realms of knowledge.

The possibility of gaining a knowledge of divine things by methods other than those commonly used by the natural mind is stated by Paul in Romans 8: 16, "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." Latter day revelation reaffirms the Bible teaching that knowledge of things beyond the powers of the natural man are attainable through the manifestation of the Holy Spirit: "To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus is the Son of God."

The knowledge which comes by the Holy Ghost may be of future things as well as past. Job not only knew that his Redeemer lived, but that he would stand at the latter day upon the earth. Paul knew not only that he was a servant of Jesus Christ, but also that there was laid up for him a crown of life. Such a knowledge is real and its acquirement through the Holy Ghost is dependent upon a unity with Christ by obedience to his commandments.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 16.

COMING OF THE NEW PROPHET.

After the martyrdom of June, 1844, the family of Joseph Smith, consisting of his widow Emma, and sons, Joseph aged twelve, Frederick G. W. aged eight, Alexander aged six, and David H. who was born Nov. 18, 1844, after his father's death, removed from Nauvoo for a short time but to return a little later to make Nauvoo their permanent home. It is worthy of notice that this family followed none of the leaders which arose making claims of their own, but rather opposed their surpations, and bringing upon themselves the animosities of such leaders.

When other saints under the power of persecution, left Nauvoo, some going to the West with Brigham Young, some to Michigan with James J. Strang, and others to other parts under various leaders, Emma Smith remained, strange as it may seem, unmolested by those who drove the saints away, and ever stood for the truthfulness of the message borne by her husband to the world. She found a measure of protection in Major Lewis C. Bidamon whom she married in December, 1847, and with whom she lived at Nauvoo until her death in 1879.

Here the sons of Joseph Smith grew up to manhood apart from the influence of any person or faction professing to represent so-called "Mormonism," except their mother who was a woman of noble character and who instilled into their minds the principles taught by their father. These boys labored at farming, carpentering, and other things, played ball, etc., and were respected by the people of the community. Joseph had also entered upon the study of law.

Knowing that he had been designated by his father to be his successor, it was natural that thoughts of what should be his connection with church work, if any, should arise in Joseph's mind. He says, "It was during this summer [1853] and fall that I had the first serious impressions concerning my connection with the work of my father." Several things brought the matter to his attention and on one occasion when recovering from a severe illness, while wondering if he would ever have anything to do with that work, and if so, what it would be, he says, "The room suddenly expanded and passed away. I saw stretched out before me towns, cities, busy marts, courthouses, courts, and assemblies of men, all busy and all marked by those characteristics that are found in the world, where men win place and renown. This stayed before my vision until I had noted clearly that choice of preferment here was offered to him who would enter in, but who did so must go into the busy whirl and be submerged by its din, bustle and confusion. In the subtle transition of a dream I was gazing over a wide expanse of country in a prairie land; no mountains were to be seen, but far as the eye could reach, hill and dale hamlet and village, farm and farmhouse, pleasant cot and homelike places, everywhere betokening thrift, industry, and the pursuits of a happy peace were open to the view. I remarked to him standing by me, but whose presence I had not before noticed, 'This must be the country of a happy people.' To this he replied, 'Which would you prefer, life success and renown among the busy scenes that you first saw, or a place among these people, without honors or renown? Think of it well, for the choice will be offered to you sooner or later, and you must be prepared to decide. Your decision once made you cannot recall it, and must abide the result.' No time was given me for a reply, for as suddenly as it had come, so suddenly had it gone.

While still considering his future work a friend who had never been connected with the church suggested that he go to Utah where by "falling in with the style of things there" he could become the leader, get rich and enjoy himself. In view of his probable connection with the work of his father, and the fact that in Utah was the largest faction including some of the men who were associated with his father, the question naturally arose in his mind "Why not go to Utah?" He remembered the words: "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God," which he resolved to do. He says: "I believed that he who had enabled my father to decide which of all should receive his attention, could, if he would, enable me to decide whether I should, or should not, have anything to do with Mormonism; and if so, what."

This was in the summer of 1856, and soon after he was upon one occasion in a vision. The sun was shining brightly, but above its brightness a cloud of light settled upon and around him so that he stood within its radiance, and in answer to the question which had again been propounded, "Why not go to Utah?" he heard the words clearly and distinctly: "Because the light in which you stand is greater than theirs." "The other question, 'Is polygamy of God?' was as distinctly and definitely answered to me, as was the one referred to above; and the answer was 'No,' and I was directed that I should have nothing to do with it, but was to oppose it."—Church History, Vol. 3, pp. 258, 259.

He was waited upon by delegations from the Reorganized Church in Wisconsin, as well as from some of the factions, but to all he turned a deaf ear, resolving to having nothing to do with any except as he might be directed by the divine hand. But while the Lord was leading the church in Wisconsin giving the elders and saints there his Spirit, with promises that "Young" Joseph would eventually come as their prophet, he was also leading Joseph and preparing him for the important event. The different questions relating to his work were being one by one forced upon his mind and decided, in which way he had taken a firm and definite stand against the claims of the Utah Church. In 1859 his place was definitely pointed out. He says:

"During the year 1859 the question of my connection with my father's work was finally determined. I became satisfied that it was my duty. The queries heretofore referred to were one by one being settled: until the final one, where and with whom should my life-labor lie? was the only one left. This was determined by a similar manifestation to others that I had received to this effect: 'The saints reorganizing at Zarahemla [Wisconsin] and other places, is the only organized portion of the church accepted by me. I have given them my Spirit, and will continue to do so while they remain humble and faithful.'"

This revelation led him to put himself into communication with the elders of the church as reorganized in Zarahemla. Soon after three of the elders, William Marks, Israel L. Rogers, and William W. Blair visited him at Nauvoo, with the result that it was determined that Joseph and his mother should visit the church at its conference to be held at Amboy, Ill., in April of the following spring.

The conference opened April 6, 1860 with Elders Z. H. Gurley and William Marks presiding. Joseph Smith, the son of Joseph Smith the Seer, then in his twenty-eighth year, was introduced to the conference, and in the course of his remarks said: "I came not here of myself, but by the influence of the Spirit. . . . I have come in obedience to a power not my own, and shall be dictated by the power that sent me." At the close of his address he said: "I will come to you if you will receive me, give my ability, and the influence my name may bring, together with what little power I possess; and I trust by your faith and prayers to be sustained. . . . If the same Spirit which prompts my coming, prompts also my reception, I am with you."

He had been baptized when a boy by his father and it required but a vote of the assembly to receive him into fellowship. "On motion of Isaac Sheen it was resolved that Brother Joseph Smith be chosen Prophet, Seer, and Revelator of the church of Jesus Christ, and the successor of his father." This motion being approved he "was then ordained President of the High Priesthood of the Church, under the hands of Elders Z. H. Gurley, Sen. of the Quorum of the Twelve, and William Marks of the High Priests."

In associating himself with this people Joseph Smith found such a class as was shown him in his vision of 1853, for the people of the Reorganized Church have been largely of the peaceful rural communities, having their quiet homes and prosperous occupations. His position has brought him peace and happiness in the good that he has been able to do, and while his name is respected and honored by all who know him, yet the wealth and fame which follow those who enter into the political and business whirl of the world have not come to him, nor has he sought them. But he has had the support and esteem of the many thousands of members of the church over which he has presided, and what is even still more to be desired, he has had the approval of God who directed him toward this work, and who has sustained him in it.

The Spirit of God which was with the church during its period of reorganization has continued with it to the present, and after sixty years of labor and experience the work of those earlier defenders of the faith is seen to have been sound. The principles for which the Reorganized Church has stood, at least relative to its moral and political attitude, have found favor with men of the world, while those held by the Utah body have gone down in dishonor, showing the correctness of the words, "The light in which you stand is greater than theirs."

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Activity is the watchword through all the departments of local church work. The Sunday school in addition to its regular session on Sunday also had its executive meeting and teachers' meeting. The volume of business and labor connected with a school of such proportion as the one here is considerable and requires many meetings besides the school.

The religio is pushing ahead in its work among the young and while not so large as the Sunday school it nevertheless furnishes work for many saints, and at times it is difficult to find sufficient workers to keep up the various departments. Other auxiliaries including the Woman's Auxiliary, the Men's League, and the Laurel Club are also active.

Choir work in preparation for next general conference is being begun. On last Sunday Bro. Albert N. Hoxie was here and collected the choir of Independence and Kansas City for the first united work upon the new music. A new book of anthems has been arranged and published, somewhat easier than those of last year so that the smaller choirs of the church will find them within their reach, and can make the same preparation as the larger choirs. The Holy City, a cantata, will be rendered as a special concert during the conference and work is just now beginning upon it by the Independence and other choirs.

Bro. G. E. Harrington was the morning speaker on Sunday and Bishop C. J. Hunt spoke in the evening, both sermons being spoken of highly. Bro. W. H. Garrett was again out in active participation in the services after having been confined to his home for more than a week with La Grippe.

Pres. Joseph Smith enjoys his frequent walks, being conducted by his son Israel. We overlooked mentioning last week that on the fifth he attended the morning service and occupied a place upon the platform. His voice rang out strong and clear in offering the closing prayer which almost made us seem to be in the years of long ago when he still possessed all the powers of young manhood.

A series of meetings was commenced by Bro. John Zahnd at the Bennington Heights Branch on Sunday the 5th which still continues with good interest.

Bro. C. E. Guinand went to the Market Square prepared to defend the church against the charge of polygamy which a Mr. Harris had promised to bring, but the latter failed to appear. Instead a gentleman attacked the whole Christian religion including the Bible and Bro. Guinand's defense had to be along another unexpected line. He met the issue satisfactorily, though his experience shows how the ministers of the church must needs be prepared for almost any emergency. Bro. Harry Hatley also preached in open air meeting in Kansas City.

Bro. J. C. Foss returned Tuesday from a trip to Maine and other eastern fields where he spent the summer. He has kept active in ministerial work and preached 74 sermons and baptized 7, besides other official labors.

We understand the Central Lumber and Manufacturing Co., formerly the Independence Manufacturing and Mercantile Co., organized some ten or twelve years ago, has closed up business, and the trustee, Mr. C. A. Davis of the Jackson County Bank, appointed some time ago, is offering for sale all the property of the company including lumber, builders' hardware, machinery, drays, horses, etc. This business has not met with the success that was hoped for and the result is to be regretted.

Just as we go to press we are informed of the death of Bro. George Horton. He was about 76 years of age and served for many years as verger of the stone church. He has been in poor health for some time.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

The Sunday school had an attendance of 247, collections $6.42, showing an increase over a week ago.

At the 11 o'clock hour, Bro. M. H. Bond was the speaker, and his thoughts were gathered from the reading of Rev. 14:6,7, where John saw another angel flying through the heavens having the everlasting gospel, etc., also 2 Tim. 1:10 Christ abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. These two passages supported by the sayings of noted men, both ancient and modern, furnished an interesting line of thought.

At the afternoon prayer meeting the hour was well spent, if the report of these present are to be taken as an index.

The 7:30 hour was occupied by Bro. Joseph Luff, and a sermon characteristic of the man was listened to by a large congregation of attentive listeners. The speaker sought to show the necessity of the gospel plan continuing forever with all that appertains thereto, and used very convincing Scriptures, such as could not be gainsaid nor successfully controverted, for eternal truth reinforced the whole argument. The efforts were mentioned of inventors attempting to imitate so nearly that which God had done, yet no improvement could be patented. Nothing to improve the light of the sun, nor moon, for when they were set in the firmament they were set to remain forever, as at first and no change has been made nor is it necessary to make any, just as at the beginning, so is the gospel, as was established and the church organized in the beginning, so it should be today, and if not, then man's attempted improvement is a failure.

Monday night at 7:45, priesthood meeting was held, and Bro. Marcus Shaw was the leading speaker, on the subject of the Order of Enoch. Did the order under its present charter have a right to build and operate industrial and commercial enterprises? A profitable time was had many taking part in the discussion.

W. S. L.

KANSAS CITY, MO., SECOND CHURCH.

The branch under the leadership of Bro. Francis A. Evans seems to be doing nicely. Our meetings are fairly well attended and quite frequently those who are not of our faith meet with us and express themselves as well pleased with what they have heard. Our local ministry have occupied the pulpit the greater part of the time and a great deal of good instruction has been given. Just now we are making preparations for a series of meetings which will begin next Sunday. Bro. W. A. Smith of the missionary force will conduct the meetings and we hope for good results.

Last month Bro. William Hott, one of our young men who has been active in the church work for some time, was ordained to the office of teacher and elected presiding teacher of the branch. Bro. J. J. Emmett spent some time preaching in and around Seligman, Mo. He had good interest and excellent liberty but was compelled to return home on account of the serious illness of Sr. Emmett.

Elder Thomas Newton who for many years was an active worker in this city, is now located in the Isle of Pines, West Indies, where he expects to preach the gospel if possible and at the same time improve his property there.

Quite a few in the branch are sick at present but all have been benefited by the fasting and prayers of the saints and administration of the elders. New evidences of the goodness and mercy of God and truthfulness of the gospel are coming to us frequently for which we try to be thankful. A number of our faithful ones have moved to other branches while many others on account of their employment are prevented from attending the services but some new members have moved near the church, so altogether there is enough to keep the camp fire blazing and we have no cause for complaint.

Mrs. Margaret Cleveland.

1316 Circle Ave. Oct. 13th.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

The Sunday school attendance October 12th was good, all of our teachers being present and only one officer absent. We were pleased to see Sr. H. C. Burgess in charge of her class again after her severe illness. Bro. Rob. Lloyd gave a good talk on the subject of Confessing Christ and his work before men. A duet was nicely rendered by our chorister, Bro. S. R. Burgess and Sr. Etta Swift, our pianist. It was number 128 in Zion's Praises.

Bro. George Reeves was the speaker the morning of Oct. 12th, reading from 2 Corinthians 3rd and a portion of the 4th chapter. His theme was "The At-one-ment of Christ."

The evening speaker was Bro. G. Trowbridge, his subject being "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone."

Bro. Bourgeret of Voshoff, Mo., was in attendance at the Sunday school and morning preaching services October 12th, also Sr. Mildred Peat Buchanan, Sr. Welch with her daughter and niece of Troy, Mo., were welcome among us. Bro. Cooke preached the funeral sermon of her mother, Oct. 5th. A large attendance, many of whom were prejudiced against the work felt better after hearing the thoughts presented.

A quiet peaceful Spirit prevailed at our sacramental service October 5th. Bro. Archibald, Chas. Peat, G. S. Trowbridge and George Reeves presided. Bro. Rob. Lloyd and A. W. Smith passed the sacred emblems.

A very nice program was rendered by the Sunday school October 5th, it being Cradle Roll Sunday. The sweet little babe of Bro. and Sr. Frank Smith was blessed under the hands of Bro. T. J. Elliott and C. J. Best.

Bro. T. J. Elliott was the evening speaker October 5th, his subject was "God's favored children," reading from 9th and 10th chapters of Acts.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

The sacramental services in both branches were very good in spirit and fair in attendance. It was young ladies' day in the city Sunday school and was made interesting by special exercises by them. Variety is a spice that seasons Sunday school work also.

Bro. Hartsborn was the evening speaker in the city and Bro. E. Ingham preached in Oakland at the evening hour.

Bro. Jas. E. Kelley departed Sunday evening last for Los Angeles, after quite a stay in the bay cities. He leaves behind pleasant memories and carries with him the good wishes of all.

In our item concerning the musicale we inadvertently omitted mentioning the musicale quartet, composed of Bro. Frank, Archey and Chesley Severy and Harry Tupper. It was on a par with the others. We beg pardon for the omission.

Bro. Ables of Ogden, Utah, attended our prayer service last night and gave us an interesting talk on the differences between us and the Utah Church. He knows, having had membership in both. Bro. Ables is looking for location in California.

Bro. C. W. Deuel and C. J. Cady have removed their tent from Madera to Sanger, fourteen miles from Fresno. Bro. Stead and Reiste are at Marysville, with what success we have not heard.

Bishop C. A. Parkin is visiting the southern branches of the district in the general interest of the work.

Our Religio enjoyed a rich treat in the reading of the interesting temperance issue of the "Oakland Religian" edited by Sr. Fannie L. Morrison Meehan and illustrated by large paintings by Bro. Harry Tupper and Jacob Williams. Sr. Meehan is a willing and able editor. She was formerly engaged in the "Sunshine Work,"—the daughter of Dr. Morrison of Millersburg, Illinois.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Sept. 20.

The Second Branch is progressing about as usual, though we have lost by death one of our number, Sr. Jennings, a dear, good, faithful saint. We feel comforted by the thought that her reward is sure. She was ever valiant in testimony and attendance, coming to church through heat and cold from a distance of more than one mile, usually walking, which should put some of us younger ones to shame when we make excuses and stay at home because of the weather, for she was 65 years of age. Also our deacon, Bro. Hale met with a bad accident, losing a part of two of his fingers. He is a cabinet maker and at his work the accident occurred.

The tent has been stored away for the season that was being conducted by Bro. Pickering and Pierce. We feel the tent work has not been in vain but great good has been accomplished thereby.

CORRESPONDENCE

ON BOARD THE STEAMER TAHITI, PACIFIC OCEAN.

August 30, 1913.

Dear Ensign:—I have had many requests from sailors who knew I was going to Australia, to write for the church papers occasionally, so shall send you some items from time to time.

After moving back to Independence, from Kirtland, and making some necessary improvements on my little home, bid a reluctant farewell to loved ones and started on my long trip August 15th, arriving at San Francisco, on the afternoon of the 19th, where I was met by Bro. Griffiths and Bro. Walker. I think myself fortunate in making the trip with Bro. Griffiths, he has been a father to me in the gospel for many years, has had large experience in traveling, and in the affairs of the Church of Christ, so I expect to be benefited by the experience of the trip and his association, in turn I hope to be better equipped as a servant for the Master.

So far we have delightful weather, is getting quite rough this morning, but not enough to cause sea sickness in general.

We had the pleasure of spending part of a day at the Irvington, California Reunion, where there was quite a large gathering of happy saints. Many things in California are of interest to an Easterner, but for fear of making this letter too long, shall not try to go into detail. We sailed on the 20th, and it was indeed a pleasure to have Apostles F. M. Sheehy and James E. Kelley, Brethren Wallace Robinson, Anthony, Dammon, Sisters Dammon and daughters, Peterson, and Lillian Tates and daughter there at the pier to bid us God speed, and a couple of the brethren had us take with us something that California got up quite an excitement about around '49. Our friends stayed on the pier, waving until the boat steamed out of sight, so here we are within two days of the Tahiti Island, where we anticipated with great pleasure, meeting Brothers and Sisters Lake, May, Savage and the native saints.

This is my first ocean voyage and everything is novel and interesting to me. As one sits quietly on deck, surrounded by the mighty Pacific, the bigness of the environment suggest big thoughts, and God is seen in the majesty of his power. We have been eleven days on the water, and the only living thing we have seen outside of the ship has been some flying fish, a few sea gulls, and several shark.

There was a sad occurrence on the boat which permitted us to see the latter in the water. On Monday morning right after breakfast, I was sitting on the poop of the deck, at the stern of the ship, with two or three other passengers, when one of them called out, "man overboard," and there, struggling in the water, passing the stern of the ship, was a young man battling for his life. Life buoys were thrown him, but he couldn't reach them. A boat was lowered, and when the ship had slackened her speed, it was sent to the rescue, but after cruising around an hour the young man could not be found. The ship was a mile away from him before it could be stopped sufficiently to place the boat in the water. When last seen, the young man threw up his arms, the seamen said that is when the sharks got him. He was one of the firemen, working his way to his home in Australia, and was temporarily insane. To add to the excitement, one of the third class passengers wanted to jump over after the fireman, which caused the would be rescuer's wife to become hysterical. After the ship had come to a stop the sharks gathered around eating everything the cooks threw in the water. A large tin cracker can was floating around with the other refuse, and a shark made a bite at it, but he didn't like the flavor of that brand of tin so let it go, I was in hopes he would swallow it and have a good healthy case of perpetual indigestion, as I didn't like the looks of those fellows.

Some of the life buoys have a gallon can attached, when the buoy is dropped in the water, the top of the can is pulled off, igniting the fluid in the can, and it will burn for a long time, so at night it can be seen for quite a distance.

This is a sturdy, English ship, with English attendants throughout, and a Welsh captain. The service is perfect, the meals excellent and every effort seems to be made by the authorities and help of the ship to make the passengers comfortable. Seven luncheons and meals are served every day! If you wish, the steward will bring you a light lunch before you arise, then breakfast at 8 o'clock, tea and bread and cakes at 11, but since we have reached the tropics this has been changed to ice cream, luncheon at 1:00, another lunch at 4:00 and dinner at 6:00, and to be sure you retire at peace with all the world's lunch is again served at 9:00. I don't see how some of them can do all this eating. Meat is served three times a day, and many of the passengers eat meat every meal and have these extra lunches besides. There is an excellent article in the current Cosmopolitan apparently demonstrating from scientific evidence, that excessive meat eating shortens the life of an individual by hardening the arteries. Again the word of the Lord in the Word of Wisdom is demonstrated to have been wise counsel.

By reason of ordering our passage away ahead, we obtained an excellent cabin, with outside porthole, in which is placed an air tube, sending fresh air all around the cabin, and in connection with an electric fan which we keep going all the time, thus far we have been quite comfortable.

On Sunday about 2 o'clock, some of the passengers pointed out what I thought was a cloud, they said it was Tahiti. That cloud looked better and better as we approached it, and with the aid of glasses, we could see the mountains looming up, and about 4:30 Papeete was before us, with the mountain and valleys for a background. One mountain is 7500 feet high. The palms, cocoanut trees, green foliage of various kinds were a feast to our eyes, after having nothing but sky and water to look at for twelve days. We discerned Sr. Lake, and Bro. and Sr. May at the wharf, so we called out, "Where is Bro. Lake?" (Sr. Lake having walked away) Bro. May said, "He has left the islands for ever." Then we understood he had died. He is buried on one of the islands some distance from here but he will eventually be brought here. Bro. Lake loved this people and the islands work, and was perfectly reconciled to passing his last days here. Our sister has the sympathy of hundreds of the saints. She has done a wonderful work on these islands, and seems to have a talent for this mission.

Bro. Griffiths' visit here is apparently providential. To get an intelligent, comprehensive conception of the various needs of this peculiar mission, one must be right on the ground. There has not been an Apostle here since the days of Thomas W. Smith.

Bro. and Sr. Savage are away off on one of the islands and are not aware of our presence at Tahiti.

The natives gave us a fine welcome. Their manners and customs have been frequently written by able pens, so shall not go into detailed description. Some of the saints came to the missionary house, to see us right after we arrived. The men are mostly of large stature. The sisters sat on the floor after we had exchanged "urranuaa" with them.

This greeting is also used as a farewell, and means "may you have life." A beautiful greeting and farewell isn't it? In the evening we faced the most unique congregation it has ever been my lot to look upon. Nearly all the natives go barefoot. The men often wear a white coat, with blue or dark trousers, and sometimes the whole suit is white. The women throughout the town wear a kind of mother Hubbard dress, reaching to the ground. When they are walking they catch one side of the dress, near the hips, and lift it sufficiently high to give their feet free play. They do not, as a general thing, wear shoes or stockings. They seem to act with commendable modesty. I had considerable difficulty in getting one of the young sisters to permit me to photograph her. She was very backward. She had two rings on one finger, containing six or seven large pearls.

After they had marched around and greeted us, they sang several pieces. I doubt if it is possible to convey an intelligent conception, by writing, of what their singing is like. They keep excellent time and sing with their whole souls. Bro. May had taken a Bihlhorn organ over to the church, (the natives do not use the organ in their singing), they finally requested us to sing for them. It created quite a sensation when Bro. Griffiths walked to the organ and corded while we sang the Lord's prayer. Bro. and Sr. May and Sr. Lake helped us to sing, and then Bro. Griffiths and I sang another hymn and after we finished there was considerable laughing, (which shows their keen powers of perception).

We are invited out to the "hill" saints Thursday, who are preparing a feast and reception for us. By advice of Bro. May and Sr. Lake, we are going to take a trip around several islands, the farthest one being nearly 500 miles away, where many of the saints are gathered, diving for pearls and shells. The French government only permits them to dive four months a year, this gives the oysters a replenishing period of rest. Only the smaller boats go to these islands, so I suppose we shall have some experiences with sea sickness.

This is a land of benedictions, in many ways. Haven't seen a fly since I landed! They don't raise them!

I preached my first regular sermon to the natives this (Wednesday) morning to a good congregation. Used the blackboard to illustrate my talk, Bro. May interpreting. They very readily got the points from the illustrations. We then went to the ocean, where Bro. Griffiths baptized a girl. There are three or four more candidates ready. The natives consider it a great honor to be baptized by an apostle, those who were baptized by Thomas W. Smith lay great stress on that event. After the baptism we were asked to go to the church, where the natives had assembled. Elder Kehauri, in an address, presented us each with an envelope, which contained funds to assist us in our missionary labors. One of the brethren was just in to see us and gave us a necklace of very small shells and a dollar each. In the presentation ceremony, as in fact in all their services, they use considerable tact and conduct themselves in a very dignified way.

The missionary house stands on property embracing about four acres. A wall about three and one-half feet above the ground, is being placed around the property to protect the buildings against a repetition of the "waves heaving themselves beyond their bounds." The wall is almost completed. It is being built of coral stone laid in cement. Men and women go out in a scow and dive for the rock, so that wall represents considerable labor, and would be quite a curiosity in America. A "duq-out" canoe is used as a mortar box to mix the cement in.

Everywhere you see the primitive and the modern side by side, and often there are startling contrasts of the past and the present. It is a common sight to see barefoot women and girls riding bicycles. The church has electric light in it, and the latest Mazda lamps are used. The missionary house has running water, as the town has water works. There is a moving picture show well patronized. Working around the modern ice plant you see natives in under shirts and a flaming red and white sheet wrapped around the lower part of their bodies.

The reason the women wear their dresses so long is they are sensitive about their bare feet, and use this method of hiding them.

We just returned from the ocean again, which is a couple of minutes walk from the house. Bro. Griffiths baptized three and the writer also led three precious young people into the watery grave. We took our time in taking them out of the water and were not particular how deep we plunged them as they are right at home there and there is no spluttering and choking after they come up out of the water.

Thursday afternoon. We just returned from visiting the "hill" saints. This branch of saints lives in a regular paradise. I doubt if many millionaires in the states have such gorgeous environments. The foliage looks as if it had the Lord's special attention in creation, an island about ten miles away, rises up out of the sea and pushes its head into the silvery clouds, and then the eye is greeted with the awe inspiring sight of the mighty Pacific, and as a final benediction to this Eden, it is blessed with perpetual spring! The saints sent an automobile for us and sent us back in it. Here is the menu, (the leader of the branch being the chef prepared): Poi, the native dish, is fine fish, lobster, chicken stew, fried chicken with curry sauce dressing, roast beef, fried eggs, sauer kraut, lettuce, onions, tomatoes, oranges, bananas and napkins. As a drink, there was a goblet at each plate in which there was a young cocoanut. The top had been neatly cut out in such a way as to make a lid with a hinge. You raised this and drank the water right out of the shell.

When you open the shell the water shoots out, it is packed in so tight! It is the Lord's gift of drink to the natives and you can be sure there are not 100,000,000 microbes travelling down your throat as you are taking a drink.

It is simply just wonderful how many uses to which the natives put the cocoanut tree and its fruit. The leaves can be used to build a house, roof and all, and the raw doesn't leak through either. The roof is braided. Men and women wear hats from the leaves. The cocoanut shell makes an excellent charcoal, which is put in an iron made for that purpose, and that is how they iron their clothes. They squat or sit washing and ironing. They claim that because of this habit of squatting, motherhood has no terrors for them.

After we arrived at the "hill" saints' church, as we entered the waiting congregation stood up until we had reached the pulpit, then they sang several pieces. One hymn was to the tune of "God be with you till we meet again." But most of their singing is to music of their own composition, and they are gifted along musical lines. They don't have solo, duet, trio or quartet singing, it is all congregational. Most of the singing I have heard, it seems to me it takes a whole congregation to do the singing as there seems to be so many parts to it.

After the singing was over the leader, in a decidedly appropriate speech, well expressed, presented us each with money and a hand made hat. Bro. Griffiths fit, but mine was too large, so the girl who made mine lined it neatly. We spent the larger part of the day with them and it was a unique and wonderfully interesting experience. They have great reverence for an apostle, and there are conditions here which I believe Bro. Griffiths will be able to change, because of the respect they have for his high office.

Bro. May is a very busy man. He gets out a monthly paper, doing the translating, type setting and press work; gets out the Religio and Sunday school Quarterlies, and other incidental printing. Attends to the various pastor's duties, and is a friend in need to the natives, and was certainly benedicted in being able to adapt himself to conditions here. That Lamoni girl of his is a decidedly competent helpmate, and as I look at them, thousands of miles away from home, here over four years, giving the best part of their lives to these natives so they can have the gospel, I contrast their sacrificing lives to the thousands and thousands of families who live narrow, selfish lives, and feel to rejoice that my lot has been cast with the people of God.

Sr. Lake has a natural talent for such a mission as this, and speaks the language fluently, and like Bro. May has very little difficulty in interpreting rapidly from the English to the Tahitian. They say Bro. Savage is especially gifted in interpreting. We may sometimes wonder just how much inspiration the appointing authorities have in sending men to their several missions, but when I see the work and the apparently natural talent so largely developed, of Bro. and Sr. May, Sr. Lake, and Bro. and Sr. Savage, it is clearly apparent that they were just the young people for this very difficult mission. But how did the appointing powers know that?

It will be impossible to write very often to the various personal friends and the many saints of our acquaintance, but that they are in our mind many times, and I hope the time will come again when old acquaintances may be renewed.

Now, dear readers of the ENSIGN, until I write again, I bid you "urranuaa."

Sincerely,

C. Edward Miller.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Bro. W. H. Kelley, 210 W. 4th South Street, Provo, Utah. I have made the acquaintance of quite a few fine people, and am as busy as can be at my work. I am getting along very nicely and have baptized three fine people, and think I will get more.

J. W. Booker, McKenzie, Ala. I saw Bro. Gibb's letter in the ENSIGN as to how to help pay off the church debt, and find it a good way. I have sent to Bro. E. L. Kelley $4.00 for myself, wife, son, and daughter, and I consider that I am one among the poorest of saints, but I feel it the duty of all of God's children to help bear the burden. I ask your prayers that I may overcome the trials of life.

Miss Sarah Doty, Booher, Mo. I have been a member of the church but a short time but am striving to do my duty. Our church here seemed dead until about a month ago when Bro. Dubose and McFadden came and held two weeks' meeting, after which we organized a Sunday school, and are having preaching also. Bro. Dubose baptized three, my sister, myself, and Miss Lolo Anderson, my cousin. May the Lord bless these brethren that they may bring light to others.

Elder E. Rannie, Missouri Valley, Iowa, Reunion. Elder Reuben Taylor and his wife, and a friend, Miss Lula Bearshield, who are Lamanites of the Cheyenne Tribe in attendance from Oklahoma, chaperoned by Elder Hubert Case and family, attracted considerable attention. Bro. Taylor spoke about fifteen minutes each day at some of the meetings telling his hearers something of interest of religious life among the Indians, and some of his talks were of the traditions among them. There is one tradition of a great famine, that the Great Spirit brought upon them because of their wickedness. It lasted four years and then they told a great prophet that if he would ask the Great Spirit to stop the famine they would repent and stop doing wickedly. Read Helaman 4:1-25, Authorized Version of the Book of Mormon—an account of a very similar occurrence. Another one was that a Messiah came among them and gathered the little children and their parents together and told them they must not scold or whip their children; he said the Indians never whip their children. While he told of his own little children, who had died, his strong frame shook with emotion, showing that though they were counted as savages, his soul was susceptible of the finer things of life, and he said he had never scolded or whipped his children. Miss Lula Bearshield entered into the games with the young white people and though she was timid she soon caught the spirit of "three deep" and enjoyed it as intensely as the others.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE ORIGIN AND CAUSE OF CHURCHES.

F. J. EBELING.

On September 21, 1823, Joseph Smith said he received another visit from a heavenly messenger. "He called me by name, and said unto me he was a messenger sent from the presence of God, to me and that his name was Moroni. That God had a work for me to do, and that my name should be had for good and evil, among all nations, kindreds, and tongues; or that it should be both good and evil spoken of among all people. He said there was a book deposited written upon gold plates, giving an account of the former inhabitants of this continent."—Church History Vol. 1, pages 11 and 12.

This visit carries with it its own evidence of truth or falsity. Because in it are several predictions that only time and condition could verify. Here was a young, unsophisticated boy in the back woods of western New York, absolutely unknown outside of the little village in which he lived, tersely declaring that his name should be known among all nations, kindreds, and tongues. It should be spoken of for both good and evil. If the name of Joseph Smith was only locally known we would need no better proof of the deception of this angel's visit, but since his name is known for good and evil among all nations, it must take its place among the divine revelations. Would a boy of fifteen ever think of making such a prediction with the least hope of it being fulfilled by natural efforts? No other man, however, great and well known he afterwards became, ever made such prediction. Surely God must have been behind this prediction. Every nation under the sun today testifies to the truthfulness of the prediction; for they have all heard the name of Joseph Smith either for good or evil; mostly the latter.

On the same visit the angel told him there was hid in the earth gold plates which contained the fullness of the everlasting gospel as delivered by the Savior to the ancient inhabitants.

Had Mr. Smith failed to have gotten a record of any kind at the place designated, or had he gotten a record that did not agree with the gospel Christ delivered to the ancients, we would be perfectly justified in rejecting it as a fraud and deception. But when such a record was found at the very place, and contained the very things the messenger told him, it is worthy of serious consideration. It is not left entirely to the believers in this record to verify the statements. After the record above referred to was translated, containing the record of God's dealing with the people of this continent, telling how Christ came here after his death in Jerusalem, and gave them the same gospel he gave the people on the old continent, scientific men of the world, who have no sympathy with Latter Day Saints inform us that the gospel of Jesus Christ was known to the ancient inhabitants of America.

Prescott says: "The Peruvians, like so many of the other Indian races, acknowledged a Supreme Being, the Creator and Ruler of the universe, whom they adored."—Conquest of Peru, Vol. 1, page 108.

J. D. Baldwin: "The cross is one of the most common emblems present in all the ruins. This led the Catholic missionaries to assume that knowledge of Christianity had been brought to that part of America long before their arrival. And they adopted the belief that the gospel was preached there by Saint Thomas."—Ancient America, p. 109.

Donnelley says: "When the Spanish missionaries first set foot upon the soil of America in the fifteenth century, they were amazed to find the cross was as devotedly worshipped by the red Indians as by themselves, and were in doubt whether to ascribe the fact to the pious labors of Saint Thomas or to the cunning devices of the evil one. The hallowed symbol challenged their attention on every hand."—Atlantis, pp. 319, 320.

Josiah Priest says: "On the breast of this person lay what had been a piece of copper in the form of a cross. The cross on the breast of the skeleton excites the most surprise, as the cross is the emblem of the Christian religion."—American Antiquities, p. 186, Edifica 1833.

H. H. Bancroft: "In a tablet on the wall of a room at Palenque is a cross surmounted by a bird. . . . One of the most remarkable emblems of Maya worship in the estimation of the conquerors, was the cross, which has also been noticed in other parts of Central America and in Mexico."—Native Races, Vol. 3, pp. 135, 467, 468.

Prescott says: "Among the traditions of importance is one of the deluge, which they held in common with so many of the nations in all parts of the globe. . . . Resurrection of the body, which they held to preserve the body with so much solicitude."—Conquest of Peru, Vol. 1, pp. 106, 107.

Donnelley says: "Peruvians believed in the immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body, and they too preserved the bodies of their dead by embalming them."—Atlantis, pp. 144-179.

Baldwin says: "The tradition on both sides of the Atlantic are without meaning unless it be admitted that there was communication between the two continents in times of which we have no history."—Ancient America, p. 186.

DeKoo says: "Baptism was in the Mexican empire of religious ceremony, which in Yucatan was called Zibil; signifying to be born again; and the Nahua nations freely admitted that it would cleanse the soul from all sin."—History of America Before Columbus, Vol. 1, p. 467.

"The Indians have a religion all their own, of which few white people are aware. I think the majority of the Indians have not departed very far from the old beliefs, even though most of them are members of Christian churches. There is much that is beautiful in the so-called pagan religion. In fact among some of the more highly developed tribes there appears to be little difference between the teachings of the Indian divinity and those of Christ. One is tempted, upon intimate knowledge of some of the old people to wonder whether the Son of Man appeared to the Indians also, or whether the gospel preached to them by some unrecorded Paul, generations ago, was forgotten. The more one knows of the Indian as he really is, not as he appears to the tourist, the teacher, or the preacher, the more he wonders. The remnant of knowledge that the Red Brother has is an inheritance from a people of higher thought than we have usually based our speculation upon."—Clara D. True, who was an Indian agent for years in Banning, Southern Calif. Taken from the Outlook, June 5, 1909.

Many authorities might be quoted showing that the Ancient Americans of whom the red man is a descendent, had a perfect knowledge of the teachings of Jesus Christ. All through American tradition there appears the Culture—Hero, known by such names as Quetzalcoatl, Membozho, Viracocha and Joskeha. All are said to have been born of a virgin.

From whence came all those correct ideas of gospel. Immortality, baptism, resurrection of the dead, the new birth, the trinity, virgin birth of the Savior, etc. The Book of Mormon is the only record ever attempted to account for all these. All these learned men testify to the truth of what the angel told Joseph Smith, that the record he was about to receive, contained a fullness of the gospel. This and the fact that his name is known in all nations are sufficient to establish the divinity of his call.

We will now inquire into the ordination of Joseph Smith and see how it compares with those before him who started churches. The following account is given in his own words:

"While we were thus employed, praying, and calling upon the Lord, a messenger from heaven descended in a cloud of light, and having laid his hands upon us, he ordained us, saying unto us, Upon you, my fellow-servants, in the name of Messiah, I confer the priesthood of Aaron, which holds the keys of the ministering of angels, and of the gospel of repentance, and of baptism by immersion, for the remission of sins; . . . and he commanded us to go and be baptized, and gave us directions that I should baptize Oliver Cowdery, and afterwards that he should baptize me. Accordingly we went and were baptized, I baptized him first, and afterwards he baptized me, after which I laid my hands upon his head and ordained him to the Aaronic priesthood, and afterwards he laid his hands on me and ordained me to the same priesthood, for so we were commanded. The messenger who visited us on this occasion, and conferred this priesthood upon us, said that his name was John, the same that is called John the Baptist, in the New Testament, and that he acted under the direction of Peter, James, and John, who held the keys of the priesthood of Melchisedec, which priesthood he said should in due time be conferred upon us—and that I should be called the first elder, and he the second. It was on the 15th day of May, 1829, that we were baptized and ordained under the hand of the messenger. . . . For we had not long been engaged in solemn and fervent prayer when the word of the Lord came unto us in the chamber, (Father Whitmer's house,) commanding us that I should ordain Oliver Cowdery to be an elder in the Church of Jesus Christ, and that he also should ordain me to the same office, and then to ordain others as it should be made known unto us, from time to time; we were, however, commanded to defer this our ordination until such time as it should be practicable to have our brethren, who had been and should be baptized, assembled together, when we must have their sanction to our thus proceeding to ordain each other, and have them decide by vote whether they were willing to accept us as spiritual teachers, or not, when also we were commanded to bless bread and break it with them, and to take wine, bless it, and drink it with them, afterwards proceed to ordain each other according to commandment, then call out such men as the Spirit should dictate, and ordain them, and then attend to the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost upon all those whom we had previously baptized, doing all things in the name of the Lord."—Church History, vol. 1, pp. 34, 35, 36, 60, 61.

It will be noticed that Joseph was praying and calling upon the Lord. And while thus praying the angel of the Lord appeared and ordained him and Oliver Cowdery, and then gave command to baptize each other. A more direct, and divine call could not be looked for. Nothing bearing the least resemblance can be found in any of their former.

How much more consistent was the baptism of Joseph Smith than that of Alexander Campbell, whose only baptism was by Mathew Luce, a Baptist. Mr. Campbell was never baptized for the remission of sins, although he practically started a new church upon the proposition that baptism was for the remission of sins.

How much more consistent the ordination of Joseph Smith than those whose only ordination was by self constructed authorities, as for example, Asbury is ordained by Cook, Cook by Wesley, Wesley by Bishop of Canterbury, who got his, if any at all, from the Pope. Remember what Jesus said, "Whosoever receiveth him whom I send receiveth me." If a congregation sends a preacher, you go no higher than that which sends him. Joseph Smith makes the positive claim that he was sent by Jesus Christ, hence if true, by receiving him you receive Christ who sent him. You can see dear reader, by this time there is a great deal of importance attached to the character of the one sending. Full salvation hinges upon a divine call of him who is leading you to the kingdom of God. Be sure and examine his call, for it may be you will be receiving one who is only sent by a congregation, conference, or synod, and consequently can go no higher.

The minute a preacher denies present revelation he acknowledges he is not called of God. There is never any man called to preach the gospel when there is no divine revelation. If the absence of divine and present revelation, all those posing as the church of God are man made, because God can never establish a church without revelation. If God has not spoken from the heaven since the time of John the Revelator, then there has not been a God-called preacher since the time of John the Revelator. Every time a man was called to the ministry in the days of the Apostles a revelation was given; as you will see in Acts 13:2-3, 20:28; Luke 10:1,2; Heb. 5:4-6; Num. 27:10-20.

On the sixth of April 1830 the church was organized, by the divinely appointed and divinely baptized believers. Those men were not seceders, apostles, factionists, come-outers, or man-ordained preachers who had quarrelled and separated from some other man-made organization, but honest, humble men who had been scripturally called of God, met to perform the important and sacred task of organizing the church of God on earth. Let those men tell it themselves, and you will notice that for all these events they give time and place.

"In this manner did the Lord continue to give us instructions from time to time, concerning the duties which now devolved upon us, and among many other things of the kind, we obtained of him the following, by the Spirit of prophecy and revelation; which not only gave us much information, but also pointed out to us the precise day upon which, according to his will and commandments we should proceed to organize his church once again here upon the earth: The rise of the Church of Christ in these last days, being one thousand eight hundred and thirty years since the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in the flesh, it being regularly organized and established agreeably to the laws of our country, by the will and commandments of God in the fourth month, and on the sixth day of the month which is called April, which commandments were given to Joseph Smith, jr., who was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the first elder of this church; and to Oliver Cowdery, who was also called of God an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the second elder of this church, and ordained under his hands; and this according to the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to whom be all the glory both now and for ever. Amen. . . . Accordingly we met together for that purpose, at the house of the above mentioned Mr. Whitmer (being six in number) on Tuesday, the 6th day of April, A. D. 1830. Having opened the meeting by solemn prayer to our heavenly Father we proceeded (according to previous commandment) to call on our brethren to know whether they accepted us as their teachers in the things of the kingdom of God and whether they were satisfied that we should proceed and be organized as a church according to said commandment which we had received." To these they consented by a unanimous vote. I then laid my hands upon Oliver Cowdery and ordained him an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, after which he ordained me also to the office of an elder of said church. We then took bread, blessed it and brake it with them, also wine, blessed it, and drank it with them. We then laid our hands on each individual member of the church present that they might receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, and be confirmed members of the Church of Christ. The Holy Ghost was poured out upon us to a very great degree. Some prophesied, whilst all praised the Lord and rejoiced exceedingly."—Church History, vol. 1, pp. 67, 68, 76, 77.

Now dear readers, you have the church as established by divine command in striking contrast with those started by man's notion. Which do you prefer? That which lays claim to God's authority re-established in the last days or those who claim no authority other than that which has come from Rome? A church claiming to have blessed communication with its head (Christ) or the ones that believe the heavens have been sealed for over 2000 years? A church begun by God answering the humble prayer of one who was seeking light upon the all important subject, or one started by the councils and contentions of uninspired men? A church whose ministers are called as in the days of the apostles, or one whose ministers are called by a congregation? A church whose first human instrument was ordained by the angel's hands, or one who was ordained by self made preachers? A church which has all the officers mentioned in the New Testament, viz. apostles, prophets, high priests, seventies, bishops, elders, teachers and deacons, or a church with only elders, deacons and bishops, and then making no claim to having been called as was Aaron, as found in Heb. 5:4. A church teaching all the principles as found in Heb. 6, or one which only teaches half of them. A church that holds but to you the happy privilege of the gifts of the Spirit as found in 1 Cor. 12, Mark 16, and James 5, or one which denies to you all these? A church which promises a knowledge of the gospel it teaches as promised by Jesus Christ in John 7:17, or one which says you must take the preachers word "for he is educated?"

The two are before you choose ye which you prefer. In case of doubt take the safe side and the safest side is surely on the side which claims God for the cause of his work. The safest side is surely the side which has back of it the Bible authority.

If the rest of the world can be saved by and through man made institutions, we can too, but if salvation only comes through a divinely appointed church, we will be saved, and they will be disappointed.

THE OBJECT OF TRUE RELIGION.

Religion is defined by Webster as: "An acknowledgment of our obligations to God; practical piety, any system of faith and worship." As such it should become a power, a factor in moulding the lives of men, and preparing them for this life and its usages. Too frequently we lose sight of the real vital issue and cling to mere shadows, but it occurs to the writer that if we will but exercise the faculties with which we have been endowed, we may at least place religion on an intelligent basis; and since it is primarily an acknowledgment of our obligations to God, our conception of Deity must figure largely in our acceptance and promulgation of religious ideas.

Too frequently people think of religion as being a something to fit them for heaven, and lose sight entirely of the fact that it is to fit them for earth; and we have been inclined to suppose that religion was a kind of segregating process by which a certain choice few were to be removed, separated, and freed from association with, and contamination of others, this of course is faulty at best, for the first obligation we owe to God is to keep ourselves pure, not by segregation but by association, and in keeping ourselves pure we may be able to assist others in becoming purified.

The real object of religion as we see it is to serve as a working force in the heart and mind of man, to become an educator to him, conserving his interests and developing his faculties, not a part of them, but all. Religion should be a normal and not an abnormal condition, it was intended by its author to develop man completely, and properly poise his life, that in all things he might have the proper balance.

First of all we should give us a proper conception of Deity, because if we have a vague conception of God we will also have a vague religion. We need not concern ourselves about the bodily form of God as to what he would look like if we were to see him in person, but we should concern ourselves about the nature of his attributes, his character. Wisdom, power, light, goodness, virtue, justice, mercy and love should always be associated with our conception of him, and our first obligation is to correspond with him: hence to correspond with these attributes of God—to the foregoing we might add truth, gentleness, kindness, forbearance, fidelity, patience, endurance and sincerity, and to properly acknowledge our obligation to God is to weave these virtues into our lives, and reflect them in our characters. To this end religion should work since this is its object to transmute our bases materials animality and selfishness into altruistic love, thus not only growing, but ripening a character that will correspond with God in all its parts.

Religion then is not merely a Sunday institution, it is an every day life; it is not a theory, it is a reality; it is not an argument, it is a vitality. Jesus did not say I am the great debater; he said: "I am the way, the Truth and the Life." He also said: "The works that I do, shall ye do also." What was the particular work he did? Let us for a moment examine it, he presented to the world a properly poised life, a perfect character, and after making it an offering for man, raised it triumphant, complete, victorious out of the elements of corruption and transplanted it into the heaven of heavens purified and cleansed.

Now since this is the work he did, and since he hath said: "Because I live ye shall live also," I hold that our religion must become a working force, gradually leading us into the footprints of the divine Master, thus enabling us to poise and perfect our character and lift it out of the elements of corruption, presenting it to God to be purified and cleansed or it is nothing.

When we learn that conventionality is of but little worth when compared with living, we are then in a fair way of self abnegation, and when self is crucified the immortal Christ in all his resplendent glory begins to live in us. Religion is intended then to be the cause that shall produce this desired effect in us, and enable us to correspond with God in character while here on earth, and that prayer might be realized: "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." What shall the harvest be? The Christ has said, "Bless and curse not."

My religion should make my entire life a blessing, if therefore it is not a blessing I am not fulfilling my obligations to God, for the prime object of the religion of Jesus Christ is to make my life a benediction unto all with whom I come in contact in life. If we consider religion from this thesis, life will assume a new aspect, the universe will become simpler, and the mysteries will be dissolved, and with a perfect vision will we behold the alpha and the omega of life, finding it centralized in the attributes of God revealed in the stainless Christ.

"LOVERS OF PLEASURE."

The Apostle Paul in his second letter to Timothy prophetically tells of a time when certain conditions should prevail. The only way in which to tell when that time shall have come is when things transpiring shall be in exact harmony with what the Apostle predicted. One of the conditions mentioned in connection with other things is that people should be "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." (2 Tim. 3:4.)

How is it today? Take a ride on a street car during the summer season in a large city. The throngs you see are almost entirely on pleasure bent.

You see hundreds of automobiles going hither and thither in their mad race—the occupants pleasure-seeking. Do they love God? Do they even think of him? The street cars are filled with pleasure seekers. Parks are illumined and filled with amusements of the most thrilling nature—the nearer the danger line the better. Moving picture shows are in such demand that they not only exist in the down town districts, but are scattered throughout the residence districts as well—all for "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." Go down town in the afternoon and you behold throngs going to the matinee—all pleasure bound. The same is continued in the evening when theaters are crowded with "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." Theaters of course have existed for many years, but their attendance has been greatly accentuated through the mad delirium that has taken possession of the people. In an article on sexual vice Prof. Hugo Muensterberg of Harvard University said: "A desire for the satisfaction of the senses, a longing for amusements, has become predominant in thousand fold shades from the refined to the vulgar."

The apostle said this condition should prevail in the "last days." Twenty years ago the conditions were quite different. In connection with this the Apostle says that "men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholly, without natural affection," etc. Do not these conditions prevail to an alarming extent, as well as the first one mentioned? Is not the Apostle's prediction being literally fulfilled?

A VACATION TRIP DOWN THE TIGRIS.

In a palace of one of the Assyrian kings was found a slab sculptured with a picture of the Tigris River. On the river is a goatskin raft or kelek. The picture is 2,500 years old, but it might have been made yesterday. Though perhaps you may study the river better by riding along the shore, the more common and cheaper method of travel is by raft. At Diarbekir you will purchase about two hundred and fifty goatskins, inflate them and bind them firmly together. Upon the goatskins are laid long slim poles of mulberry trees, and upon them a little house of reed mats or of skins is built. Then you float down with the current.

Somewhat down the stream you find the Yezidis, living sometimes in huts, but more commonly in black tents like those of the Arabs of the plain. Of all the peculiar peoples of Turkey, they are the most peculiar, or the least understood. It is said that they worship the devil instead of God; they respect Satan as a deity whose power for good or evil is very great, and therefore they will never mention his name.

No less interesting are the ruins along the way. Occasionally upon a rock is an Assyrian inscription or sculpture. Ruins of old churches, are perched on the mountain sides. Great arches of early Roman bridges span the rivers. Large mosques and khans, now fallen, tell of Seljukian days. The first large town down the river is Djezrieh. Its houses are of stone; its old city walls and carved gateways and ruined bridges are evidences of its great age.

Still a few days down the river, out of the mountains and into the plain, we come to Assyria. Villages along the shores appear more frequently. There are vineyards and fields of melons. Sometimes crowds of natives collect along the shore to rob the passers-by, or if the raft is beyond their reach they fire their long guns at it, rather to frighten the passengers than to kill. But it is from these people that you obtain your food. For eggs you pay about four cents a dozen. For the same price you obtain several pounds of delicious grapes, larger than any I have seen in the markets at home, and of an excellent flavor, or a sweet watermelon. Bread, in flat thin loaves, is sold by weight, and leben, or curded milk, may be had in abundance. Whenever a shepherd drives his flock to the river to drink, he will supply you with the rich sheep milk, all you can drink, for a trifling sum. The food along the way is cheap and good. Four days more and the raft brings you to Bagdad, as far as it will go. Farther south the river is sluggish and it so slowly winds its way over the level Babylonian plain that the journey to the Persian Gulf would be difficult. Here the raft is broken up; the poles are sold to builders for roofing purposes; the goatskins are deflated and carried back up the river to be used again.—Christiq Herald.

GOLD.

CLERIN ZUNWALT.

Gold, gold, gold,
Down in the gloom of the mine;
They toil and delve in the mountain side
They climb where the Arctic snows abide,
They crush and smelt and refine.

Gold, gold, gold,
In the looming giants of steel;
In the factories din with their roar and jar,
Where the weary and sweating workers are
And lives are crushed in the wheel.

Gold, gold, gold,
By a dim and dusty light;
And tired children with weary eyes
Tie threads, where the hungry shuttle flies
And forms grow cold in the night.

Gold, gold, gold,
In the scarlet places of sin;
The sweetest faces grow bitter and cold
As they sell their Eden for shekels of gold
And poison the soil within.

Gold, gold, gold,
In twenties and tens and fives;
The life of the boy was melted there
With his merry eyes and waving hair,
O, the ruin of human lives.

—The Christian Evangelist.

THE ROUND TABLE.

The following question was referred to Bishop Bullard, one of the directors of the United Order of Enoch, by whom it is answered.

Are the working principles of the United Order of Enoch co-operative or competitive?

The United Order of Enoch as outlined in sections 77, 81, 101, in Doctrine and Covenants, clearly upholds the co-operative system in all their work. The principle purpose of the Order is to bring about and to establish equality among its members.

It is an organized order or firm, to do business; the very term organization, "the uniting together of a body of people to become systematically arranged, to unite in a body," can admit of but one interpretation, that of co-operation.

To bring about equality there must be unity of action—a system of uniting together all the working forces of the order to bring about this purpose and end. There can be no competitive system in an organization; one disqualifying another for business in his endeavor to make a better showing than another by aggressive means. Whatever the business may be, grocery, dry goods, hardware, a wollen mill or a machine shop, the purpose and aim is the same; to establish and maintain a storehouse. Each in his business or stewardship, for the interests of the United Order, makes the proprietor of the several branches of business or industries a steward to render yearly an account to the order, showing the gain or loss as the case may be; and all above his and his family's just wants and needs is to be cast into the treasury for the benefit of the poor and needy.

The competitive system encourages the principle of selfishness; an attitude of "I swim if you sink," "I must make good if you go under;" This can be no part of the order, all must have an equal opportunity; all must work for the good of the other, and this can only be successful as all co-operate under the law of Christ the Master as he has given to us "As ye would that men should do unto you do ye even so to them."

The carrying out of the purposes of God as ordained in the establishing of this order, will be making preparation for the higher school of progression in which we become possessors of heavenly things; and if we are not willing to uphold the law of God in practice, which will bring about and perpetuate equality; the heavenly possessions can never be obtained, for equality is the main feature of the order and of the celestial law, that we may enjoy the celestial glory, see Sec. 77:1 also Sec. 81:2. "I the Lord am bound when ye do what I say, but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise." What he had said is "if ye are not equal in earthly things; ye cannot be equal in attaining heavenly things; you must prepare yourselves by doing the things which I have commanded you and required of you," Sec. 77.

"The broken covenant through transgression, covetousness and feigned words" was the cause of the order being dissolved under Enoch as per Sec. 101 par 9, and the introduction of these evils would again bring the order to confusion, and its ultimate disorganization. All must co-operate and act in unison and this according to the plan set out in the revelations.

The Articles of Association and bylaws of the United Order of Enoch; use the words Corporation, Organization, and Association interchangeably. Corporation—to form into a body—a body politic or corporate, authorized by law to act as a single person. A society having the capacity of transacting business, etc. Webster. These names all imply a body of people working together for one purpose as agents or members of one firm, co-operating under one head.

In the Order as now organized there are no stewardships, and we do not know just when we will be far enough along for the work of the Order in this direction to commence, so at present we cannot point out the success or failure of the Order along the line of its great purpose.

The support thus far received has not as yet given the order an opportunity to launch out into business as purposed by its author, we have not as yet even a peanut stand to grant as a stewardship. We are struggling to clear the Order of debt, and we have made some commendable advancement along this line this year; but the saints in general have not yet begun to give it the support it should receive, little in the way of donations are coming in, hence the delay in getting down to real business. Come along with your money and let us co-operate.

A MOTHER'S PROBLEM.

In our last Auxiliary meeting, a mother asked advice concerning her young daughter, who had no taste whatever for sewing, and absolutely no desire to learn the art. Shall she insist on the girl learning, when she so dearly loves to spend all her time with her music and studies? This is her problem.

We all of us have and have had ways in which we prefer to spend our time, but many thanks to our training or the hard knocks of experience find we must learn to love "duty before pleasure."

This problem is the one mothers have to meet who have not "begun in time." It is most necessary for girls to know how to sew, to have this training from the first desire as a baby to "sew too."

Mothers say, "I haven't time to sit down and teach my girl to sew." Your time may average two hours a month for the first two or three years. Then you will find she can sew on buttons for you. She can sew a straight seam and then use small stitches; that means quilt blocks and very little of your time, and a contented child. Making of doll dresses is always considered play, of course, but it is the finest chance for training strong sewing and neatness.

When I was thirteen years I did the family stocking darned well, I am told!

A mother may not have time to teach a child to make a real dress or do complicated sewing. Nor will the child have time to learn, when attending school, but there are many ways including fancy work, in which it should be taught the use of the needle, and then the more detailed work of cutting and fitting and finishing will not prove so arduous when the girl finds opportunity for it, (if she is not naturally gifted as some I know who at sixteen and eighteen make their own clothes well.)

The more extensive training should be planned for vacations, working up gradually to making of plain articles and use of sewing machine; finally to a course in sewing if possible before she marries.

Before this she will naturally want to make nicer things, but that work comes handier when she has become proficient in making of pillow slips towels, aprons, under skirts, patching, darning. A girl of sixteen should do all these things well and girls used to do them well, when still younger.

What a boon to a mother, she whose task of stitches for one and then the other is never ending.

No child should be allowed to spend its time completely as it wills for this custom works hardship on its own disposition, (since it will lack the ability to stand up under the trials and disappointments sure to come through life.) So in time others will feel the effects of selfishness and an inconsiderate, thoughtless nature.

Sewing is not the only thing this mother should think seriously concerning. Let a child begin soon as it can understand, to have its own little work. My boy of six knows he must dust the table legs, fill up the coal bucket for me, so I can get it when I want it. He picks up his play things. (Sometimes I've heard him say, "Let's not play that; it's too much stuff to clean up!") He moves certain articles and cleans behind them for me, wipes the dishes splendidly; and puts his clothes where they belong, straightened according to his ability of course. Oftentimes reminders are necessary, but perfection is not reached in a day. Make the best of the few years the children are ours at home. They are short compared to the allotted life time.

And as my small daughter grows she shall be taught to put every thing in its place, do dishes, to make beds, to keep pantry shelves and dresser and cupboard drawers straight, to put on clean shelf papers neatly, to dust, to wash the kitchen floor, clean lamp chimneys, (if such are used,) to do plain cooking (including preparation of foods for cooking), and numerous other odds. This may seem like overdoing it to some mothers, and the daughters no doubt consider that such advice is heartless.

These tasks do not all come every day. They are light work, but nevertheless, the very essentials of good housekeeping; and to helping girls to properly estimate the value of home and mother.

Of course, to suddenly begin and make a girl in her eighth grade or an older one, do these things, the mother will have trouble. The only way to avoid it is to train the child from babyhood and then the habits are formed, and whatever dissatisfaction the child may (or rather, will) experience at times, is easier to overcome.

A girl can perform all of these tasks daily, weekly or monthly, as is necessary, and have plenty of time for recreation, play, or favorite pastime.

A mother must consider herself, as well as the child's future, when she trains it. It is given her to be a comfort and a blessing.

The task of training is made much harder for the wise mother nowadays, for so many girls have their time so completely to themselves, or their spare time to use as they please. And it is especially hard for a girl just reaching out into her teens to understand why she cannot do so and so, or go here or there "when all the other girls can." But more often the mother gives in I believe, to the persuasions of the daughter and her friends.

Mothers rich and poor should meet together often and try to beunited in their methods of training, for there is a right way, which way alone leads to success in any line.

Very few young folks in these pleasure loving times, prove to be ought but lacking in natural affection and sympathy; and many are disobedient and wayward. They have not been taught to consider others.

Branches reporting. Bevier, Higbee and Menefee. Elders reporting.—D. E. Tucker F. T. Mussell, W. B. Richards, W. C. Chapman, Wm. Kelo, F. O. Pritchard, John Fassnacht, and E. E. Thomas. Priest-Ivor Surridge; Teachers Ben. S. Tanner and Charles Edmunds. Bishop agents reported on hand last report $186.93, receipts $418.77. Expenditures $420.70 Bal. due church $185.00. The district treasurer also reported. These reports were audited and found correct. F. T. Mussell was elected District President for the coming year. C. W. Miller Vice President, Wm. C. Chapman Secretary-treasure. Time and place of next conference was left in the hands of district officers. Wm. C. Chapman, sec.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.—Conference convened at Irvington August 18, minister in charge F. M. Sheehy and District Presidency J. M. Terry and C. A. Parkin presiding. A resolution was adopted providing that in the future all ministers reports shall close with the last of the month previous to convening of conference. The minister in charge and District President were authorized to appoint a standing auditing committee of three members, one to serve for one year, one for two years, and one for three years. H. J. Davison and C. W. Hawkins were appointed a special auditing committee for this conference. Said committee later submitted a report on all financial matters referred to them. By motion and vote the reunion committee was instructed to act in conjunction with the minister in charge and district president in arranging for the time of future reunions so as to avoid conflicting with the dates of other coast meetings. The following were elected reunion committee for the coming year—J. M. Terry, Guy Young, H. D. Simpson, John Driver and Bert Cook. Bro. C. W. Deuel and Sr. D. Montgomery were appointed a committee to raise money and purchase a tent for missionary work. A resolution was adopted placing the nominating power of the reunion committee in the hands of the ministers in charge and district presidency. This rule to take effect next reunion.

The committee on report blanks was continued, with instructions to obtain criticisms on present form and produce another blank for approval at next conference.

The kindergarten work received endorsement and was referred to Sunday School Convention for suggestions to reunion committee for better equipment.

Conference adjourned to meet with San Jose Branch, time left to president of mission and district presidency. John A. Lawn, sec.

UTAH DISTRICT.—Conference was held at Ogden, Utah, August 23-24. Minister in charge, Peter Anderson, and district president, J. C. Christensen, and C. A. Smithwaite presiding. J. E. Vanderwood secretary pro tem. Ministerial reports of J. C. Christensen, J. E. Vanderwood and George M. Jamison were read. A financial report of J. E. Vanderwood acting agent showed receipts of $45.50 for the month. The report was approved. The rules were amended requiring reports, spiritual and statistical, to be sent to the secretary 14 days prior to each regular conference. A resolution was passed requesting the Bishop's Agent, Bro. G. J. S. Abels, to furnish this conference with a report of funds on hand at last report, and all receipts and expenditures since that time. His report showed a balance on hand of $88.82 including the $45.50 previously reported as collected by Bro. Vanderwood.

Notice was given that at our next conference a resolution would be offered to eliminate entire Section 6 of district rules. Preaching of the conference was by Peter Anderson and W. B. Kelley respectively. Next conference at Salt Lake City.

J. E. Vanderwood, Sec. pro tem.

REUNION MINUTES.

DES MOINES DISTRICT REUNION.—The Des Moines District reunion convened Friday Aug. 14th at Rhodes Iowa, a pretty little town on the main line of the C. M. and St. Paul R. R. Elder O. Salisbury dist. pres. was chosen president of the reunion with Elders J. M. Baker and D. J. Williams as assistants. About twenty tents were on the ground including the large assembly tent and the district tent which was used for a dining tent. Rhodes being small our attendance during the day was not large but at night the country people swelled our attendance considerably. Eight Auxiliary sessions were held under the direction of Elder J. A. Gunsolley Eight prayer services, six round table sessions and eighteen preaching services made the reunion a success from a spiritual standpoint. One session was held in the interest of Graceland College which was in charge of Prof. J. A. Gunsolley, Secretary of the board of trustees and member of Graceland's faculty. One pleasing feature of the reunion was the organizing of the young people of the district into a band called the Des Moines Doers. They all seemed enthused and promised to do as never before. Patriarch J. W. Wight, Elders J. A. Gunsolley, J. M. Baker, Wardell Christy, J. L. Parker and D. J. Williams of the General Missionary force were in attendance, and heard from together with the many of the local force. All seemed to enjoy themselves and interest was good notwithstanding the fact the attendance was only fair. At the business meeting held on Saturday the 23rd it was decided to come back to Rhodes next year and the date was set for August 28th, two weeks later than this year, all interested please take notice. J. L. Parker, Sec.

CHEYER REUNION and conference, July 7th, closed the fifth annual reunion of the Northern Wisconsin District and the most extensive one ever held in the state. It opened with a good crowd the first day and continued growing to the end. About 130 people camped on the grounds, thirty tents were full, a cottage and some had to sleep in the auditorium.

The sermons were very good and much prejudice has been overcome. We are made to realize that our auditorium 40x60 is none too large. Several times it was filled. The dining hall, 24x54 is already too small. A refreshment stand will be constructed before next season. The buildings are all of the best material, dressed on all sides, and are insured for $1200.00. By next year there will only be an indebtedness of $500 to $600 on them. We expect two years later to be free from debt. We own the full equipment for dining hall, our beds and cots, and hope if it be God's will, next year to own our tents.

On hand at the close of last year about $30.00. Profit this year, net $35.00; a balance of about $65.00 on hand in the running expense fund.

At the conference the following officers were elected: B. C. Flint, district president; A. L. Whiteaker, vice president; Leroy Colbert, secretary; Mrs. Joy Fisher, librarian. Member of standing auditing board, Sr. Isabelle Richardson.

Thirteen were baptized, which together with the pleasant association of the saints, the invigorating zephyrs of the pines, the lake, dock, and all of nature's beautiful robe of green, caused us to rejoice in the progress of God's work in Northern Wisconsin.

The entire grounds, buildings, street and dock are electric lighted by 40 and 60 candle power Tungsten lights. Over $200 dollars was signed while on the ground to be paid in the coming year toward the indebtedness.

Cards of the grounds and crowd can be had at 5 cents, or a large picture about 8x10 of the building, and group of people at 45 cents.

The reunion of the Northeast and Northwest Kansas District convened at Riverside Park, Blue Rapids Kansas, Sept. 13-21, 1913. District president, F. G. Hedrick, J. W. Rushton, and Joseph Arber, were chosen to preside. Joseph Norman was elected secretary. Mrs. Florence McNichols chorister, Mrs. Roy Brocaw organist, Mrs. H. C. Pitzemberger and F. A. Cool press committee. Committee in charge of the tent and grounds, John Akerson, Arthur Norris, and Harry Sprague.

Order of services. Prayer services 9 o'clock a. m. Preaching 10:45. Auxiliary work at 2:30. Song service 7:30. Preaching at 8 o'clock p. m. Ministers in attendance, J. W. Rushton, Richard Bullard, William Lewis and Joseph Arber. The Auxiliary work was in charge of Mrs. Florence McNichols, field worker, and district Sunday school superintendent. Bro. J. A. Gardner was in attendance several days in the interest of Graceland College and assisted in the auxiliary work.

A spiritual time was enjoyed and the sociability on the camp ground added much to the success of the reunion. The rite of baptism was administered to five applicants by the local pastor Elder Joseph Arber. A co-operative dining hall was in charge of the Ladies Aid Society of the Blue Rapids Branch. At the business meetings held on Friday, it was voted to hold the next reunion at Topeka in 1914.

Mrs. H. C. Pitzemberger, Fred A. Cool, Press Committee.

Address, Mrs. Amy T. Gurwell Matron.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION IN THE PHILIPPINES is the title of a very interesting article by Professor George N. Briggs appearing in October number of Autumn Leaves. Bro. Briggs was formerly engaged in teaching in the Philippines but at present is connected with the Department of the Interior at Washington, District of Columbia. This article is illustrated with twelve excellent half tones furnished by Bro. Briggs. Other interesting articles in this number are a short Graceland College story by Professor R. V. Hopkins, entitled, He That Overcometh. Music and its Influence in the Home, by Mrs. O. H. Riggs; and a continuation of the Tour of England and Ireland, by Sr. Belle Robinson James, this number describing a visit to Blarney Castle; The Abuse of Knowledge, by Elder Robert T. Cooper, of Los Angeles.

PASTORAL.

To the saints of the South Missouri District. As I have been appointed bishop's agent of this district, I will take this means to notify you where you can send in your tithes and offerings, for the benefit of the church and for the building up of the district, that our missionary families may have the necessities of life while the missionaries are in the field preaching the glorious gospel, which we all love so well, as we bear in our testimonies many times that we would give even our lives for this latter day work.

Now saints our lives are not required. The Lord only wants us to obey his commands and we will find his command is to "bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse," as we find recorded in Malachi, and other places in the Scripture. If we want to obey him then it is our duty, as the saints of God to be our names on the bishop's book, and follow up on that line as the instruction is given. The work of the bishop's agents, is made effectual only by the co-operation of the saints in supplying the treasury for the support of the families of the missionaries and the help of the needy.

God has given this law for his people, so none can have any excuse. If a man is worth $1000, he owes only $100 as tithes, and if he is worth only $1.00 he owes only ten cents to the Lord. So you can see it is within reach of all.

May God's blessings be with his people is my prayer.

G. A. Davis.

SALT LAKE SOUVENIR.

The ladies of the Salt Lake Branch are making Salt Lake Souvenir Salt Beads, made from the salt of the Great Salt Lake. They are offering them for sale to help pay for the recently acquired edifice, a commodious church and parsonage at 336 Fourth East Street, Salt Lake City.

These beads are very attractive, in various fast colors to suit different tastes—white, pink, red, blue, black, yellow, green, etc. They have the appearance of the California rose beads which are so universally popular. They are all handmade, the workmanship of our own ladies, who make the beads without charge to the branch, and have only to be seen to be appreciated.

The prices are 50 cents, 75 cents, $1.00, and up to $2.50 according to length desired. Will send sample neck chain prepaid to any address on receipt of fifty cents.

Officers of branches, Sunday schools, Religios, Womans Auxiliaries, and missionaries are urged to add the Salt Lake building fund by selling these beads, which give excellent value to the purchasers.

Remittances should be made by Post Office Order.

SPIRITUAL MANIFESTATIONS.

Spiritual manifestations of great variety are so numerous in the world that we are frequently called upon to judge of their nature and source. Communications purporting to come from the dead are frequently offered to the public as genuine; supernatural and miraculous acts are performed; supposed secrets are revealed; speaking in tongues is sometimes indulged; and various feats of clairvoyance shown. The tendency with some people seems to be to accept all such things as being the manifestations of the power of God, but a careful reading of the Scriptures shows the necessity of examining carefully such things in order to avoid deception.

"Many false spirits are gone out into the world."
—1 John 4:1.

According to this inspired utterance not all spirits, and consequently not all spiritual manifestations, are of God, and it is essential to man's safety that he

"Try the spirits whether they are of God," and the basis of such test is evidently the same as that given by Christ for trying men:

"By their fruits ye shall know them."—Matt. 7:20.

The operations of false spirits in the world offers no true evidence that the Spirit of God does not also operate among men, but the greater the effort made at deception by these powers would rather give evidence of the presence and work of the ether. The Spirit of God is the Spirit of truth, the Spirit of righteousness, and its operations are always in accordance with truth, and are put forth for the purpose of establishing truth and righteousness. Its manifestations are not given for vain display, nor to delight the curiosity of the people. It is not subject to the caprice of men so that it can be handled and experimented with at will, for Christ said, "The world cannot receive it." It works with, and confirms the truth, and its influence is enlightening and uplifting.

Who ever heard of divine truth being established or confirmed by the influences that work through clairvoyants and mediums, or others who profess to have promiscuous communication with the dead? What virtue is there in the performance of the Spiritualist, and the so-called divine healer who makes it his business to heal by mysterious means without regard to conditions? The healings and miracles of Jesus Christ were all secondary to the more important work of preaching the gospel and bringing men to obedience, and a healing that takes no cognizance of the truth but tends to confirm the healed in his unbelief leaves him farther from God than he was before.

The work of the adversary in the world is to deceive, and in order to do this he must perform works that appear to be good. No man would be deceived by deeds whose evil was apparent, hence the necessity of imitation of the good deeds performed by the Spirit of God, and these are shown forth in smooth words that result in a dangerous contentment of mind, and healings that confirm men in their unbelief, and such other manifestations as will satisfy the curious fancies of those who deny the true Spirit.

Not only in spiritualistic and miraculous ways does the evil powers manifest themselves, but also in inspiring men and women to accept and promulgate doctrines which are deceptive, and which if seen in their true light would be found to be contrary to the true doctrine of Christ. The Spirit of God speaking through Paul said that "In the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils."—1 Timothy 4:1. The many conflicting doctrines taught today under the name of Christianity give evidence that the deceptive powers have been at work in this direction, and the Christian churches generally have accepted these conflicting teachings under the plea of mutual liberality.

Belief in communication with dead friends seems to be growing in the world, and even Sir Oliver Lodge, the English scientist, who has been conducting experiments along this line has been convinced that such communication is practicable. But is it true? The only reliable source of information along this line is the revelations of God through his inspired servants as found in the Scriptures. Solomon says that at death the spirit of man returns to God who gave it. Jesus said to the penitent thief just before his death, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise," not on the earth. The Scriptures clearly teach that the spirits of the righteous go to paradise, while the spirits of the wicked go to hades, and neither remain upon the earth.

With the scriptural teachings that "many false spirits are gone out into the world," it ought not to be difficult to determine the source of such purported communications with the dead, for the evil powers if able to imitate the workings of the Spirit of God so closely as to deceive, are also able to imitate the manners and language of men who have lived and passed from this world, and by their deceptive communications convince those who are unacquainted with the things of God and of the spiritual realm that the dead are really here.

The only safe communication in relation to the other world is with God through his Spirit, the Spirit to which men have access only by obedience to the principles of truth and the ordinances of the gospel. The manifestation of this Spirit "is given to every man [in the church of Jesus Christ] to profit withal," and in addition to the gifts it gives as mentioned in 1 Corinthians, twelfth chapter, its work is to "guide you into all truth," to "show you things to come," and to glorify Jesus Christ. (John 16:13,14). Every spirit which does not do these things must be adjudged deceptive.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

The French inventor, Claude, has on exhibition at the Grand Central Palace Electrical Show, New York, an appliance for producing real daylight. It consists of six tubes, sixteen feet long, operated on six thousand volts of current. Certain rays of the light are absorbed and the light which radiates from the tubes is identical with the sunlight. The invention is valuable for use in places where sunlight cannot be had, where it is necessary to discriminate between colors.

A farmer in Idaho complains of the impossibility of marketing the products of his farm. He produced nine hundred crates of cantaloupes this year but was able to market only three hundred crates, and other farmers had similar experiences, the difficulty seeming to be a shortage of cars upon the railroads. He urges that there is no need for so much discussion about increasing the farm yield until ample provision is made for the proper utilization of the present yield. In the western part of Idaho this farmer was paid $1.00 for a crate of forty-five melons, and in the eastern part of the state they were sold for fifteen cents each, or at the rate of $6.75 for the crate.

In the recent burning of the Voltorno at sea the transfer of the many passengers and crew was made possible after repeated failures by the approach of an oil ship which poured oil upon the turbulent waves causing them to cease to break, and permitting the boats to safely pass from one ship to the other. The helpful effects of oil upon a rough sea has been known since ancient times, and it has frequently been used for this purpose.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 17.

A MISSIONARY'S EXPERIENCE.

Foreign missions in the early days of the church did not offer the pleasant experiences which accompany them today. The present comforts of ocean travel were practically unknown, and many of the lines of travel had no regular ships sailing so that the missionaries had to wait their opportunities for making their journeys.

One of the important missions opened up was that of Australia, and the following interesting account of two of the early missionaries who opened up that land to the gospel, and who were seemingly led by divine Providence to revive the work in the Society Islands, shows the conditions under which they labored. Elder Wandell sleeps in far off Australia, and Elder Rodger some years later while on a mission in the West found his last resting place in Nevada.

Elder Rodger relates that years before he was appointed on the Australian mission "I dreamed of being sent to prison for three years, but it was not for crimes that I had done, but because of another." When he was recommended for the mission he says, "The Lord showed me in a vision . . . my lot in the mission. I saw the old vessel, her bulwarks painted black and white, our parting with several in tears, our long and tedious journey, and at last our entering Sydney harbor, and then towing up to the wharf along side of a great stone wall and between two great stone warehouses we made fast; while a voice as from heaven said, 'Sydney at last.'" When the time of departure came the only vessel available was a bark which was being taken to Sydney to be sold, undesirable in the extreme, but the best they could find. In Saint's Herald for February 15, 1877 he writes:

Nothing of great importance transpired as we swept along through wind and storm and calm for weeks, until one night our vessel sprung a leak in the bows. On examination she was found to be very rotten in parts. The seamen grew alarmed, the sea was running high; pumps were kept at work night and day; all was done with packing that was possible to stop the leak, but to no avail. One morning, very early, all looked very blue. After conversing with the seamen, and giving a hand at the pump, I went to Bro. Wandell, and said, "She is leaking very badly." He arose in his bunk and said, "She'll go down." I said nothing, but thought in myself "it cannot be, this is the ship that took me to Sydney harbor." In a short time the wind ceased, and the sea became more calm and we shipped less water. The captain feeling his danger, concluded to steer for the nearest port. Charts and maps were had, and we found the nearest port was the Island of Tahiti. We were then about 1020 miles off by calculation. We changed our course, had fine weather and all went on well. About this time, in the slumbering hours of midnight, I dreamed that I had fallen among a strange, dark people. One of them was very courteous and took me to his house and said, "There, here you can stay, there is your bed in the corner." I thanked him and said, "I did not wish to disturb his family." But he urged me to be at home. He introduced me to a dark man, with a black mustache, and a book in his hand. I said, "Let me see your book." He replied, "You can see it, but you can't read it." I saw groups of people together and considerable stir. I thought at first they were jealous of me, but I went to bed, and found no bed but a mat and blanket. I asked their names, and Brown and Smith were given me. And thus I awoke. I lay thinking on the singularity of the dream, and when daylight came I arose, took my pocket book and wrote my dream. In a few days I to'ld Bro. Wandell that I had a dream and it was impressed upon my mind firmly that we would find friends, if we reached Tahiti, and one would be of the name of Smith, the other would be Brown. Brown's name was not so clear to me as Smith.

In course of time we reached the island and anchored in the harbor of Petitere. Next morning we went ashore and made enquiry at several places if there was any of the name of Smith about the island. No such name could we find. We walked around and viewed the town and fortifications, and in the evening returned to the ship. Next morning we renewed our search; passing by a house on the outskirts of the town, two natives, large, fine looking men, came down and grabbed me by the hand and shook me heartily, saying, "You missionary, you missionary." I made signs that I was. Bro. Wandell says, "Let us move on." He kept walking along as they still held on to me. (The two natives who hung on to me so were Elders in the Church, good men.) At last I got away from them, and as I reached Bro. W., he says, "You had better beware of spies; you know the Elders were banished from here by the French government. We went on and met an intelligent native who could speak French and English well. We fell into conversation upon things in general. We then asked if there were any Mormons. He said they were located about five miles from there, and we had better go and see David Brown their leader. I then felt assured that this was the man Brown, I had dreamed of. We returned, and passing the same place, the two men came and grabbed me again. Bro. W. went on, and I had a job to get away from them, I had no fear of them, but we could not converse, not understanding the language. We hurried on our way and found David Brown and the church. He took us into his dwelling, and says, "You can stop here," and pointing to the corner, says he, "there is your bed." I replied "We do not wish to put your family about." "Not so," says he, "we can live at my wife's father's." Here was sure enough, the place and the bed shown on the sea. The bed also was a mat, like Chinese matting (no bed) and a pillow and blanket.

Rui pie, a noble man with black mustache, was introduced who seemed so fond of us he would be up with us late and early. We held several meetings, and as several desired baptism, one who had attended the meetings came to me and said he was fully convinced upon the truth of our mission and desired to be baptized. He was an Englishman by birth, and was trying to raise a school to teach the English language. After conversing with him some time I asked his name and he told me his name was John Smith. I then took out my pocketbook and read my dream, showing him his name was given to me while on the sea. He was very humble and was baptized with fifty others. After the baptism, we all went to the meeting house, a bamboo building thatched with leaves, beautifully plaited and the long ends hanging down to carry off the water. While Bro. Wandell was taking the names of those baptized, Rui pie entered, carrying the very book I had seen in my dream. I asked for it he gave it to me and laughed. It was the church record, but I could not read it. Thus all things were fulfilled, exactly as shown to me in the visions of the night, hundreds of miles away and weeks before.

After our vessel had been repaired, we raised our anchor and set sail for Sydney. In four weeks we have in sight of the iron bound coast of New South Wales. A pilot came aboard, and next day we entered port Jackson. A tug towed us up the harbor. The scenery on either side was delightful. I believe no prettier harbor can be found in the world. Near circular quay we dropped our anchor. With a spy glass I viewed the town and harbor, but could not see anything like I had beheld in vision of my landing in Sydney. The captain, Bro. Wandell, and others, went ashore in a small boat. Bro. Wandell did not return that night. Before nightfall the captain returned with a tug; we raised anchor and the steamer towed us gently round, passing many vessels to Miller's Point, and there we tied up along side of the great stone wall about twenty feet high, back from the wharf about fifty yards. There also were the two large stone warehouses, about a hundred yards apart, our vessel lying between. I stood upon the quarter deck, and gazed with astonishment. Here was the old ship with her black and white bulwarks; here were the warehouses, and the wall; here was I, at Sydney at last. When all was fast, I stepped ashore and could but give vent to my feelings in gratitude to the God of revelation who had marked my path and guided me through the dangers of the great deep. I was now a stranger in a strange land, far separated from the Church and a loving family for the gospel's sake. I little thought that ere long my traveling companion would fall by my side, and I should be left alone for a time, to bear the banner of truth through this howling wilderness of sin; but such has been my lot.

This land was long a penal settlement, a prison to many, a prison to me; far, far from home and hearts most dear; but as the three years in this colony is nearly up I expect soon to be released; feeling assured that the hand that has guided me thus far will guide me to the end, if I am true and faithful. I have found many kind and loving hearts in New South Wales, many not in the Church, but who will be at a future day.

G. Rodger.

The five years of faithful service in this mission helped to establish the gospel work in permanent form. With the labors of other faithful men the work has grown until today it is one of the most important missions of the church. Likewise the Society Island mission has grown and the church has a strong following there.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Wintry blasts from the north in their sudden approach Sunday morning awakened people to the fact that winter is preparing its long reign and that they must prepare to meet it. In consequence the attendance at Sunday school and the services was cut shorter than usual, but the importance of the message delivered by Bro. Joseph Luff in the morning was such as to awaken the saints to the demands made upon them by the law of God and the conditions existing in the world around.

Elder Luff referred to divine promises which had been made of a great gathering of souls into the kingdom but which after many years remained unfulfilled. In answer to his plea as to why this delay he said the manifestation of the Spirit had been that it was in consequence of the saints holding to and following the ways of the world and of the flesh, and failing to separate themselves therefrom as required by the high standard of the gospel, so that the Lord by his Spirit could not work through them to the fulfilling of his promises. Whenever the saints should arise to a proper recognition of the higher standard of the gospel, and sever themselves from the ties that bind them to the world, the power of God would be with them and working through them it would move upon the souls of men so that they would come in.

The Spirit and sentiment of the afternoon prayer meeting were such as to impress one with the serious importance of being a saint, and that God not only asked, but required, that his children live more in harmony with his law. Bishop Bullard declared as the voice of the Spirit that the many methods used in the church for the raising of money for the maintenance of the church work were not approved of God; that the law which God had given was ample and all-sufficient, and any additions or substitutes introduced by man would but result in failure. The saints were urged to work in harmony with the law providing for the financial part of the work, and assurance was given that if such was done, every need of the church would be amply supplied.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular bi-monthly session at 4:15 p. m., and in the evening Elder W. H. Garrett preached, his subject being, especially adapted to the young people who had been urgently invited to be present.

Miss Helen Whitt, accompanied by her cousin Miss Lulu Bearshold, recently came to Independence to enter the public school. Miss Helen, who is an orphan twelve years of age, is of the Cheyenne Indian Tribe, and comes from Kingfisher, Okla., and she has taken up her studies in the Columbian School. Her cousin will remain with her for company. Both are intelligent girls, and no doubt like the most of their people are capable of becoming highly educated. They seem to enjoy the church privileges.

A series of meetings was begun by Elder Charles Fry on Sunday evening at the Second Kansas City Branch, with encouraging prospects.

Bro. J. W. Metcalf who has been home for some days leaves on Thursday for his field in Southern Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Bishop Short having just returned from Oklahoma reports that the conference at Vera on the 12th and 13th was of a very high order. The new church there was dedicated Bro. Short and Lee Quick preaching the dedicatory sermon, dividing the time. The dedicatory prayer was offered by Bro. T. W. Chaburn.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Sunday school had an attendance of 160, collection $4.34, quite a falling off, attributed to the inclement weather.

Bro. Wm. Clow was the speaker at the morning hour, and after reading the first twelve verses of the fourth chapter of Numbers, the third verse was selected from which to gather the inspiration of the hour, and must say he handled his subject well.

The 2:30 prayer meeting was enjoyed by those present. The 7:30 p. m. hour was occupied by Bro. S. S. Smith of the missionary force. The selection of scripture made at the beginning was 1 John 4:1-4. "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they be of God, because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in flesh is not of God." The fact was shown that the signs would follow them that believe, and not only those, but many others, Dowie, Christian Science, and many others, yet as those who did these works were without the authority from heaven, they did not have the right to claim any recognition from God, yet the sick were benefited, and they of course were the only ones that were benefited. It was shown that they were not trying the spirits, that is by the law.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

Quite an interest is being taken in the Sunday school work of late. The saints are beginning to realize more than ever before the urgent need of teaching the little ones to "Remember the Lord thy God in the days of thy youth" that they may be able to resist the ever increasing temptations of city life which are slowly but surely turning the Lord's day into play-day—a day of idle thoughts and idle amusements. We have an average attendance of about 85, which is very good considering the conditions under which we have to labor. The officials have inaugurated a system of calling upon the teachers of each class in rotation to give the school a short, spicy talk each Sunday which bids fair to prove a success to the upbuilding of the school.

We have also organized a young men's Doctrine and Covenants class under the able teaching of Elder Hudson which also seems to be quite successful in keeping the young men of the branch interested in the advancement of the work.

The priesthood have begun a series of cottage meetings held once a week in what we term the "out-skirts," that is, in the homes of the saints and others, which are situated several blocks from the church. These meetings have been quite successful in the past as we can generally get from six to eight outsiders in, and in this way get the message to many who would not or could not come to the church meetings.

Our Rally Day, Sept. 5th, is a thing of the past. The saints that were present enjoyed the peaceful influence of the Spirit of the Master. The attendance at the services during the day were not as good as we would have liked, but a good turnout in the evening. Bro. B. J. Scott of the First St. Joseph Branch was with us all day, and gave us words of instruction, comfort and cheer. He expressed himself as being glad to meet again, the saints that were with this branch at its organization.

The Religio has been poorly attended, so much so that some deemed it wise to discontinue it, but on the night of the 10th, it was decided to try to keep the Religio going.

On Sunday the 19th the Stake Sunday school Superintendent, Bro. E. E. Cortwell, was with us in the interests of the Sunday school. He spoke encouragingly to the school and to the little folks. The school will try to profit by some of the suggestions of the brother.

Word was received on the 19th of the death of our beloved brother, W. S. Taylor, of Columbus, Kansas. Our heartfelt sympathies are extended to his children in their bereavement.

CHICAGO, FIRST BRANCH.

(TOO LATE FOR LAST WEEK.)

We are enjoying splendid weather here at the present time, and what's more, we are having splendid meetings. We all appear to have come out of that comatose condition so prevalent during the warm summer months. Some diseases are catching, but there are also some virtues that appear to have similar catching qualities if properly exercised. We are all getting what they call a fever. It is a powerful one—"Activity."

In the following we will try to diagnose this plague, and give you some of the symptoms.

About two weeks ago some of the young people organized the Sunday-afternoon Gospel Study Club. This has proved to be one of the most successful ventures ever introduced among us. Bro. Geo. Worrell is its sponsor, and has been elected president of the club. They meet at 3:30 p. m., and besides other instructive and entertaining features, they review the Religio and Sunday school lessons. Following this a luncheon is served, which does away with the need of going home for supper. After this meeting, practically all attending go en-masse to the evening preaching service.

Our Sunday services were very well attended. Elder Jolt Bronson of Belvidere, Ill., was the speaker in the morning. The Spirit of the Master was there in power. Many helpful thoughts were expressed. "It was good to be there."

Elder Foss was with us in the evening. We are informed that he is seventy-eight years old, and yet as you hear a report of his labors during the last few months you will wonder what can be done by a young man, when an aged worker produces such splendid results. God bless him in his labors, and may his years of usefulness be many.

In the afternoon beginning at 2 p. m. a priesthood meeting was held at the south side branch. "Social purity" was the theme. Many splendid thoughts were expressed by those present. We were especially pleased to hear from Elder Foss. His advice is surely well seasoned and matured with years of experience.

The Sunday school continues to grow. We now have a splendid primary department ably handled by Mrs. Lottie Kier.

The Religio society continues to offer many good and instructive features. At the last session the "Echo" their monthly paper, was read. Mrs. Mable Sherman and Mrs. Geo. Worrell were the soloists for this service.

Our prayer meeting on last Thursday was very good. Many splendid testimonies were heard. Every moment was occupied.

The first payment on our church is due Dec. 5, 1911. There are a number of novel ideas in action to raise the necessary amount of money. All are good. The amount will be forth coming alright. We are sure of it.

The saints of the west side branch were regaled Sunday morning by an inspiring sermon by our missionary, Elder D. E. Dowker, in his lucid, edifying and inspiring style. Taking for his subject, "The plan of salvation," the speaker laid the foundation for his discourse with such leading thoughts as the following, weaving about them an array of equally logical epigrams:

"The trouble with the world today is, that man is trusting in material things."

"Man displays poor judgment in both temporal and spiritual affairs; he over eats and his body suffers; he starves the spirit in it and it dies."
 "The only way to show our love for the Lord is by keeping his commandments."
 "To be thoroughly practical is no evidence of a spiritual mind; no man can understand the operation of the Spirit except by the Spirit."

Bro. F. G. Pitt, was announced as speaker for the evening, but the writer was not present. We can vouch for a good orator, however, replete with fatherly counsel.
 The young men's class of the Sunday school announced a social gathering for the week, in the interest of the class.
 The Sabbath school has a bright prospective member in Bro. S. B. Glick, of Eldorado Springs, Mo., who has now two Sundays to his credit. Bro. Glick is attending a medical college in the city.

A baptism was announced for the south side today: candidate, Glen Crippen, who has recently become convinced of the divinity of the work, being especially touched by the Christ-like spirit manifested by the saints in social service. Bro. Crippen related that he felt recently a feeling come over him, almost compelling him to attend the saint's prayer-meeting. He wisely yielded to the impression, and at the service rose and bore testimony to his convictions of the gospel, saying that he had worshipped in many churches, but had never witnessed the Christ-like humility manifest in the social service of the saints. The Spirit was present at the meeting and spoke comforting words to the convert.

Sr. Bertha Sly, who has been quite poorly in health for some time started to attend services today but took sick on the way and had to return. We understand Bro. Kier, realizing the benefit to Sr. Sly, called with his auto in the afternoon and gave her an outing.

The active minds of the branch have recently organized a gospel study and social club, which meets at the homes of different members each Sunday afternoon for the study of selected religious topics.

The officers are making a special effort to spread the work by a series of cottage meetings to be held where openings can be had.

We understand the south side has opened a mission at 3411 Cottage Grove Ave. Bro. Terry and other missionaries of yore will remember this address as the home of Bro. Ed. Lang, the antiquated mansion on the avenue, one of the landmarks in the history of the south side branch.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., FIRST BRANCH.

News of especial importance is scarce among us of late. We have been quietly pursuing our regular routine of church work, content in the knowledge of the cheerful performance, of religious duties.

Quite a number of our people attended the district conference at Stewartville, German Branch 11th and 12th inst. report a good time generally. A good attendance, good meetings and splendid hospitality. During the absence of Bro. B. J. Scott at conference, our pulpit was occupied in the morning by Bro. R. Winning and at night by Bro. W. W. Scott.

Sunday 19th Bro. B. J. spoke on "Spiritual gifts" a very good sermon, in the evening, our young brother Samuel Burgess preached, his theme being "education." It was an interesting talk, sensible, practicable, applicable. A more faithful, humble, self-sacrificing young man, than Bro. "Sammy" would be difficult to find, and while he has been in some ways sorely afflicted yet he has in many ways been abundantly blessed, and especially fitted to perform the work which to him is a labor of love, and he is held, in affectionate esteem by the members of the church generally.

The Sunday school is actively and aggressively prosecuting its work, and everything points to an interesting and successful winter's work. The officers and various committees are active, and we gladly pass along the word "all's well" in the Sunday school. On the 19th Bro. David Wilke talked to the school about his recent visit to historic Philadelphia.

The Religio is also on the flood tide of prosperity. Attendance growing and interest increasing.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular session on the eleventh. Sr. Pearl Gardner of Independence will speak to the young women on next Sunday afternoon in the interest of the Auxiliary. The Ladies Aid Dept. of the Auxiliary are preparing for a big thanksgiving dinner and are expecting to excel the success of last year, and we invite all our scattered members to have a home coming on Thanksgiving and take dinner with us.

The general health of our people is good though of course there are exceptions. Our young Sr. Lewis wife of Bro. Dave has been seriously ill of blood poison, caused by a severe burn, but miraculously cured, and we are thankful to say that by the mercy of God she is now convalescing.

Two of our young sisters were pleasantly surprised recently on the occasion of their respective birthdays. The senior young folks found Sr. Edna Christensen all unwell, peeing at her home, and had a merry evening, while the intermediate lady and lassies took Edna Scott, daughter of Bro. E. J., by storm. These nice little attentions keep alive a warm spirit of sociability and bind the ties of church and home still closer among the young people.

Bro. and Sr. Frank Hudson and little daughter of Hinsdale, Mont., are visiting his sisters, Mrs. W. W. Scott and John Blackman, and family.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Bro. C. W. Devel changed his purpose to set up his gospel tent at Sanger and placed it at Dinuba being directed by a dream. A few of our people live at Dinuba. He speaks highly of Bro. Cade as a companion missionary.

Bro. Stead and Renate have stored their tent for the season the former being at Chico holding a series of meetings in their church, the latter working his way south.

Bro. J. A. Saxe had a pleasant meeting at Irvington on Sunday last. Some interest from the outside was manifest. In the city Bro. G. S. Lincoln preached the morning sermon and Bro. J. A. Anthony spoke at night, both well spoken of.

Bro. E. J. Clark has returned from his eastern trip with good news from Zion and her surroundings. He saw and heard and felt more than he can describe. He preached a good sermon Sunday morning in Oakland which was followed in the evening by one of Bro. E. Ingham's logical efforts. More should have heard both.

We spent Sunday at Winsor and Santa Rosa. At Winsor we had three good services, one a sacrament and testimony meeting. The attendance was larger than ever before and the interest in proportion. A darling babe was blessed at the afternoon meeting by Bro. B. N. Fisher the pastor of the Santa Rosa Branch of which Winsor is a part, and the writer. At night we spoke in Santa Rosa showing the hospitality of Bro. and Sr. Louis Cooper, old time saints. On Monday night we had a pleasant meeting in Napa, where lives Bro. Graff and family and Bro. L. M. Pruden and family, we had a happy little meeting.

CORRESPONDENCE

HOLDEN MO., Oct. 4 1913.

Dear Ensign:—I was at Beardstown, Ill., at my daughter's Clara May, now Mrs. F. H. Reynolds, on a visit and preached a few times in July and August. The saints here have a nice little church and are getting along fine. On my way home I stopped in Osage Co., Mo., and preached at Vashall and Potts, both places have a small church. I was there nearly two weeks and baptized six and did other church work. Vashall is seven miles from Rail Road, and Potts is fifteen miles from Rail Road. These two branches are in St. Louis district, and the saints told me that Bro. Paxton was the last missionary there—two years ago this winter. They need some one to look after them. I think I shall go back there this winter and do some preaching. The saints in Vashall and Potts Mo., were very good to me and at Beardstown Ill. May the Lord bless them.

R. No. 3, GENTRY Ark., Sept. 25.

Dear Ensign:—Please allow us a little space in your columns to tell of the work that has been done here. Bro. W. W. Chrestensen has been here and we just closed our meetings, with great interest shown all through, though we were met with opposition, as the Seventh-Day Adventists are quite numerous in this locality, and whenever truth is presented to the people, Satan has cheap agents and very cheap ones too that he uses to lead men and women to destruction. But it is no wonder for it has been so in all ages, in his cunning way of making them believe that our Master has so many different plans of salvation which if the children of men would but pick up the Bible and read for themselves the precious truths recorded there by Christ and his apostles, then if they lack wisdom let them ask of the Father, who is the giver of all blessings, and the Master has said if we ask in faith believing, we shall receive. The Advents tried to close the doors against us but as the schoolhouse has been used for all denominations, we told them they could not, or it would be closed against all and we had the consent of all the patrons of the district except a very few. Then Bro. C. being asked to preach on "Which was the day to keep," on Sunday at 10 a. m. and he did so being blessed with the Spirit. He certainly preached a rousing sermon and if they were not convinced it was not because it was not in accordance with the Scripture.

Yes, we certainly did stir up a honet's nest here when they opposed us having the house. We thought it an invitation to stay another week which we did, and one man (a holiness preacher) gave his name and said he knew we had the truth. So the good work goes on.

Now brothers and sisters let us all live worthy lives that we may all come up higher and higher and be able to bring others to the knowledge of the gospel truth as is found in Christ.

Now as this is a new opening and Bro. Chrestensen a nobleman also the right man for this work here and met all opposition, being blessed with the Spirit and made lots of friends and removed lots of prejudice for the cause we love so much. My prayer is that we as saints may not forget to do our part that this great work may go on and not be hindered in any way, for the harvest is great and laborers few.

If Bro. M. A. Corby sees this will he please write us. Praying for the redemption of Zion.

In gospel bonds,
C. L. and D. I. Miller.

MONTANA.

A few lines from beautiful Montana. How different my life, and the surroundings now, from the time of my first coming to the Territory of Montana, forty years ago. Then I had no thoughts of God or religion, in fights with the hostile bands of Sioux Indians along the Yellowstone River; associated with the roughest of men, yet big hearted and fearless; and now to be fighting the gospel battle, of peace and good will towards all men. How different my whole life now, from that of forty years ago.

Have made some new openings and have found honest ones hungry for the truth, may God bless them. Have baptized seven and blessed eleven children this summer, and many others are interested, and are near the kingdom.

An article in the Ensign of Sept. 18th, "The Sixth Chapter of Revelation," attracted my notice, I want to suggest some points in this chapter for investigation by those interested as the writer of this article seems to be.

The Book of Revelation deals largely in symbols and if rightly understood, they are revelations of great value to the people of God in the present age.—1st seal opened.

Revelation 6:1. A white horse and he that sat on him had a crown. (Zach. 9:13-16. A work to be done by Ephraim) and a bow (authority) was given him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer. (Conquering error with the reddest gospel of peace). 2nd seal opened.

Verse 4. Another horse that was red, (the same as in Rev. 17:3, Papacy). And power was given him that sat thereon TO TAKE PEACE FROM THE EARTH, etc.

3rd seal opened. Verses 5, 6. And to a black horse, and a voice saying, (to the one on the red horse), see thou hurt not the oil and the wine. (Masonic words).

Now any one who will look into this matter can see preparation for this event now going on. 4th seal opened.

A pale horse and his name that sat on him was death, and hell followed with him. And power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with the sword, (war), and with hunger, (amine), and with death, (plagues), and with the beasts of the earth, (the inquisition). Read in connection Matthew 13:30,38,39. D. and C. 85:26; 38:4-6. Rev. 13:15,16; Rev. 16:13,14,16. Joel 3:9,10,13; 2:1,2,3,30 32.

LOWELL, Ark. Sept. 24.

Dear Ensign:—The Lowell saints are still trying to keep the work moving on here. We were greatly strengthened by having Bro. T. W. Chaburn, James M. Smith and Walter Chrestensen with us and preaching some for us.

I visited my mother, S.C. Hatlenbauer, and grandfather, at Grandview, Ark., in August. My grandfather is living with her. He was baptized a year ago at my home. He was 83 years old and had been a member of the Methodist Church more than sixty years and had used tobacco and coffee, and he saw the necessity of obeying the Word of Wisdom and quit the use of tobacco and coffee and now says he knows he has obeyed the true gospel, and is ready to leave this life here any time. My husband used tobacco when he came into the church but he quit it.

We will help all we can to redeem the debt of the church and when it is redeemed if the Lord will continue to bless us with this world's goods as he has in days past, we will continue to give money to the church and elders.

Bro. James Smith and Walter Chrestensen preached ten sermons at Grandview while I was there and we hope some good will follow. Some are reading and investigating the work.

My husband and Bro. James Smith are near Mondak, Ark., having meetings in a school house and some are interested. One has given her name for baptism. My sister lives there, she was baptized in July. She had been very low with tuberculosis and had been in bed for some time, and the doctors had said she could not be cured. She believed the gospel from reading the Ensign and tracts I had sent to her; she had never heard a sermon preached, and she sent for me and I went and was there with her a week and she wanted to be administered to, and I drove about 45 miles to get home to meet Bro. James M. Smith and take him there to administer to her. My husband and Bro. Smith went back with me and my sister was administered to and the next day she helped me make her a dress, and the third day before we left she was baptized into the church, and is now rejoicing in the angel's message, for which we feel to thank God.

Our desires are to see the Lord's work hasten. Pray for us that we may continue faithful until the end.

Your sister in gospel bonds,
Etta Lewis.

DUNLAP, Iowa, Sept. 7.

Dear Ensign:—As I haven't seen anything in your columns from this part of the Lord's vineyard for a long time, I write a few lines in testimony of the Lord's goodness to me, I united with the church two years ago, and up to that time I had partaken very much of the follies of this world and had acquired an appetite for tobacco and for strong drinks, so when I wished to unite with the church and to serve God it seemed to me I could not do so because of the desire for tobacco and I had tried to quit before but it just seemed as if I must have it, and I didn't know what to do, but something seemed to say to me "You can quit, just step forward in the path of duty trusting in me for strength, and you shall win." So I covenanted with the Lord that if he would help me I would do so; so I stepped forward and united with his church and I was enabled by his help to overcome those things and I am a great deal healthier and happier today, and as soon as I had joined the church I began to search the Scriptures for more light but I found things which I could not understand and was troubled because of it, but I spent some time in a prayerful study and finally one day I was seized upon by a great power which it seemed would consume my very being, and one passage of scripture after another was presented to me in such plainness that I was caused to rejoice exceedingly; this was repeated some two or three times afterwards, so I can say that I know that this latter day work is true.

Another incident I will relate. I was at church one day and saw some oil consecrated by the president of our branch, so after the meeting I ordered a bottle of it which would be there for consecration the following Sunday, but of a truth I didn't have much faith in the oil and I couldn't help it, but I did wish with all my heart to have faith in it, so when I went home that evening I sought the Lord in prayer and asked that if it might be his will that an elder from some other place might be there the following Sunday to help consecrate that oil that it might be as a sign to me that my faith might be strengthened, and in my mind I thought of a certain one. So on the following Sunday he was there sure enough to help consecrate that oil, and I am sure my faith was strengthened and the oil always brought good results, and I can say my prayers have been answered several times since for which I am very thankful indeed, but I realize that I am very weak and oftentimes do things I should not do.

I ask the prayers of all the saints that I may overcome and come out victorious in the end.

Your brother in the true faith,
Geo. E. Hansen.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE GOSPEL.

Synopsis of a sermon delivered Saturday evening, May 24, 1913, at Council Grove, Kansas, by Elder J. D. Shower. Reported by St. H. C. Pitsenberger.

Why must the gospel be preached? We realize the necessity of it that we may understand the will of God, and be saved in the kingdom of God. It is necessary then that the gospel be preached that we may know what the will of God is.

"For after that in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."—1 Cor. 1:21.

The mass of humanity has been warring one against another because of a lack of the wisdom of God. The office work of the Holy Spirit is to guide into all truth, but it is the wisdom of man that is guiding many. Satan influences many, but our neglected duty is not altogether chargeable to him, we are responsible for it.

Paul says in Ephesians 5:32, "This is a great mystery; but I speak concerning Christ and the church." This is truly a great mystery with many. We cannot find God by our own wisdom. James says "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." (James 1:5). We must be willing to receive. "Seek and ye shall find." In Hebrews 13:8, we read: "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today, and forever." He is unchangeable. What plan is necessary for salvation? The same plan that Jesus and the apostles taught. How can we find that plan? "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me."—John 5:39.

It is necessary for us to study, that we may know the will of God and do the works of Christ. "Oh," says one, "shall we do the works of Christ?" "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." (John 14:12). He went to intercede in our behalf.

Are we entitled to the same gifts that they had then? Yes, he said that we must obey that same form of doctrine that was taught; obey the form of doctrine outlined in Hebrews 6:1,2; and then go on to perfection; having a living faith, and living works and not building on the works of those gone on before.

If we love God we will keep his commandments. "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." (John 14:21). And in the sixteenth verse of the same chapter, "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter that he may abide with you for—a few years and then cease? Oh no! that doesn't sound right. "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever."

Let us turn to Acts 2:37. "Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter, and to the rest of the apostles, men and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter answered them, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." (Acts 2:38). And in the 39th verse, "For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off." This promise is in harmony with the one in John 14:16. We can claim this promise. But how can we receive it? We cannot receive it by giving heed to the priestcraft of men.

"But there was a certain man, called Simon, which before time in the same city used sorcery and bewitched the people of Samaria giving out that himself was some great one. To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God. And to him they had regard, because that long time he bewitched them with sorceries. But when they believed Philip's preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women."—Acts 8:9-13.

We must not give heed to man's teaching if it is not in harmony with God's word. "When the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John." Why was it necessary to send Peter and John unto them? They had not received the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands; "and when Peter and John were come down unto them they prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost. For as yet he was fallen upon none of them; only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost."—Acts 8:12-17.

Mankind have received joy and been satisfied but not had the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost cannot be purchased with money. "When Simon saw that through the laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given he offered them money, saying, give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost. But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee; because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter for thy heart is not right in the sight of God. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness; and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee."—Acts 8:18-22.

Authority is necessary to preach the gospel. "And no man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God as was Aaron. (Hebrews 5:4). Unless we have authority the act is of ourselves and not of God. Some of the disciples of Ephesus had been baptized but it was of man and not of God.

Turn to the 19th chapter and begin with the first verse. "And it came to pass that while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts came to Ephesus; and finding certain disciples, he said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. And he said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they said, Unto John's baptism." Some one had baptized them who had not been sent of God. "For he that is sent of God speaketh the words of God." They had not been told anything about the Holy Ghost. Then said Paul, "John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus. When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus." (Acts 19:4,5). These Ephesians were now baptized by one having authority. "Well," says one, "didn't John have authority?" Yes, but I am of the opinion these Ephesians were not baptized by John, but "unto John's baptism," or in other words, like as John was baptized. The same mode. If they were baptized by John, they would have known of the Holy Ghost. For John says in Matthew 3:21, "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance, but he that cometh after me is mightier than I whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." These Ephesians had not heard whether there was any Holy Ghost. But when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues and prophesied. They received the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands.

Not only is the Holy Ghost given by the laying on of hands, but "they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." (Mark 16:18). James says, "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord."

"But," says one, "they are not all healed." Neither were they all healed in the days of the apostles. Paul said, "Lest I be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations there was given me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure. For this thing I besought the Lord thrice that it might depart from me. And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me." (2 Cor. 12:7-9). Trophimus was left at left at Miletus sick. (2 Tim. 4:20). Paul said to the Galatians, "Ye know how through infirmity of the flesh I preached the gospel unto you at the first. And my temptation which was in my flesh ye despised not, nor rejected; but received me as an angel of God, even as Christ Jesus." (Gal. 4:13,14) They are not all healed, "It is appointed unto men once to die. After this the judgment."—Heb. 9:27.

Little children were blessed by laying on of hands." At the same time the disciples came unto Jesus, saying, who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted, and become as little children ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.—Matt. 18:1-3.

Except we become pure and holy as little children, we cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven. And in the 19th chapter and 13th to 16th verses we read. "There were brought unto him little children that he should put his hands on them and pray; and the disciples rebuked them. But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven. And he laid his hands on them and departed thence."

The ministry are ordained by the laying on of hands.

"As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Banabas and Saul, for the work whereunto I have called them. And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them they sent them away."—Acts 13:2,3.

They were called by man. Jesus said "My doctrine is not mine but his that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself."—John 7:16,17.

If any of you lack wisdom ask of God and you shall know of the doctrine of faith, repentance, baptism by one sent of God, the laying on of hands for the Holy Ghost, the resurrection and eternal judgment.

OCTOBER.

BY RICHARD BULLARD.

The autumn sun shines over-head,
The leaves are falling as a shower.
In colors yellow, brown and red,
And leaving bare the trees and bower.

The astor wild and golden-rod,
In purple, white, and golden hue,
Are bowing with a friendly nod,
But soon will bid us all adieu.

The trees will soon be all undressed,
That through the summer heated day
Have by their leafy branches blessed
The weary toiler day by day.

The children too when school was done
Beneath its shade would happy be,
Now gather leaves with mirth and fun,
And dance beneath the old oak tree.

The happy song birds now have flown,
To southern skies and warmer bowers:
Where zero's blasts and snows unknown,
Yield to the eye perpetual flowers.

The bounding squirrels in their play,
Are not forgetful of their need;
But store the falling nuts away
In tiny caves for winter feed.

The stealthy step of huntsmen who,
In wood and glen at early day,
Seek frightened rabbit, partridge too,
That chance to rise across their way.

The laughing boys, for winter night,
Seek where the ripened nuts are found
Shaking the boughs with main and might,
Till they are strawn upon the ground.

Then homeward bound with bulging sacks
"Play'd out" and "hungry as a bear";
They throw their burdens from their backs
For mother's tempting supper fare.

October: with its beauty rare,
Fragrant with ripened fruit and grain,
Given of God that all may share
The fruitage of man's toil and brain.

The autumn sun shines over-head
The leaves are falling as a shower,
In colors yellow, brown and red,
And leaving bare the trees and bower.

JESUS' MINISTRY OF MIRACLES.

OF HEALING

Jesus healed all manner of bodily afflictions (Math. 4:22) including lunacy, (Mark 1:32) epilepsy, (Luke 9:42) fever, (Luke 4:38) leprosy, (Math. 8:3) paralysis, (Luke 13:12) blindness, (Math. 9:27) deafness, (Mark 7:33) palsy, (Mark 2:3) a sword cut, (Luke 22:51) etc.

Though Jesus generally healed instantaneously, as in the case of the woman who touched the hem of his garment, (Math. 9:22) yet sometimes he healed gradually; for example, the nobleman's son, who "began to amend. (John 4:52.)

He took one man away by himself to heal him (Mark 8:23-25.)

Afflictions caused by devil possession were healed at his rebuke. (Luke 9:42). Sometimes people were healed without Jesus coming in personal contact with them. In one instance the person healed was about sixteen miles from him. (John 4:46-51).

Often Jesus laid his hands on those whom he healed; (Luke 4:40) sometimes he simply touched them; (Math. 8:3.) sometimes he took them by the hand; (Mark 1:31) sometimes he healed with a word; (Mark 7:34) sometimes he healed by their touching him. (Luke 8:44). He healed chronic diseases: one of twelve years standing; (Math. 9:20) one of eighteen years standing; (Luke 13:11) and one of thirty-eight years standing; (John 5:5-9). He raised the dead. (John 11:41-54).

The result of the manifestations of the healing power of Jesus was that many believed on him and God was glorified. (Math. 9:8).

OTHER MIRACLES.

Money in the fish's mouth; (Math. 17:24-27) Water made into wine; (John 2:1-11) Four thousand fed, (Math. 15:32) Fig-tree blasted; (Math. 21:19) Tempest stilled; (Mark 4:37) Feeds five thousand; (Luke 9:12-17) Jesus walked upon the water. (John 6:19.)

Jesus said unto his ministry: "Verily, verily I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my father."

We have no record of any great work being done by the Apostles than those of Jesus. And because of a lack of such record, the expounders of Scriptures have been led in giving an exegesis of this, to conclude the greater works meant in volume rather than the character of the works.

As we have now referred unto the character of the works in the ministry of Jesus as being miracles, we offer the thought, the greater works will be miracles also. And we should remember he did not confine his sayings to those apostles then living, but it reaches on down the stream of time, even to our day.

The gospel of the ninth hour dispensation was lost to the world through apostasy, and by the revelation of and ministering of angels, it was restored unto the children of men A. D. 1830 including priesthood authority. In that restoration it was intimated that a greater endowment was to come to the church. God spake like this upon one occasion: "And this greater priesthood administereth the gospel and holdeth the key of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God. Therefore in ordinances thereof, the power of Godliness is manifest; and without it the ordinances thereof and the authority of the priesthood, the power of godliness is not manifest unto men in the flesh; for without this, no man see the face of God, even the Father, and live.

Thus it was revealed that while Joseph the martyr and his associates were in possession of the priesthood, the great endowment would be in the observing of all the ordinances thereof, while a part of the ordinance bring men to the possibility of the ministering of angels, but not the possibility of seeing the face of God.

Enoch had a priesthood and ordinance that gave this greater endowment by which they were enabled to do the greater works, as well as to be perfected; see Gen. 14. Inspired translation. In this wise:

"For God having sworn unto Enoch and unto his seed with an oath by himself; that every one being ordained after this order and calling should have power, by faith, to break mountains, to divide the seas, to dry up waters, to turn them out of their course: To put at defiance the armies of nations, to divide the earth, to break every band, to stand in the presence of God; to do all things according to his will, according to his command, subdue principalities and powers; and by the will of the Son of God which was from the foundation of the world. And having this faith, coming up unto this order of God, were translated and taken up into heaven."

Now these works here spoken of are greater works than that which Jesus did. When Moses started out in the deliverance of the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage it was with this same endowment as is recorded, for we read: Now, this Moses plainly taught to the children of Israel in the wilderness, and sought diligently to sanctify his people that they might behold the face of God. But they hardened their hearts, and could not endure his presence, therefore, the Lord, in his wrath swore that they should not enter into his rest, while in the wilderness, which rest is the fullness of his glory. Therefore, he took Moses out of their midst and the holy priesthood also."

Sad indeed must it have been unto Moses, to have been cast out of the presence of God; but he wished to be obedient unto God's command, in this instance as much so as at the time of his choosing at the time of the inauguration of making him a Pharaoh. He then in the midst of the ceremony made choice, "he would rather suffer afflictions with the children of Israel, than dwell in the palaces of wickedness."

Therefore God said: "Hew thee two other tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me upon the mount, and I will write on the tables the words that were on the first tables, which thou brakest, save the words of the everlasting covenant of the holy priesthood, and thou shalt put them in the ark." This history is rehearsed that it may be known that Israel was not established as was first contemplated having lost that great endowment in which the greater works were done.

Yet they had a promise left them that some future time this that they now "hardened their hearts" against, after many generations would be entered into by their children, and a kingdom be so established that "God would be in their midst." "Not only mine angels but my presence (personality) shall be with you."

Now in regard to the thought that Moses was in possession of this same endowment we offer his record. "And the Lord spake unto you out of the midst of the fire; ye heard the voice of words, and the Lord hath taken you, and brought you forth out of the iron furnace, even out of Egypt, to be unto him a people of an inheritance, as ye are this day. For ask now of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day that God created man upon the earth, and ask from one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, or hath been heard like it? Did ever a people hear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire as thou hast heard, and live?"—Deut. 4:9, 32, 33.

"And it came to pass, when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders; And ye said, Behold the Lord our God hath showed us his glory and his greatness, and we have heard his voice out of the fire, we have seen this day that God doth talk with men, and he liveth.—Deut. 4:23.

"Who led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought, where there was no water; who brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint; who fed thee in the wilderness with manna, which thy fathers knew not; thy raiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy feet swell, these forty years.—Deut. 8:15, 16.

In the failure of Moses to sanctify the people as first thought, this endowment was taken from them; and we have no record that it has been restored not even in the days of Jesus our Savior. The prophet Isaiah saw a time of its restoration, and wrote of it in this wise: "And it shall come to pass in that days that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, and he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah, from the four corners of the earth."—Isa. 11:11.

When God thus sets his hand to establish Israel, (He has not as yet) it will be in like manner as Moses sought to do: as Enoch has done—not only they could and did behold angels but that they could see God and converse with him. Then it is that this endowment and greater works will be realized.

Some of the old Jewish writers had some light upon this matter. We quote from Tamchuma on Deuteronomy, he says it opens with a record of how God would work all the miracles, which he had shown in the wilderness in a fuller manner for Zion in the latter days, then quotes in support Isaiah 25:9. And again, in Isaiah 35:5, 6. This is one of the passages quoted in Tamchuma and in the Yalcot as among the miracles which would be wrought, to redeem Zion in the latter days. This Tamchuma was a celebrated Jewish writer some 200 years before Christ. See life and Times of Christ by Eddersheim which can be had in most all public libraries.

Herein are the greater works. And at the time of this miraculous theocratic Zion in the latter days, "It will be said among the wicked, Let us not go up to battle against Zion, for the inhabitants of Zion are terrible, wherefore we cannot stand." In that when expedient mountains will be removed, rivers will be changed out of their course, the elements will be at the command of those sons of God who have this endowment. Truly there will be a greater display of miracles than there was at the time of the ministry of Christ, and hence greater works. Who of the Latter Day Saint ministry are getting the necessary oil—the light of the Holy Spirit—in their lamps, thereby they may be prepared to enter into this perfect organization and occupy? Who?

Marcus Shaw.

FEEDING ON WIND.

In pursuing the history of ancient Israel, we find that the prophet Hosea tells us that "Ephraim feedeth on the wind," or in other words that they neglected the word of God, and followed after the light and frivolous things of the age, and increased unto themselves desolation. Because of having done this, they as a nation lacked the knowledge of God, and as they had rejected this knowledge, God said they should be as forgotten children to him.

The commandment for ages has been to search the Scriptures, and apply these teachings to our daily lives, and Nephi invites us to feast on the words of Christ. Paul told Timothy to "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." He also spoke of "the gospel which was able to build us up, and make us heirs to salvation." John the revelator saw while on the lonely Isle of Patmos, the great day, when the dead shall appear before the throne of God, that the books were opened and that they were judged by the things written in them, according to the deeds done in the body.

God has spoken in our age commanding us to study his word, as well as all good books and I fear that we as saints of God, "the light of the world," are not heeding it as we should. I have often heard a brother or sister say "I haven't had time to look at my Sunday school or Religio lesson yet this week," yet they nearly always have found time to read the daily papers, or to look at the latest fashions or perhaps they will say, "I'd just love to have the church papers, but just can't afford to take them," while at the same time a daily paper or two is their constant companion. I would not condemn our people for being posted in the events of the day, but we should not do so to the exclusion of our church literature, and the study of the word of God, for we "ought to give the more earnest heed to the things of God," lest at any time we should let them slip and be found as Ephraim of old feeding on the wind, thus bringing loss to themselves, both now and hereafter.

THE MORE EXCELLENT WAY.

In Professor Hodge's "Exposition of the First Epistle to the Corinthians," the following comment is given, on the 31st verse of the 12th chapter which reads: "But covet earnestly the best gifts; and yet show I unto you a more excellent way."

"All cannot have every gift, but covet earnestly the better ones. To covet is earnestly to desire, with the implication of corresponding effort to obtain. The ordinary gifts of the Spirit were bestowed according to his own good pleasure. But so also are his saving benefits. Yet both may be, and should be sought in the use of the appointed means. The best gifts; literally, the better gifts, by which is meant, as appears from 14, 5, those which were the more useful. The Corinthians had a very different standard of excellence; and coveted most the gifts which were the most attractive, although the least useful. And yet (or, moreover) I show you an excellent way. The expression is not in itself comparative, more excellent; but simply a way according to excellence, i. e. an excellent way. Whether it is excellent compared to something else, or most excellent, depends on the context. Here no comparison is implied. The idea is not that he intends to show them a way that is better than seeking gifts, but a way par excellence to obtain those gifts. The other is indeed adopted by Calvin and others, but it supposes the preceding imperative (covet ye) to be merely concessive, and is contrary to 14, 1, where the command to seek the more useful gift is repeated. The sense is, 'Seek the better gifts, and moreover I show you an excellent way to do it.'"

Charles Hodge, D. D., was professor in the Theological Seminary, at Princeton, N. J. In this expression of opinion is the evidence of unbiased study. The Apostle was not teaching the existence of two ways into heaven. He had impressed the fact that the Lord would divide the gifts as it pleased him. All did not have the gifts of healing, all did not speak with tongues; all did not interpret, etc.

The Inspired Version presents an independent reading: "Have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret? I say unto you, Nay; for I have shown unto you a more excellent way, therefore covet earnestly the best gifts." (1 Co. 12:30, 31.)

Notwithstanding, it seems apparent that the three chapters (12, 13, 14) are to be read connectively, in order to get his entire message on the subject of spiritual gifts, or things.

R. W. Farrell.

THE ROUND TABLE.

Please explain Luke 14:26-33, closing with the words: "So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple."

In these verses Christ presents the necessity of allowing none of the thing of this world to stand in the way of right and duty. Following Christ as his disciple as a means of eternal salvation is the greatest duty, and when a man starts out to be Christ's disciple it should be with the understanding that whatever sacrifices need to be made, whether of home comforts, friends, wealth, etc., will be made freely and promptly. The man who sacrifices duty in order to enjoy the things of the world proves himself unworthy of Christ. Every man should fully measure the cost and make his sacrifice complete.

Can we live Godly in Christ Jesus and not suffer persecution?

The sharp contrast between the Godly and the world has always caused the latter to persecute the former, and probably always will. There are times when the people of God partake of so many of the world's ways that the distinction between them and the world cannot be clearly drawn at which times persecution is but little if any. The closer one lives to the gospel the more is he likely to be the subject of persecution.

In Rev. 12:6 we are informed that the "women fled into the wilderness" 1260 days, which is interpreted to mean that many years, days in prophecy to be interpreted years. Taking this as a basis are we to understand that the two witnesses of Rev. 11:3 are to prophesy 1260 years, then being put to death are to lie in the streets three and one-half years? Who or what are these two witnesses?

We have avoided answering many questions on Daniel and the revelations for the reason that in so few instances can an answer be given which carries with it the evidences of certainty. Some have held that the two prophets here mentioned are the two priesthoods. Another explanation we have heard is that they are the Old and New Testaments. Either explanation presents difficulties which are insurmountable. Others again hold that they are two prophets which shall arise, but if so the "days of their prophecy" must be an exception to the "day for a year" rule, for it could not be expected that they could live and prophesy 1260 years. The last view seems most reasonable.

Why do you claim that converts have to have hands laid upon them in order to receive the Holy Ghost? I have seen it tried for healing the sick and the sick died.

We hold that the laying on of hands for the Holy Ghost is a proper principle because it was the way followed by the ancient apostles, See Acts 8:17-19; 19:6. Also for the reason that in the restoration of the gospel in these latter days the Lord authorized the elders to lay their hands upon the baptized believers for this purpose, and promised the gift of the Holy Ghost as a result. The same ordinance is used for the benefit of the sick though it would be altogether inconsistent to suppose that healing would come in every instance. "It is appointed unto man once to die," and when the time comes when one is appointed unto death, the ordinance of laying on of hands may bring physical blessing in the way of relief from pain, and spiritual blessing of peace and comfort.

You say Jesus didn't perform miracles to make believers. Read John 11:41-42. "And Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, Father I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always; but because of the people which stand by I said it that they may believe that thou hast sent me."

In the instance referred to it is apparent that it was not the raising of Lazarus which Jesus did for the purpose of getting them to believe, but the giving of thanks to his Father and attributing all power to him. He wanted the people to understand that God had sent him and was with him, and the statement in his prayer was made with the intent to lead them to believe in God. It may further be noticed that the parties mostly concerned in the matter of the raising of Lazarus, himself, his sisters, and the disciples, were already believers, and there was no violation of the rule "These signs shall follow them that believe."

Note:—The following article is the second one of a series by Sr. C. R. Smith, on the kindergarten work. The first one appeared in the issue of ENSIGN for August 8th.—"The Kindergarten and what it Represents."—Ed.

A GLIMPSE INTO THE KINDERGARTEN.

Listen to the wind. See how it lifts every movable thing, and carries it away somewhere else.

Of what use is all this blowing and bluster? Ask some kindergarten child and see what he tells you. He can tell you about all of the various families of seed babies who have been waiting for just such wind, to carry them to a new home, and other ways in which the wind is of help to man.

Mother nature knew that the mother plants needed all the nourishment in the ground around them, and that in order that their babies might have a chance to grow into strong healthy plants, they must be scattered, so she has prepared for them different means by which they might get away.

Some seeds are round and roll away. Some seed pods burst open and throw out the seeds. Some have wings, others sails, and still others have stickers on them by which they fasten themselves on the clothes of people or into the fur of animals, and are thus carried long distances.

I am not going to write an article on nature study. All I want to do is to give you a glimpse of some of the most interesting subjects taken up in kindergarten just after the opening of school.

There are very few children who would not be interested in a talk about the birds, the trees or flowers, or perhaps a trip planned to the woods. It is because the principles upon which all nature works, are so great and yet so simple that the child has a holy reverence for nature, and yet feels perfectly at home with it. He sees the seed planted and watches it grow and bring forth more seeds. He takes all this as a natural consequence and is thoroughly satisfied with the explanation, that God helps it to grow by sending rain and sunshine, etc.

In kindergarten, most of the first three months are given to the study of nature in its various forms. The animals, their homes and habits, and their preparation for winter. The plants, their manner of life, and their preparation for winter. Then chief of all, man, and his relation to other life and the bounteous provision for his comfort during the winter. This is to help the child to see the oneness of God's great plan of life; or the inter-dependence of man, animal, and plant life. How animal life is dependent upon plant life, and man is dependent upon both plant and animal life for his existence; and all are dependent upon God.

Later on in the year, more time is given to the thought of man's dependence upon his fellowman. This thought is more clearly brought out in what is called the trade work, such as a study of the miller, blacksmith, shoemaker, carpenter, etc.

St. y. telling is one of the most effectual means of giving information to the little child, so in kindergarten we try to give most of this work through the medium of stories.

We take the squirrel as our illustration of the animals preparation for winter, telling how he stores his nuts away and prepares a nice clean home for himself in a hollow tree.

The seeds distributed and their preservation during the winter, under the leaves and dirt blown over them by the wind. Also how the trees are protected by the leaves falling, and the sap flowing down to the roots for the winter; but afford an illustration of the plants' preparation for winter.

As the grand climax we talk about the farmer and how he stows away his fruits, grains and vegetables for winter use, and the mothers who are busy preparing nice warm clothes for the comfort of each member of the family.

Thus we can see, how we work up to the grandest thought of all, or our thankfulness to the heavenly Father for his kind provision and loving care over all, brought to a climax in the "Thanksgiving" work.

These are some of the first thoughts given in the kindergarten year; but mothers, do not think that because these things are taught in school, they are separate and apart from the training you can give your child. There is no grander and broader study than that of nature in all various forms, not only for children, but for older people as well.

Mrs. C. R. Smith.

MISCELLANEOUS

THE NORMAL DEPARTMENT AT GRACELAND COLLEGE.

Each year brings students to our walls from various states who desire to prepare for teaching. Our personal experience in the teaching profession has been so gratifying that we gladly welcome young people who also feel to devote at least a few years of the best of their lives to the mission of the education of the young. And there are but few callings so richly endowed with opportunity for real service to humanity—a service which can be made to yield a satisfactory revenue in true happiness and in dollars and cents.

However, the purpose of this insertion is not, primarily, to induce students to enter the Normal Department at Graceland. We wish to suggest to the great number of our fellow teachers who read these pages one way in which they may assist us in preparing these students for their work.

Each year we carry a few subscriptions to educational magazines for the benefit of our students. But of necessity, the number is limited, and the resources of our library in pedagogical literature are not all that we desire. We wish to ask teachers who are regular subscribers to educational journals and magazines, to let us know what they have, especially in volumes from 1905 to the present, that they would be willing to send to the College for our use. If we are not already supplied we will notify the donor how to ship them and upon their receipt will have them bound at our earliest convenience and placed upon our reference shelves. The standard educational magazines like Education, Educational Review, School Review, and the Elementary School Teacher are most valuable. However, state journals, and the special kindergarten, mathematical, scientific and other technical magazines have much in them that can be used as valuable additions to our library material.

What we have said of our educational magazines applies also to scientific, historical and literary magazines. Let us know what you have that you are willing to send us. But in all cases it will be best to write before shipping as duplicate volumes are usually of no especial value.

We wish, also, to suggest to the saints everywhere and especially to those who are interested in education, as officers in school districts or as patrons of the schools—that we annually prepare a score or more of young people to become really efficient teachers. Many of them desire to teach in Iowa or Missouri, but there are always some from other states. These teachers would be glad to find schools in communities of Latter Day Saints where they might have the privileges of the church and may also make valued workers in Sunday school and Religion. It is a part of Graceland's mission to prepare the young people for efficient service and we would gladly locate these teachers where they could be of service educationally and in gospel work. The ranks of our Normal alumni are constantly increasing and we have a list of some 40 or 50 teachers who have received their training partly or wholly in Graceland and who now have added years of experience and in some cases additional training at State institutions and are already filling places of responsibility in the teaching profession. If we can assist in placing these teachers where both they and the community will be mutually benefited, our services will be gladly and gratuitously rendered.

We would be pleased to enter into communication at an early date with parties who desire to see a good live Latter Day Saint teacher come into their school for the ensuing term or year. In every case we will do our best to give satisfaction. Our recommendation of a teacher is based upon our personal knowledge of the individual, preparation, and teaching ability.

This is another way in which we hope to co-operate with the general church membership to our mutual advantage. We trust by united effort the scope of Graceland's usefulness may be increased, and that more and more Graceland may come to take the place she should occupy and fulfill her mission among the Lord's people. Address all inquiries to Charles B. Woodstock, Instructor in charge of the Normal Department.

Dishman to the office of elder was approved, and these brethren were so ordained at the Sunday afternoon service. The following from the Independence Branch was read and its adoption moved: "Moved that we recommend to the state conference that the clause in the Book of Rules making the presidency of the state the presidency of the largest branch in the state, be considered and referred to General Conference with a view of having it annulled." After some discussion this substitute was adopted; "Be it resolved, that this conference petition the general conference beginning April 6, 1914, to amend the Rules of Order and Debate, page 105, sec. 170, 2d and 3d lines as follows: In the place of the words, "Branch in the city of the state, or seat of organization," substitute the word "State;" so that the resolution as amended shall read as follows: "The duties of the State Presidency are to preside over the State; have immediate charge and oversight of the general spiritual work of the State, etc." The secretary was instructed to give due notice of the proposed change in the Rules. The State Sunday School Association reported. A recommendation of the State Presidency was adopted providing for the organization of a branch at Walnut Park, Independence. It was resolved to hold a reunion in 1914, and a committee was elected composed of G. E. Harrington, J. W. Rushton, L. H. Haas, Ammon White, J. A. Tanner, A. H. Parsons, W. H. Garrett, and authorized to make all arrangements. The committee was requested to make ample provision for recreation. Holden was selected as place of next conference. Elders J. W. Rushton and R. M. Elvin preached Sunday morning and evening respectively. Sunday school being held at the usual hour in charge of local officers, and a prayer service in the afternoon in charge of the conference presidency. G. E. Harrington, Pres. of State. L. H. Haas, Sec.

SOUTH MISSOURI DISTRICT.—Conference convened with the Ava Branch on Friday Aug. 22nd and continued ten days. Brn. J. T. Davis and I. F. Cunningham presided, assisted by patriarch Ammon White and J. A. Davis, vice president of the district. Ministry reporting. Elders J. T. Davis, J. F. Cunningham, J. W. Quinley, C. T. Orr, Benj. Pearson, T. J. Timson, G. A. Davis, Fred Moser, Jr., G. W. Anderson, H. V. Braun, L. M. McFadden, Grant Burgin. Of the priests; J. W. Dubose, F. E. Gale, and J. B. Scott, and Bro. Edwards of the deacons. Branches reporting; Springfield 210 a gain of 10; Beaver 107 gain 16; Ava 103 "corrected to 98" gain 8; West Plains 57 gain 4; Thayer 39 gain 3; Grove Springs 51 gain 3; and Woodside 50 loss 1. Branches not reporting: Logan Creek, Piedmont, Naylor and Cambach.

A petition from the Ava Branch requesting the ordinations of J. A. Miller and Glen Teley to the offices of priest and teacher respectively was read and granted. Also one from the Woodside Branch requesting the ordination of Brn. C. H. Smith and W. R. Norris to the office of priest and teacher respectively, was granted and the four brethren were ordained on Sunday under the hands of J. T. Davis, Ammon White, G. A. Davis and J. F. Cunningham in the order named. The Piedmont Branch was disorganized the few saints remaining there to be enrolled with another branch. A petition was read from 27 saints near Coater Mo. requesting that conference provide for their organization into a branch. Also one from saints at Mills Spruce, making the same request. Both petitions were granted and referred to the district president and J. T. Davis of the missionaries with instructions to so organize.

Benj. Pearson as bishop's agent and district treasurer reported. For the district, receipts since March $5.00, expenses $4.03, balance 97.

As agent receipts from April to Aug. 23, 1913, $149.43, expended $126.06; balance on hand $23.38. The matter of the bishop's agent was now taken up as follows:—Whereas, our present bishop's agent resigned, at our last conference, said resignation to take effect upon the appointment of his successor and as nothing further was done in the matter, it was now voted that Bro. G. A. Davis of Thayer, be recommended to the bishop for his consideration. Bro. Davis chose as Sub Agent, J. T. Davis, J. F. Cunningham and J. W. Quinley, these names were ratified by the conference. The present officers were sustained and a vote of thanks extended to the retiring bishop's agent. Time and place of next conference March 1914 at Dagonia in Reynolds Co. to which place the conference adjourned. And the reunion was organized with the regular quorum of officers. Order of meetings, prayer school 8 a. m., prayer 9, preaching 11 a. m. Questions and lectures 2:30 p. m. and preaching at 8 p. m. A good spiritual time was enjoyed by all attending the reunion especially during the fore part, when the Spirit of prophecy and admonition was in our midst, during the last days some of the ministry began to leave, and the reports came back that they were having large audiences, which was one of the blessings promised, this was encouraging to those remaining and when we separated it was with thankful hearts to the Giver of all good. Preaching was by all the ministry present, some more, some less times, but all enjoyed the Spirit of their calling. Seven were baptized during the reunion. And many more since in the different parts of the district. Benj. Pearson, Sec.

MARRIED.

ARNOLD-NEDERVELD.—At the home of Bro. and Sr. Roy Newirk, Independence, Mo., the evening of Oct. 14, 1913, Bro. George F. Arnold and Sr. Anna M. Nederveld. Elder G. E. Harrington officiating.

DIED.

WOODFORD.—Charles Harley Woodford was born in Rushville, Indiana Dec. 8th, 1852. He resided at different times in Watertown, Ohio, Monrovia; Kans. Waterville, Kans. and Greenleaf, Kans. From Greenleaf he moved to Washington, Kansas, where he filled the office of Probate Judge for three successive terms. He became a member of the church at Washington, under the hands of W. S. Pender March 27, 1881. He was first married to Bertha V. Allen March 27th, 1881 and to them was born one son, Leroy who survives him. On June 27th, 1888 he was married to Clara Mary Hawkins, and to them were born four children, three of whom survive. He died from a paralytic stroke at Portland, Oregon September 10th, 1913.

WILSON.—Mary Lucile, oldest daughter of Brother and Sister J. D. Wilson, died July 22, 1913, at Salt Lake City, Utah, from typhoid fever. She was born in Salt Lake City, April 17, 1896, and grew up to be a noble young woman of kind and lovable disposition. She was baptized by T. W. Chaburn, March 1, 1908. She died as she had lived, firm in the faith. The funeral services were held in the Saint's new church on Fourth East, between Third and Fourth South, July 25th, John Hall being in charge; sermon by G. J. S. Abels, of Ogden. Interment in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MCCARTY.—Bro. Charles McCarty was born in Estell Co., Missouri, Feb. 14 1836. Died Sept. 16, 1913 at Holden, Mo., being 77 years 7 months and 12 days old. Had been a member of the church since June 2, 1887 when he was baptized by Emstey Curtis. He was married to Miss Sarah Krump of Boone Co., Mo., of which union twelve children were born. Funeral service has held in the saint's church Sept. 28th in charge of Elder C. E. Haad, sermon by R. O. Self. Bro. McCarty has been a resident in Holden about 30 years, and a large congregation of friends and neighbors were in attendance at the funeral. He leaves his wife, four sons and four daughters, and several grandchildren.

CHANDLER.—At South Addison, Maine. Mrs. Gurtey R. Chandler, died Sept. 21, 1910, aged 55 years, 8 months and two days, leaving a husband two boys, and two girls. Funeral sermon by Elder J. C. Foss.

HAWKINS.—William Hawkins was born in Chittenden, Gloucester, England, April 14, 1826, and departed this life September 27, 1913, being 87 years, 3 months and 5 days old. He joined the church when 15 years of age; was later ordained an elder and for many years was an able defender of the faith. He resided in and near St. Joseph for 48 years, and served in the capacity of Postmaster for 14 years, in which service he made many friends, both in and out of the church. Thus another veteran has answered the summons home. His son Frank, of Onawa, Iowa, and Mrs. Clara Martin, the only living children, were present at the funeral held at the home of Sr. Martin on Sunday, the 15th, sermon by Elder B. J. Scott. Our brother was laid to rest in beautiful Rose Hill Cemetery, Lamoni, Iowa; dismissal at the grave being by Elder D. C. White.

THOMAS.—Nancy Green was born March 18, 1842, married to Harrison Thomas Dec. 25, 1852. To this union four children were born, one boy and three girls. One daughter survives her, Sr. Lizzie Walters, of Eldorado Springs Mo. Died Sept. 5, 1913. Funeral by Geo. Jenkins, interment Virgil City Mo., cemetery.

TOUSLEY.—Carl Bryan, son of Wm and Dora Tousley was born Dec. 24, 1911, died Oct. 2, 1913, age one year nine months and eight days. He leaves father, mother, and three brothers to mourn. Funeral sermon by Geo. Jenkins, Matt. 19:15. Interment Moundgrove cemetery.

PLUMB.—Elder P. T. of the quorum of seventy, was born April 6 1881 at Worthington Minn. Died Sept 16, 1913 at Claber Wash., was baptised at Bridger, Montana 1896; was married to Br. Nellie Spurling at Springfield Mo., who with four children is left to mourn his death. Bro. Plumb was drowned while bathing in the Chehalis River at Claber Wash. Interment at Centralia, Wash. in charge of Bro. S. P. Cox. Sermon by Elder Wm. Johnson.

BURROUGHS.—Mabula J., daughter of Bro. Mason and Sr. Matilda Burgess. Born Sept. 11, 1867. Died Aug. 7, 1913 near Xenia Ill. Married Feb. 5, 1905 to Mr. Robert M. Burroughs. Baptized by S. S. Smith July 14, 1912. Buried in the Mount Pleasant Cemetery. She leaves husband, two little boys, father, mother; two sisters and eight brothers. Funeral in charge of John W. Rushton. Sermon by S. S. Smith.

JONES.—In the Lone Rock Branch, Harrison County Mo., Sept. 26, 1913, Bro. Charles H. Jones, aged eighty years one month and fifteen days. In such brief space I can only say that his service for God and his truth among the people is known far and wide among the saints in the West. He was baptized in 1861 at Marengo, Ill., by Samuel Powers; was ordained one of the Seventy April 8, 1863, and preached in many regions. By his devoted life and kindly manner he won many souls for Christ, and he died lamented by hundreds, not only saints but non-members, who gathered at his funeral, and many who could not attend. His wife and two sons survive him. He was buried in the cemetery adjoining the Lone Rock chapel. Forty saints went from Lamoni, and the most of the Evergreen members were present. Sermon by H. A. Stebbins, assisted by D. D. Young, and prayer at the grave by J. S. Snively.

BOSWELL.—At Chariton, Iowa, September 15, 1913, Ruth Maud, daughter of Alma and Martha D. Boswell, and grandchild of Bro. and Sr. Joseph Boswell, aged 4 months and 17 days. Another sweet spirit has gone home to the paradise of God. The parents brought the mortal form to Lamoni for burial and a short sermon was preached by H. A. Stebbins. Service in charge of John Smith.

ASHLAND, WIS., Oct. 6.

Dear Ensign:—We are still holding the fort with three working members and desire much that we might have an increase in numbers and a leader. I have with me an invalid sister who desires to obey God's will. May we soon have a sister here with us to do God's service, that she may obey the gospel which as yet she has never heard. I would be very grateful to anyone who knows of a person who has acquired the morphine habit, and succeeded in quitting it, to tell me how it was accomplished. The friend of mine who wishes to know has been told of death or insanity following the quitting of it so she is afraid to try. Can someone offer encouragement. Pray for us. Yours in the faith, Mabel M. Dennis.

1711 5th St. E.

A little girl wrote the following essay on boys: Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be ladies by and by. When God looked at Adam he said to himself, "Well, I think I can do better if I try again," and he made Eve. Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way the world would be girls and the rest dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy. Man was made, and on the seventh day he rested. Woman was then made and she has never rested since.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Low Viney Parker, Joplin, Mo. I am striving to grow stronger each day, and to do something that will help me and others to walk uprightly. The reunion here in August was surely grand, six were baptized, including myself, into the fold of Jesus. I am eleven years old, and my mother has belonged a number of years and is trying to live a saintly life. I ask the prayers of God's people that my brother and father may yet be united with us in the blessed gospel. I hope I may always be found a child of God.

John Brady, Womble, Ark. I held a meeting at Big Fork, Polk Co., and baptized Bro. Siten and wife, but cannot find an elder to confirm them. If an elder can come he can write to Bro. Taylor at Big Fork and he will meet him at Menu.

SALT LAKE SOUVENIR.

The ladies of the Salt Lake Branch are making Salt Lake Souvenir Salt Beads, made from the salt of the Great Salt Lake. They are offering them for sale to help pay for the recently acquired edifice, a commodious church and parsonage at 336 Fourth East Street, Salt Lake City.

These beads are very attractive, in various fast colors to suit different tastes—white, pink, red, blue, black, yellow, green, etc. They have the appearance of the California rose beads which are so universally popular. They are all handmade, the workmanship of our own ladies, who make the beads without charge to the branch, and have only to be seen to be appreciated.

The prices are 50 cents, 75 cents, $1.00, and up to $2.50 according to length desired. Will send sample neck chain prepaid to any address on receipt of fifty cents.

Officers of branches, Sunday schools, Religions, Women's Auxiliaries, and missionaries are urged to aid the Salt Lake building fund by selling these beads, which give excellent value to the purchasers.

Remittances should be made by Post Office Order.

DIVINITY IN HUMANITY.

"There's part o' the sun in an apple;
There's part o' the moon in a roe;
There's part of the flaming pleiades
In every leaf that grows.

Out of the vast comes nearness;
For the God whose love we sing
Lends a little of his heaven
To every living thing."

The creation of man in the image and likeness of God conveys the thought that God placed in man divine qualities, though undeveloped, yet susceptible of development until they have been brought to unity with God. By the admission of sin into the world qualities opposite to the nature of God were also implanted in human nature, so that from his earliest conscious life man became aware of two tendencies warring in his soul—the good and the evil. Tracing these tendencies to their original source it is discovered that the good originated in God, and the evil in Satan the enemy of God, though they may come to the individual through the multitude of ancestors from whom he has descended.

The man whose good qualities overbalance the bad is seldom heard to attribute his good qualities to heredity, but he who has an overbalancing array of bad qualities often finds justification for their exhibition in the plea of heredity. The fact remains that there are both good and evil qualities in every man, and the development or repression of them is dependent upon his own will. If the divine gift of intelligence is unused, and the divine right of free will is unexercised, the good qualities will remain in their incipency or be ultimately altogether lost, while the evil like weeds in the garden will flourish and bring forth a harvest of their kind without effort.

But the Creator has not left the implantings of the divine attributes in man to perish without care, but the divine presence is shed forth upon the world of mankind ever ready, when man's will will permit, to fan the sparks of divinity into a burning flame. Of Christ it is said that he "was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world," and the light of Christ is manifested through the Spirit which he imparts to men everywhere in proportion to the degree that they are worthy and willing to receive.

"The Spirit giveth light to every man that cometh into the world; and the Spirit enlighteneth every man through the world, that hearkeneth to the voice of the Spirit; and every one that hearkeneth to the voice of the Spirit, cometh unto God." The divine presence reaches the mind and heart of every man, and gives him discernment between right and wrong, good and evil, truth and error. It arouses every latent spark of divinity and stirs the soul to cherish and develop the good, and he who gives heed to its impulses will discover the fires of heaven burning throughout his being, consuming the dross and so magnifying the divine qualities that each day his character will more nearly approach that of his God.

On the other hand the man who spurns the promptings of this Spirit and yields to the impulses of evil thereby magnifies the evil part of his nature and lessens his susceptibility to the divine influence until there is danger of losing its presence altogether, for God has said, "He that repents not, from him shall be taken even the light which he has received, for my Spirit shall not always strive with man."

As "There's part o' the sun in an apple," so there is a part of Divinity in man, and when man's life conforms to the divine, God is glorified in him; he cometh to God obeying every commandment and ordinance. "And he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, [God] and he in him."

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

The Watchword, published at Dayton, Ohio, says, "Everybody knows about the Mormons, and after this year many thousands will know more about the fraud perpetrated upon the people by this sect, because they will have studied 'Mormonism, the Islam of America.' . . . The story of the connivance of Sidney Rigdon and Joseph Smith imposing upon the people Solomon Spaulding's stolen manuscript, is fully told in the book, which every young person should study." If the "Watchword" had read both sides of the matter and judged righteously its report would have been much different from the above. The Spalding Story manuscript has been traced from the time of its writing by the author about 1812 to its present resting place in the Oberlin library, Ohio, and at no time did Joseph Smith or Sidney Rigdon have possession of it, and there is no evidence to show that they knew of its existence, until after the publication of the Book of Mormon.

Canada is considering the digging of a canal which will extend from Lake Superior to Edmonton, Alberta. The cost is estimated to be $10,000,000, and the canal would give water conveyance to western Canada by which the country's products could be carried by steamship through the lakes to the Atlantic and foreign ports.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 18.

THE POSITION OF THE REORGANIZED CHURCH RELATIVE TO DOCTRINE AND ORGANIZATION.

With the disrupting of the church at Nauvoo in 1844 there came false doctrines and erroneous practices, and steps in organization and official procedure which were contrary to precedent and the law of the church. From the beginning of the "Reorganization" it was the effort to proceed only as the Spirit of God and the law of the church directed, and such doctrines as were found to be contrary to the law which had been previously accepted by the church in the days of Joseph Smith, Jr., were denounced, as were also all leaders who had come into prominence and power by usurpation and illegal procedure.

As early as 1853 the Lord by revelation told the ministry in Wisconsin to contend against the doctrine of polygamy which had the year before been publicly announced in Utah by Brigham Young and his associates, and said:

Polygamy is an abomination in the sight of the Lord God; it is not of me; I abhor it. I abhor it, as also the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, and the men or set of men who practice it. . . . They seek to build up their own kingdoms to suit their own pleasures, but I countenance it not, saith God. I have given my law; I shrink not from my word. . . . but my word is the same yesterday as today, and forever.—Church History, Vol. 3, p. 215.

Prior to receiving this instruction, a number of resolutions were passed upon by a conference in June 1852, one of which was:

Resolved that the whole law of the Church of Jesus Christ is contained in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

When the teachings of these books are found to be so thoroughly against the doctrine of polygamy and some others introduced by Brigham Young, it appears that the resolution to stand by the books was to stand in opposition to those doctrines which had been foisted upon that part of the church which went to the west.

This same conference also resolved "That the successor of Joseph Smith Jr., as the presiding high priest of the Melchisedec priesthood must of necessity be the seed of Joseph Smith, Jr., in fulfillment of the law and promises of God." Also that no person can lay claim to the first presidency of the church without a previous ordination. This was in renouncement of the claim of Brigham Young to the presidency who had assumed the position without an ordination. All legal ordinations of those who held to the original faith of the church were recognized, and the belief expressed that wherever six or more saints are organized according to the pattern given in the law, there the church exists.

In reaffirming their faith in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants, they reaffirmed the fundamental doctrine of the church, viz., faith, repentance, baptism of water by immersion for the remission of sins by one having authority, the baptism of the Holy Spirit through the laying on of hands, the resurrection of all men from the dead, and God's eternal judgment. Their loyalty to the government was also reaffirmed, in sharp contrast with the attitude of the people in the west whose action necessitated the sending the U. S. army there.

The Reorganized Church has held to the gospel as found in the three books and as given by its first prophet, Joseph Smith, holding that it was restored by divine power, and that when the gospel is preached in its purity the same divine power will attend it. This has been experienced by multitudes who have accepted the faith and become members of the church.

As to organization, the rule was early adopted of choosing the one having the highest authority to preside temporarily until the legal prophet should come. When Joseph Smith the son of Joseph Smith, Jr., came to the church in 1860 by direction of the Spirit, and in fulfillment of divine promises which had been made to the saints of the reorganization, he was accepted and ordained to the presidency of the high priesthood which is the presidency of the church, and has been sustained in that office to the present. Under divine direction apostles were chosen in the same manner that they had been in the original church to bear the gospel message to the world, and these were assisted by seventies, high priests, and elders; who were ordained as soon as men were properly called of God, and the demands of the work necessitated.

A bishop was appointed in accordance with the law of the church to manage the temporal affairs of the church including the finances, a department of the work the burden of which is removed from the presidency and the pastoral and missionary quorums of the church, the bishop, with other bishops appointed later having direct oversight of temporal affairs leaving all others of the ministry free to look after the spiritual affairs.

Without going into details we may say that the Reorganized Church has been careful to take no step unless it was clearly seen to be in harmony with the law of the church, and in many matters it has waited until the Lord by revelation gave specific direction before proceeding. With this policy the church has moved safely and there has never been any occasion or necessity for changing its position relative to any of its doctrines, or its organization, nor for retracing any of the important steps it has made.

OPPORTUNITY.

I heard a fellow say the other day: "Just wait until opportunity does knock at my door and I will make all the other fellows look like 30 cents." But he won't. In the first place he will never hear the gentle knock of the god of fortune. I figure it out that way because I know that a dozen alarm clocks will not rouse him in the morning. He is always late to work, when he does happen to snag a job. The fellow a good healthy alarm clock cannot rouse in time to get to work in the morning will never in the world hear the soft rap of opportunity. But this fellow lies around all day, expecting to hear the knock that will hand him a fortune. He really thinks that the reason he is down and out is because opportunity has not gotten around to him. Nine chances out of ten he would imagine it to be a neighbor who wanted him to do a small job of work, and he would refuse to go to the door. You see this fellow every day, don't you.—The Normal Student.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Several inches of snow fell on Sunday morning most of which however melted away during the day making the ground very sloppy, and making it difficult for many to get out to the services. Bishop E. L. Kelley spoke at the morning service on the law of Christ and urged the necessity of complying with the whole law including the part that applies to temporal things in order to be fully accepted of God.

The evening sermon was by Bro. T. J. Sheldon who spoke in his usual vigorous manner. Bro. and Sr. Sheldon removed to Independence some time ago.

An addition 14x15 feet has been added to the mission church at Englewood in order to make room for the increased attendance. The meetings Sunday are said to have been highly spiritual. Bro. J. C. Foss having preached in the morning and Bro. F. C. Warnk in the evening. There are some hopes of having a branch organized there before long.

Requests have been made relative to what articles are usable and desired by the Sanitarium, and Dr. Messenger gives us the following: Sheets, size 64x108 inches; pillow cases, size 22x28 inches; hand towels, bath towels, and luck or linen towels; nightshirts and night gowns in a variety of sizes which may be kept on hand ready for emergency cases and for the poor; cotton and wool blankets, and bed spreads for single beds; washable white and blue rag rugs. The Sanitarium cannot very well use anything along these lines that is not washable, hence do not send comforts, colored quilts, etc. The services of the institution are given to many who are unable to pay, for which reason a deficit is usually found at the end of each year, and any donations sent in help to keep the Sanitarium running, and dispensing help to all worthy persons who have need of its help. Farmers who can send one or more barrels of apples or potatoes will receive grateful acknowledgement; a crate of live chickens will make most any day a day of thanksgiving, (sometimes there are preachers there too). Canned fruits, jellies, etc., can also be used. Cash donations are always acceptable. Address everything to the Independence Sanitarium, Independence, Missouri.

The Parents and Teachers' Association of the Columbian School is urging the adoption of free text books in the schools of Independence. A recent law in Missouri authorizes any school district by majority vote election to adopt free text books, and the state also grants a portion of the expense amounting in Independence to $865.70. Kansas City adopted the plan this year, and a number of other towns and cities in the state. The matter is being considered in several schools and may result in an election.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Sunday school attendance 177, collections $3.90. At the 11 o'clock preaching hour Bro. Alvin Martin was the speaker, fresh from the missionary field, and alive to the work. His subject was, "Works."

The afternoon prayer service was very well attended, and a very active part was taken by all present, all partook of the inspiration of the hour.

At 7:30 p. m. preaching by Bro. J. W. Metcalf, a missionary worker, from the seventh verse of the 19th Psalm, He also used Isa. 6:9,10, having particular reference to repentance which leads to works or obedience, not the kind spoken of so often as merely belief. He held that the gospel furnishes sufficient enjoyment to all who do the Master's will.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Arthur Clem, Thompsonville, Ill. I enjoy reading the many letters in the ENSIGN and Herald. I have been in the faith of the saints for two years, having been baptized by S. H. Fields and have never regretted the step though some of my friends, including my wife do not agree with me. I am glad of the interest some of the elders and saints have taken in sending her literature, for I feel if any body on earth ought to agree it is husband and wife. We have seven children who need the gospel taught them, and I ask the prayers of the saints.

Mrs. E. Griffin, Bridgeton, Mich. The ENSIGN is all the preacher we have here and I would not like to do without it. There are only myself and a crippled brother of the church here and we both look for it every week.

Mrs. A.A. Dowers, Boyd, Okla. I enjoy reading the good letters and sermons, and feel as though I couldn't get along without the ENSIGN. Being isolated it is such a comfort to my soul. We have suffered a severe drouth in this part of western Oklahoma this year, there being very little grain raised, but people generally have enough roughness to feed their stock through the winter. Times are very close and many are discouraged. There are farms that can be bought for half of what they could have been bought for a year ago. We are still hoping and praying that the work of the gospel will be opened up here ere long.

J. S. Burke, Staberry, Mo. Having read a few letters in regard to the church debt, I write a few lines. I think quite a few can spare more than a dollar per week considering their nice homes, and clothing, and the luxuries for which they spend so much. It is the poorer sisters and brothers who make sacrifices in order to pay money for church expenses, the others do not miss what they pay in, for they have what they want anyway, while the real poor do not have what they need.

C. J. Spurlock, Independence, Mo. At the general conference of 1905 I was released from missionary work, since which time my health has been so poor that I have done but little preaching. I was at the sanitarium for more than a year, and by the blessing of God am able once more to do some preaching. Bro. Cornelius Edwards and I visited Atherton where we preached in the hall during the week.

Bro. and Sr. M. L. and J. D. Stillwell, Sulphur Springs Texas. We are still in the faith though isolated from any branch, and want the prayers of the saints that we may hold out faithful and have oil in our lamps when the Savior comes. We are very lonesome here and wish an elder would come and preach for us. He can have a home with us as long as he wants to stay.

Mrs. Joseph Gibbs, Hiawatha, Kas. Please find enclosed $5.00, one dollar for the ENSIGN and five dollars to help pay off the church debt. I hope the brothers and sisters will all cast in their mite, so that the Lord's storehouse will be full and running over. When I read such letters as Bro. Samuel Simmons' it makes me sad to think there is so much money spent for things we could do without. I love this latter day work and wish I lived where I could attend church, I am all alone. Let us pray for more laborers to be sent into the field, and let us sacrifice more for the Master.

Mr. E. S. Choate, Johnson City, Ill. There are no saints around here, and I would be glad to have some one to come. We would welcome them.

W. J. Birkhead, Jr., Houston, Tex.—The people in this place are rather prejudiced and the work moves along slowly. Bro. Aylor just spent ten days with us, and I am sure that all who heard him preach enjoyed the sermons very much. One was baptized. We also had the pleasure of being organized into a branch with a full set of officers. Bro. T. E. Jett was called to the office of priest and Bro. Sheldon Armstrong to the office of deacon. We are still holding meetings at 210 E. Ninth Ave., at ten o'clock each Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. A. Bing, Rolla, Morton Co., Kans.—We are away out here in Western Kansas trying to hold down a claim which is very hard for a poor person with a family to do. My companion has been compelled to be away from home the most of the time, and also my eldest daughter which makes it lonesome for those that remain at home. The present is the most lonesome time that we have had to experience because of the loss of our darling baby girl. We have had many friends in our sickness and bereavement for which I feel very thankful, and we feel that God watches over his people. I am trying to live right though I fail in many things. We have no meetings here, and I wish an elder would come this way. We live five miles north of Rolla which is on the new Santa Fee R.R. We ask the saints to pray for us.

J. H. Lester, Tuttle, Okla.—I am still trying to be faithful to my calling, for the path which leads to eternal life is truly a blessed path to walk in. I wish that we each one would realize that the growth of the church in spirituality and the spread of the gospel in convincing power depends upon our living faithful to our calling, and if we should observe the commandments in fuller degree we would have more strength with the Lord in the healing of the sick, and the spiritual gifts would undoubtedly be made manifest. I ask an interest in your prayers that I may be able to continue faithful.

J. C. Foss, Bar Harbor, Maine.—Since I last wrote I have been very busy about my Master's business. I am now on my way home. Last Sunday I listened to a very fine sermon from Apostle Paul M. Hansou and I feel to say "God bless Saint Paul."

Elsie Coleman, Winslow, Ind.—We are of the isolated ones and know how to enjoy the letters in the ENSIGN. It is all the preacher we have, though Bro. Halb and Moler were with us about a week ago and held several meetings and had good crowds and some seem to be interested. Bro. Halb baptized our daughter who is twelve years old, and we desire to teach her the way of truth. We have not helped on the church debt yet but we feel it a duty for every one and will do what we can knowing that God will bless us for so doing.

Mrs. Mollie McClain, Winthrop, Ark. Bro. J. T. Riley held thirteen days' meeting at this place in September and I think did some good. Some of the people said they heard more Bible in one sermon than they had heard in all of their lives. He baptized two at the close of the meeting an old lady and one young married lady.

Dr. George M. Hiles, Columbus, Texas. Five months ago I opened my doors for business in this town, about 2,000 population, and am the only saint here. A week ago I had a visit from Bro. Aylor, he stopped off on his way from San Antonio to Houston. One thing is certain, that an isolated saint that is striving to retain hold on the gospel, appreciates a visit from one of God's servants, more than those who have daily association with them, if we stop and ask the question, "why this? or why that?" who can answer? The reason why God permits certain conditions to obtain in the lives of some of his children; I am at sea; unless it is the only way in which we can know our weaknesses. Who is there that has partaken of the spirit of the gospel, who has not been made to feel the spirit of the adversary of our souls? Those who are surrounded by the fostering care of the church, don't know or see what there is going on in the world.

Elder R. Elvin wrote from Stewartsville Mo., of the reunion held August 15-24: Weather conditions were most unfavorable on account of the prolonged drouth, nevertheless the program was carried out with courage and trustfulness. The word was preached by Elders C. W. Etridge, E. L. Henson, John Ely, B. J. Scott, M. F. Gowell, Robert M. Elvin, E. L. Kelley, W. P. Pickering, F. A. Smith, J. A. Tanner, J. W. Rushton, R. Bullard, F. C. Keck and S. A. Burgess. The prayer services were earnest, peaceful and uplifting in their manifestations, confirming the promises of the past and directing in the duties and responsibilities of the membership. The voice of the Spirit by two unto the saints was that in seeking the physical blessings they had not displeased the Lord, but the present necessity, is a revival, a spiritual revival, and a faithful discharge of every obligation and duty, and that none should lurk under existing conditions to freely and liberally sustain the church that the truth of the gospel might go to many who are now hedged with spiritual blindness. A reunion for 1914 was provided for, and the purchase of the grounds was referred to a committee.

F. F. Whipper, Chicago, Ill. September 1st the saints of the Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois Districts separated from one of the most successful reunions ever held. It was held at Belvidere. In addition to the local force we were favored with Elders D. Macgregor, Bishop Blackwell, Apostle J. F. Curtis, and Evangelist W. A. McDowell and F. G. Pitt. Six new members were added by baptism. The auxiliary work was handled by Bro. Macgregor and the college was represented by Bro. Floyd McDowell of Graceland's faculty. One evening a lecture on "The Ancient American Record" was given, illustrated by over 100 beautiful stereoscopic views, and on Saturday evening Elder Pitt lectured on the Holy Land, also illustrated.

E. A. Erwin, Dalby Springs, Texas. Our reunion with about 150 campers was a grand success. Bro. Wm. Aylor and John Harp in charge, who with Bro. Ammon white, V. L. Lund, Willie Peacock, and the writer did the preaching which was of a high order. The attendance some evenings reached as high as six hundred. Bro. White gave quite a number of patriarchal blessings which the saints highly appreciated. Nine were baptized and after the reunion nine others making 18 in all. The saints were built up in the gospel and hundreds of non-members heard the angel's message which they will never forget. May the Lord bless all.

Fannie Reed, Washington, Okla. We have been blessed with a series of meetings by Bro. A. H. Christensen, a young man that we feel is an able defender of the gospel. It was a spiritual feast to the isolated saints. He conducted three souls into the kingdom of God, and afterwards the Baptist people wouldn't baptize in "that Mormon hole," but we above to not so good a place to do their baptizing. The Calumet reunion was the first I ever attended and it was a feast to my soul. It filled my heart with thankfulness to my heavenly Father. Dear saints, remember us in your prayers.

Robert C. Conoly, Clover Bar, Alta. I take pleasure in letting you know how much the ENSIGN helps me while I am isolated. I was impressed to come up here to Alberta, near Edmonton. There are no L. D. S. but I found some warm friends, and some of them I hope will some day be true Latter Day Saints. I have been laboring very hard since coming here for the good of the cause, but I am only a member and can do only preparatory work. I am fasting each Sunday and hope that the Lord may enable me to do my full duty.

CORRESPONDENCE

DAVIDSON, Okla., Oct. 12.

Dear ENSIGN:—This has been a year of trials and disappointments to me. I have been undergoing the trials of affliction, not been able to do much missionary work. I was delighted with my mission this year, the Central Oklahoma District, but have not been able to go to my field. My health failed me in April while I was in Central Texas finishing up my year of missionary work for 1912. I contracted something like rheumatism and I have been suffering both in body and mind ever since. I have not lost interest in the work, and have done all I could in and around home, and have been blessed in my preaching. I hope and pray the Lord will bless me and that I may be able to do some good while I live. I love the work and enjoy trying to tell the angel's message to the people. I hope the saints and friends of my mission will remember me in their prayers—that the Lord will bless me with health, so I may be able to assist in warning the people.

For the benefit of some of the saints I desire to say that my family have not received a dollar of their allowance this conference year, from the Bishop or his agents. We have not asked for it, nor do we want it. Our love for the work is of that kind that we have made great sacrifice. My family have worked while I was in my mission field and I have worked every day and preach at night and was thankful to the Lord for health to do so; it is not the dollars and cents we are after, it is to do good, and honor God and keep his commandments.

I love the work and all the saints and do honor God's law. Now dear saints, pray for me that I may have grace and strength to endure to the end. Your brother in gospel bonds,

B. F. Renfro.

HAZARL, Ohio, Oct. 8, 1913.

Dear ENSIGN:—Bro. C. E. Bozarth came July 21st, held a series of meetings at the school house, then went three miles from here and he and Bro. W. C. Hidy held meetings. sixteen were baptized here at Hazaral.

Bro. N. L. Booker came through and stopped two days and spoke at the school house. Bro. C. E. Bozarth and Bro. W. C. Hidy held meetings a few nights at the Portland school house. There has been more interested than ever before. But there has been a few on Satan's side. Two men and two women were arrested for disturbing the meetings. One man stabbed the constable. One man has paid his fine, it was $18. The other is out on bonds (the man $500, the women $300 apiece) awaiting their trial. Bro. C. E. Bozarth and Bro. W. C. Hidy left here Oct. 2. I think there are some that will be baptized when an elder comes.

Your sister in Christ,
Sarah M. Mosier.

ST. JAMES, Mo., Sept. 12.

Dear ENSIGN:—You come to us weekly and you are all the preacher we have here as we are isolated saints; but you are a source of comfort to us. I feel that my health is a great blessing from God, and I feel that "Faith without works is dead being alone." I see that some of the faithful ones are sending in a dollar a month to help pay the church debt, and I will help. Enclosed please find six dollars.

Mrs. M. S. Omatia.

BALD KNOB, Ark., Oct. 14.

Editor Ensign:—The battle between Elder J. T. Riley of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and Elder J. B. Lashlee of the Church of Christ is over so far as their part is concerned, but it is still mentioned on the street corners. It was held at Fisher, Ark., beginning September 30th and lasting twelve sessions. Nothing out of the ordinary happened until the said J. B. Lashlee offered to prove his proposition by a pugilistic display. But however the spirit for good prevailed and everything assumed its normal condition and the discussion moved on nicely, until the moderator's pugnacity was aroused and he invited Bro. Riley to meet him on the streets next morning and he would settle the matter with him. Lashlee contended that the L. D. S. Church was not perfectly organized before Pentecost as it did not have any deacon in it. So Bro. Riley turned the evidence on him and showed him that the same evidence could be used against his church. He (Lashlee) claimed that there were no deacons until those chosen in Acts 6:1-7. But when he found that this position was fatal to his church he passed on to more congenial fields.

He readily admitted an apostasy in the beginning of the discussion, but when Bro. Riley pressed it upon him to tell when his church came out of the wilderness and by whom, he said that he did not know when it went in or when it came out. "So it is very plain to see that he is yet in the wilderness "wandering about in sheepskins and goatskins; being destitute, afflicted, [and] tormented." (Hebrews 11:37.) At the close of the debate everybody on both sides seemed to be in a good humor.

The people's appreciation of the defense of the angel's message was manifest by decorating Bro. Riley with ribbons and five dollar bills. "But the end is not yet." The wise (?) men were called together and they "did so with their enchantments." (Exodus 7: 11). So Elder Lashlee was decorated in like manner.

Bro. Walter Christensen and the writer remained over after the debate and poured the healing balm on the sore places. There are some near the kingdom at that place and we hope that ere long they may come into the fold. We began meetings at this place last night with only a few of the saints out to hear.

We wend our way from here to the southern parts of our field. May the Lord help us all to work together toward the building up of Zion. Yours for the onward move of truth.
James M. Smith.

OOLAGAH, Okla., Oct. 20.

Editor Ensign:—So many saints wanted me to write and let them know how I got along after I got out in the field. My health is good and I am doing fine, and I am busy in the Master's work and have been ever since I left Independence.

I only got to stay at home one night when I was called to Iuka, Kansas, to administer to the sick. While there I baptized Dr. Athol Cochran's boy, Virgil. Sunday, October 19th, I baptized nine in Four Mile Creek in the outskirts of Oolagah, and would have baptized one more but sickness prevented.

When the converts bid us good bye they all wept, and we shed tears too. My wife was with me. We attended the conference at Vera, Okla. Oh! the love that is in the gospel, it is stronger than the ties of our own kin, when not in the church. I preach here tonight then go to Wimer, Okla. I am so thankful to God that I am able to preach again.

In gospel bonds,
F. C. Keck.

ALTON Mo. Sept. 26.

Dear Ensign:—Failing to see anything in your paper about South Mo. conference and reunion thought perhaps a few lines from my pen would not be amiss. I don't think I ever attended a reunion that I felt more of the Spirit of the Savior than I did at Ava Mo., although the prospect for a good meeting looked discouraging at first. But man's extremity is God's opportunity. The saints from all over the district came with the same Spirit, that was to have a good conference and reunion. The preaching was spiritual and uplifting.

Bro. G. A. Davis, J. T. Davis, T. F. Cunningham, Fred Mosier, J. W. Duboise, Ammon White, Ben. J. Pearson and L. M. McFadden, were the speakers. The prayermeetings were fine and well attended, the saints in the Ava Branch seemed to do all they could to make the meeting a success.

I have been in the Ozarks since the 1st of August and I surely enjoyed visiting with my husband and the saints of the South Mo. District, a privilege that some of us sisters that have missionaries for husbands don't often enjoy. I have noticed when he begins a meeting in a neighborhood where there is a good interest, the evil one has work there also.

We are three and one-half miles north of Alton, begun meetings in the saints church in the Woodside Branch. There has not been any meeting there for some time. I could not help feeling like it was left there to decay, all alone and forgotten. Most of the saints of the branch are scattered and they hold their prayermeetings in the private homes. We, are at present making our home with Bro. and Sr. Simpson they are fine people and alive to this work also Bro. and Sr. W. R. Norris with whom we have just had a nice and pleasant visit. My husband is busy most all the time when not preaching there are outsiders who are ready to tackle this gospel and of course he, like all the rest that are sent out to teach this gospel like to be busy.

We have visited the famous springs known as Greer Spring, Mo. and Mammoth Springs, Ark., said to be two of the largest springs in the world. There is a flour mill and a large electric plant run by the water that flows away from the Mammoth Springs, also a flour mill at Greer Spring. For fear my letter is getting too lengthy and find its way to the scrap basket, will close, asking ever to be remembered in the prayers of the saints.

Your sister in the gospel,
Mrs. L. M. McFadden.

MILL SPRINGS, Mo., Sept. 18.

Editor Ensign:—It is such a pleasure to me to read your valuable pages, especially the letter department. I always wish there were more letters to read, and the idea has lately occurred to me that there may be others like me, in the matter so I will write a few lines from this part.

We are an isolated band of saints here, having no church privileges, but the Lord has blessed the work wonderfully here of late. Nearly two years ago, I was baptized into the church, against great opposition, and remained a lone member for almost a year, but now, thanks be to our heavenly Father, there are twelve souls in the neighborhood, most of whom are my relatives, including my mother, and an aunt, my wife, her father and mother and a sister.

We hope to organize a branch in the near future, that we may more faithfully do the will of our Father.

Elder R. H. Counts has lately been with us for a series of thirteen sermons in which he did a power of good for the cause, baptizing three and making friends for the cause in every quarter.

Saints and strangers alike love Elder Counts and are all sorry that his field of labor in Arkansas this year, to which place he went from here. If any of the South Missouri elders are passing by, we would be more than pleased to have them stop with us.

May the work continue to grow in the earnest prayer of an humble brother.

Wesley Gibbs.

LACONA, Iowa, Sept. 12.

Editor Ensign:—As I have often been encouraged by reading the letters in your valuable paper, am contributing one of my own, with the hope that it may strengthen some other brother or sister.

A year ago this summer I was taken seriously ill, for several days there seemed to be but little change, but on Sunday morning I was much worse, suffering great pain which the Doctor was unable to relieve. While in this condition I was impressed with the thought—call the elders and have them administer to you. Bro. J. R. Evans was visiting the Graceland Branch at the time and at our request came and administered to me in the morning, also again in the afternoon, and God in his loving mercy heard and answered our prayers, I at once made a change for the better, and for several days was almost free from all suffering. We all believed I would soon be well again. But it was not time yet, or we may not have been as thankful as we should have been, for I again grew worse and for weeks there was but little hope for my recovery. Bro. J. R. Evans, also Bro. John Garver administered to me a number of times. I was always greatly benefited and received many spiritual blessings, at one time receiving the assurance, I had nothing to fear from the operation that at last seemed necessary to save my life, and although I went down in the valley of the shadow of death my recovery was rapid, and I wish to express my gratitude to God for his watchful care. for I know that only by his power my life was saved.

I acknowledge his goodness to me, and hope to show by increased love for the work that I am indeed thankful. I ask an interest in your prayers that I may ever be found trying to keep God's commandments.

Your sister in the faith,
Mae Curtis.

LYOUD, Wis., Sept. 28.

Editor Ensign:—I take this way to express my heartfelt thankfulness of my heavenly Father's goodness and kindness to me and my loved one in this great cause we all love so well. Tonight (Sept. 28) will close a series of meetings being held in a tent here by Bro. L. O. Wildermuth and J. A. Bronson. I tried to get the church to hold some meetings in but they let Bro. Wildermuth hold just one meeting. So we had the tent sent here and they have been here about two weeks and considering the wet and cold have had fairly good attendance. This used to be the old stamping ground of the Willow Branch years ago. But the people here now as a rule think the Latter Day Saints and the Mormons are all one. But I think those that heard the sermon last night will think about something today. Elder J. A. Bronson did fine.

My family and Bro. Griffen and wife are the only saints here. It has done us so much good to have the brethren come here. It is the bread of life for us. We would like to have some elder come and preach to us often, I will see if I can hire the hall a few nights for any one that will come. If you are led to come, write A. J. Fisher, Lyoud, Wis., and I will see what can be done.

We ask an interest in your prayers that we may be faithful unto the end in our isolated condition. I would like to get where we could attend meetings and Sunday school if it is God's will. I am rural carrier out of Lyoud, but I would give that up if we could only get among our own people. May God bless you all in the prayer of your humble servant.

A. J. Fisher.

FAIRVIEW, Mont., Sept. 21.

We read so many letters in the ENSIGN written by our brothers and sisters all over the land, describing all manner of conditions, that we thought it might be well for us to add our mite in this respect.

Being attracted by free homestead land, we moved here the spring of 1908 from South Dakota. It seems that the Lord had a hand in directing us here, for up to that time we had never had the opportunity of hearing the true gospel. At that time there was but one family of saints any where near. Bro. and Sr. Newby. They were the means of getting missionaries in here and thus planting the seed of gospel truth.

Bro. J. E. Wildermuth was the first one to break the "bread of life" unto us, in the spring of 1909. Later Bro. Wm. Sparling and Hale Smith came and as a result of their efforts nine were baptized, eight of whom have moved to other states and in June of this year one sister was called to the other side.

In the summer of 1911, Bro. W. P. Boottman was directed by the Lord to come to Fairview and as a result of his efforts, eight more came through the waters of baptism to walk in "newness of life." Three of these however were baptized by Bro. T. E. Fitzwater, now of Oklahoma.

In October of last year, under the supervision of Bro. W. P. Boottman and A. J. Moore a branch was organized here known as the Fairview Branch, having twelve members with an elder and two priests and a teacher Bro. R. Newby being the presiding officer, at the same time a branch was organized twenty-two miles west of here, known as the Culbertson Branch, with about twenty members, but the membership is much more than that now.

In May of this year Bro. Newby baptized two more, a young man and his wife and since then the young brother has been called by direct revelation to the office of elder, and about a month ago another young man was ordained to the office of deacon, so now we have a full set of officers, and this gives an idea of the way the work is progressing here.

We have Sunday school every Sunday at 11 o'clock prayermeeting following, and preaching every second and fourth Sunday of the month, by local officers. Bro. Newby has appointments every Sunday at other places.

We wish to add our testimony as to the divinity of the Latter Day Gospel, for verily we have seen the promises made in Mark 16:11, 28 fulfilled in our branch, also the gifts promised in 1 Cor. 12:8-10.

In our preaching services, many times the word comes in power and much assurance, at other times the Spirit is withheld completely, so will say a word of encouragement to those who are just starting out to deliver the gospel message, don't be discouraged if you fail at times, evidently the time will come when you will have much liberty.

The Lord has recently blessed us by sending Bro. W. R. Smith in our midst, he has been delivering the sweet gospel story, with much power and enthusiasm, we surely feel strengthened by his efforts, and will say to any that have an opportunity to hear him that you cannot afford to miss a single sermon.

We trust that the work may grow and prosper and that many may come to the knowledge of the true and living God.

I am yours for the gospel,
B. D. Stratton.

SWEDENBORG, Mo., Oct. 2.

Dear Ensign:—As we are two old people with no saints near us we could hardly get along without your weekly cheering visits to cheer us on our way. You have been our weekly visitor for lo, these many years, so please do not forsake nor leave us alone to starve for the bread of life. We are doing what we can, scattering our books, ENSIGNS, HERALDS, talking some and find some few listeners. So please come for another year and oblige.

We are sending our little mite to help square the church with the world trusting, and with the knowledge that God will bless us for the same. We belong to the Joplin Branch. Trusting that God will provide aid as one of old said, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." So let us live the life of the righteous that we may be prepared to depart from this life the same. Ever praying for Zion's welfare and the gathering of Israel, we are

W. A. and C. Doty.

GARFIELD, Ark., Sept. 27.

Editor Ensign:—Before we leave this place we give a few items. In company with Bro. and Sr. D. L. Lewis of Lowell, we came and administered to Mrs. Mildred Walker, who had been sick for sometime and the Lord blessed her and she was baptized. Since that time I returned, Bro. Lewis again accompanying me rendering appreciated assistance, and as a result of this second effort three were baptized and another young lady gave her name for baptism, but her father objected so she meekly yielded to persuasion. We trust that the Lord may keep her until a more opportune time. There are others, we think, who are very near the kingdom. This is a new place and should be looked after.

Satan is not altogether chained in these parts as was manifested by his imps getting in a "stone's throw" of the house, in which we were preaching, more than once, and also pistol shots. But no one was hurt. So the work is finding its way into the extreme mountains of Arkansas. We go from here to Fisher, Ark., to help what we can in the debate that begins Sept. 30th between Bro. J. T. Riley and a man by the name of Lashlee of the Christian Church.

With a silent prayer that God may send more laborers into his vineyard, I am your brother in the gospel,
James M. Smith.

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 12.

Dear Ensign:—I have been reading the letters from Bro. Gibbs and others of the resolve to pay one dollar a month for five months or more. I think it a good plan and all can do this in the church probably except the children. We sometimes wait till we can do great things, but as Lucy Sears says it is the potent little things that will count at the last day,—what we have done,—not what we are going to do.

We will pay one dollar a month for six months to our bishop's agent. I am more interested in the church debt and all the other interests of the church work than I am in the latest styles in dress, which are a disgrace to womanhood. It has become necessary for our Lord to speak from the heavens above of the church debt. Saints, it can be paid this conference year if all will rally to their sense of duty. You who can pay more than others will help those that have not even a dollar to pay.

Do we love this gospel? If so let our deeds compare with our words. Let us give him a whole-hearted service, for any thing else will not be accepted.

Our Father has given us the Word of Wisdom and promised health if we will heed it. Do we deny ourselves of those things he asks us to? If not, we cannot expect the blessing. Our family uses neither tea nor coffee and very sparingly of meat—not any to speak of in warm weather. We enjoy the promises of the Lord.

Yours in the faith,
Blanche Reynolds.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

Synopsis of a sermon by Elder O. R. Miller.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matt. 6:33.

The kingdom of God is his properly organized church upon the earth, therefore, something which man enters rather than a something that enters man's heart. I shall first remove an error of tradition. In Luke 17:20,21 you will notice that Jesus, in reply to a question, informs some people that the kingdom of God cometh not with observation but that it is within them. It might be well for us to examine this text at least close enough to learn whom Jesus was speaking to. My friends. He was speaking to the Pharisees—a people that he had called liars, hypocrites, whited sepulchres filled with dead men's bones, etc.

Do you think the kingdom of God could be in the hearts of such people? No. The Spirit of God will not dwell in unholy temples. The marginal rendering says, "among" instead of "within." The kingdom of God, then, was evidently among them.

That is Christ's organized church consisting of apostles, prophets, elders, etc., was in their midst. It was not going to come as the Jews expected it to i. e., like a mighty army to take the Roman power by force. But rather an organized church, quietly doing an effective work among them. If you will read Matt. 23:12 you will learn that the kingdom of God is something that you may enter into. Men are now learning a truism that Christ zealously heralded to the world i. e., "nothing can be carried on without organization." The 'trusts' are organized to accumulate wealth. The laborer must be organized to prevent a complete monopoly of the air.

Organization and order spells success. Jesus knew it. He went into the mountain and prayed and consulted with God all night. He came down and called his disciples together. He chose twelve of them to be apostles. (Luke 6:12,13). Later a quorum of seventy was organized. And so the good work rolled on till, according to the different writers of the New Testament the beautiful organization stood out in splendor and glory with apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, bishops, elders, priests, teachers and deacons. The church was alive with the apostolic gifts and blessings. The terrible dark day of apostasy soon began to thunder within and without. The apostles and prophets, with the laity were persecuted till the good were destroyed from the earth and nothing but corruption remained. The authority was taken from the earth. We claim it was restored less than a century ago by the hand of an angel. I know there are the claims to succession and reformation. If the church of Christ is upon the earth today it will be organized as it was under the apostolic reign.

The gifts and blessings will be manifest and the same gospel proclaimed. Paul proclaimed it, declaring the principles to be: "Faith, repentance, baptisms (water and the Spirit), the laying on of hands, etc." (Heb. 6.) And in Galatians 1, he forbids men, yes angels from teaching another gospel. Now, suppose you should start out in search of a man. You enter the streets, amid the throng. A policeman should ask you what kind of a man you were searching for? Oh, you don't know—just a man. Well, is his hair red, light or black? Haven't any description—I'm just looking for a man. The police would reply: "Come with me, we have places for the insane." Well, what about it? Do you think Christ would advise a man to search for his kingdom among all the earthly kingdoms, and to go blindly out among more than a thousand different denominations in the world without a description of the kingdom sought for? Never! But he left us a pattern, more valuable than gold—the New Testament. Take it kind hearer and with a prayerful heart and an open mind go in search of the kingdom of God. We argue that: God being unchangeable, and Jesus the Christ being the same yesterday, today and forever (Heb. 13:8), God being no respecter of persons (Acts 10:34), that if his church is upon the earth today, it will be the same in organization, doctrine and practice and life will be manifest by the gifts of the gospel.

Paul uses the physical body as an illustration and argues that it would not be complete with one member less. See 1 Cor. 12. Now, in the 27th and 28th verses he declares to the saints at Corinth: "Ye are the body of Christ;" then says "God hath set some in the church; first, apostles; secondarily, prophets, etc., then the gifts." It takes "all" for the body (church) of Christ. We claim the ancient church was completely destroyed because of wickedness. Priesthood authority was taken back to heaven, therefore a restoration was necessary. In Rev. 14:6,7 John informs us that he saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven with the everlasting gospel to preach to men. The fact of it being delivered from heaven proves it was not here. It was to be restored by this angel in the hour of God's judgment—the eleventh hour—present hour or dispensation.

If man had not transgressed, no doubt there would have been a succession of apostles and all officers and the gifts retained. I heartily agree with Rev. John Wesley wherein he says; "These gifts did not cease because there was no more occasion for them but because the world had turned heathen again and had only a dead form left." See his 94th sermon in Vol. 2, page 266. Paul declared in 1st Cor. 13, "that charity would never fail but prophecies and tongues would. Let us examine that text and see if we can learn in what way they were to cease and when.

In the very same verse where he declares that prophecies shall fail and tongues cease, he also says that "knowledge shall vanish away." Is there one who will admit that "knowledge" has vanished away or that it ever will? Never. Paul says in the very next verse that we know "in part" and prophecy "in part" and in verse 10 he says "when that which is perfect is come then that which is 'in part' shall be done away." That is, we now work with a partial knowledge, we enjoy some prophecies, etc., but when Christ comes to earth again, then "part knowledge and prophecy, etc., shall be done away. But how?

It shall pass into a complete knowledge just as Paul states in the following verses by his illustration—"Growing to manhood." When Christ (the perfect Being) shall come, we will all speak a perfect, pure language, and prophecy shall grow into the absolute presence of Christ while knowledge shall grow from a "partial" till we shall know as we are known. What joy when the smoked glass which causes so much misunderstanding, rending heart-aches and sorrow, shall be cleared by the brilliant and holy presence of the Lamb of God! And friends, when someone tries to inform you that there were just twelve apostles and no more, you gently tell them that the Bible records that there were eighteen or twenty in the ancient church, who evidently were called by heaven, into line. As the members of the original twelve passed from their earthy service, others took their places.

In Eph. 4 Paul tells us just how long the officers, including the apostles, were to remain in the church and what their mission to man is. In the eleventh verse he names some of them and in the twelfth he begins by saying, "They are for the perfecting of the saints. So a saint is not necessarily a perfect being, but the church is to help perfect them. Heavenly saints may be perfect, while the earthly may not be. Verse 13 tells us that they are to remain "till we all come to a unity of the faith." Are we there yet? No! Over a thousand different denominations and creeds, all differing. Do we need apostles, prophets and apostolic gifts today? If humanity ever needed them, we surely do in this age, for in the 14th verse Paul says, "They are to keep us from being tossed about by every wind of doctrine and deceived by every impostor!" Men today are being tossed about by numerous "isms" and when, oh, when will they find safe anchorage? Not until they cease worshipping priestcraft and begin to study and search for themselves. John the Revelator speaks of the church as the bride and Christ as the bride's groom. When Christ returns he will expect to find her with a complete organized body, i. e., He will expect to find the church fully organized and alive with the gifts of the gospel. The twelve thrones for the apostles will no doubt be spacious enough to seat a hundred quorums, if necessary, just as Christ's throne will accommodate all who prepare themselves (Rev. 3:21.) May God help us to be students of his word and obedient to his law that we may be partakers of his promised blessings.

THE CATHOLIC PARTY IN MEXICO.

The Catholic party in Mexico has nominated as its candidate for the presidency Frederico Gamboa, a man of intelligence and character, and of distinction in Mexican affairs. President Huerta has practically pledged his support to Gamboa, which fact gives confidence to many members of the Catholic party that Gamboa will be elected on the 26th inst.

The puzzling question to outsiders is: Why, since all Mexicans are Catholics, is there a Catholic party as opposed to other factions? Or, rather, why is there any but a Catholic party? That is getting down to one of the vital and fundamental causes of the trouble in Mexico.

It is the old story of church and state. First, the cohesion and inter-dependence of the two powers, and later, the struggle to separate them. We have seen it carried to a conclusion in several European countries that are older in Christianization than Mexico, but during the greater part of the last 100 years these countries have been more open to influences outside the church than Mexico. The "open door" was practically established in Mexico by the railroads—the Mexican railway between Mexico City and Vera Cruz, in 1873, and the Mexican Central railway, from the capital to the Northern border, in 1884.

Before that decade, almost all communication with Mexico had been by sea, through the Gulf of Mexico and across the Atlantic to Spain and other European countries, and across the Pacific to the Philippines. For 300 years the Catholic Church held undisputed sway in Mexico, appropriating to itself such vast landed possessions, and such rich tribute of the precious metals and gems that, taken together with the taxes levied by Spain, the sum was more than the people could pay. History repeated itself. They rebelled and declared themselves independent.

In 1910 Mexico celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of that declaration, first proclaimed by the Patriot Hidalgo at Queretara. Even before that agitation for the restriction of the power of the Catholic Church had begun in Mexico.

The Jesuits who first established and fostered seats of learning in Mexico were suppressed as early as 1767, though they were re-established later and flourished for another half century. The first laws aimed at the clergy and the church were passed by the Liberal congress of 1833, but it was not until Juarez became president, in 1859, that Mexico had a man at the helm strong enough to enforce action against these mighty powers. Juarez's predecessor, Comonfort, issued a decree ordering the sale of church property, and suppressed the Franciscan monks.

Juarez proclaimed the "Laws of the Reform" in force, and executed them. All religious orders were suppressed; monks and nuns were forbidden to appear on the streets in their uniform costumes, and the populace was no longer expected to kneel and uncover when a priest passed by. The church property was sold and the money retained by the church, but the innumerable monasteries were put to other uses, and streets were cut through the immense walled inclosures belonging to the church in the capital and other cities.

Then came the "empire," and Maximilian and Carlotta reigned their brief three years, from 1864 to 1867. On June 21, 1867, General Porfirio Diaz captured the City of Mexico and Juarez was re-established, but he did not last long. Diaz again entered the city at the head of a revolutionary army, in November, and was proclaimed provisional president, and the following May was declared constitutional president. Throughout Diaz's successive terms of office, covering a period of thirty years, the Liberal party has been in power. It is freely said in the City of Mexico that Porfirio never entered a church while he was president. Of course, he and all of his supporters were born and educated in the Catholic Church, but the majority of these men were not willing to permit the control of the financial and civil policy of the government to revert to the church.

It should not be taken for granted that there have been no struggles on the part of the clericals to regain the upper hand. The attempts have been numerous, and the political contest has gone on much as it does in our country. There is ever a watchful eye, and every loophole must be guarded.

Just now the whole of political Mexico and all of the United States are familiar with the latest attempt by the Catholic party to place an entering wedge in the cabinet. A member of the Mexican congress who is an acknowledged leader in the Catholic party was appointed by President Huerta to the head of the department of education. The congress refused to excuse him from his seat, and he was obliged to resign the honor bestowed upon him. The appointment was particularly objectionable to the anti-clericals, because it would have put all of the educational institutions in Mexico under the supervision of the Catholic party.

There are many points of contention in the politics of Mexico, but Americans who have lived long in that country say that nothing ever stirs the politicians and the influential minority like the church question. For the last several months it has persistently forced itself to the front at the capital, and it has some able leaders and defenders besides President Huerta—Senor De La Barra, well-known at Washington, being one of them.

With all the history, tradition, education, and religion of Mexico Catholic, it is not strange that the Catholic party survives and hopes some day to regain its long lost temporal power. Many prophets believe that the great final struggle draws nigh.—Mrs. J. K. H. in K. C. Journal.

CHURCH AND STATE IN MEXICO.

It has been generally understood that the liberal tendencies of President Francisco Madero had their influence in adding to his unpopularity with the Catholic element in Mexico and that the Roman Church has favored the Huerta regime as being favorable to it. The real antagonism to Catholic rule and influence has only recently become openly aggressive in the defiant opposition of a majority of the Mexican Congress to the appointment of Edouardo Tamariz, one of the leaders of the Catholic Party, to the Ministry of Public Instruction. The Mexican people, as a whole, it is said, view the appointment as virtually a turning over of the educational system to the clergy, and a return of the Church to a share in the government, neither of which they are willing to tolerate. In addition to the appointment of Tamariz, the rumored choice of Fredrico Gamboa, the Mexican Foreign Minister, as the candidate of the Catholic party and of Provisional President Huerta for election as President, it is said, would re-open the fight in the much-torn republic on religious lines with more vigor than before, Mexico's troubles are not yet over, and we will be fortunate indeed if we do not become involved before the end is reached.—Lutheran Observer.

THE COST OF WAR.

It might be illuminating to tax-payers to learn how much of their money is used to build dread-noughts and to equip armies which might yield better results if applied to better ends. The figures are taken from Mr. Arthur W. Allen's "The Drain of Armaments" and may be found in the Statesman's Year-Book, official reports of the United States and other reliable sources.

In the fiscal year 1911-12 the United States spent over 244 million dollars for maintaining its army and navy. This represents a charge of $2.65 per unit of its population. The cost of the naval and military force constituted nearly 27.1 per cent of the total expenditures of the country. Each man in the army of the United States costs the government $1.314 per year. What this enormous outlay for a hypothetical war means to the tax-payer is obvious. There is no reason for surprise at the high cost of living in this country when we learn that during the year 1911-12 this country, with less than 14 per cent as many men in its army as France, spent 60 per cent as much money on it; with less than 13 per cent as many as Germany, it spent almost 54 per cent as much. The army cost us last year an average of more than $1,300 for each man in it as against less than $400 paid by any nation in Europe. Where does the money come from? Do the tax-payers get what they pay for? Are the men who work for their livings willing to agree to this extravagance? "We make no comment further than to say that if the mutual suspicion and distrust which prompts the present huge armaments of Europe, with their galling financial burdens, are justified by the facts, civilization is a thin veneer and we are still savages at heart. But it is easier to believe that there is a universal and unjustifiable panic, and that if the great nations would be governed by their reason instead of by their fears, show sincerity themselves and credit some degree of sincerity to others, the tension would be relieved."

Such is the expense of peace under arms. The expense of an actual war in money and in human life is frightful. In the first Balkan war Bulgaria lost 80,000 out of 350,000 men with an expenditure of 240 million dollars. Greece lost 10,000 out of 150,000 men and the expenses were 56 million dollars. Servia sent 250,000 men to war and 30,000 were killed; she spent 124 million dollars. Montenegro furnished 36,000 soldiers of whom 8,000 were sacrificed with 3 million dollars spent. Turkey lost 100,000 men out of 450,000 and the loss in money amounted to 322 million dollars. The figures are taken from a letter of Mr. Eugene S. Lucas to the

New York Times. 745 million dollars spent in order that 228,000 men might be killed.

A PREHISTORIC PEACE PROPHECY.

Two thousand years after the pyramids were erected, thirteen centuries before the birth of Christ, there came to the throne of Egypt the most interesting personality not only of that long line of shadowy Pharaohs, but of the ancient world. This great king was Akhnaton, "the first individual in human history," likewise the first of all founders of religious systems. He ranks as the world's first idealist, and his religious revolution introduces the study of advanced thought.

Akhnaton, when the reigns of government fell to him, was barely eleven years of age. His mother, Queen Ty, acted as regent during his minority. He married Nefertiti, the eight-year-old daughter of the king of Mitanni, in Syria. The Pharaohs took to themselves many wives; we have no record that Akhnaton ever married but once.

That the overshadowing power of the priests might be diminished, his mother early determined to oppose cult against cult. Thus, at the very beginning of his life, Akhnaton's thoughts were directed towards the great religious strife. He thought much, observed closely, read widely; and, as a consequence, rejected root and branch the religion of his fathers and of his subjects. He saw visions and dreamed dreams. He tells us that to him alone did God reveal himself; and he always speaks of himself, and is spoken of, as the originator and teacher of the faith he now began slowly but surely to unfold.

Let us review in broad outline the salient features of his remarkable faith; for no such theology had ever appeared in the world before. Aton, the sun, or rather, "the heat which is in Aton," was the true god. He centered the eyes of his follower upon the sun's disc, and then taught them of that force which was the author of the dazzling orb to which they rendered homage, and of its energy as typified in its life-giving heat. Akhnaton defined Aton as the formless essence, the binding force "which runs through all things and doth all unite." "Like a flash of blinding light in the night time, Aton stands out for a moment amid the black Egyptian darkness, and disappears once more—the first signal to this world of the future religion of the West."

No graven image of Aton was ever chiseled. He was not "great above all other gods," but was "the living Aton, besides whom there is no other."

Most important of all was sincerity, honesty, truth. A tomb inscription of one of his followers reads thus: "I have set truth in my inward parts and falsehood in my loathing; for I know that the king rejoiceth in truth."

Of special emphasis, both because of its result upon the new religion and to Akhnaton personally, was the fact that Aton was "the Lord of peace," utterly opposed to bloodshed and strife. "In an age of military renown, when the sword and buckler, the plumed helmet and shirt of mail glittered in every street and upon every highway," Akhnaton preached from a throne the doctrine of the brotherhood of man and dreamed of universal peace.

Akhnaton loved his wife and daughters with a tender, abiding affection, and endeavored to elevate the position of women and the sacredness of the family. Always in public the queen was at his side, and around his feet his children romped and played. Contrary to all precedent, his wife is represented in his reliefs as of the same size as himself.

Strenuous opposition to the new religion now permeated to all classes and ranks. What counted a creed, what mattered all the gods when Egypt's proud empire was breaking up? Akhnaton saw before his eyes signs which could only be interpreted as pointing to his absolute undoing. The misery of failure was his, the blackness of despair, around him the darkness of coming death. His feeble frame was overwhelmed, and simultaneously with the fall of his empire, Akhnaton died. "Thus," writes the historian, "disappeared the most remarkable figure in the Oriental history; thus died such a spirit as the world had never seen before."

A few years ago Mr. Davis of Providence, R. I., the celebrated American Egyptologist, discovered in one of the old tomb shafts at Thebes the mummified body of Akhnaton, which now rests in the Egyptian Museum at Cairo.—Christian Herald.

FORGIVENESS.

"Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us," is a part of the Lord's prayer, and he said, "After this manner pray ye."

That means that in so doing we fix the terms of the forgiveness we ask of God, "as we forgive those who trespass against us." It is difficult for some people to forgive, and easy for others, but all can if they undertake it properly. If there was nothing greater than human power connected with the latter day work, it might be that some could not forgive, but the angels, the Holy Spirit, the Son of God, and God himself are actively engaged in the latter day work preparing men and women to live with them in their kingdom, and are ever ready to help those who need their assistance. With such necessary assistance no one need say they cannot forgive. Peace of mind cannot exist where an unforgiving spirit is cherished, and spiritual development is impossible.

We all have our weaknesses, and we frequently acknowledge that to be true when we bear our testimonies, and we feel that we have need of divine mercy and help. We should not forget, therefore, that our brother or sister is just like we are, though the human weakness may be manifested in another way, and they are in need of divine mercy and help, and also in need of our mercy and help. Should we, then, withhold from them what we expect our heavenly Father to grant unto us? To be Christlike should we not extend a helping hand and every possible consideration for those who offend, even though we may ourselves suffer by their offense?

The God of heaven bears with us, why cannot we bear with each other?

Many years ago we heard Evangelist Lake (then Apostle Lake) tell of an elder who, while presiding over a business meeting of his branch, lost his patience because of some things that were done and left the place of meeting in a fit of anger. As he passed down the street he heard a voice say to him, "How long have I borne with you?" "Forty-nine years Lord," was his reply (he was forty-nine years old), and he turned around and went back to the meeting. And so perhaps all of us can say the Lord has borne with us patiently just as many years as we have lived, and we hope he may continue to do so; but too many of us have not the patience to bear with each other one minute. In fact we often become offended and cherish an unforgiving spirit towards someone who has not intended an offense, and indeed may be totally unaware that he is thought by anyone to be an offender. This ought not to be. The work of the church is to assist its members to overcome and subdue every spirit not of God that may be actuating them. The church can do little for you if you cherish an unforgiving spirit, and you cannot fail to do the church great harm. Therefore, it is only a matter of time till it becomes necessary to remove from the church one who entertains such a spirit.

There never was greater necessity for the saints coming up higher than there is now, and in order to do so they must come closer together in their understanding of each other, and must help to build each other up.

The feeling prevails to a large extent that important events are soon to take place in the church. We should prepare ourselves to assist in doing our part and we cannot do it unless we are "humble and full of love."

As a united people, with the perfect law that we have to govern and guide us, we can become a tremendous force for good in the world. As a divided people we are as a rope of sand.

We believe the church is making great strides—greater than it has made in several years. The saints are taking new interest in it. The world is more willing to listen, and none of us should let our little petty grievances assume in our minds a greater importance than the general progress of the work. More old sores or grievances can be settled in one minute by a warm hand-clasp and a kindly word than can be settled in a year by demands that an accusation be acknowledged and an apology offered.

Try it and see.—Glad Tidings.

BIG MEN ARE THE ONLY HOPE FOR DEMOCRACY.

If the universe had no meaning, it would be all up with Democracy. For Democracy rests on the grandeur of man. And in a meaningless world, man were meaningless also—a puny helmsman on a black and driving tide. The social hope above all others needs to be full of immortality. Only they who believe that Time's turbid rush is accomplishing something shall present to the cruelty of circumstance and the malignancy of foes a sturdy, enduring brow. Any creed declaring humankind to be a cloud of ephemera pursued by the creeping shadows of the night, would strike into democracy a mortal chill. That which augments human dignity is favorable to freed man's cause. Small men make contented slaves. Increase their stature, you decrease their servitude. (I speak of interior dimensions.) Persuade man that he is a transient thing, a vanishing atom, unwrecked, tossed aside by the vast thundering machine, and you have engineered a lapse to complete selfdom. — B. White in The Craftsman.

LAUGH-AND-BE-JOLLY

Did you ever meet Laugh-and-be-jolly?
If you haven't, I wish that you had.
To look at his face in the moonlight place
Will make any murmur glad.
He is chubby with romping and laughter,
He is crinkled with humor and fun;
To stay melancholy with Laugh-and-be-jolly
Is to do what nobody has done.
When the heavens are drizzling and drizzly
It's a mercy to have him about;
For he chuckles away on the dreariest day
Till he looks like the sun coming out.
Knock him down, he is up with a scramble,
Ignore him, he smiles all the same;
Call him frisky or simple, he just shows a dimple
That puts any cross-patch to shame.
Take your grumps and your growls and your grouches
And carry them all to this elf:
He will show you his way, and make you some day
A Laugh-and-be-jolly yourself!
—Nancy Byrd Turner, in The Churchman.

THE ROUND TABLE.

Please explain the 10th and 11th verses of the 6th chapter of Ether, Book of Mormon, where it speaks of the coming of the old and new Jerusalem. Do they mean that there will be two separate cities, one upon this continent and one upon the Eurasian continent? If so how will Christ dwell with his saints in both cities at once?

Verses 4-8 speak of a new Jerusalem to be built up upon this land "unto the remnant of the seed of Joseph." "And they shall build up a holy city unto the Lord, like unto the Jerusalem of old." They speak also of the Jerusalem from which Lehi came, in Palestine, that after it should be destroyed, "it should be built up again a holy city unto the Lord," "and it should be built up unto the house of Israel." The third verse also speaks of the New Jerusalem which should come down out of heaven. This last New Jerusalem is probably the city of Enoch which he built up in righteousness and which was translated with him, (See Doctrine and Covenants 36:3-5) and to which others of the righteous were caught up from time to time. (D. C. 36:6.) In paragraph 12 the Lord says: "And righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, [in the last days] to gather out my own elect from the four quarters of the earth unto a place which I shall prepare, a holy city, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming; for there shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion, a New Jerusalem. And the Lord said unto Enoch, then shall you and all your city meet them there," etc. These statements show that a holy city will be built up both in America and Palestine and that in time the city of Enoch will return and have place upon the earth. Christ will come to reign on the earth and with perfect means of communication he will be able to keep in touch with not only the two cities but every part of the world.

Will the earth be cleansed before the Millennium or after? The twentieth chapter of Revelations describes the millennium and the final judgment, after which, as stated in 21:1, John saw the new heaven and new earth: "for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away." In harmony with this view that the cleansing of the earth will be after the thousand years, is the statement in D. C. 43:7: "In my own due time will I come upon the earth in judgment; and my people shall be redeemed and shall reign with me on the earth: for the great millennial, which I have spoken by the mouth of my servants, shall come: for Satan shall be bound; and when he is loosed again, he shall only reign for a little season, and then cometh the end of the earth: and he that liveth in righteousness, shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye, and the earth shall pass away so as by fire." It seems that the earth will undergo a partial change at the coming of Christ, but that the final cleansing will not take place until after the millennium. Read D. C. 36:14; 63:6; 28:6.

Why is it that little innocent children so often suffer sickness and death?

In consequence of sin finding place in the world all men are subject from their birth to the forces that work for death. People of today, including children, suffer not only for the transgression of Adam but for the transgressions of a long line of ancestors, and many weak constitutions come from this cause rendering even the children more susceptible to sickness and affliction. All mankind are interdependent and one man's deeds, whether good or evil, effect not only himself but others as well, so that for humanity's sake if for no other, every man should act in the best way possible.

MORTGAGING OUR FUTURES.

In the Literary Digest for October 4th is an article entitled "The Root of the Trouble—Going too Far on Tick," by one Louis A. Lamb, in which he declares extravagances of individuals and nations as chief among the causes of commercial and financial troubles of today. (Our quotations are made from this article).

As a church we are alone in presenting a financial plan by which we expect to bring about equality in all things: perfection, through the celestial law. There are organizations in the world whose object is this great end, but without the seal and aid of the Lord of all—their efforts will fail. The will of the Lord however, will not fail. This thing must come about; man is too selfish to accomplish it of himself.

"It is not fashionable to speak of religion as an economic factor; but, fashionable or not, no honest observer can gain say the fact that the decay of faith among men has contributed not a little to the 'trouble' of which we are speaking. So long as mankind in general had faith in a personal God, belief in future rewards, and assurance of final salvation through divine grace, there were powerful checks in the way of reckless living, wild borrowing, insane spending, and blind determinism in conduct. Having lost the fine flower and potency of ancient faiths, the populace—the proletariat of the world—has taken resort in socialism, radicalism, syndicalism, unionism as the only agencies by which the ills of materialistic living and thinking may be corrected. Unfaith and envy are sisters, and revolutionary ideas are cousins-german to both.

This man is only one of many who realize and urge the necessity of a more serious consideration of the defects in the manner of present day life; the wanton, reckless spending of time and money.

It is not "crankiness" which causes us a religious organization to show such anxiety in this matter. But our young people are growing to look upon it so. They hear a super-abundance of talk (the "super" made apparent, because of no practice by many demanding perfection). They tire of hearing the admonitions originating in the years long gone before, because they see no collective results and naturally they have not the faith or patience (as a rule) to give much of their serious thought to the matter, although they may approve of the principle.

"The trouble is Civilization. The trouble is that the expansive nature of human ambitions, once given a glimpse of 'things more excellent,' outruns any possible material container.

"In the old days comfort was a mode of sinful indulgence—a bond of attachment to things temporal and mundane—to be frowned on as diverting attention from the holy felicity of heaven. Education, except as an avenue to holy orders, was de trop, except for the rich. Sanitation was luxury and a substantial act of unfaith in the wisdom and mercy of Providence. Fine apparel was a mode of deifying the flesh and exalting temporal appearances to the prejudice of eternal interests. Ornate houses, meubles, art objects, equipages, Persian rugs, Sheraton, Chippendale, Adam, Boule—all devices to center the mind on earth—were not to be thought of except by the favored few.

"Civilization is the matter. Everybody the world around has had a taste of modernism and demands more. Instead of regarding work as the end of life, most people regard pleasure as the prime object. Labor used to be the theme of poets, and contentment the 'far-off ideal.' Now leisure is the ideal and discontent the universal passion of mankind.

"Having tasted the sweets of 'tuned music,' as they say in the Kongos hinterland, everybody wants a phonograph or a player-piano—on the installment plan if the house will not stand an immediate draft. Having in view the careless ease of city nights, youth deserts the farm and troops to store, factory, or selling force. To live by one's wits is honorable. To live by muscle is to concede inferiority. 'White collar' jobs are in request. Farm labor is as scarce as the austere faith of Plymouth Rock."

"In the last days men shall be lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." And now that the time is here, each of us admits the fulfilling of this statement is upon us, but in turn we lay the responsibility of failures at the door of others. There are few who, with the courage of their convictions, remember the less fortunate neighbor, that there be not so great a contrast in the way of unnecessary luxuries of food, clothing, gifts, labor, pleasures! There are comparatively few who remember the finances of the church according to the law, or that "This is a day of sacrifice for my people."

"Regulation of popular desires, individual self-control, repression of personal extravagance, common-sense living, are the urgent needs rather than regulation of industry, corporate wealth, and business activity."

"Saving was a cardinal virtue when Ben Franklin was alive. It was supposed to have some correspondence with sterling character. Today, with most people, it is only a necessity—a bitter compulsion to stave off possible want between 'jobs' or to meet 'payments' on some extravagant purchase."

"As long as great masses of mankind want certain things—whether for pleasure, or profit, or gain, or loss makes no difference—there will be daring entrepreneurs to supply those things. Alert men will get rich, and combine, and employ their massed brains and money to augment their power."

"The people everywhere have been insanely desirous of thousands of excellent things provided by the gods of science, technology, industry, and advertising. The populace has been deliriously anxious to taste the sweets of leisure, luxury, and pleasure. In general, the masses have gone as far as possible to obtain these baubles."

"Great hardship has been forced upon many people, but hardship was the penalty the world had to pay for trying to go too far 'on tick.' Let's slow down for awhile and save a dollar or two. A period of Ben Franklin thrift will work wonders."

Let us as mothers and wives, (who control the spending of the income to a great extent), see what we can do to curb the pride of "us and ours;" to control our desires; to examine ourselves for signs of extravagance; and perhaps to find what extravagance really is, or means.

Comparison (see next week's issue) and an honest purpose will aid you.

"We must not wait for now the time is ours,
And while I wait another waits for me;
We see the working of contending powers,
The darkness, and the holy light we see.

"Then let us render service to the Lord,
And drive those clouds of fear and doubt away.
That we may all rejoice with one accord,
Until the dawning of the perfect day."

MISCELLANEOUS

PASTORAL.

To the saints and friends of Western Nebraska.—

Just a few words to remind you that I am still bishop's agent for Western Nebraska and am anxious to be remembered by you with your tithes and offerings. My dear brethren, sisters and friends let us not lose sight of the fact that to withhold our tithes and offerings is to "rob God;" just think a moment of the possibility of being guilty, and then read this glorious promise: "Behold, now it is called today until the coming of the Son of Man, and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people; for he that is tithed shall not be burned (at his coming)."—D. C. 64:4

Jesus taught the necessity of tithing. "But we unto you Pharisees! for ye tith mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." (Luke 11:42). He further says: "Not every one that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." (Matt. 7:21). And in Luke 6:46, we read: "And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?"

I trust that by these positive statements of our blessed Lord all will be admonished to come up to the help of the Lord in this great and final struggle for the emancipation of the souls of men from the consequence of sin. I am indeed thankful for the generous efforts you have made in the past, and trust the Lord will bless you in "basket and store," in as much as you shall seek to do his will. Read Mal. 3:10; Matt. 23:23; D. and C. 106:1,2.

Checks made direct to me is as good as any other paper so you need not be at extra expense or trouble to get drafts or money orders. Mail sent to my address at Comstock will reach me, or at 2312 So. 24th Street, Omaha, Neb.

Yours for Zion's weal,
C. W. Prettyman.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT

In and for the District of Utah.

To the Saints and friends of the District of Utah:

Please take notice that Bro. C. A. Smurthwaite, 751 1st Ave., Salt Lake City, Utah, has been duly appointed Bishop's agent in and for said territory in behalf of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in place of former agent, Bro. C. J. S. Ables, Ogden, Utah, who has been unable, by reason of his business interests, of late, to personally look after the work of said office.

The Bishopric extend special thanks to Bro. Ables for the work he has accomplished in the office as agent the past few years and trust that wherever and in whatever work his of may be cast that he may be blessed and directed to perform a good work for the Master.

The Bishopric bespeak for Bro. Smurthwaite the ready and hearty assistance of each member and friend of the cause of truth within the district, for which the brother has been duly authorized to act as agent. We hope and trust that through the divine blessing that our heavenly Father has promised to his faithful children that each one may specially receive of the Spirit of the Master as they fulfill his law under the administration of our brother in his appointment as agent.

Please do not wait for the Bishop's agent to call on each one of you. It will encourage the agent and bless the work and you will feel approved of the Lord if you wait upon the agent either by letter or in person and assure him that whatever others may do that it is your desire to move along with the word of the Master and fulfill his law in your efforts. That the Lord may specially bless you in your labors together with the agent, Bro. Smurthwaite, is the prayer of your brothers of the Bishopric. In bonds of truth,

Very respectfully,

E. L. Kelley,

Presiding Bishop.

Independence, Mo., Oct. 25, 1913.

BISHOP'S AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the saints of Colorado, Northwestern New Mexico and that part of Wyoming included in the Eastern Colorado District.

The undersigned as Bishop's Agent for the above named district desires to make a personal appeal to you in behalf of the financial interests of the district. Let us as saints rally to the support of the church in its present need. Let us all by our personal efforts see to it that the work of the district shall not suffer, or the families of the missionaries be found in need. Remember that the work of the church depends upon the efforts of each one, and that the work is "intrusted to all."

Particularly is your attention called to the plan for reducing the general church debt. Let us respond gladly and quickly with the amount allotted to each one—$1.50, and lest there be some who cannot give their allotment let others contribute in greater measure so far as possible.

We trust that the divine Spirit will inspire and that heavenly grace will assist all in the performance of this most important duty.

Arthur H. Mills.

358 Emerson St., Denver, Colo.

HOME DEPARTMENT WORK.

To all the isolated saints in Seattle and British Columbia District who see this:

Will you write to your Home Department Superintendent? She has written many letters without receiving any reply so takes this general way of addressing you all.

Like the modern conveniences of the world which are enjoyed to the remotest corner, so is the Home Department of both Sunday school and Religio with all the benefits to be realized therefrom, yours to enjoy.

There is no longer any room for the excuse, that isolation from a branch prevents us from keeping up with the general study. "Study to show thyself approved."

Do not pass this by but let us all arise to a newness of zeal and make the Home Department in this district one of the best. Write to me and say you are ready to take a firmer hold on the work.

This means all in the district who are not in a position to attend a local Religio or be connected by home work to a local.

Yours for the work,

Mrs. Addie I. Scott,

Dist. Supt. Religio Home Work.

BOOK OF RULES REVISION.

To those whom it may concern:—

The committee on Revision of the Book of Rules, as appointed by last General Conference, has sub-committed part of its work, and that sub-committee is now situated so it can begin its work. Brn. A. B. Phillips and H. O. Smith will be in Fall River, Massachusetts, much of the remainder of the conference year, and have planned to devote considerable time to the work of revision. Those who have suggestions to make regarding the Book of Rules will please take notice, and send such suggestions to A. B. Phillips, Box 701, Fall River, Massachusetts. Other members of the committee will also please note, and communicate with Bro. Phillips regarding any changes to be suggested. The work of the sub-committee will be to work out a report to the committee which will be the basis for subsequent committee work when it meets next spring. This will greatly expedite the work of the committee.

Frederick M. Smith,

Chairman Committee.

DIED.

MORGAN.—At Hitean Iowa, September 15, 1913, Bro. John Lewis Morgan. He was born February 14, 1869, at Brookfield, Ohio; baptized at Bavler, Missouri, May 6, 1879; united in marriage with Miss Nellie Jones, January 10, 1891; ordained to the office of priest in 1899. He leaves wife, five daughters, two sons, and other relatives and many friends, three children having passed to the beyond. Bro. Morgan was highly gifted as a composer of vocal and instrumental music. The music of hymns No. 337 and 317 of the Saint's Hymnal indicate the quality of his talent. He wrote other valuable numbers, many of which have not been published, some of which it is hoped will be available for church use. He was widely known and highly esteemed. Funeral service held in the saint's church at Hitean, Iowa, Elder P. P. Batten in charge; sermon by Elder R. S. Salvers; interment in Hitean cemetery.

FRITZ.—Rhoda Mary. Little Rhoda was one of twins born to Bro. and Sr. Charles Fritz on the 9th day of May, 1913, near Lillian Neb. She died Oct. 14, 1913. In the absence of an elder Bro. Wm. Keill held a brief service at the residence giving a few words of comfort and strength to the assembled relatives and friends. The little body was laid to rest in the cemetery near New Helena Neb.

SHAFFER.—Edward C. Shaffer (Joerdnt) of East St. Louis, died at his grandparents, Bro. and Sr. Charles A. Gurrell at the Order of Enoch House, at Independence Mo., October 2nd, after a lingering illness with dropsy, aged eight years, one month and three days. Four days after his eighth birthday he was baptized in the font at the stone church, which he had long wished to do. Funeral sermon at the church by G. E. Harrington. Bro. and Sr. L. L. Joerdnt, and a small sister are left with other relatives.

BING.—Fern Audentia Bing was born Aug. 2, 1912, and died Sept. 29, 1913, at Rolla, Kans. Burial at Rolla cemetery.

NELSON.—Sr. Mary Nelson died Oct. 9, 1913 at the age of 79 years, 9 months and two days. She was born in Gotland, Sweden Jan. 7, 1834, and immigrated to America in 1865, located at Nebraska City, Neb., and soon after united with the church. Since her husband's death six years ago, she has made her home with her only daughter Mrs. C. L. Goldsmith, now living near Blue Springs, Mo. She leaves three sons, and one daughter and six grandchildren. Funeral services held at Nebraska City church sermon preached by elder H. A. Higgins.

TRUTH NEVER DIES.

Truth never dies. The ages come and go;
The mountains wear away; the seas retire;
Destruction lays earth's mighty cities low;
And empires, states, and dynasties expire;
But caught and handed onward by the wise,
Truth never dies.

Though unrecieved and scoffed at through the years;
Though made the butt of ridicule and jest;
Though held aloft for mockery and jeers,
Denied by those of transient power possessed,
Insulted by the insolence of lies,
Truth never dies.

Truth answers not; it does not take offense;
But with a mighty silence bides its time.
As some great cliff that braves the elements,
And lifts through all the storms its head sublime,
So truth, unmoved, its puny foes denies,
And never dies.

The lips of ridicule dissolve in dust;
The sophist's arguments, the gibes are still;
God working through the all compelling Must,
Has broken those who dare combat his will;
New systems, born in wild unrest arise,
Truth never dies.—Sel.

THE CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL.

The Congregational National Council has for some days been holding its triennial meeting in Kansas City, and numerous questions relative to the welfare of the Congregational Churches throughout the country have been discussed. The council holds no legislative or judicial power, for it has been a principle of this denomination that the local congregation is supreme and independent of all other powers. Like some other denominations of this class however, the Congregationalists have come to see the need of some form of central organization and the trend of their deliberations is toward the centralization of power in a general organization.

Of this council the Presbyterian says: "Among the most important matters coming before this council will be the report of the committee on organization and polity. For some time some of the leading workers of the church have felt the need of a closer bond of union. They have desired something of a strong central power. There are those who prefer to maintain their present policy."

According to press reports the "Commission of Nineteen" reported a new constitution providing among other things for a permanent nominating committee, which one of the opposing delegates, Dr. Moody, said would "practically be an oligarchy, subject only to the manipulations of church politicians." But the effort toward centralization of power is strong and has been growing for many years, and as the Kansas City Journal says, "The advocates of changes in creed and church organization, believe the time has come when a step toward centralization must be taken in order to make the churches the active, coherent, militant force it is believed they can be."

One of the recommendations of the committee is for the election of a national secretary whose duty would be to visit the churches throughout the country, and inspect their workings, and make recommendations give advice, etc. It is said the conservatives see in the attempt to create this office a disposition to drift toward church government through officers, with the general powers of bishops.

The proposed new creed with its preamble is as follows:

The Congregational churches of the United States, by delegates in national council assembled, reserving all the rights and cherished memories belonging to this organization under its former constitution, and declaring the steadfast allegiance of the churches composing the council to that faith which our fathers confessed, and which has found expression in the historic creeds of this communion and of the church universal, and affirming our loyalty to the basic principles of our polity in the freedom of the individual soul, the autonomy of the local church, and the union of churches for effective work and fellowship in the bonds of a representative democracy, hereby set forth the things most surely believed among us concerning doctrine, polity and fellowship.

We believe in God the Father, infinite in wisdom, goodness and love; and in Jesus Christ, his Son, our Lord and Savior who for us and our salvation lived and died and liveth evermore; and in the Holy Spirit, who taketh of the things of Christ and revealeth them to us, renewing, comforting and inspiring the souls of men. We are united in striving to know the will of God as taught in the Holy Scriptures, and in our purpose to walk in the ways of the Lord, made known or to be made known to us. We hold it to be the mission of the Church of Christ to proclaim the gospel to all mankind, exalting the worship of the one true God, and laboring for the progress of knowledge, the promotion of justice, the triumph of peace and the realization of human brotherhood. Depending, as did our fathers, upon the continued guidance of the Holy Spirit to lead us into all truth, we work and pray for the transformation of the world into the kingdom of God; and we look with faith for the triumph of righteousness and for life and glory everlasting. Amen.

It is thought that if the vote is close upon its adoption the creed will be referred to the churches for their endorsement, though it is generally expected that it will pass the council by a large majority, as most of the leading men are in favor of the changes proposed. President Charles A. Blanchard of Wheaton College said: "I am in favor of the report. We need a strong general organization."

The conservatives opposing the changes point out some of the defects. Rev. George W. Ray, of Fort Worth, Tex., charged the new creed with lack of vitality and demanded that the words "only begotten" be inserted before the word "Son," and that mention be made of the resurrection. Dr. Henry A. Stimson, of New York, referred to the creed as "sophisticated and ecclesiastically smooth" but as somewhat empty and highly unsatisfactory.

Whether the change in creed and polity be made or not, the effort made toward changing constitutes a virtual admission that the former creed and polity were defective and unadapted to meet the changing conditions of the times. Other denominations of the congregational class have found it necessary to devise some form of general organization, and the tendency of all such churches is toward a centralization of power. In the proposed change of creed there seems to be a tendency to compromise with the infidelity of the times in failing to emphasize the divinity of Christ and leaving unmentioned his resurrection.

We hold that the gospel of Christ, and the organization of the church provided for in his law, are adapted to all conditions and all times, and that his church holding the gospel law can make no changes as to doctrine and organization without departing from the God-given plan and invoking his disapproval.

As to creeds, they are human productions. If Christ had desired his people to have a creed he would undoubtedly have furnished it, but he never attempted to formulate the principles of his law into creedal form, and no word of revelation has ever been given authorizing men to do so. The evil of creeds is not so much in what they say as in what they do not say, for they are more exclusive than inclusive. They are like fences and bars which in effect say, "You may eat in this pasture but you must not go outside." They restrict the consciences of men in receiving all truth, and they stand as barriers against progress and the continued revelation of God to men.

A recent copy of the Metz (Mo.) Times contains nearly a column article with cut, by Bro. Amos T. Higdon, outlining the faith of the church. Favorable mention is also made of the tent meetings being held by Bro. Higdon and Roy Budd.

Christian piety annihilates the egotism of the heart; worldly politeness veils and represses.—Pascal.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 19.

EVIDENCES OF DIVINITY IN THE REORGANIZATION.

The frequent outpourings of the Holy Spirit upon the saints at Zarahelma and other places prior to 1860, and the numerous prophecies which were given relative to the coming of "Young Joseph," some of which have been previously mentioned, with the further fact that these prophecies which for a time seemed impossible of fulfillment were every one fulfilled to the letter, all indicate the divine presence with the church and the directing hand of God in its work.

After Joseph Smith had been accepted as "Prophet, Seer, and Revelator of the Church of Jesus Christ," and ordained to this office on April 6, 1860, similar manifestations of divine approval continued to be received. On October 7, 1861 a revelation was given through him directing the church how to provide for the fulfillment of the law in relation to temporal things, so that the church might be placed in a position to carry on the work of promulgating the gospel, and that confidence might be established among the saints. This instruction met the situation as nothing else could have done, for the confidence of the people had been broken or weakened through the ambitions and aggrandizement of the false leaders which had previously arisen in the church leading away the saints into bondage. The policy adopted under this revelation safeguarded the rights of the membership in relation to temporal things.

Other revelations have been received by the church from time to time through its presiding head by which the leading policies of the church have been formulated and carried out. Through them most of the leading officers have been designated for the various offices, and in many cases the choice was far different from what human wisdom would have made though the results have proven the wisdom of the choice and establish the claims of divinity in the work. In other ways the manifestations of the divine Spirit have been experienced in the general conferences and in the various quorums of officers, confirming the truth of the message which has been given to the church to carry to the whole world.

The promise of the gift of the Holy Ghost made by Peter in Acts 2:38, and reaffirmed in the revelations to the church in the following words: "And again, it shall come to pass, that on as many as ye shall baptize with water, ye shall lay your hands and they shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost," has been fulfilled to many individuals, and by the manifestations of the Holy Ghost they have received evidence of the divinity of the work.

A testimony upon this point is given by Elder W. V. Blair who for many years was a counselor of Pres. Joseph Smith in the presidency. He says: "I was baptized by Elder William B. Smith, brother of Joseph the Seer, and confirmed [by the laying on of hands] by him and others and after four days, in answer to silent, fervent prayer, was literally baptized with the Holy Spirit as I had previously been of water. Radically changed by these experiences, my hopes, desires, and purposes, were directed decidedly and deeply into religious channels closely in harmony with the religion of Christ as set forth in the New Testament. . . . For weeks and months afterward my highest anticipations in respect to the peace and love and spiritual blessings of the gospel were more than realized."—Memoirs p. 5.

As the elders of the church have gone out teaching the gospel, baptizing and confirming by the laying on of hands, they have made the same promises to the people as were made by Peter on Pentecost, and thousands have proven these promises true through obedience, and the reception of the gift of the Holy Ghost.

The gifts of the Spirit such as wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discerning of spirits, tongues, and interpretation of tongues, as mentioned in 1 Corinthians twelfth chapter, have followed the church wherever it has been planted, all these gifts being in harmony with the law of the gospel as given anciently. The church has never held these things prominently before the world, for their place is secondary in the church, and they constitute some of the "helps" by which the children of God may grow into the divine life.

The principles of truth are of first importance and only as they are clearly taught by the ministers of Christ, and faithfully observed by the people can there be true development and ultimate salvation, and while these principles are to be taught to all people, the gifts and signs are reserved for the believing and obedient as stated in Mark 16:17. Of these things the Lord said to the church: "But a commandment I give unto them, that they shall not boast themselves of these things, neither speak them before the world; for these things are given unto you for your profit and for salvation."

The work of preaching the gospel has been carried on in a systematic way, and the numerical growth of the church has been constant. Men have been called to the various offices, and in their ministrations have experienced the blessings and help of the Holy Spirit by which their work has been made effective. The need of this divine help is apparent when it is considered that few of the ministry have been educated men, that is educated in the schools of learning, though they have generally gained an education in the school of experience under the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

The prophetic statement that the church would gain "grace and favor" in the eyes of the world, has been fulfilled, and though the world does not indorse its claims the spirit of charity has been manifested, and today the Reorganized Church holds the respect of all who are acquainted with its history and work. The future is seen only through faith in the prophecies and promises of God.

A WARNING.

A letter was recently received from a brother in Iowa giving warning against a certain member of the church who it was reputed had been obtaining money from the saints by gifts and loans and not repaying, and otherwise imposing upon the generous hearted. The saints have often been warned through the church papers against giving or loaning money to strangers, whatever their plea, unless they are known to be worthy and actually in need. Saints who give or loan to doubtful persons do so at their own risk and should blame no one but themselves for their loss. We withhold the name of this party for the reason that it is neither necessary nor proper, except in extreme cases, to advertise the misdeeds of individuals which generally effects their reputation to their permanent injury.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Activity in all departments of church work evidences the interest and faithfulness of many of the saints and ministry. The labor of many is required to meet the many various demands, and all who are ready to work may find plenty to do.

A goodly attendance greeted Bro. G. E. Harrington at the morning service who addressed the saints on matters of saintly duty. The monthly sacrament service was held in the afternoon, and Bro. Peter Anderson of the Twelve spoke in the evening. Duty elsewhere prevented the editor from attending any of these services.

Considerable business was transacted at the regular monthly business meeting held on Monday evening. A number of members were received on letters of removal, and some letters given, the larger number of which were for the charter members of the new branch at Walnut Park. Bro. Victor Cress, Henry C. Holdsworth, and Reese Wells were released from membership, and similar action on one or two others was deferred. Bro. J. F. Ruddle, John Zahnd, and Charles Fry were appointed a committee to arrange for the distribution to ministers and others, of copies of the recent tract entitled "An open Letter to the Clergy," by President Elbert A. Smith. This committee will assist the Bureau of Publicity in putting this tract into the hands of every minister throughout the land so far as possible. The holding of a series of meetings sometime during the winter was approved and the fine left with the presidency.

President Joseph Smith will be eighty-one years of age on next Thursday, November 6th, having been born in 1832. The friends will call upon him at his home on West Short Street, during the afternoon from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m. to extend greetings. His health has been as good as usual of late and he is seen almost daily upon the streets in company with his son Israel. The ENSIGN extends greetings and trusts that he may still be spared for the accomplishment of good in behalf of the church and the world.

On Tuesday Joseph Fielding Smith, president of the Utah Church, visited Independence on his way from Chicago to Salt Lake City his home. He was accompanied by his nephew, George Albert Smith, son of the late John Henry Smith, and Bishop Charles W. Nibley, and others. A meeting was arranged by the local officers of that church at the Lewis theater at 2 p. m. at which the three officials named gave addresses to a large assemblage of people of various creeds. Samuel O. Bennion, president of the mission, and other officials were entertained the party and by auto took them to the various points of interest in the city. The party called on President Joseph Smith at his home in the evening.

Announcements are out for revival services to begin at Central Kansas City Church next Sunday with the pastor, Bro. J. A. Tanner, in charge. Patriarch F. A. Smith and Apostle J. W. Rushton will be the speakers.

The friends of Bro. Robert J. Parker will regret to learn that last week he suffered an attack of partial paralysis. He is able to be about and is improving, and it is our sincere hope that he will fully recover and be able to continue his good work.

Sr. Elizabeth Bailey, wife of Bro. Allen Bailey died about noon on Tuesday from pneumonia. She was a sister of Sisters Joseph Luff, G. E. Harrington, Wm. Clow, and of Bro. R. J. Parker. Her departure is especially sad in that she leaves an invalid daughter whose greatest joy and comfort in life was her mother.

Sickness which has been quite severe in some cases has come to a number of the saints of late, some of which are now recovering and we hope that through administration and kindly care all will be raised up.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

The morning of October 19th the Sunday school was favored with a talk by Bro. Morris of the Brush Creek Branch, Illinois. He said he was pleased to address us on this the 53rd anniversary of his birth into the kingdom of God. He still loved the latter day work, though poor in the things of this world he felt rich in spiritual things, and hoped to be rich in the hereafter. He admonished us to refrain from every evil as there was no benefit to be derived therefrom. He was pleased to stand at the water's edge and see two of his relatives, one his granddaughter, buried in the liquid grave by Bro. T. J. Elliott. The candidates were confirmed after the morning preaching service. Their names were Myrtle Barnard and Blanche Griffith.

Bro. E. C. Bell having been appointed musical director of the St. Louis District by Bro. Hoxie, our general chorister, requests all, both old and young, to let him know if they wish to develop any musical talent they might possess, either vocal or instrumental, teachers who are to be volunteer workers will be provided. We trust this noble move will meet with success.

Bro. John Davis was the speaker the morning of October 19th. He admonished the saints to have a knowledge that the work was true as then there would not be a liability of their being led astray.

Our young Bro. H. C. Burgess gave a splendid talk in the evening on the subject of "Love," drawing the line between divine love and human love.

The priesthood meeting was held the evening of Oct. 19. Bro. S. R. Burgess gave a very instructive talk to the Sunday school Oct. 26th, his theme being "Touch." He conveyed the thought that it was the act of touching unclean things that brought us to sorrow and harm.

Bro. E. C. Bell very creditably occupied the morning hour Oct. 26th. Thoughts received were that we advance or grow through the lessons of experience and that by doing, we gain experience, therefore it is through obedience to Christ's law we receive salvation.

We regret very much indeed to report the sad news of the death of a dearly beloved brother in Christ, Bro. Joseph Betts of Belleville, Illinois. He with Sr. Betts were having a pleasant visit with relatives and friends in Milwaukee, Michigan. Bro. Betts was preparing for an afternoon outing Oct. 22nd when he was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in his head which was followed by convulsions and he passed away in the sixth one. While he has not been well for some time his death came as a great shock to his many friends and relatives who have our sincere sympathy in their hour of trial. His immediate family consists of his wife to whom he was a devoted husband, Sr. Florence Betts, his two sons Bro. Charles and Walter Betts, and daughter in law, Sr. Walter Betts, who will miss their loving father. His funeral sermon was preached by Bro. George F. Barraclough of Lansdowne, Illinois, at his home in Belleville the afternoon of October 27th.

Our pastor, Bro. T. J. Elliott occupied the evening hour Oct. 26th announcing the following special notice to the members of the St. Louis Branch:

Beginning Sunday, November 9, 1911, it is intended a new order will be instituted as to arrangement and conduct of the Sunday services. All Sunday services will be held in the upper auditorium. Devotional service for young people at 8:45 a. m., immediately followed at 9:30 by the Bible school; after the opening exercises the Beginner and Primary departments will march to the lower auditorium. At the conclusion of the school a brief postlude will be played, quietly the necessary changes will be made and those who unavoidably cannot stay for the morning preaching may pass out. The branch officers in charge proceeding at once with this service. We desire the co-operation of every saint, and the loyal support of all from the start to make this new departure a success for our work. We hope to overcome some objections heretofore had, to add to the spiritual interests, to conserve time and reclaim many, some who have formed the habit of going home, not remaining for the morning services. Parents will be able to remain with their children for church services and not be detained later we believe than 11:30 or 11:45, insuring the maximum additional time to reach their homes after the full quota of services have been had on Sunday morning.

To avoid confusion, unnecessary noise in visiting, the conduct and department of those present will be under the supervision of the deacon and his assistants. Full detail announcements at the regular meetings.

These items added to our regular report were submitted to your correspondent by our pastor with the request that they be inserted.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

On the evening of Friday Oct. 24th, the Religio members met at the church to celebrate the 5th anniversary of the organization of the society in South St. Joseph. A fine program was presented including short instructive talks by Bro. Bear and Richardson, followed by some choice selections by our budding junior orchestra. The features of the program being, the reading of a paper by Sr. A. Richardson on the need of the Religio, and a comical imitation "new" paper gotten up by Bro. F. Gist which was pleased to call the "St. Joseph Noise." The program was followed by an old fashioned box social which was enjoyed by old and young.

Our Religio has become an important factor in the development of our branch, individually as well as collectively, being as it is, a place where young and old can mingle together in perfect equality exchanging views and thoughts on points of the law and doctrine, thereby, helping each other to a better understanding of the law that giveth life.

Under the hand of Bro. Robert Beadnell the Religio has made great strides in the past two years and the opportunity it offers for the systematic study of the latter day revelation has been an immense help to those newly initiated into the fold.

On Sunday Nov. 2, morning and evening, we had the pleasure of listening to two splendid sermons by our beloved friend and brother J. S. Roth. Bro. Roth made many friends when he was with us last spring and many of those outside of the church have expressed their delight at being able to hear him again. Several of our staunchest workers have been brought into the fold, either directly or indirectly through his efforts, therefore we are always greatly pleased at having him with us.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., FIRST BRANCH.

Sunday Oct. 26, was marked by special activity in religious service with us. At the close of the lesson period in Sunday school session, we were treated to a short program, comprising instrumental music by Sr. Elman Dodson, a nice talk by Sr. Della Braidwood of Independence, and an interesting summary of the senior lessons for the month by Bro. W. W. Scott. These little entertaining features help to make the Sunday school session very enjoyable. Preaching at eleven o'clock by our pastor, subject, "I must work." We enjoyed his sermon thoroughly. It was just as clear cut, decisive and energetic as his text.

Following the morning service we had the pleasure of seeing two precious souls entered into the kingdom through the purifying waters of baptism. Bro. Roy Fryer in charge, Bro. B. J. Scott administering the rite. Confirmation followed by Bro. I. N. Roberts and W. W. Scott. Bro. and Sr. Robert Fry are welcome additions to our number.

At 2:30 p. m. the Woman's Auxiliary held a special session. Mrs. J. A. Gardner and Della Braidwood of Independence, were with us and gave instruction along the special lines of auxiliary work, which was quite interesting and in conjunction with other numbers on the program made the session a very pleasant one. We hope the sisters will come again.

In the evening Bro. I. N. Roberts of Stewartville the veteran missionary, preached, and you who know this aged brother, can realize that he preached with all his old time fire and pathos. His theme was "Service," and was a very fitting close for a day of service.

Bro. D. C. Wilke preached in the morning at Wyatt Park Mission and Bro. W. W. Scott at the three branches in the evening.

On Friday evening at Religio we had a record breaker of seventy-eight in attendance. All teachers and officers were present, and the smile on the face of the president, Bro. Roy Fryer, looked like it would not come off for some time. A fine program was given, the feature of which was the monthly issue of the "Bugle" edited by Sr. Minnie Scott. Too much cannot be said of the high order of this issue. Let the standard be maintained, we say.

By vote of the branch on last Wednesday it was decided to enlarge the seating capacity of the pulpit platform, so as to give the choir more room. This platform has been enlarged and by adding new seats the desired result will be obtained and the appearance of the choir circle vastly improved.

Last Friday evening after the session Religians were treated to a nice luncheon of pumpkin pie, doughnuts, and cocoa, as a Halloween surprise. We are looking forward to a visit from our own Ida Pearson Etzenhouser, who has graciously promised to come here on the fourteenth inst in the interest of Religio and Sunday school work. She will be with us over Sunday, as well as on Friday evening, and we cordially invite all members of other locals and schools who can do so to come and share with us, the good things we expect to receive.

Sunday school Nov. 2nd, had a gratifying attendance. Although we have lost quite a number during the year by removal, our membership has increased in proportion, and we are justly proud of our school. At close of session, a beautiful solo was rendered by Sr. Grace Tilden, and a review of beginners department by its superintendent. Preaching at eleven by Bro. R. Winning. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was served at the evening prayer service, with a large number in attendance. No Latter Day Saint can afford to miss this holy and sacred ordinance, for thus do we manifest our allegiance to our solemn covenant with God. Evening preaching hour occupied by Bro. B. J. Scott, in his usual earnest impressive manner.

About two weeks ago Bro. Stobaugh was brought here from his home in Montana very seriously ill. Last Friday morn he passed away and the body was removed to the home of relatives near Dearborn, where in Davis chapel, last Sunday, Bro. B. J. Scott preached the funeral sermon to at least three hundred people, numbers of whom perhaps had never heard a sermon, by one of our laity.

Our local ministry all seem to be faithful and active, our heads of the various auxiliaries are never absent from the post of duty and, so in humble prayer and fruitful service we hope to endure.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

Sunday, October 26th, Bro. James E. Kelley occupied the morning hour at the church, Bro. V. M. Goodrich in the evening.

Oct. 18th Bro. Lyman Fisher died quite suddenly while visiting his sister, Sr. Eliza Badham.

Tuesday, Oct. 21st, Bro. Nelson Van Fleet died in his 83rd year, leaving a wife and eight children. Bro. Van Fleet died on the eve of his fifty-second wedding anniversary.

Bro. Bruce and Roy Sly are holding tent meetings at Long Beach. Bro. W. A. McDowell is also assisting. Preaching at Hermosa Beach every other Sunday, where a number of the saints have built homes in Convention Park.

CORRESPONDENCE

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 27.

Editor Ensign:—The Ensign of October 2, contains an article from the Albuquerque Journal in which I read, what purports to be an oration of an Indian, one of a party of four, who had come east in search of "The white man's book from heaven." I chance to have in my possession a similar account, differing however from the one in the Ensign in that it states that the party came to St. Louis, to General Clark, then superintendent of Indian affairs, of the Northwest, instead of to the "great white father," in Washington City. There are also some variations in the two versions of the speech.

The work that I have is a pamphlet published by Rev. G. W. Martin, Manti, Utah, called "How the Oregon Trail became a Road." I quote from the pamphlet as follows:

"In the autumn of 1832 a deputation of four Indians reached St. Louis, inquiring for General Clark, then superintendent of Indian affairs for the Northwest. Some accounts call them Flatheads, some Nez Percés; two of them were old men and two were young. They came to find 'The white man's Book from Heaven'; for which their people had waited what seemed a long time. They had not forgotten that this book was to tell them how to live in this world so as to be pleasing to the Great Spirit, and so as to reach the Happy Hunting Grounds hereafter. They desired to take back with them this wonderful book, and someone to teach them the right way of life and worship. Gen. Clark told them that what they had heard was true. He endeavored to set forth to them the contents of the Bible as best he could. He also entertained these children of the Far West. He showed them the wonders of the city; gave them rides in vehicles on wheels their wonder and delight; he took them to parties, to theaters and to places of worship, Romish places. Two of the men sickened and died. When springtime came, the others prepared to return. It is said that General Clark gave them a farewell banquet; as it was being enjoyed, one of the messengers tried to voice the disappointment they both felt, in not securing the help for which they came. A clerk in General Clark's office took down the speech as it was interpreted to General Clark. It was as follows:

"I come to you over a trail of many moons from the setting sun. You were the friends of my fathers, who have all gone the long way. I came with one eye partly opened for more light for my people who sit in darkness. I go back with both eyes closed. How can I go back blind to my blind people. I made my way to you with strong arms, through many enemies and strange lands that I might carry back much to them. I go back with them broken and empty. The two fathers who came with me—the braves of many winters of war—we leave asleep here by your great water. They were tired in many moons and their mocassins wore out. My people sent me to get the white man's Book from Heaven. You took me where you allow women to dance, as we do not ours, and the Book was not there. You showed me the images of good spirits, and pictures of the good land beyond, but the Book was not among them. I am going back the long, sad trail to my people of the dark land. You make my feet heavy with burdens of gifts, and my mocassins will grow old in carrying them, but the Book is not among them. When I tell my poor blind people, after one more snow, in the big council, that I did not bring the Book, no word will be spoken by our old men, or by our young braves. One by one they will rise and go out in silence. My people will die in darkness, and they will go on the long path to the other hunting grounds. No white man will go with them, and no white man's Book to make the way plain. I have no more words."

I have copied carefully from Mr. Martin's pamphlet as it seems to me to be of considerable interest to Latter Day Saints. It will be observed that this account omits the sentence, "You took me where they worship the Great Spirit with candles, but the Book was not there." This account also makes it appear that the Indians do not allow their women to dance, while the article in the Ensign states the reverse. The little word not making the change.

Rev. Martin further adds: "George Catlin, traveler and artist, the famous painter of Indian portraits, came west that spring of 1833, to push his purpose of preserving to the world the American Indians by means of his art. He joined the annual trades caravan, in which these two young men were returning. He made their acquaintance, and painted their portraits, which are yet preserved in the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C. But Mr. Catlin did not learn the object of their mission to St. Louis until he returned to Pittsburg the next fall. He doubted the report, and so wrote to his friend, General Clark, who replied: 'The story is true; that was the only object of their mission.'"

I obtained the copy of Mr. Martin's pamphlet when, a few years ago, in company with Bro. G. J. S. Ables, we called on him at his home in Manti, Utah, he being the Presbyterian minister at that place. Rev. Martin of course holds that the Bible was the book in question.

If any of the brethren should desire a copy of this pamphlet, it can no doubt be obtained by addressing Rev. G. W. Martin, Manti, Utah. I think his price is 15 cents.

Your brother,

H. N. Hansen.

AVA MO., Oct. 10.

Editor Ensign:—As I haven't seen any items from this branch for some time I will drop a few lines. I am interested in the work having been in the church seven months. Bro. J. W. Dubose has been laboring with us at Ava for ten days with good success having baptized one and has most of the business men interested in the work, and has sold several Books of Mormon and quite a lot of other literature. He also held ten day meeting at our church with great interest, and four baptisms.

Our members are in good working order. We have prayer meeting, preaching, and Sabbath school every Sunday. Land here is worth from five to twelve dollars per acre.

Yours in Christ,

Ira Seley.

LOTHAIR, MO., Oct. 28.

Dear Ensign:—I have long thought I would like to write to you. I am not a subscriber now but want to be when I get the money. I love to read your little paper and get so much good from it. I have been a saint a little over a year now, and have received several great blessings. My God bless this great grand work and prosper it. My heart is filled with gladness to know that I have obtained so great a blessing as God's love eternally. Oh may I ever and always walk in the light of love and glory and serve him with my whole might and soul.

Dear saints, I ask your special prayers that I my cross may bear gladly and patiently, always serving the Master willingly. Tonight my heart is filled with a longing for more light and spiritual blessings.

I am married but my husband is not a member of the church. Dear saints, I beg of you, in your prayers to remember him, that he too may be a saint in the near future, that we may have family worship in our home. Oh happy is that home in which God our Father dwells, and I devoutly hope that ours may be one of those very soon. I have no little ones but want to adopt a dear little girl, so I pray dear saints, will you join me in my prayers that the dear Lord place some homeless child with me to be my very own, to love and care for all her life.

May God bless you, dear brothers and sisters, and prosper you as you need.

Your sister in Christ,

Ada B. Stroner.

DECATUR, NEBR. Oct. 1.

Dear Ensign:—We still have the gospel banner aloft in our little branch, although we are not as active as we should be, we trust that we all may get a clearer understanding of our different duties, and move out with greater zeal to help push this work to that end that the Lord wants it to be.

On Friday Sept. 12, Bro. W. A. Smith and W. E. Shakespear arrived in our little town with the gospel tent from Lyons Neb., where they tried to put the truth before the people but with very little success. The people of the above named town seem to be very much contented concerning their soul's salvation.

But the first night they preached here they had a large and attentive congregation, and so it continued until they were forced to store the tent away for this season on a count of cold weather.

They went from the tent to the church for a week with pretty good interest.

Although none were baptized, yet we feel that good seed has been sown which will result in a good harvest in the near future. We certainly miss the brethren since their departure from us, but we truly hope God will bless them in their labors elsewhere.

The gospel is my greatest pleasure. I get more true pleasure when I am assisting in the Lord's work than anything else in the world. The Lord has blessed me in many ways. The more I am permitted to be with the saints in the different services the more I can see the beauty and grandness of the latter day work. But all around us on every hand we see things come to pass that bring to our remembrance the great day that is to come. Oh it is my constant prayer that all the brothers and sisters and I may be able to dwell with Christ and his saints in that purified condition.

I am thankful every day of my life for this gospel and the grand gifts and promises there are in it.

Bro. G. Wells was also with us a week and gave some interesting talks on his mission to Australia, and two good sermons.

Well, as my letter is getting lengthy, I will close hoping and praying that God will bless and provide for all of his saints.

Your sister in Christ,

Miss Clara Lewis.

PRIMO, UTAH, Sept. 25th.

Dear Ensign:—My wife and I came here as per my appointment June 6th and settled down in the parsonage for work. The journey here was pleasant, the scenery picturesque, and interesting to us of the low lands. We found this city to be a very pretty place of about twelve thousand, and the people seem to be industrious and well behaved. It is referred to as the Garden City of Utah and as far as I have seen, it certainly is. We found quite a number of good saints here, a few in the city, others out in the country.

We began our work by visiting, and encouraging them to attend our services, which they do. There seems to be great difficulties in reaching the people here as elsewhere in this district, that is to get them to attend our services. The difficulty seems to be an outgrowth of the influence of the work and practice of the early pioneers to this valley, and also the influence of those binding oaths, and obligations, taken in their endowment house. Many seem to have cast those obligations aside, perhaps with the thought that a bad promise is better broken than kept, but it seems that those who were once ardent supporters of Brigham Young, and have thrown aside their faith, are now infidels, at least in argument.

There are some who are real faithful to the teachings of Brigham and are still practicing polygamy—penly, but I do not think that that kind of marriages are performed in the temple any more (though I do not know) but I am told that they go to Mexico. At least there are enough engaged in that unlawful practice to keep polygamy alive for a long time, but the general sentiment among those I have met is against such practice. One gentleman expressed himself that polygamy was a fatal mistake. The great difficulty lies in the fact of the impossibility of separating Mormonism from polygamy and its main support lies in tradition.

I have not as yet met any other kind of argument. One man did say that God commanded Abraham to take Hagar etc., and I said to him, "suppose I would admit that (which I don't) is your name Abraham? While I will admit that God commanded Noah to build an ark and the Apostle Peter to go fishing to get the piece of tax money, why don't you, sir, build an ark or go fishing?" Another man said his wife told him to take another wife, just as the law directs. Well I told him I did not know anything about any such a law but I rather supposed she was guided by that old proverb, that misery loves company.

At another time a gentleman says "Don't you believe that Adam is a God?" I told him "No." He then quoted Jno. 10:35, "There," he says, "the Scriptures teach that doctrine." I said, "yes sir," but Joseph Smith explained that scripture in Sec. 76:5. "As it is written ye are gods ye, even the sons of God." and "Again he says in Gen. 6:11, 17 that Adam lived 930 years and died and as Jesus was the first to rise from the dead, then sir, for 4000 years, they had no God, only a dead one. Again if the resurrection of Adam depended upon Jesus Christ, what did Jesus mean when he said my father is greater than I?" Well he said that the Scriptures taught the plurality of God, in Gen. 3:5. Dan. 2:47. "Yes" I said, "but if you will read that Scripture again you will see that the reference in Dan. 2:47, that it is old Nebuchadnezzar who says that, and you will excuse me for not believing in that old pagan's doctrine. The other reference in Gen. 3:5 is the teaching of the Devil, and you will have to excuse me again.

Another gentleman says, "don't you believe in progression after death?" I answered "yes sir, but I don't believe we will become gods from the fact that Jesus says in Luke 20:36 that they who are accounted worthy of the resurrection, and to obtain that world, are equal to the angels, and Joseph Smith teaches in Sec. 76:7, that they who enter the celestial glory where God and Christ are, are equal in power and might and dominion and in Sec. 85:6 says they shall all receive a fullness, so of course some of us at least will have to progress won't we?" and he said "I guess so." "Well sir, Jesus says we will be equal unto the angel doesn't he?" He said "Yes" "Well my friend if you believe in that polygamous revelation then it says in par. 17 that the angels remain single and separate and cannot be exalted, and are not gods, but are angels of God for ever." He said, "yes it says that." "Well my friend then how can you believe in the eternity of marriage, or that you will become a god?" I refer to those things to show that about all of the peculiar doctrine that goes to make up what I call Utah Mormonism, grows out of that spurious revelation. Consequently should they in fact let loose of that revelation (and they will) then Utah Mormonism will dissolve and be no more.

I am informed that about all of their oaths and obligations taken in their temple are in part and in sentiment, in that revelation and their temples would be opened and no secrets to be covered up. And yet Jesus says in Matt. 5:34, "But I say unto you, swear not at all, neither by heaven for it is God's throne, nor by the earth for it is his footstool: neither by Jerusalem for it is the city of the great King; neither by thy head because thou canst not make one hair white or black." From what I have referred to in connection with the trend of the times that the condition of Utah Mormonism will force them to finally yield to the influence of the powers that be. It is strange indeed that our government which has already declared that doctrine to be unlawful will continue to allow them to use the mails as an agent in distributing those books that teach that doctrine and thus be a party to that which is by the law considered to be unlawful.

Well, this is a fine country, fruit is excellent, water good but it does not provide all that is needed. Much of the necessities are shipped in, and of course on account of R. R. rates being high, prices are also high. One peculiar thing I have seen here, and that is a gentleman here in business (who is a Jew) and is a gentile.

As ever,

W. H. Kelley, of Indep. Mo.

PENYSHOE, BACUPHILL,

4 Enderly Green, Glamorganshire, Wales.

Oct. 22, 1913.

Editor Ensign:—Please say in your columns that Elder James Evans and son and Elder Thomas Jones and a young man who is the brother of a brother in the faith at Plymouth—Albert Bunt—were at work in the Lenghend mines when the terrible disaster occurred. We heard the roaring flames but we never entertained the thought of death. We had faith that we would reach our loved ones alive. But when? We do not claim any miraculous intervention for the moment, all were saved in the nine foot seam where we worked.

But we see a Providence eighteen months ago when I was to have worked in this very mine which has lost so many lives. In fact I was instructed to work in it, went down that shaft the same morning. But one thing led to another and the under manager said: "I think you will suit me in the lower mine; come along;" and we then descended from the landing to the safest part, geographically, in the whole of these ill fated mines. In consequence of that Bro. Evans came late on to the same place.

We say truly "Bless the Lord, oh my soul." When the disaster occurred and we had gotten to the top of the shaft, after seeing all our comrades up safely, I wanted to again go down to the other seam to which I and others had climbed once by the ladder 50 yards to direct the first rescue party in the pit. We were told (because we were affected by the black damp) we had better see those thousands of dear women and give the comfort we could by our presence. Our hearts sank when we saw the several dead and injured on the pit-top, and it more fully dawned upon us that the disaster was far-reaching.

I was melted at the queries of wives and others. "Have you seen so and so?" "Have you seen my son?" giving names. I at last saw my dear partner. She was there full of faith that I was alive, and only I some dreading dream that peered into her mind now and then, she would have been perfectly composed.

In calmness we praise our God, yet we are sad that the joy that is ours is so near to the distress of our friends and neighbors and we are helping them in a general way. Last but not least the inquiries of our dear brethren and sisters in Christ (from London, Manchester, Gloucester, Birmingham, Cardiff and all over the mission) have made us feel that it is a rich privilege, yea an indescribable heritage to be a saint.

Your brother in the all reliant Master, Christ,

Thos. Jones.

P. S. I was in the mission work until 1911. I am a high priest, and had to quit the field for lack of the where-with. Kindest love to you Bro. Fry. You will remember me at a Cardiff conference some fifteen years ago I believe.

THE LAW OF PARDON, OR REMISSION OF SINS, AS TAUGHT BY JOHN THE BAPTIST, AND JESUS THE CHRIST.

ELDER L. E. HILLS.

"And thou child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest; for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways: to give knowledge of salvation unto his people by remission of their sins."—Luke 1:76,77. This is the mission of John the Baptist.

"And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins."—Matt. 1:21.

There are different opinions, among those who believe in Christ, as to who his people are, and how he saves them from their sins; many holding, that his death upon the cross pardons the sins of all those who accept him as their Savior, while others believe the Scriptures to teach that Jesus came to reveal a law, by obedience to which, pardon, or remission of sins may be obtained, as in Hebrews 5:9.

These different interpretations of the New Testament Scriptures, show a necessity for careful study of the word.

John the Baptist was to go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways: To give knowledge of salvation unto his (the Lord's) people by remission of their sins, and Mark 1:1-4, says that the beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, was—"the voice of one crying in the wilderness. Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins."

This shows clearly, John the Baptist commenced the work that Jesus was to take up and carry on to completion. Jesus endorsed the work of John as being authorized of heaven, for he went to John to be baptized, and said, "For thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness."—Matt. 3:13-15.

On one occasion when Jesus was in the temple, the chief priests and elders asked him about his authority, and in reply, he asked them a question, "The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven or of men?" They answered, We cannot tell. And religionists of today cannot answer that question without condemning their dogmas, or denying the teachings of Christ as he said, "For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not."—Matt. 21:23-32.

We note in the work of John the Baptist, that remission of sins was provided for up to the time of baptism, but there was no way revealed in his teachings by which sins committed after baptism could be remitted, he only pointed to Christ. He would finish the work.

When John was put in prison, Jesus took up the work of John and carried it right on. While John was in prison he sent two of his disciples to Jesus, saying, "Art thou he that should come?" "And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speak unto the people concerning John." "But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet. . . . And all the people that heard him, (Christ) and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John. Who did this baptizing? Jesus, or his disciples? For John was in prison, John's disciples had departed."—Matt. 11:2. Luke 7:19-30.

It is evident Jesus taught, and practiced, the baptism of John, that is, baptism for the remission of sins, and on the day of Pentecost the Apostles were teaching the same thing. Acts 2:37,38.

Again I call attention to the statement of the Angel. Matt. 1:21 "He shall save his people from their sins." There are two important points here to be noticed, first, who are his people, here referred to? Second, how does he save them from their sins.

It is evident that only those who believed in him, and kept his words were considered his people, according to his statement recorded in John 8:31-34. "Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, if ye continue in my word, then ye are my disciples indeed; (his people) and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." And when they answered, they were not in bondage, Jesus taught them they were servants of sin showing them they were to be freed from sins.

One thing we must remember in the study of this question, Jesus was the mediator of a covenant, and his blood is an important factor in saving his people from their sins.—Heb. 8:6. Heb. 10:29.

The Covenant is called, The gospel, the doctrine of Christ, the truth, and the word of God. Read Romans 1:16,17. 2 John 9,10. John 17:17. John 14:24. Luke 8:11. Luke 11:28. John 6:68. James 1:22,23. etc.

Faith, Repentance, and Baptism in water for remission of sins, as taught and practiced by John the Baptist, are first principles of the gospel covenant, and John was a man authorized, and sent of God to do that work. John 1:6. Luke 3:2,3.

Acts 19:1-6. It is here evident that it takes something more than being immersed in water for the remission of sins, to constitute a true Christian baptism: for Apollos who baptized them with the baptism of John, had not been called of God and ordained for that work, not sent of God, therefore his baptism was of man only, he could not baptize them into Christ.—Matt. 21:25. Acts 18:24,25. Mark 3:14.

"Straight is the gate and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Matt. 7:14. That which John the Baptist taught was the straight gate, the gate of righteousness.—Psa. 118:19,20. Jesus calls this gate, the door. John 10:1-3. They were baptized into Christ. Gal. 3:27-29. Thus are his sheep his people.

Jesus said: "For many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able." Luke 13:24. Did not seek for, and have not found the baptism from heaven. Matt. 21:25. Again, I am the door, (only through Christ can this door be reached,) by me (authority from him) if any man enter in, he shall be saved. He will save his people from their sins.

Did his people sin after they were baptized? 1 John 1:8. "If we, (saints, his people,) say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. Again: 1 John 2:1 "My little children, (saints, v. 12) these things write I unto you, that ye sin not, and if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father. Jesus Christ the righteous.

How can sins, committed by his people after baptism, be remitted? This is the important question now before us.

I quote, 1 John 1:7. "But if we walk in the light, [knowledge of the Covenant,] as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his son cleanseth us from all sin."

The Angel did not say he would save his people from punishment, that is not the thought, Jesus was to save them from their sins.

In what way is the blood of Christ applied to his people, to cleanse them from their sins?

In studying the festival of the Passover, we see it is both commemorative and typical: The deliverance which it commemorated was a type of the great salvation it foretold. (Smith's Bible Dictionary) The Passover was useless unless eaten: so Christ the lamb of God taught, his flesh and blood must be partaken of, in the sacrament.

As Jesus was eating the Paschal meal with his disciples, he "took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup (wine) and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many (his people) for the remission of sins." Notice! He said the wine represented his blood and was for the remission of sins. Matt. 26:26,28.

The sacrament is of great value to all who are in Christ, for, as Jesus' flesh and blood were in his body, so his flesh and blood in the sacrament, are in his body, his church; and no one can have access to it unless they are his people, members of his church.

As the Paschael lamb was eaten with bitter herbs, so the sacrament should be partaken of with the bitter herbs of repentance and confession.—If thy brother has ought against thee; first be reconciled to thy brother. Matt. 5:23,24. James 5:16. 1 John 1:9.

After Jesus had eaten the Passover, he said to his disciples, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another: as I have loved you that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." John 13:34,35.

Can any one sin willfully, after he has received a knowledge of the truth, and be cleansed of those sins by the blood of Jesus? Sin willfully? premeditate sin? Paul said; There remaineth no more sacrifice for such sins.—Heb. 10:26-29.

The saints must eat the flesh and drink the blood of the Lamb of God in the sacrament as Jesus said. "Then Jesus said unto them, verily, verily, I say unto you, except ye eat the flesh of the son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood bath eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day." John 6:53,54.

He will save his people from their sins. Matt. 1:21. His people are they which believed his word, repented, and were baptized into Christ. Gal. 3:27,29. Rom. 6:3,17,18. If they are overcome and sin, thoughtlessly, having faith, they repent and partake of the sacrament, they are cleansed by the blood of Jesus. 1 John 1:7. Heb. 10:29. Matt. 26:27,28.

John saw Christ's people in vision at Patmos. I beheld, and lo, a great multitude . . . before the Lamb, clothed with white robes. . . . And one of the elders said unto me, what are these which are arrayed in white robes? And whence came they? And I said unto him; Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me; These are they which come out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Rev. 7:9,13, 14.

Notice! Who washed their robes and made them white? was it Christ? They washed their own robes in the blood of the Lamb.

Many councils have discussed this great question; Many great men studied deeply into this matter: For centuries this study has been going on, and the majority have concluded that this is the most satisfactory understanding of the cleansing from sin by the blood of Jesus.

He will save his people from their sins, first by baptism, then through the sacrament, as operative in the perfect law of liberty.

SIR OLIVER LODGE AND DUALISM.

The British Association for the Advancement of Science has acquired a position of great weight and prestige with the thinking people of the age. The annual address of the incoming president is regarded as a matter of special interest and weight. Last year, Dr. Schaefer attracted much attention because of his strong materialistic utterances. He took the position which was generally interpreted as teaching that chemistry and physics was everything. Dr. Wallace, the venerable scientist and Darwin's associate, took exception, and showed that chemistry and physics could never account for the human spirit.

Sir Oliver Lodge, the president, this year, in his opening address, took a much broader view than did Sir Edward Albert Schaefer.

Sir Oliver Lodge does not ignore the place and reality of natural science. He does not say that this universe is only material or spiritual, but if we rightly read him, he maintains that it is both material and spiritual. That, while there is a border line, a meeting place between two realms, yet each is distinct and real within itself. Neither one can claim the reality, and assign the other to the phenomenal. Both are realities, and both have their phenomena of manifestations. He says:

"So if ever in their enthusiasm, scientific workers go too far and say that the things they exclude from study have no existence in the universe, we must appeal against them to direct experience. We ourselves are alive, we possess life and mind and consciousness, we have first-hand experience of things quite apart from laboratory experiments. They belong to the common knowledge of the race. Births' deaths and marriages are not affairs of the biologist, but of humanity; they went on before a single one of them was understood, before a vestige of science existed. We ourselves are the laboratory in which men of science, psychologists and others, make experiments. They can formulate our processes of digestion, and the material concomitants of willing, of sensation, of thinking, but the hidden guiding entities they do not touch.

"So also, if any philosopher tells you that you do not exist, or that the external world does not exist, or that you are an automatic without free will, that all your actions are determined by outside causes, and that you are not responsible—or that a body cannot move out of its place, or that Achilles cannot catch a tortoise—then in all those cases appeal must be made to twelve average men, unsophisticated by special studies."

Here he opposes materialist and idealist, and appeals to the general intelligence and conscious experience of mankind. He continues his challenge against both these extreme modern views in another striking passage. He has been speaking of the absurdity of omitting design from the study of the universe, as equal to the absurdity of omitting it from the bridging of the Fifth of Forth and the damming of the Nile. He says:

"But, it will be said, this is unfair, for we know that there is design in the Forth bridge or the Nile dam; we have seen the plans and understood the agencies at work; we know that it was conceived and guided by life and mind; it is unfair to quote this as though it could stimulate an automatic process.

"Not at all, say the extreme school of biologists whom I am criticising, or ought to say if they were consistent; there is nothing but chemistry and physics at work anywhere; and the mental activity apparently demonstrated by those structures is only an illusion, an epiphenomenon; the law of chemistry and physics are supreme, and they are sufficient to account for everything!

"Well, they account for things up to a point; they account in part for the color of the sunset, for the majesty of a mountain peak, for the glory of animate existence. But do they account for everything completely? Do they account for our own feeling of joy and exaltation, for our sense of beauty, for the manifest beauty existing throughout nature? Do not these things suggest something higher and nobler and more joyous, something for the sake of which all the struggle for existence goes on.

"Surely there must be a deeper meaning involved in natural objects. Orthodox explanations are only partial, though true as far as they go. When we examine each parti-colored pinulle in a peacock's tail, or hair in a zebra's hide, and realize that the varying shades on each are so placed as to contribute to the general design and pattern, it becomes exceedingly difficult to explain how this organized co-operation of parts, this harmonious distribution of pigment cells, has come about on merely mechanical principals. It would be as easy to explain the sprouting of the cantilevers of the Forth Bridge from its piers, or the flocking of the stones of the Nile Dam by chemotaxis. Flowers attract insects for fertilization; and fruit tempts animals to eat it, in order to carry seeds. But these explanations cannot be final. We have still to explain the insects. So much beauty cannot be necessary merely to attract their attention. We have further to explain this competitive striving toward life. Why do things struggle to exist? Surely the effort must have some significance, the development some aim."

If we are not mistaken, these announcements of Sir Oliver Lodge are but forerunners of many to follow, which will return to the old common-sense philosophy, in which both the material and spiritual are recognized as being two distinct realms of existence with God, as the Creator and Sustainer of both, and with man made in the image of God, as occupying the border land between them both. When, after the long struggle between these two realms, each concedes the reality of the other, there will be a great clarifying and liberty of thought, and we have hope for blessed results in all the lines of human life and progress.—The Presbyterian.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

ELDER F. M. COOPER.

The Christian life is unique in that it has certain qualities that make it superior to all other forms and expressions of human life in its various and varied manifestations. If this is not true then the Christian system has no merit over other systems controlling human thought and action. However, true Christianity exists in this world more in theory than in fact. The cogent merit of a thing is seen in what it does rather than in what we say it will do. For this reason we are oft at sea in our efforts to locate true Christian life in the lives of men, or organized society, for we find some of its manifestations in all forms of religious organization; but some of the higher and most potent practical expressions of the Christian life are seen too little in all religious organizations, our own not excluded.

It is vital and axiomatic to hold that the laws that govern in the moral and spiritual universe of God are as immutable as are the laws that govern the natural world. The regenerated soul must shine out the life of regenerated life like the light that gilds the "milkyway" in the heavens, otherwise the claim to regeneration is a fiction. In science when a star ceases to shine it is dead. If we cease to shine out from our lives the moral and spiritual qualities that belong to Christian character, as against the ethical evils of mankind, what claim have we to spiritual life? None. If, after baptism, we live just as we lived before we heard the gospel what is our status? Corpses in the militant church of Christ. After baptism such a life no more reflects the Christian character than does an idiot the intellectual acumen of a Newton. To such a soul baptism seals no blessings. The soul, in such a state, is impervious to divine ideals and the uplifting influences of the gospel as is a dead man to the touch of love.

We must deplore the state of one who receives baptism upon a mere intellectual conviction that the theory of Christianity is true without some conception of what faith means to them; what repentance means to them; what baptism means to them; what the laying on of hands means to them; what every principle of the gospel means to them in their efforts to obtain eternal salvation every principle of the gospel stands related to the perfected life and each one performs a part in the change and transformation of the soul to the attainment of the perfected state. In such a view there are no non-essentials in the divine plan but each heavenly truth and principle are but stepping stones to ultimate and eternal attainment. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth," involves the acceptance of and the application of the word of God in its divine sense if we are to possess the qualifying influence of sanctification in order to be fitted for the heavenly and eternal state. Nay, the sanctification of the soul not only involves the acceptance of God's word in its entirety but the co-operation of the Holy Spirit as well in changing the affections in the transformation of the life of the individual.

These facts alone constitute true Christian life. There is no formalism and painful service here, for the Christian affections crystalize themselves into Christian acts, so we have in the concrete manifestations of life the evidences of the higher life in the service of the individual. Paul indicates the divine process, "But we are bound to give thanks always to God for you, brethren beloved of the Lord, because God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth." (Thes. 2:13).

If we have the Christian life we will show the Christian deeds. We will love the prayer service better than the theater; the Sunday school better than the Sunday ball game; the preaching of the gospel better than cards, or fluch; the social dance and foolish and unnecessary amusements lose all of their charms in true Christian life, for the Christian mind cannot afford to squander the golden moments of its earthly sojourn in things that do not enlarge and enrich its moral and spiritual being. It is a libel on the Christian name to carry the cross in one hand and meet the world on the common level of its amusements that lead away from the sublime realities of spiritual life and from God.

In the last analysis this type of life is as dead to spiritual life as is an Egyptian mummy. It represents a case where the individual can be dead and alive at the same time. Paul says, "But she that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth." (1 Timothy 5:6). The mind whose affections are centered upon the pleasures of this world is dead to the things of God.

THE CREATION OF WORLDS.

BY DONALD P. BEARD.

The prophet of a new sidereal order! Such is the title one is tempted to bestow upon Dr. T. J. J. See, the eminent American astronomer, who was in Independence yesterday if the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Webb, on his way to San Francisco.

Dr. See is director of the Mare Island Naval Observatory near that city, and on August 15 of this year received from President Wilson the highest rank in the naval corps of mathematics, that of relative captain, United States Navy. He now occupies the position held by Prof. Simon Newcomb. Dr. See is a member of many European scientific societies, and holder of many degrees from European universities, a graduate of Columbia University, Missouri, and a graduate of Berlin with the degrees of Ph. D. and M. A.

ALL THE PLANETS PEOPLED.

Dr. See's mind has certainly grappled with the enigma of the universe, the whence and whither of the pageantry of worlds that lamp the firmament of night. He has opened for man's vision a new and inspiring vista down the star strewn spaces. He believes all the planets in the solar system are either inhabited with some form of intelligent and dominant life, or, as in the case of the great outer planets, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, are being prepared for the great drama of life.

The facts in regard to the destiny of the worlds in space are known to Dr. See. He has read them from the Book of the Stars, which he has scanned patiently for these twenty-five years, not in vain. He believes, with Camille Flammarion, the great French astronomer, that the suns of space are the centers of world systems that circle unseen about their refulgent primaries. And that forms of life, perhaps as diverse from the human as the denizens of the nethermost abysses of ocean, are being evolved on their surfaces.

TELLS HOW WORLDS ARE BUILT.

Doctor See said: "From mathematical researches on the formation of planets as separate centers of condensation in two vast streams of cosmic dust and meteoric particles that meet in space, I have proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that all the stars—fully one-third of which are probably double or multiple stars—are surrounded with dependent planets."

Then he demonstrated how two streams of cosmic dust, the product of suns which drive vast quantities of microscopically minute particles away from their photospheres into space, come together, and a vortex inevitably forms.

He said into the whirling vortex of those two streams come adventitious streams of meteoric particles, and planets form, not as detachments of aeriform nebulous matter, as Laplace erroneously supposed, but in individual centers of matter.

THE SUN'S RAVENOUS APPETITE.

Doctor See showed some splendid Lick-Observatory photographs illustrating his masterly work, "Researches on the Evolution of the Stellar Systems." He also showed portraits of the primary step in the meeting of two clouds of nebulous matter.

"Many planets never were detached from the sun," the astronomer said, "but had their origin in the outskirts of the nebula, and have since approached the sun. The satellites of the planets are planetoidal bodies that have survived from the wreck of worlds, and were captured and appropriated by their primaries in the course of ages.

The zone of asteroids circulating between the planets Mars and Jupiter is the best illustration of the primitive condition of our solar system; they are the remaining survivors of millions of such bodies that pervaded the system in its early stages of formation. They have been driven together into the zone they now occupy. The sun swallowed up 27 million bodies such as our moon in the building up of its huge mass."

The moon, once a wanderer in the celestial spaces, owing allegiance to no lordly orb, was captured by the earth and made to revolve forever around her. The other planets in the solar system, such as Jupiter and Saturn, who respectively have a retinue of eight and ten moons, and the planet Uranus, with his four satellites, captured their attendants similarly. Doctor See believes that a satellite, after once crossing a certain invisible shell of gravitative attraction surrounding the planet, must revolve in perpetuity around that planet, approaching it gradually, and finally falling in upon its surface.

In the course of long ages the moon must do the same, and, following out the logical evolution of Doctor See's remarkable theory, one must picture the planets as one by one circling nearer and nearer the dark and invisible sun.

One may extend the far-reaching finger of mathematical analysis to those far distant worlds, trembling along the visible frontier of our cosmic systems, and almost sense the dominant types in those other worlds. Who may say that this speck in the calmly glorious procession of suns and the dependent worlds is alone the center of sentient life? It would be as narrow as to affirm the old Ptolemaic system that the earth was the center of the universe, the sole and special interest of a beneficent Creator.—Kansas City Star.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

The Monroe Doctrine was proclaimed originally to meet a specific condition. While Spain was in possession of Latin America, up to early in the last century, it maintained a trade monopoly and excluded American and English merchants from a rich field.

Then the Spanish colonies took advantage of domestic difficulties in Spain to revolt and assert their independence. This gave the American and English traders the chance they had been looking for to enter the South American markets. Later came the threat of the "Holy Alliance" of Russia, Prussia, Austria, and France to help Spain regain its colonies.

England, being interested in preventing the Spanish trade monopoly from being re-established, refused to take part in the alliance, and hinted to the United States that it sympathized with the position of this government. Accordingly, in 1823, in his message to Congress President Monroe made the historic assertion:

"We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and these powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interferred and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have on great consideration and on just principles acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling their destiny by any European power in any other light than the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

The powers were in no position to give the necessary militant support to Spain, and because of that fact and the hostile attitude of the United States and England their plans fell through. The Monroe Doctrine gradually came to occupy a settled place in American policy. As interpreted by successive administrations it has been defined virtually in this way:

The United States will not permit European nations to acquire new territory, or take control of governments in the Western Hemisphere. It will permit them, however, to safeguard their property rights in Latin America.

To this President Wilson has added what Secretary Daniels calls the "Mobile declaration" that the United States would not acquire voluntarily any more territory in the New World.

Two recent applications of the Monroe Doctrine indicate its scope. In President Cleveland's second administration a dispute arose between Great Britain and Venezuela regarding the boundary between their possessions. Great Britain insisted that it would settle the boundary dispute in its own way. President Cleveland stood for arbitration in the name of the Monroe Doctrine. This government, he said, did not intend to prevent any European nation from enforcing its obligations, but it could not permit any such nation to "forcibly deprive an American state of the right and power of self government and of shaping for itself its own political fortunes and destinies." Arbitration was the result of this announcement.

A few years later Venezuela was again in trouble with European powers which sought to collect debts owing their citizens. At that time President Roosevelt defined anew the position of the United States with this declaration. "The Monroe Doctrine is a declaration that there must be no territorial aggrandizement by any non-American power at the expense of any American power on American soil. . . . We do not guarantee any state against punishment, if it misconducts itself, provided that punishment does not take the form of the acquisition of territory by any non-American power."

In other words, President Roosevelt would permit the collection of debts by European powers provided this did not involve occupation of American territory, and so interference with the government.

In this shape the doctrine seems likely to be regarded for a long time to come as an essential feature of America's foreign relations.—Kansas City Star.

PUBLIC SCHOOL EDUCATION IMPERFECT.

Two years of useful life are lost to every American under existing educational conditions due to the increased fads and furbelows adopted by the latter day schools and made part of their compulsory curriculum.

This is the finding of a body of eminent educators headed by President James H. Baker of the University of Colorado, whose report was issued by the United States Bureau of Education.

"The great mistake in our education is to suppose," says the report, "that quantity and strain constitute education. Education is a question of doing a few essential things well and without overstrain. The college has commuted a grievous mistake in demanding evermore in quantity than in quality produced under condition of healthy normal development."

The educators, who have spent ten years investigating conditions, would have the elementary education of the young occupy only six years instead of eight. They would have the student pass through high school and college so as to be prepared either to enter the world at the age of twenty or if desirous of taking a profession enable him to be equipped in two or three years later.—Sel.

THE ROUND TABLE.

In the Inspired Version of the Bible the Lord's prayer is changed to read, "Suffer us not to be led into temptation," while the Book of Mormon which is also held to be inspired reads the same as the King James: "And lead us not into temptation." Should they not be the same?

The difference is not so great as might at first seem, for every one who had any familiarity with the Bible must be aware that God does not lead men into temptation and that the evident meaning of the passage as it stands in the King James translation and the Book of Mormon is as expressed in the Inspired version "Suffer us not to be led into temptation." That there is imperfection in the wording as it stands in the King James version and in the B. M. is apparent, nor can we tell how this came. To be Moroni who completed the writing of the B. of M. about 420 A. D. said of the work, "And now if there are faults, they are the mistakes of men: wherefore condemn not the things of God that ye may be found spotless at the judgment seat of Christ." Preface, B. of M. This shows that the ancient writer did not claim perfection for the book, nor has it been claimed in this day. In the translation of the Book of Mormon several successive scribes did the writing, after which the whole manuscript was copied by (we think) Oliver Cowdery, and it was the second copy which was used by the printer in setting up the work. It is thought by many that in copying, the copyist through familiarity with the Lord's prayer as it was commonly used failed to observe closely the text and thus substituted the imperfect form in the place of the correct form in the original manuscript. This is supposition however, but highly probable. Human beings are imperfect and subject to mistakes, human language is also imperfect and frequently fails to convey the exact thought of a speaker or writer, and hence anything which is the product wholly or in part of human effort is subject to imperfection and error. We have never held the B. of M. to be free from mistakes, so far as the human part of its makeup is concerned, though we do hold that the divine part embodying the principles governing life and conduct are perfect. The language is but the frame which holds the picture of truth; the divine Artist painted the picture, the frame is man's.

Please explain Luke 11:24-26: "When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest; and finding none, he saith I will return unto my house whence I came out. And when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh to him seven spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in, and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first."

The removal of an unclean spirit from a man either by the man's repentance or by the direct manifestation of God's power, bars the evil spirit only so long as the man continues in honor and uprightness. It is ever the purpose of the adversary to seek the downfall of men, and to gain access to their hearts, and even their bodies, but to gain possession of one from whom he has been driven is one of the greatest victories and to insure his possession he brings other spirits to his aid which befool the man's whole nature, and puts him where he finds it impossible to overcome their influence and power. When men who have been enlightened fall into sin and darkness, the Lord says, "How great is that darkness."

One that I know is hard for some, rests lightly as one of my burdens, that is the absence of my husband. It is not because of lack of love and sympathy in our home, for many of my friends think we have an ideal one. I have schooled myself to bear. The discipline through which I have passed has made this sacrifice a part of the common routine of my daily life and I have never asked him to come home only as it suits his convenience, except in times of sickness and death in the family.

My greatest sacrifice is not of physical pain, but of mental disturbance. Some might call it anguish, or torture. I will not make it so harsh as that, but by whatever name it may be known, it is surely true that it has power to bring premature gray hairs. Our heavenly Father has said that the families should be provided for according to their "just wants and needs." (Doctrine and Covenants, 51:1.) It matters not whether the blame lies in a failure of the saints to do their duty, or in the church making a proper distribution. The fact remains that unless the missionary's wife has a private income, she cannot properly care for her home from her monthly allowance. If there are any exceptions to this, it does not change what is the general rule.

The question is quite naturally asked, how is the deficiency made up? My experience is the common lot of all. I have done my neighbors' washing, have sewed for them, cared for a garden, and also poultry, worn cast off garments when some of our sisters have bought new, instead of paying their titling. It is humiliating when we go to church and see our sisters dressed in the best that money can buy and we are trying to make a two year old second hand hat and garment of a similar age hang out a little longer. A few Sundays of mental disturbance and a few absent from meeting and the season is over, and we can ransack the garret, or somewhere else and we find another so old that our friends have forgotten about it, and all this because we are a missionary's wife.

We are not adverse to doing these things and especially if there is need for it, neither do we lack appreciation of the assistance rendered us and often done in the spirit of love and kindness, but it comes because some are not keeping God's law and the spirit of selfishness prevails to that extent that our heavenly Father cannot bestow upon the whole church the spiritual blessings that it so greatly needs. I, one time went to the office of— and asked for money to buy some coal to keep us warm. There was no money in the treasury. I went away weeping and asked the coal merchant for credit: it took me six months to pay the bill.

When I see the inequality that exists among our people, it makes my heart sad and were it not that I believe God is just and merciful and will rectify the wrongs either here in this life, or in the life to come, I could not love him, or try to serve him. The heart gets sick, faint, and weary of asking for what our heavenly Father says is our just dues and we try in patience and silence to bear our burdens in which we feel quite sure a loving Father helps us.

When we see those things constantly before us there are a great many passages of Scripture which comes to our minds, of which the following are a few. "But whose hath this world's goods, and seeth his brother, (or sister,) have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" 1 John 3:17. "For if ye are not equal in earthly things, ye cannot be equal in obtaining heavenly things." (D. C. 77:1.) "Let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the beauty of the work of thine own hands." (D. C. 42:12.) We have it on good authority that the prevailing fashions of the American women are of the lower world of the city of Paris. What excellent company some of our saints are in, instead of the way that pleases our heavenly Father.

A missionary's wife.

This letter is very suggestive. It pictures the experience in brief, of many of us, whether we are missionary's wives or not.

We may be divided into classes.

Many of us are worthy "poor"—some are not. Many of us are good managers as home makers and housekeepers and financiers; others are not. Some of us are trying and willing to learn; others are not and never will be.

The missionary's wife and her family are not the only ones who endure the privations of many temporal pleasures or necessities, who overwork because of lack of funds, and are not able to have any extras along lines of education, food, clothing and pleasures, but they do so from choice, and because they realize that only through this means (that of sacrifice) will the gospel ever reach those who are waiting for "the light."

When we all work together for the glory of God and the redemption of Zion, we can better endure the bitter with the sweet (since sacrifice should be sweet to us) for the bitter will not be forthcoming from our own ranks.

Then an occasional new hat or dress will be donated to the wardrobe of the chief sacrificer instead of an old one; and then the contrast between our children (so far as appearances and privileges are concerned) will not be such as to continuously wound the hearts of sensitive parents and children.

BITTER-SWEET

(TO BE READ IN CONNECTION WITH LAST WEEK'S ARTICLE.)

There are many sacrifices and trials that come to the missionary's wife, but I only wish to speak of one of them, one that is the most common to us all.

MISCELLANEOUS

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF BISHOP'S AGENT
In and for the District of Alberta, Canada.

To the Saints and friends of the district of Alberta:
Please take notice that upon the recommendation of the district conference of Alberta, Bro. W. J. Levitt, address North End, Van Macklin, Saskatchewan, has been duly appointed bishop's agent in and for the district of Alberta of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We hope and trust that the saints and friends of the Alberta District may feel an interest in assisting Bro. Levitt in his work and that the financial work of the district may be blessed in his efforts.

Bro. Levitt is duly authorized to administer the law relating to temporalities in the church as found in the Scriptures and we bespeak for him the sustenance and aid of every helper in the Lord's work.

Trusting all may be blessed of our heavenly Father. In the interest of the truth,

Very respectfully,
E. L. Kelley,
Presiding Bishop.

Independence, Mo., Nov. 1, 1913.

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means new members or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, just as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to and tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

The following resolution was offered and passed at the late District Conference here with German Stewartville Branch Oct. 11, 1913.

Whereas it has pleased our heavenly Father to take unto himself by the hand of death our beloved brother and co-worker in the vineyard of the Master Elder Andrew J. Seclay who labored as a member thereof for many years. He was president of the Kingston Branch, thus a worker for over forty years, he was faithful to the trust placed upon him, therefore be it resolved by this the Far West District Conference now in session that we hereby extend to the family of the deceased our sympathy in this time of bereavement. We pray that our Father in heaven will give those left to mourn, grace to hold out faithful and in the sweet by and by they may meet the husband and father in the paradise of God. Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the family of the deceased, a copy to the Herald and ENSIGN.

Committee.—Chas. P. Paul, D. E. Powell, T. T. Hindricks, B. J. Dice.

BOOK NEWS.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM.—The Interest in Immigration is so positive and wide-spread, and the facts concerning it are so cumulative, that Professor Jeremiah W. Jenke, and his collaborator Professor W. Jett Lauck, have already made complete revision of their work on "The Immigration Problem," published in 1911, and a new edition of it is to be issued this month by Funk & Wagnalls Co., printed from new plates, entirely revised and reset, and embodying much matter which could not at first be commanded. As now presented, this work, even much more than when originally put forth, is a distinct addition to the sociological literature of our time, and will carry the full weight of authority upon questions discussed and by tables, elaborated therein.

A SOCIOLOGICAL BOOK that is expected to compel the attention of public men and civic reformers is about ready from the press of Funk & Wagnalls Co. on "Modern Cities." Horatio N. Pollock and William S. Morgan cooperated in its preparation; and it is thought to meet a growing need in political development and the government of municipalities as no other book has done. Brand Whitlock, Mayor of Toledo, examined the manuscript and wrote enthusiastically of it to the publishers. It treats of Progress in the world-wide awakening for civic betterment.

MARRIED.

LAWTON-CAHOON.—At L. D. S. Church, Independence, Mo., on Sunday, November 2, 1913, Dr. John Sterne Lawton of St. Joseph, Mo., and Sr. Hattie J. Caboon of Falmouth, Mass., President G. E. Harrington officiating.

DIED.

TAYLOR.—Elder W. S. Taylor departed this life at his home, six miles west of Columbus, Kans., Oct. 19, 1913. He was born at Yorkshire England, June 26, 1833. He moved to Canada with his parents when about eight years old, coming to Illinois in his younger days, he was there united in marriage to Miss Mariah Hazlewood, to which union eight children were born, seven of whom, with a number of grand children survive him and mourn their loss, his wife and one daughter having gone on before.

He moved to Kansas in the spring of 1870 at which place he has resided ever since. He united with the church in 1858 and ever after remained faithful, devoted and loyal. The writer called to see him only two or three days before his departure, while very near death's door. He rallied and said: "Tell Brother Joseph my testimony, now that I have reached the supreme moment is, that God is, and that the restored gospel, which he and I have borne witness to for over fifty years, is true, and my knowledge and testimony of it has greatly been reinforced very recently, by God in his goodness lifting the veil and permitting me to view the mansion which is to be my abode. The beauty and grandeur of which surpasses all mortal understanding, and which I cannot in my feeble condition undertake to describe."

Brother Taylor was one of the only three surviving grown men who attended and took part in the Amboy conference when the Reorganization was effected. To know him was to love him for he was a kindly man, gentle as a spring time morning breeze; and who rejoiced with those who rejoiced and wept with those who wept. Known and appreciated by a large circle of friends, both in and out of the church, many of whom had been partakers of his kindly ministrations and loving council, and the young especially sought and accepted his council and advice.

His knowledge of the restored gospel and his faith in the same, was the thought and theme of his life. When called upon to go to the assistance of the sick and suffering, which was frequent, he was always ready to respond, darkness, storms, or distance seldom or never preventing, and many has been the blessings received through his service and faith. Funeral service in charge of Bishop Ellis Short, sermon by Elder Lee Quick, which was beautiful and timely. The attendance was large. Thus has passed another of the tried, the true, and faithful ones.

EWING.—At Dennison, Kansas, October 3, 1913, of heart disease, Bro. Andrew Ewing, aged 66 years and six months. He lived only thirty minutes after the attack. His wife and eight children survive him, also eight grandchildren and his five brothers and three sisters. He was baptized at Lamoni, Iowa, March 14, 1836 by C. W. Dillon. At the funeral was a large gathering of the people of Dennison and vicinity who had never heard a sermon on our faith. H. A. Stebbins preached the discourse assisted by the Methodist and Presbyterian ministers of the town.

CRANE.—Elsie Crane was born in Bates Co. Mo., July 14 1898. She was baptized by Bro. C. G. Gould at Independence, Mo. April 6, 1913. She passed this life October 8, 1913, leaving a mother, sister, brother, stepfather, two step sisters, and one step brother and grandparents to mourn their loss. Funeral sermon by J. W. Metcalfe at the undertaking parlor of C. D. Carson.

LEWIS.—Richard Lewis, born Nov. 1, 1836, at Radnor shire Wales. Died Sept. 24, 1913 near Eagle Grove Ia., at his home. United with the Reorganized Church Nov. 1893. Baptized by Elder C. E. Haad as also his faithful companion in life. He leaves wife, four daughters, and three sons. Two having passed away in childhood. Funeral at the Head Grove Church Sept. 26. Sermon by Eli Hayer of Lamoui, Ia. Interment in Woodstock cemetery.

WELSH.—Mary E. A. Welch of Troy, Mo., was born Oct. 22, 1825, died Oct. 4, 1913, aged 85 years. She was a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints eleven years, and rejoiced in the Angel's message. The funeral was from her late home. She was beloved by both saints and neighbors and many followed her remains to her final resting place at Moscow Mills Cemetery. Funeral service by Elder Noah Nephi Cook.

MASON.—Eugene L. Mason, born Oct. 25, 1869 at North Laurence N. Y., died Aug. 17, 1913, at Appleton Wis. Bro. Mason was baptized June 28, 1903, at Appleton Wis., by Elder C. H. Burr. He was highly respected for the integrity of his character by outsiders, and was an earnest and faithful church worker, being a priest and president of Fox River Branch. He leaves a wife and two daughters to mourn his death, besides many friends in and out of the church. Interment at Riverside cemetery. Services conducted by Elder B. C. Flint.

HORTON.—George F. Horton was born at Rutland, Pa., August 17, 1836, baptized at Plano, Ill., Sept. 26, 1875, by Pres. Joseph Smith. April 26, 1859, he married Sarah E. Deam, sister of Bro. W. H. Deam, two sons and three daughters being born to them, three of whom survive. As a boy he passed through the trying scenes at Nauvoo when the saints were scattered, and attended the Amboy conference in 1860 when Pres. Smith first took his place as president of the church. He came to Independence in 1887. After the death of his wife in 1877 he was again married in 1879 to Mrs. Abbie A. Jones who survives him. He died at Independence, October 15, 1913, at the age of 77, after several years of ill health. Funeral sermon by W. H. Garrett.

VAN FLEET.—Nelson Van Fleet, an early convert to the church, was born in New York State, August 21, 1831. When but a boy he went to Illinois to live, and in 1850 came to California. He married Abbie M. Austin on October 23, 1861. He was baptized Nov. 6, 1864, and occupied in the church in turn, in the office of priest, elder, high priest and patriarch. Death came October 21, 1913, at Los Angeles, California. His wife of fifty two years, and eight children survive him. The funeral, in charge of the pastor, Elder V. M. Goodrich, was from the church in Los Angeles, and Elder James E. Kelley delivered the sermon.

CRANDALL.—Gladys Crandall was born at Montrose, Iowa, August 13, 1873; died October 13, 1913, at Florida Vista, New Mexico. She was married to Walter Crandall August 14, 1895, at Galland's Grove, Iowa. Of this union six children were born, one, an infant, lay on its mother's arm in the same casket. Five children with the father and numerous relatives and friends mourn her departure. She was baptized in 1884, and lived a consistent Christian life. During her sickness she wrote letters to her children, admonishing them to live lives of purity and usefulness and above all to cling to the rod of iron, or church. Sermon by Elder W. B. Farley, assisted by Rev. Mills of Flora Vista, N. M., and Rev. Budy of Aztec, N. M.

COLMAN.—Susana Elizabeth Colman died October 13, 1913, at the home of her son at Iuka, Kansas. She was administered to just before she passed away, and was filled with the Spirit, praising God until the breath left the body. She was born February 13, 1839. Seven children and one sister are left to mourn their loss. She was baptized in June, 1911, by the writer. Sermon by Elder F. C. Keck to a large audience of sympathizing friends.

SALT LAKE SOUVENIR.

The ladies of the Salt Lake Branch are making Salt Lake Souvenir Salt Beads, made from the salt of the Great Salt Lake. They are offering them for sale to help pay for the recently acquired edifice, a commodious church and parsonage at 336 Fourth East Street, Salt Lake City.

These beads are very attractive, in various fast colors to suit different tastes—white, pink, red, blue, black, yellow, green, etc. They have the appearance of the California rose beads which are so universally popular. They are all hand-made, the workmanship of our own ladies, who make the beads without charge to the branch, and have only to be seen to be appreciated.

The prices are 50 cents, 75 cents, $1.00, and up to $2.50 according to length desired. Will send sample neck chain prepaid to any address on receipt of fifty cents.

Officers of branches, Sunday schools, Religions, Woman's Auxiliaries, and missionaries are urged to aid the Salt Lake building fund by sending these beads, which give excellent value to the purchasers.

Remittances should be made by Post Office Order.

EDITORIAL

ONE POINT OF THE LAW.

One point of the law of Christ whose value and importance is generally underestimated is that stated by the Lord in Matthew 18:15.

Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his faults between thee and him alone.

The amount of evil engendered by a disregard of this instruction is beyond the power of man to measure, but a little observation of the conditions in the world shows that the law is almost universally forgotten, and that it is accounted a natural and unavoidable thing to publish the faults and wrong doings of men without reservation. Individuals learning of others misdeeds often prize the knowledge as a precious treasure to be dispensed to friends who in turn continue to spread it to others. Daily papers have most of their columns occupied with detailed accounts of domestic troubles, escapades, and crimes, much of which had better be left in silence.

The practice of holding out to view the faults of others indicates a condition of character which is far short of the standard required in the gospel. A reasonable love for God and man dwelling in the heart will leave no room for the disposition to depress or crush a fellow-man, but will lead to deeds of kindness and helpfulness. John says, "He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him," or as the Greek manuscripts have it, "He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is no scandal in him."

The latter rendering while agreeing with the former is evidently clearer, and shows that the saint who has the gospel regard for his brother will not dispense scandal against him. "Charity suffereth long, and is kind; . . . thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity." Christ enjoins upon his disciples to "love one another," without which there can be no permanent place in his kingdom, for in Matthew 13:41 he says that at the harvest time he "shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all scandal, [Greek] and them which do iniquity." David speaking of the glorious Zion of God says that among its inhabitants will be "He that backbiteth not with his tongue," (Psalms 15). James says that the use of the tongue in this way "defileth the whole body," and "is set on fire of hell."

Later revelation agrees with the Bible upon this subject when it says "Thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor," and the Scriptures make no distinction between that which may be true and that which is untrue. Some people think that if a thing be true that they are fully warranted in telling it, but apart from the effect upon them of the telling, the effect upon the one whose fault is told, and upon society is injurious. James says further that such things are "deadly poison," and the result is to involve others in spiritual darkness and disaster.

The law of Christ is perfect, and this point requiring one who has a grievance against another to seek an amicable adjustment "between thee and him alone," rather than to advertise the grievance before the world, thereby enlarging the barrier between them and making more difficult a reconciliation, can not be omitted from daily practice and still leave hope for final perfection. Saints have need to guard their conduct along this line, not only as to individual matters but in general, for ill effects follow from speaking of the faults of a family, a local congregation of the church, or the church itself, when it is done without proper occasion, as well as when speaking of the faults of an individual.

To go directly to one who has offended and in a spirit of charity and brotherly love seek reconciliation will in most cases bring the desired result, the cause of offense is removed, brotherly love is maintained, and the one overtaken in the fault is preserved from public reproach which under the usual procedure would follow him all his days. If a man offends publicly he can blame none but himself for the reproach which he suffers, but the law even then provides that by repentance and confession he may set himself right before the church and be forgiven of his offense.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 20.

THE SCOPE OF THE WORK.

The purpose of the Church of Jesus Christ is to bring eternal life to man, and to bring man to eternal life. The greatness of such a work gives latitude for a great variety of effort, and necessitates the activities of the intelligent forces of heaven and earth co-operating together in mutual understanding for its accomplishment.

The origin of this church and the gospel of salvation which it teaches was with God and his Son Jesus Christ, the gospel having been restored from heaven by the revelation of God himself and the ministrations of angels, and the church organized under their direction and command. By the continued manifestation of divine power is the gospel preached and the church maintained, by which eternal life is made accessible to man.

The bringing of man to eternal life requires the missionary department of the church and its special line of work in calling men to repentance, warning them of the wrath to come, and inducting as many as are willing into the church where they can come into actual contact with the forces of divine life. That those who come into the church may be instructed in the things of God and be built up in spiritual life, the pastoral department of the church is provided. Thus the needs of men are met along these lines.

In carrying on the missionary and pastoral work finances are necessary and hence a temporal department is provided. But the temporal department involves more than merely sustaining the two departments mentioned. Eternal life in this world cannot be properly appreciated and enjoyed while poverty and disease afflict so many of God's children, and hence one of the incidental duties of the church is to meet the necessities of its members along these lines, removing poverty and disease so far as practicable so that men will not be embarrassed in their efforts to grow spiritually.

Protestant churches generally have had an awakening in recent years along the line of sociology, and of late complaints are being heard that their energies are being directed so fully in that line that the primary purpose of bringing men to eternal life has become a secondary consideration, or nearly lost.

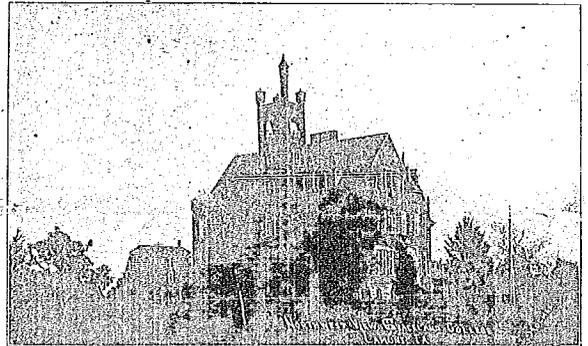

In the formation of the Church of Jesus Christ the sociological needs were provided for and from the first a system of social equality and economic justice was taught which when put into practice would dispense with all poverty. This system involved the gathering of the saints together, but through persecution the membership were not permitted to gather to one place and remain in order to fulfill the law, and in its scattered condition the church has been unable to attain the ideal condition in this regard. It is still one of the aims of the church however and with the growth of membership and the assembling together in the places appointed under divine direction its realization is assured. A beginning has been made looking toward this ideal condition of social equality by the organization of a benevolent corporation known as "The United Order of Enoch." As other aids in the work of the church the following institutions are noted.

THE COLLEGE.

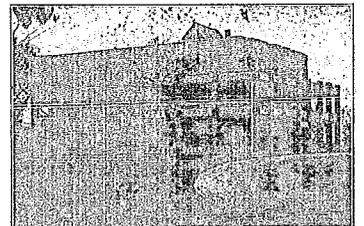

Ignorance is one of the great barriers to the attainment of eternal life. Faith itself is dependent upon a proper comprehension of the evidences of the existence and character of God without which there can be no true faith, and even after faith, knowledge is said by the Apostle Peter to be one of the qualities which should be added in order for one to become fruitful in the divine life. The necessity of educating the young in the church was early seen by the church, and plans were made for schools and educational books, but again confusion and scattering consequent upon violent persecution hindered. The membership have availed themselves of the advantages offered in the various educational institutions both public and private which have in later years become abundant and efficient.

A need for an institution of higher learning in which the youth of the church might acquire an education under the influences of the church became so apparent that in 1890 steps were taken toward founding a college at Lamoni, Iowa, at which place were the headquarters of the church. Land was donated, and funds subscribed and the corner stone was laid November 25th, 1895, though the school had been opened previous to this in rented buildings under the name of Graceland College. This college is not a theological school, nor is it sectarian, but an institution of learning where all the youth so disposed and able may go. Capable and worthy young men and women who through poverty could not enjoy its benefits have been aided in taking the courses regardless of nationality or creed. In making people intelligent this institution is fitting them for the higher good which the church offers.

THE SAINT'S HOMES.

To meet the need of a number of aged and infirm the bishopric of the church made provision for the erection of a home for the aged. Land was donated and purchased, in all over sixty acres, at Lamoni Iowa, and a suitable building was erected in 1893. At its opening Miss. Alice P. Dancer became matron and has freely given of her services to the present time in caring for the many aged saints who have spent, or are spending their final years there. It has been a boon to many, and the care given has been impartial to those who had means with which to pay their way and to those who were without.

As necessity has required other homes have been opened, viz., one at Lamoni, called "Liberty Home," and which was formerly the home of President Joseph Smith. Liberty Home now consists of two large buildings. Another was opened at Kirtland, Ohio, and another at Independence Mo. The purpose of these homes is to provide for the aged and infirm, and other adults who are for any reason unable to care for themselves.

INDEPENDENCE SANITARIUM.

The spirit of the gospel requires that the sick be properly cared for, and while the church believes in healing through the ordinance of administration anointing with oil and the laying on of hands with prayer, yet there are often conditions which hinder or prevent the operation of the Spirit of healing. Jesus himself could do no miracle where there was unbelief. An environment of an impure atmosphere, and of uncleanness, which often cause disease, will also hinder a restoration to health.

Some people have supposed that God's healing power is manifested only miraculously and instantaneously, but while in some cases healing comes in this way, in others it operates gradually, and the one is no less the power of God than the other. The laws say: "And whosoever among you are sick, and have not faith to be healed, but believe shall be nourished with all tenderness with herbs and mild food, and that not by the hand of an enemy. And the elders of the church, two or more, shall be called, and shall pray for, and lay their hands upon them in my name; and if they die, they shall die unto me, and if they live, they shall live unto me."

For the more effectual fulfillment of this law, the church in 1896 by divine direction took steps to build a sanitarium at Independence, Mo., where the sick and afflicted could be cared for, and under favorable spiritual influences, and with proper nursing and medical care be brought back to health wherever such is possible. Some remarkable results have been experienced in this line.

CHILDREN'S HOME.

About the same time efforts were made mainly by the women of the church, resulting in the establishment of a home for children not otherwise provided for at Lamoni, Iowa. This home fulfills the part of parents to orphaned and needy children, and while caring for their physical needs, they are also given an education and religious training.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE ISLANDS.

A letter from Bro. C. Edward Miller from Tahiti one of the South Pacific islands, conveys the cheering news that a considerable number of the natives who left the church several years ago, had, under the labors of Bro. G. T. Griffiths and his brethren, and the influence of the Holy Spirit, been brought to see their error, and were returning to the church. About twenty or thirty were coming for baptism including their leaders, and it is expected the others to the number of one hundred will follow. There is great rejoicing among the saints there. Bro. Miller's letter will appear next week.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

A picture film company was operating in Independence last week taking scenes of Independence life. Among other things recorded in the form of pictures was a parade of the several thousand school children of the city at the high school building, an automobile parade, a run of the fire department, several churches with their moving congregations including the stone church, railway depot scenes, and scenes upon the square. It is intended to show the films throughout the state.

Bro. Ocar Johnson, our missionary in Scandinavia, called at Independence over Sunday, November 2nd, on his way from his field to his home in the west. He is appointed to the Utah mission for the balance of the year.

The nurses dormitory connected with Independence Sanitarium is in need of a piano for the benefit of the nurses. This is a chance for someone who has a piano which is not in use to help the sanitarium by putting it in the dormitory either as a gift or loan. The committee would be glad to hear from anyone who is in a position to help in this way. The nurses work hard in caring for the sick and have but little time to themselves, but their periods of recreation could be made much more pleasant and cheerful with music in their home. Write to Dr. Joseph Mather, or Bro. J. L. Gray of the committee.

At the Religio session last Friday night an interesting discussion was had upon the question of merging the Sunday school and Religio Associations. Pleas were heard upon both sides whether to merge or not. It is expected that the question will up for decision at the stake conventions and at the general convention next April.

The Sunday school on Sunday morning had a total attendance of 889. There were 36 officers present, and 103 teachers,—less than the number of classes which were 115. Of these classes 35 had a perfect attendance. The collection was $15.55.

Elder M. H. Bond spoke in the morning contrasting "law and sentiment" in religion. He emphasized the stability of law and the security of those who live according to it, and showed the fallacy of accepting without examination and comparison with the Scriptures what man teaches. Sentiment which was not based upon sound rule and order was described as being dangerous regardless of the sincerity or insincerity of those actuated by it. The afternoon prayer-meeting in charge of Bro. I. N. White, and W. E. Peak was quite good, and the spirit of peace gave joy to all. The gift of prophecy was manifested.

Sunday evening Elder J. A. Dowker was the speaker and sought to establish the divine Sonship of Jesus Christ and that all blessings and salvation come to man through him and in no other way. The effort was good.

Bro. Carl Greene, accompanied by Bro. Christian Eggers and his daughter Minna, arrived Sunday from Hanover, Ger., and intend making their home here. Bro. Greene was for twelve years a member of the Utah Church and for some years an elder, but was baptized the 20th of last January in Germany by Elder Alexander Kippe. He visited America some years ago going to Salt Lake, and was subsequently sent by the church there on a mission to his native land. Upon leaving Salt Lake he says that two tracts were placed in his hand, one representing the claims of the Reorganized Church and the other a reply by Joseph F. Smith, Jr., setting forth the claims of the Utah Church. Elder Greene saw in reading these that the position of the Reorganized Church was not fairly met, and the question was raised in his mind whether or no the claims of the latter were not correct and the Utah Church wrong. Through earnest prayer he received spiritual manifestations which with diligent study convinced him it was so, and in answer to a letter of inquiry to Pres F. M. Smith, Elder Kippe was sent to him from Berlin. Bro. Greene's labors had been so diligent among members of the Mormon Church that when Elder Kippe came, twenty-seven others were ready for baptism, showing that faithful and diligent service accomplishes much.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

The Religio had a very interesting service on Friday evening, in charge of Pres. Dickenson, with an attendance of 119. The program following the lesson was excellent.

Sunday school attendance, 251, collections, $6.07, very good.

Bro. Richard Bullard was the speaker at the morning service, his talk showed the necessity of living very near the Master, not being forgetful of our duties to him. Often that which we believe to be an affliction, is to us a blessing in disguise.

At the 2:30 prayer service there were a goodly number present, and a very spiritual time was had, some enjoying the presence of the Spirit.

At the 7:30 p. m. hour we were permitted to hear Bro. Alvin Martin, one of the young missionaries returned for a rest, and we must say his talk was very instructive. It was directed to the young more particularly. He dwelt very much on the necessity of obedience to parents, for if children were obedient to their parents, one could almost count on a surety of acceptance of the Savior at the proper time, but if they grow up in the wilds, or on the streets, there is but little assurance of their being anything but law breakers, and the final results must be regretted.

It was decided at the business meeting of the branch, that a Thanksgiving dinner be spread, either in the Curtis Hall, or in the basement of the church, that all of those who are not able to have a feast of good things on that day, should be provided for by those who are able. All will be invited, the maimed, and blind, the halt, and all.

Bishop Bullard addressed the priesthood meeting on Monday night on "The Object and Organization of the United Order of Enoch," followed by general discussion. The subject will be continued at the next meeting.

CENTRAL CHURCH, KANSAS CITY, MO.

To the saints in Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas, and all saints who may be passing through the city:—We wish to call attention to the special series of meetings started at Central Church last Sunday, the 9th, and extend to you a cordial invitation to come and worship with us throughout these services which will close the 23rd; Bro. F. A. Smith and J. W. Rushton are the speakers. We had a rousing congregation last Sunday night, and Bro. Smith gave a solid sermon on the "Authority of Christ." Stereotyped views before the service each night beginning at 7:30. Come and bring your friends. A welcome to Independence to attend. Our church is located at 9th and Lydia Streets, Take Independence, Independence Avenue, or Central Avenue car.

Yours for Christ and his work.

J. A. Tanner, Pastor.

KANSAS CITY MO., FOURTH BRANCH.

Our little branch is still in existence and trying to keep the banner of King Emmanuel aloft. Our speakers of late have been Bro. A. H. Parsons, C. L. Munroe, Harry Hattv, C. N. Brown and L. A. Fowler, all having good liberty in expounding the gospel.

Last Monday evening was our semi-annual election of officers, the following being elected: L. A. Fowler, presiding elder; Elmer St. John, priest; C. L. Munroe, teacher; C. W. Brown, deacon; Sr. Alice Armstrong, clerk; F. O. Branham, lib. com.; Sr. W. L. Vail, cor. sec.; Sr. Alice Armstrong, chorister.

Our Sunday school is prospering under the supervision of Sr. Armstrong and her co-workers. And our Religio is reviving again with Bro. C. L. Munroe as president and Bro. F. O. Branham, vice president; Bertha Vail, sec.; Bro. Branham, treas.; Elmer St. John, lib.; Sr. Braabham, organist. Praying for the success of the work everywhere.

CHICAGO, FIRST BRANCH.

About a week and a half ago Elder Jas. F. Kier, our pastor, and his wife were called out of town on a sad mission, to Leland Ill., to attend the funeral of Mrs. Kier's aunt, a Mrs. Halverson. Yesterday, Elder Kier brought home his little son Marion from the hospital, where we understand he had some minor operations performed. Yet with all those burdens, we find Bro. and Sr. Kier happy and earnest in their service to God.

We are informed that Sr. Sly, the wife of Bro. Frank Sly, is very poorly. She has not been herself since the death of their baby a few months ago. We urge all to pray for her. Please do so often and earnestly.

The unpleasant weather of late has caused numerous ills among different families of the saints in our city. This will no doubt be the case in other localities, and should serve to urge us to be more diligent while we enjoy the normal use of all our faculties.

Facts at times may not be pleasant, yet as far as it is expected, we are obliged to publish the facts, therefore, it is let this letter not be interpreted to read "pessimism." We are "optimists" clear through, from plate to sole.

Last Sunday morning, our missionary Elder David Dowker preached a very interesting sermon on our standard books. He spoke forcefully and intelligently. After the sermon a Mr. or Dr. Thiel asked for baptism which was attended to on the south side during the afternoon.

Elder Harry Passman occupied on Sunday evening taking for his subject "Fasting." He imparted splendid instruction, and his effort was well received.

On Tuesday evening, the Religio Society had a question box, which developed a goodly number of interesting points. Arrangements were made for debates to be held in the very near future.

Our regular Thursday evening prayermeeting was not very well attended.

On Friday evening a cottage preaching was held at the home of Bro. and Sr. Collins, 535 Drake Ave. Elder Dowker was announced as the speaker. It is the intention of Bro. Dowker to hold these kind of meetings wherever and whenever he can.

A new mission has already been started on the South Side, and bids fair to be successful. On the same evening a "Hallow'een Party" was held at the home of Bro. and Sr. Worsell 3408 Franklin Blvd. We are informed that all attending had an enjoyable time. The feature of the evening was the auctioning off of "Box Lunches" for the benefit of our new church building.

The Sunday afternoon club continues to have very interesting meetings. A short prayer service was one of the features of their last gathering.

At nine o'clock Sunday morning, Nov. 2nd the priesthood of the First Chicago Branch met to make a report of visits made among the saints; There is an organized effort in this direction, and thus far considerable good has been accomplished.

At 10:15 a. m. following, our regular Sunday school session opened. We are very proud of our school, and I feel that we have as good as sufficient a corps of workers in this department of God's work as may be found in some of the larger organizations. Our primary department has developed until it is regarded as practically indispensable.

Our regular monthly sacrament service was held this morning under ideal weather conditions, and an unusually large number attended. Bro. Jas. F. Kier and McGahan were in charge. A good number of those present took an active part, and their prayers and testimonies were indeed edifying. In all it was a splendid spiritual treat, and we are practically a unit in the expression "It was good to be there."

At the evening service, commencing at 7:30 p. m. Evangelist F. G. Pitt of Joliet was to be the speaker. The writer was not privileged to be present, but judging by past experiences, the speaker unquestionably occupied with profit to all present.

We are informed that Sr. Pitt's mother just passed away to the great beyond. We all extend to her and all connected our deepest expression of sympathy and love in her bereavement.

Elder F. M. Cooper of Plano, Ill., was the speaker at the funeral service, and from reports we receive, we judge that our brother made a deep impression upon the minds of all visitors present with the wonderful message of hope that the gospel of Jesus Christ offers to all both here and hereafter.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

In our absence we visited the Ceres Branch which is badly scattered—comprising Ceres, Modesto and Ripon. Held three very interesting meetings at Prescott school house near which live Bro. and Sr. Blake Vent who made my sojourn with them an oasis of joy. Bro. Vent is a prosperous ranchman and dairyman—he has a cow that gives seven gallons of milk per day and yields eighty pounds of butter per month. Sr. Vent has a flock of fine healthy chickens—yet in some way the number decreased while we were there. Bro. Ira Phelps drove eight miles after a hard day's work to attend these meetings. Bro. Phelps is the faithful pastor of the Ceres Branch.

Bro. L. I. Searcy, the zealous priest of the branch, baptized Alexander Freeman, son of Sr. May Van Dusen Freeman, and Everett Phelps in the Twolwome River near Modesto on Sunday, one of whom was confirmed the same evening by the writer and Bro. Phelps, the other one at a meeting held at Ripon on Wednesday night where we held a priesthood meeting, a prayermeeting and preaching service, each useful and enjoyable in its place. If the saints received as much benefit as we did the visit was not in vain.

The sacramental services in the two branches were very good. The Lord reassured the saints of his fatherly care, and anxiety for them to draw closer and trust him more. The evening sermon in the city was by Bro. E. Ingham, the pastor speaking in Oakland. On the 23rd Bishop Parkin preached the morning sermon in Oakland and Bro. J. W. Presley the branch priest spoke at night. Elders Lincoln and Anthony were the city preachers.

Bro. J. E. Walker of Tulare passed away on the 25th as the result of a wound received on Sept. 9th. Bro. Walker was a priest of the Tulare Branch and a good man and will be greatly missed. We sympathize with his bereaved family.

We are pleased to relate the Sacramento Branch is enjoying a series of meetings this week by Bro. Reists whose efforts are well spoken of. The interest was good at time of reporting.

The Oakland Branch has decided to put in electric light, a new heater, a baptismal font, and make other necessary improvements.

We look with great favor on the appeal of the "Bureau of Publicity" for addresses of ministers to whom are to be sent "The Open Letter." We trust each branch in the district will respond.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

On Sunday last, Nov. 2nd, the little band of saints at Long Beach were truly happy because the Lord heard their prayers and accepted their sacrifice.

A few months ago Sr. Packard opened her home for preaching, after having done all she could to "warn" her neighbor. The different officers at Los Angeles went down each Sunday. Bro. Schorde, Kaufman, Adam, Knowlton and Cooper. Many were interested.

It was made possible to ship the big tent there and for three weeks Bro. Bruner and Sly held tent meetings. Sr. Sadie Hanson proved herself a true missionary's wife by going down and taking charge of the music. Two sisters covenanted with the Lord to do all they possibly could to help on the work, if he would give them one precious soul. On Sunday four were led into the waters of baptism, and many others are deeply interested. It reminds us that there is something for all of us to do.

Sunday evening at the church W. A. McDowell was the speaker, good liberty, the time sped all too quickly.

Wednesday evening a special business meeting was held, several important matters being settled. It was decided to hold a social service at the church Thanksgiving morning.

Bro. James Kelley left town today for San Bernardino, enroute to Arizona.

LUCEDALE, Miss., Oct. 24.

Dear Ensign:—I came here from Dixville, Alabama, where the Florida District Reunion was held from the 13th to 19th inst. Bro. W. M. Aylor, F. M. Slover and C. I. Clark presiding.

We enjoyed communion with the Holy Spirit both individually and collectively. The meetings were spiritual throughout. Seven precious souls were baptized into the kingdom, of which number two are severely afflicted and need the prayers of the saints.

Space forbids giving details of reunion and the many features contributing to its success. Provision was made for a reunion next year.

This leaves me at the above mentioned place, on new territory, expecting to open fire on the enemy's stronghold tonight. Bro. A. G. Miller, who is a zealous worker, joins me soon.

Yours in the conflict,

A. E. Warr.

PALMERVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 23.

Editor Ensign:—Since my last communication I have labored in Clay City Indiana and in Indianapolis Ind. I came to the latter place Sept. 1st, and continued in the city, preaching on the streets and in the hall for three weeks and some good was done. There is a noble little band of saints there, who have rented a hall on W. 27th St. presided over by Elder C. H. Fish, who is a very enthusiastic worker. Associated with him is Bro. J. E. Wane, teacher, and William Hanner priest, both "five wives" in the cause of the Master. Two other brethren of the lesser priesthood have lately moved to the city. Bro. Jackson and Shanks who will no doubt assist materially in the advancement of the cause.

While in the city I was domiciled in the lovely and hospitable home of Bro. and Sr. C. H. Fish, at 645 W. 29th St. And they certainly do know how to make one feel at home, and to cheer the life of the lone missionary. Theirs is a well disciplined typical L. D. S. home.

The last Sunday of my stay in the city Bro. F. G. Pitt was with us and cheered the hearts of the saints, occupying the pulpit at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. Four services were held at the hall, and a picnic dinner was served. So we had an enjoyable and profitable time.

By special request of friends in Tenn. who bore the expense of the trip, with the consent of those in charge I was privileged to visit home folks and attend the district conference near Swindale home in Carroll Co., held Oct. 4th and 5th. And Sunday p. m. had the privilege of baptizing six men, all heads of families. Arrangements have been made for me to hold a two week's meeting in the tent. Bro. J. A. Roberts agreed to assist me if I would stay, so I agreed to stay till Wednesday. So we continued the meetings and Tuesday p. m. four more were baptized, and the interest was so good we concluded to stay over Sunday. And Sunday p. m. I was privileged to baptize five more adults, making fifteen in all, and several others almost ready.

This is where we opened the work two years ago and baptized five. So now we have twenty members, and no doubt many more will come in soon. And a branch organization affected at this place. We were loath to close the meeting, but other arrangements had been made to carry the tent to Johnson's Ridge, and I was soon to return to Indiana. But since then owing to the urgent demands in this district, and so few men to occupy I have been instructed to remain in this district for the present.

Bro. J. A. Roberts and myself are at this place with the tent, but the snow and rain have hindered us. We are hoping for better weather soon. Some are to be baptized here. And we contemplate returning to Carroll Co., again soon and follow up the good work there. This will probably end the tent season here. The Campbellites are talking debate here, and the Baptists of Carroll Co., but can't say as to what the outcome will be. But we are in the conflict and if necessary are ready for the fight if it comes to that.

Saints let us awake to our responsibilities and rally to the support of the Lord's army. The victory is ours if we are faithful to our trust. It is a sad thing when some of our faithful soldiers are compelled to go home to provide for the family, and such is the case now in this district. Is it possible that a district of more than five hundred members cannot or will not support two small families? Let me make this appeal to you. If you have contemplated doing anything for the cause financially, this year (I refer to the saints of the Ky. and Tenn. district) do it now. It is your duty and you alone will be held responsible. If permitted I will try to see you and if not, don't wait but send it now. I cannot tell you here just how bad your help is needed. But hope for an early response. You can reach me at my home address, Fulton Ky.

Hopefully yours,
J. R. McClain.

HOLDEN, Mo., Oct. 20.

Editor Ensign:—I have read the ENSIGN for many years and the letters bring comfort to me, and I often think when I read the letters and articles what a comfort they bring to me, that should I write of some of my experiences in the latter day work, perhaps it would be a comfort to others.

I will soon be 87 years old; united with the church in Denmark, where we heard the first principles of the gospel for over eight years; in 1805 we came to America, went out to Utah, the Zion of the West, where our hearts were made sad to learn we had been deceived, the church in Utah teaching polygamy and other evil doctrines, which had not been taught in Denmark our native land. Only the pure principles of the gospel had been taught us. But thanks to God, he left us not long in darkness, but guided us to the Reorganized Church, and in the following year, 1866, Bro. C. Christensen, now of Independence, Mo., baptized my husband and myself in Goshen, Utah, and during the year of '66 we returned to Council Bluffs, Iowa, along with many others. Ten years ago we moved here, and six years ago my companion died leaving me lonely, but blessed with my dear children, grandchildren, and the association of the dear saints who are a comfort to me in my declining years.

During the fall of 1911 I was stricken down with a very bad foot and limb which caused me much suffering and trouble; after doctoring it and being administered to no relief came. One night after dressing the foot and limb I retired for the night feeling very much discouraged. While lying meditating about it, an angel came to my bed side, dressed in shining white, the light filled the room. He walked to the foot of the bed and disappeared, but the light, joy and peace that remained with me, no tongue can tell, and when morning came and I again started to dress my sore foot and limb, to my joy, where only the night before was sore, was now healed, and I felt well and strong. I dressed and walked down town feeling like I was 25 years younger. To God be all the praise.

Many rich blessings have I enjoyed in the gospel, and now after 47 years in the work, my heart rejoices in the same, and I rejoice to know my children and grandchildren are working for the cause which has brought so much comfort to me.

Your sister in Christ, (Bro. Paul M. Hansen's Grandma), Mrs. M. W. Chrestensen.

PERRY, Iowa, Oct. 21.

Editor Ensign:—I have been a reader of your paper for some time, and find it one of the greatest blessings that comes to my home (only there isn't enough of it).

Both in the ENSIGN and Herald I find mention of the key to the Scriptures. I for one would like to obtain that key, and believe by keeping our mind, and body as well, unspotted from the things of this world and submit ourselves to undergo the work of the refiner's fire, we see spoken of in the Scriptures, and study the Scriptures daily and make ourselves as near like Christ in purity as possible we will eventually obtain the true key. I ask the pray-ers of the saints as one who is earnestly seeking that blessing.

Yours in truth,

Mrs. Fred Peasley.

MAVFIELD, Ky., Oct. 21.

Editor Ensign:—I desire to express my sincere thanks to all who sent me church publications for free distribution in our city as a result of my request through the dear ENSIGN. I have received papers and tracts from so many different places that for me to try and write to every one a separate letter of thanks would only be a matter of impossibility, and I hope that each saint who has contributed so freely to my soul will feel that he or she has as great a part in the attempt to advertise the great latter day work as those who have a direct hand in its circulation, and to that end I ask you all to accept my heartiest thanks for the interest you have taken in my effort. What the result may be I know not but I desire to sow the seed and assist in watering it. May the Lord bless all who sent me this literature is the prayer of your sister. Dear saints, I ask your prayers that I may hold out faithful to the end.

Mrs. Seaneen McGregor.

DALBY SPRINGS, Texas, Oct. 21.

Editor Ensign:—As I seldom see a letter from this part of the vineyard I thought a few words might be of interest to some one. We have a branch of 200 or more here but have no church. We have a Sunday school now, have been holding under an arbor but have moved to a school house, the weather being so bad for old people and babies. We have good attendance and good interest. The literature was somewhat of a curiosity, as it is the first Sunday school with L. D. S. literature in our community, but outsiders ask for literature and all the young people take part in the Sunday school.

We had a reunion at Dalby Springs commencing August 8th and lasting ten days, and quite a few saints from Oklahoma were here and from different parts of the country. Everybody enjoyed the camping as well as the services. We had Bro. White, Aylor and Harp with us, had six preachers in all. Everybody are eager for the next reunion.

Pray for me, saints, as I am young in years as well as in the work. Also pray for my afflicted father and mother. Ever hoping and praying for the upbuilding of Zion.

Your sister in the great work,

Bernice Dalby.

BENNETT, Nebr., Oct. 24.

Dear Ensign:—May I add a few lines to your pages? Dear saints, one and all, I must write you to tell of our loss by death of our sweet baby, Elmo, which took place Sunday morning, the 19th, after about 48 hours illness. He was such a loving, bright, beautiful little sunbeam, the light and joy of our home. It was so sudden we had no chance to get an elder after the doctors told us our precious darling was so seriously ill it was such a terrible shock to us all, and especially to me, as I am so nervous. I had grown quite strong by the help of my dear Father, but this sad loss has broken down my nerves till I have been quite poorly again, but under the hands of Bro. W. M. Self I have had the promise that the dear Lord will carry me through all these trials and that I shall yet have cause to rejoice. Pray for me that I may soon be strong and well again so that I can take good care of my other two little boys, and that I may be faithful. Pray for us all as a family that the dear Lord will help us to bear our loss. I am as ever your sister in this beautiful faith.

Mrs. Chas. E. Smith.

Mayville, Ore., Oct. 23.

Dear Ensign:—As I am sending Bro. Kelley $5.00 to help pay the church debt I will just add a few lines in appreciation of the church papers as they are the only sermons I hear. About once a year some of the elders stop as they are passing through and preach for a week or two, which I enjoy so much. I am the one of our faith in this place, but the most of the people are kindly disposed and come out to hear them as well or better than any other church. Just yesterday several asked if Bro. Tommy Chapman was coming to hold meetings this winter.

The people here seem to be too worldly to care for the welfare of their souls. Even the old fashioned brimstone doesn't seem to have any effect on them. I do pray that some will accept the true gospel at this place.

Bro. George Shippy and M. Cook were here this last spring and gave us some splendid sermons and I am so in hopes an elder will come again this fall or winter and preach.

I enjoy the letters from the brothers and sisters and wonder why so few write from Oregon. I ask an interest in your prayers in behalf of my family as none of them are in the true church.

Mrs. J. Edwards.

WAHASH, Ind., Oct. 20.

Dear Ensign:—Seeing my time had run out I thought would drop you a few lines as we have been so lonely since our son's death. He died the 12th of September and it was so hard to give him up. We are trying to say the Lord's will be done and, not ours. He was a noble boy but he never heard the gospel. He was nearly twenty-one years old. Dear saints, will you all remember us when you meet together for we need your prayers in our sad bereavement that the Lord will heal our broken hearts. Pray that the Lord will send his gospel to this place so my children will hear it as we have two left. May the Lord bless his saints and help them to do his blessed will is my prayer.

Your sister in the gospel,

Mrs. Mack Davis.

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS

HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means non members or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, just as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to and tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

* ZION.

BY VERNON A. REESE.

The redemption of Zion is a subject very near and dear to the heart of every earnest Latter Day Saint. In our consideration of this subject we do not hope to bring forth any new thought or truth. Truth is eternal and its laws and principles are unchangeable. We cannot discover truth, but by careful thought and study we can make such applications of its powerful principles to our individual lives as will enable us to know the truth and the truth shall make us free.

It has been truly said that "There is nothing new under the sun." The deeper we look into it, the more truth we can see in this old adage. The gospel of Christ, which it is our good fortune to enjoy in these latter days, is not new. It is a restoration of that which existed in the days of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses and Christ. Even Zion, which undoubtedly represents the ideal attainment in the mind of each one present tonight, will not be a new condition. The City of Enoch, which was caught up to heaven, was called Zion, and God has promised that in the latter days it should be restored. The beautiful rainbow, which we often see in the heavens, was placed there by our heavenly Father to remind mankind of his promise to restore Zion to the earth in the latter days, as well as his promise not to again destroy the earth by water. As the church of Christ ("the only true and living church upon the face of the whole earth with which I the Lord am well pleased, speaking unto the church collectively and not individually") we represent the children of promise in the restoration of Zion.

As a people we are not ignorant of this responsibility. Perhaps many times the question arises in our minds "What can I do to help redeem Zion?" In the writer's opinion, the greatest service we can render in this direction is by redeeming our individual selves. It should be considered an individual responsibility rather than a church responsibility, because the church is composed of, and can rise no higher than, its individual members. Zion signifies the pure in heart. This is the ideal each of us should strive for in our individual lives, and when this purified condition is reached the greatest work in the redemption of Zion shall have been accomplished.

The attainment of this happy ideal should be the paramount interest in the life of each of us. The life of every man, woman and child is directed by some ideal. Some ideals are high, while others are not so high. Sometimes it happens that the holders of high ideals are called "Day Dreamers," and their ideals are called "air castles." On account of our belief that Zion will be established in all her power and glory upon this earth, we are often looked upon as "day dreamers," and our ideal Zion is called a big "air castle." However, the application of a name, either complimentary or uncomplimentary, does not affect the character of the thing referred to. The Bible tells us that Adam chose the name of every living creature and whatsoever he called that was the name thereof. Had he called the lion a sheep, and vice versa, these names would not have made the lion gentle, or the sheep wild and ferocious. False teachers and ambitious leaders, in order to retain their following, have often attached uncomplimentary names to the designs of God and to the servants who may be endeavoring to carry them out. Our church history is replete with such instances. The unthinking and the ignorant can always be influenced by such a procedure, but "the glory of God is intelligence," that is, light and truth, and Christ tells us that his sheep shall know his voice and another they will not follow. He is calling his sheep together for the last time, and Zion shall be the place where he shall suddenly come to his temple.

The Zion requirement (a pure heart) should be the ideal of every professed follower of Christ. Everything must be born in the ideal before it can be born in the real. Man was created in the spiritual before he was created in the physical. In the story of the creation, (Genesis 2nd chapter), we are told that God made "every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew." In the springtime, as the farmer is sowing seed upon the fertile ground, he can see before him in open vision fields of waving grain. It is this picture, born of the mind and resulting from an intelligent understanding and application of the laws of nature, that urges him forward in the performance of his task, regardless of the obstacles that may be thrown in his way. So with the inventor, the object of his efforts is born and constructed in his mind before it materializes in wood, iron or steel.

In harmony with this unchangeable law, it follows that each of us individually creates in our own minds by our thoughts the world in which we live. That is, we always surround ourselves by our thoughts. A doctor surrounds himself with medical books and lives in a medical atmosphere. A lawyer surrounds himself with books on law and lives in a legal atmosphere. In like manner, a true follower of Christ will surround himself with books about Christ and his divine mission. Following the law of the universe that like attracts like, he will necessarily associate with others of like ideas and ideals, and in time he with them will become more and more like Christ. According to their development in this direction will this life become more and more a foretaste of the glorious life to come. On the other hand, if we permit our thoughts to wander into channels leading away from the teachings of Christ, it is only a matter of a very short time until our feet will be walking in the avenues first travelled by our thoughts, according to the inevitable law "as a man soweth so shall he also reap," the further we go in this downward course the more will our unhappy existence here resemble the future state of Satan and his followers.

One great writer has said "If we do not like the world we live in, we can change it by changing our thoughts." There is more truth in this statement than one might think at first thought. Let us illustrate it.

In Chicago there is a small section of the city we call China-town. When we visit this odd street we see very little that resembles Chicago, except perhaps the buildings. Some of these may be so ornamented with banners, signs, dragonheads and lanterns that they look unlike the buildings of other streets. The people wear odd clothing and the windows are full of strange merchandise. Everything would remind you that you were in a foreign country. However, you are still in America, but you are surrounded by foreign thought. Chinese think Chinese thoughts and as a result build unprogressive Chinese towns. Americans think American thoughts and erect and maintain progressive American cities. In either case the cities are first built in their minds. They build according to their ideas.

In our church books we read of a city to be called Zion, where brotherly love shall rule, and all shall be peace, joy and happiness. Such a city must be built in order to welcome the King of kings when he shall come to the earth in all his power and glory to inaugurate his thousand years' reign. If we ever inhabit and enjoy the beautiful city of Zion, which shall be lighted by the glory of Christ's presence, it will be because we have carried that kind of a city in our minds and in our lives. Each one of us must think, read, study and live Zion thoughts. "As a man thinketh so is he," and by thinking and living Zion thoughts we shall become children of Zion.

The Chinese in Chicago are but few in number, but by thinking and living alike they have formed China-town. They are in fact in Chicago, but not of Chicago. Walls of thought separate them from the rest of the city in the same manner as the great stone wall of China separates that country from the people of the north.

In like manner, by thinking and living thoughts in harmony with the revealed laws of Zion, as found in the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, why should we not also have a "Zion Town" in Chicago? The Lord desires us to be peculiar. A strict obedience to the revelations he has given us will indeed make us peculiar in the eyes of our fellow-men. We shall then be in the world, but not of the world. The honest and upright life resulting therefrom, full of brotherly love and kindness, will as surely and as distinctly separate us from the rest of the city as do the peculiarities of the Chinese distinguish China-town from our other streets. We shall then become as a city within a city. Our mission will be as that of light to all the region round about. We shall then have Zion in Chicago. In fact, wherever we may be, or whatever we may be doing, by thinking in harmony with the laws of Zion, we shall be living in Zion. Then when the call comes to flee to the land of Zion, which the Lord has geographically pointed out, we shall do so with all things prepared before us—the greatest preparation being a pure heart.

May each of us so live that others may see our good works and be led to glorify our Father who is heaven.

Chicago, Illinois, October 25.

TAHITI IS STIRRING IN ITS SLEEP.

It is a far cry to "Loch Awe," but a farther one to Tahiti, the Lord Byron's "gentle island and the genial soil." You sail down the South American Coast past Rio and B. A. (your traveler never says Buenos Ayres) and the sheltered harbor of Montevideo (the accent is on the e, remember) and when you come to the gateway of Magellan your journey has but begun. Far ahead lies Valpo—otherwise Valparaiso—yet Tahiti lies even beyond the baths of all the Western stars like the fabled Hy Brazil of the poets.

The days slip by and the sea runs on and suddenly a land breeze begins to smell strong of wild lime and vanilla, and if you are of the breed of "them that go down to the sea in ships" you feel how good it is to foot the green grass and look aloft to the emerald mountains and see the men with their green wreaths and the women in their red and blue smocks along the shore at Papeete, the port of Tahiti and the safest harbor in the South Sea Isles.

Away back in 1789 the British tars of the Bounty made a stay at the island collecting bread fruit trees. A sailor's life was a hard one in those days and it is small wonder that Tahiti with its wonders of green waving palm and still lagoon and coral shore, its days ever warm and its nights soft and starry, appeared to them a very heaven on earth. Commodore Bligh was hard put to to drag them away and the end was mutiny. The men returned to Tahiti to lead for a time a lotus eating life.

The island has known many vicissitudes of political fortune since then, and is now a French possession away from the beaten track of ocean traffic. The voices of its inhabitants are low and musical—voices of a people whose ancestors have never known hurry, a people dwelling in a land where it is always afternoon, and living lives as changeless as the sea that rings their island home.

But all is about to be changed. The economic march of the world's progress is not to be stayed by sentimental considerations, nor can fall the romance and poetry in the world save Tahiti from commercialism. The opening of the Panama Canal, diverting the traffic of the world to the Pacific, finds a new use for the deep, quiet waters of the harbor of Papeete.

Under the auspices of the department of public works of the French republic, Emery Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania has been investigating the probable effects of the opening of the Panama Canal on the trade of the Pacific, and his report shows the importance of Tahiti.

His researches included the probable movement of vessels from Panama to Oceania, the routes possible between Panama and the islands of the Southern seas, whether a coaling station at Papeete would be worth while and what it would cost the French republic to set its house in order for future custom. A glance at the map shows the mighty part that Panama must play in the future commerce of the world.

At the present time cargoes, from Europe to Australia go around the Cape or through the Suez. From New Zealand the journey through Magellan is 1,014 miles shorter than by Melbourne and the Suez, and the opening of the Panama will cut five hundred miles more from the total.

Mr. Johnson's investigations led him to conclude that in 1915 alone a fleet of 225 ships of a 4,000-ton register will pass through the waters around Tahiti, and that the number will increase as the years go by.

For the journey from Auckland, say, to Panama, such a vessel will consume 1,300 tons of coal. It requires no great mathematical calculation to show that a coaling station on Tahiti would cut the dead weight of coal carried and increase proportionately the freight paying capacity of the vessel. It is many a long year, maintains Emery Johnson, until oil as a fuel becomes an accomplished fact, and meanwhile he rightly argues ships must have coal.

Under the circumstances he strongly urges Tahiti as a coaling station, asks that the channel at Papeete be dredged to allow the entry for any vessel that can pass the Panama Canal, suggests the erection of wireless stations and estimates that the French government would be well advised in investing a sum of about 2 million dollars in the work.—New York Evening Sun.

FIENDISH DEVICES OF WHITE SLAVERS. WARNING TO ALL WOMEN.

That young girls and women need to be constantly on the alert as to the devices of agents of the white slave traffic has been brought to the attention in two marked instances recently.

A mother and a young lady daughter went from Jersey City to New York City on a shopping tour. To economize time they separated, each to do some errands down town, agreeing to meet in an hour and a half in Macy's parlor. The daughter finished her errands first, and having time to spare, was looking into the window of a store near by. As the crowd gathered around her, she felt a sharp pin prick in her arm, but paid no attention to it except to rub the spot. She then went to Macy's, as agreed, to wait for her mother, but as soon as she had taken her seat, fell to the floor in a swoon. The matron was called, and the doctor of the establishment summoned. After looking at the girl he said, "Oh, it's only a case of drunk. We will take her to a window, and the air will help to revive her."

At this juncture, a well dressed man came hurrying up as though looking for some one, and seeing the unconscious girl lying there, he said to the matron. "This is my wife; she has these drinking spells occasionally. I have a carriage at the door and will take her home."

Providentially, the mother, who had been searching for her daughter, pushed her way through the group, and, seeing the man about to take her away, she sprang forward, saying, "This is my daughter. What are you doing?" In the excitement the man fled, and could not be found.

The other instance is of a young woman living in Newark, New Jersey, who went to New York City recently, and after attending to her business, stepped into a moving picture place in the shopping center. After a few moments, the girl felt a sharp pin prick in the side of her neck. She looked around and saw a man and a woman of ordinary appearance sitting behind her, but they seemed indistinct upon the pictures being exhibited. She felt dizzy, so made her way out of the place and seeing a policeman near by, went to him and asked him to take care of her. She was taken to the station-house by the officer, and the sergeant in charge, as soon as she was brought before him, recognized the symptoms, saying, "It is another of those knock-out cases."

In both instances these girls had been punctured with a hypodermic needle containing some strong opiate, and had not Providence mercifully interposed, both, without doubt, would have been counted among the numerous cases of young women who mysteriously disappear, and are forced into slavery as inmates of houses of prostitution.—Sel.

A PLEASING REMINISCENCE.

Dear Ensign:—In your columns of Oct. 23, I found the notice of the death of an old friend, William Hawkins, of St. Joseph, Mo. which called to my mind pleasing memories, which I would like to relate if you should think them worthy of a place in your valuable paper.

In the year 1848, I was appointed a mission to the ancient town of Bridgnorth in England—this was my second mission—and I went in accord with the law as given by Christ to his disciples. On my way I preached the gospel to my mother, and afterwards baptized her into the church of Christ. I journeyed on believing that God would open my way, and sustain me, in that, to me, strange town. My mother, out of her penury had given me a silver sixpence, that constituted my wealth. My shoes were worn out and from unexpected quarters they were replaced by a new pair but unsought for, of man by me. I plodded on and upon reflecting as to how I should be sustained in that town, not knowing a soul there, I laid the matter before the Lord. In a short time a young gentleman found me trespassing on his land, for I had lost my way. He enquired what I was; I told him, and asked the privilege of preaching the gospel to him. He granted my request, and I preached to him the best I could. He declared the doctrine very reasonable and handed me a crown piece, five shillings in silver. I enquired his name. He told me his name was Lord Stamford. I thanked my Lord for sending Lord Stamford to me with five shillings in answer to my boyish prayer.

That night found me in Bridgnorth, I commenced my mission, preaching on the street and continued doing so to large crowds of all classes during the week, making friends to the cause and arousing foes. After a week's efforts a young man near my own age, appeared at my meetings and made himself known to me as William Hawkins, an elder sent from another sect district on the same errand as myself. My heart was glad, I was no longer alone, I had found a brother, who proved to be a brother indeed. We labored there some time. Five were baptized as the result of our labors, and the praise belongs to God who stood by his young and inexperienced servants, and made them effectual workers in his cause. While he insisted on my doing the preaching, he was good in the song service.

When we left Bridgnorth together, the first night out, we came to a tavern by the way side. We sought the Lord's guidance and protection and that we might find favor with some for shelter for the night, as we had but four English pennies between us. He requested me to enquire of the proprietor of the tavern, if we could stay there. I rapped on the door, the landlady opened the door. I told her of our calling and mission, and described our situation, that we had but four pennies between us, and if we could both stay for the night, we would be thankful. If not we would both fare alike outside. She answered "come in, I heard you preach in Bridgnorth." She gave us a good supper, a good bed and the next morning a good breakfast, and insisted that we stay until lunch and explain further the gospel to her. We did so, and asked God to let his blessings rest with her.

Our journey lay through the village of "Cleobury Mortimer." We preached that night, there, on the second coming of Christ. A drunken woman assailed us with vile words, then a drunken man abused us. We stood our grounds, presently a constable of the village charged us with making a disturbance and ordered us to move on. We bowed to the majesty of the law, linked arms and walked through the village singing a hymn, and being impressed to do so we bore our testimony and passed on.

Nineteen miles lay between us and the only place where we could expect to rest. About one o'clock the next morning we found a welcome with a family poor in this world's goods, but rich in gospel truth. They received us into their humble cot, prepared us a frugal meal, but the best they had. It consisted of bread and a bowl of tea with some sugar. I have seldom enjoyed a meal more than I did that.

The next morning we went to Riderminster, the home of William Hawkins. I visited at his home a while, and visited other places, then bade him farewell, and the next time we met was in the Nodaway District in Missouri, U. S. A., and gladly renewed our old friendship which we have continued by correspondence and visiting at different times, and I have always found him a true believer in the gospel, an earnest worker in the cause, and a true friend, in poverty or in wealth. I have been blessed by his association here, and hope to enjoy it in the eternal hereafter. He was a little more than three months my senior, and his departure reminds me that my remaining days here are necessarily few, but I shall be satisfied if I can round out my life in an abiding faith in God and his Christ.

LAMANITE TRADITION.

Synopsis of a lecture by Patrick Miguel, lineal chief the Yuma, Cal. Tribe, given at the church at Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 28, 1913.

MEDICINE MEN:—The Indian medicine men are most potent men in the tribe, they are the doctors, advisers and Indian preachers, they listen to everything but don't say much, contrary to general opinion; they advise hearing the white men; but the white missionaries don't understand this and fight them so the medicine men stay away and the Indians follow their example.

THE CROSS:—was first known to the North American Indians about the time Christ was crucified. They saw the cross in the heavens in the East and the medicine men said it represented God, the vertical piece represents the Spirit of God and the horizontal piece represented matter or earth, so God is the Spirit and also matter. A Chant was sung which was the wail of Christ over the iniquities of the people, the wierd tune is the lamentation of Christ and it was said the same Christ would visit them again afterward, which he did.

CLASSES OF INDIANS:—The Indians are divided into four classes. Interpreters, Chiefs, People and Medicine man, and his calling is higher even than that of the chief, he is supposed to have the gift to know the language, of enduring hardships, of patience, and benevolence. They are sometimes accused of mal-practice and bewitching, but they must not show any resentment and are always ready to help the people. They preach, teach, heal the sick and cast out devils. He is the only man who stands out and favors the teaching of the white man and advises the Indians to accept any missionary because it may be the right religion and besides there must be a little good in it and they may discover a word that will lead to God, and sometimes faces a whole tribe of Indians to do so but such conditions are probably the fault of the interpreters who are not usually the best men hence the misunderstandings. Cannot tell the source of the Medicine man's power because it is in a language that is lost among the Indians so to put it into Indian and the English language is almost impossible.

CHRIST'S FIRST TEMPLES:—Were constructed of four poles, for corners, with rafters covered with brush on top, the Indians built first one and set poles and it began to wobble and was infirm, they conferred with a blind man supposed to be the wisest in the tribe, and he said "You have not made any offering, take down the house and fill the holes full of corn and reset the poles and the house will stand. They did so and the hurricanes, storms, and rain came and the people got under it and although the roof was thin the rain would not go through it.

After the house was built the Lord sent out spirits or angels, direct representatives of God the Creator and they sent out wild geese and they flew first and upwards and formed a heavenly snake lying in a circle above the earth, they flew round and found the serpent's head and invited it to the feast.

The Indians claim the Holy Ghost came down in the form of a serpent, it came down in the evening and found the temple too small and ordered it enlarged, this happened the first, second and third times and then the fourth and last time it was enlarged it was about dawn, the snake then set himself afire and burnt part of the temple down, parts of the snake then exploded and parts of it flew off among different tribes and they began to speak and prophecy and were given great power and began to speak language they now use and forgot their former languages except a few songs which they kept, they think this Holy Ghost was from Jerusalem. These controlling spirits had power to give their different powers to individuals and they all centered in this snake.

IN RECENT YEARS the Yumas made demand of the agent that when the Indian children in the schools were sick they should be allowed to take them to the Indian medicine men for help, this demand came about by an Indian boy who got shot in the thigh, the bullet passed clear through and lodged in the other thigh and under the white doctors care the boy died.

Before this a Cocobed Indian got jealous and killed his wife and shot another near the heart, the Indian doctor came to the wounded girl, sent the people away but let them remain near enough to see, he stood near and breathed on her and sung a peculiar song in dead language, and walked round her and breathed on her again and sung another song, if case was serious would have sung three or four songs, felt peculiar feeling while walking round her and said she would get well.

Many children die under white doctors care and Bro. Miguel himself took a sick Indian boy from the school to the medicine man, the boy was very sick with pneumonia, the medicine man felt all over the boy and at midnight the boy was up walking and in morning ate a hearty breakfast. Says he is skeptical of the Medicine men but is compelled to believe this case that he personally saw and thinks there is something in it.

The Indian asks the white man, not to make fun of his religion but to hear him patiently before condemning him and then condemn him if he must.

Says he personally has always been skeptical of religion and thought a long time about joining this church and has had many dreams that his own people thought meant that he would some day join a church. He read the Book of Mormon and made up his mind there was a real deal of truth in it. His second trouble was over the Inspired translation of the Bible, but he relied on the Spirit of God to show him if it was correct and asked God to show him and he did as he has already related.

Bro. Miguel was baptized by V. M. Goodrich about a week prior to giving this lecture.

The serpent with the eagle is the emblem on the Mexican coins today as well as on the national arms. If this tradition were substantiated might it not furnish a reason for a serpent on the coin found in "Atlantis" p. 345 and lent a religious motive for the serpentine mounds in Ohio, Ibid., 205.

TO HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Preserve sacredly the privacies of your own house, your married state and your heart. Let no father or mother or sister or brother ever presume to come between you or share the joys or sorrows that belong to you two alone.

With mutual help build your quiet world, not allowing your dearest earthly friends to be the confidant of aught that concerns your domestic peace. Let the moments of alienation, if they occur, be healed at once. Never, no never, speak of it outside, but to each other confess and all will come out right. Never let the morrow's sun find you at variance. Renew and renew your vow. It will do you good; and thereby your minds will grow together contented in that love which is stronger than death, and your wills be truly one.—National Magazine.

THE ROUND TABLE.

In Genesis 49:26 Joseph is given the greater blessing, and in Deuteronomy 33:13-17 it states of the two tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh: "They are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh." This is in harmony with Jacob's blessing that the younger [Ephraim] should be greater than Manasseh. But the Book of Mormon states that Lehi and his family who settled America, becoming a great nation, were of the tribe of Manasseh. Where is Ephraim's posterity?

It may be noted that Jacob's blessing in Genesis 48:15-20 says of Manasseh that "he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great," which seems to have its fulfillment in that part of his posterity which came to the Western Continent. As to Ephraim's posterity, their identity seems to have been lost to man though not to God. Moses' prophecy in Deuteronomy 28, shows that whoever of Israel should turn from the Lord to idolatry should be cast out, and "removed into all the kingdoms of the earth," (verse 25), and be smitten with blindness, (v. 28), and be scattered "among all people, from one end of the earth even unto the other," where they would serve other gods, (v. 64); and 29:26 says that "the Lord shall blot out his name from under heaven," showing that Israel's identity would be lost to men. Turning to Hosea 4:17 we learn that Ephraim was joined to idols, i. e. become idolatrous, and "the wind hath bound her up in her wings, (v. 17), indicating migration. 12:1 says Ephraim "followeth after the east wind," but 4:16 shows that notwithstanding her backsliding that the "Lord will feed them as a lamb in a large place." Again in 7:8 it is said that "Ephraim hath mixed himself among the people," and 9:17 "shall be wanderers among the nations." The prophecies seem to indicate that Ephraim's greatness will be shown in the return of Israel in the last days, for "Ephraim is my firstborn." Jer. 31:9. It is thought by many that the nation of western Europe are largely Ephraimitic.

Will the righteous enjoy Edenic conditions after the resurrection? Will they eat and drink as we do now?

That the earth will be changed at the time of Christ's coming is made clear in Isaiah 11:1-9 which shows that peace will prevail, wickedness destroyed and knowledge will fill the earth; and in 65:17-25, showing that the people will inhabit houses and eat the fruit of their own planting. The fact that Christ ate with his disciples after his resurrection justifies a belief that others will do likewise. See Luke 24:30, 41-43; John 21:4-13. Jesus after blessing the wine at the last supper said, "I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." Matt. 26:29. This seems to point to the resurrection when they will eat and drink.

Some time ago it was reported in the daily papers that some men by bribing the guards about the temple site at Jerusalem succeeded in gaining access to the subterranean passages beneath the Mosque of Omar, now occupying the site, and secured the ancient ark of the covenant and its contents, and other treasure, carrying them out of the land. Is it true?

We have heard nothing more of the reputed find of the ark since it was first announced about two years ago, and it seems certain that if the ark was discovered that it would have attracted world-wide attention and interest. We believe little credence can be placed in the story, the circumstances connected with its reputed find, and the lack of evidence of its subsequent existence, are against it. Historically the ark seems to have disappeared prior to the Babylonian captivity and nothing has been seen of it since. The apocryphal Book of Ezechus mentions that under the direction of Jeremiah the ark was taken from the temple and hid in a cave in the mountains and afterwards was not found. This is very probable as it is likely that God would preserve it for future purposes.

OUR "SERVICE."

The Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service! In this name, we read a pledge, a purpose.

"As the sculptor needs the chisel, so God needs the mother in training the child." But we do not all realize this—splended thought, and true! Many who do realize this, allow the magic of their power over living souls to be dormant, through disinterest, selfishness, willful ignorance, or whatever cause.

We are a splendid growing organization, and the seal of the Lord is upon the work, our aims, our efforts.

We are organized because through unity, and system and methods, accomplish more for happy homes, and toward Zion's speedy redemption, than if each worked alone, courting a dwarfed and narrow purpose, and at least losing the strength that comes from union and the ideas and encouragement gained from exchange of experiences.

"The mother needs to compare her methods with others: she needs the social intercourse; the change of scene. She needs the inspiration that always comes with mingling with others who are doing the same work."

Through our organization we have one more of those opportunities enjoined upon us, to "meet often together."

All business or professions—(and is not motherhood of all, most important, most intricate in its demands upon ingenuity and successful use of time?)—recognize that to meet together kind with kind, often or not as their special work requires, is an urgent necessity.

We should not allow our zeal to be weakened by the prattle of those who are not mothers, or those who do not understand or those who do not care to understand, or of those who have attended a service at some time and received "personal (?) thrusts" as to their methods. Such do we often encounter.

There is no more important work than the setting up of proper ideals for a child.

As a rule we feel we know what we desire our children to be. Their lives are made up of habits; these habits are the results of their only source of knowledge at first, that of imitation or "contagion." And whom shall they imitate? Us. We must be what we desire them to be: and although our heart ache with grief because of our failures at times, we must press on.

Let us pledge ourselves daily in this service to pray for and with our babes. Pray again for the children of others, particularly mothers who actively desire and strive to better learn their duty.

Many mothers, loving but thoughtless, would be shocked and grieved to know what havoc their methods or their children, work for a method of moderate means, or a mother with a strong desire to be her girl's chum, and who wants her girl to think first of home and church and then of pleasure.

We cannot succeed if we do not make room in our hearts, hopes, and plans, for the children of others.

We need our teachers and Sunday school workers to meet with us, for we do not see the necessity for allowing others to help train and teach our little ones? Are we serious enough?

The harmony, sweet spirit of oneness of purpose, the mingling and touching of garments of luxury with those of toil and sacrifice (which same will some day be equalized through the further workings of the great Spirit which has occasioned their "mingling and touching in the degree of unity) is surely a forstaste of the oneness of heart and mind that is to make us a unit in love and purpose in the celestial world.

(I had asked Sr. Smith to remember our column if she found time in her busy career—for church and for home. She responded with the following beautiful "reminder," a word of cheer for all of us struggling "daughters of Martha and Mary." (Ed.)

DAUGHTERS OF MARTHA AND MARY.

Yes, I am a daughter of Martha,
My hands may be roughened and brown,
But ready, like that loving woman
In the far away Bethany town.
My feet move to no stirring music;
But the beat of stern duty's sane notes,
Keeps time for my brewing and baking,
And making and mending of coats.

The beauty of glory gill sunsets;
The wonders of suns when they rise,
Are the calls to a change in my toiling;
For muscles and not for glad eyes.
Nay, not like the dumb beasts of burden,
I serve with my strength and my skill;
Nay, mine is a wonderful mission
Without it the world-heat stood still.

The home would be lightened no longer,
And the children would die in the street;
And the shame, born in Eden, lose virtue;
And love-bonds be no longer sweet.
Yes, I am a daughter of Martha;
I may toil in unvarying round;
Cleansing and clothing and feeding,
With much serving lovingly bound.

I am granddaughter too, of a Mary,
Who chose of the better part, So
I am heir to the thoughts of the wise men:
And lover of soft evening glow.

The heaven and loaf neath my fingers,
I may trace to the wheat fields of gold,
And the textiles, I fashion in garments,
Speak the artist in every soft fold.

Yes, I am granddaughter of Mary,
And daughter of Martha—Ah me!
My heritage grows in its wonder,
As unburdened, uplifted I see.

The work of a daughter of Martha,
Made richer, enlightened and blest;
When the "part" that was chosen by Mary,
'Bringeth knowledge and power and rest.

The hearts of our daughters, beat truly,
Both Martha's and Mary's red blood;
Let the serving be tempered and finished,
By the part that the Master called good.

—Vida E. Smith.

Teachers: T. L. McCormick.

Speakers of the conference were: O. D. Shirk, W. S. Macrae, and Amos T. Higdon. Conference adjourned to meet at Nevada, Missouri, the first Saturday and Sunday in March 1914.

CONVENTION MINUTES.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA DISTRICT.—Sunday school association convened at Lincoln, Neb., Supt. Jessie Wyckoff presiding. Besides the transaction of the regular routine business of the convention, Sr. Blanche I. Andrews of Lincoln was chosen district chorister. The afternoon session was profitably spent in discussing round table topics, reading of papers, solos, etc. In the evening a picnic was given at Capital Beach, under the auspices of the Lincoln Sunday school. This was done because the hall where the services were held could not be had for that evening. The conference authorities very kindly allowed the Z. R. L. S. to hold their institute session on Saturday evening. There was a large attendance at both the conventions and conference which were greatly enjoyed by all. The Sunday school work seems to be alive in our district. Adjourned to meet at the call of the executive officers at same place as next district conference.

Blanche I. Andrews, Sec.

EASTERN IOWA.—Sunday school convention convened at Fulton Iowa, October 3, with Superintendent Elder C. G. Dykes in charge. Eight schools reported, namely: Muscatine, Davenport, Clinton, Fulton, Baldwin, Olweiss, Anamosa and Central Junction. The new district officers are: Supt. Elder C. G. Dykes, Muscatine, Iowa; Assistant Supt. Wm. Stoll, Fulton Iowa; Sec. Anna Lowe, Baldwin, Ia.; Home Department Supt. John F. Weir, Center Junction, Iowa; Treasurer, John Helde, Fulton, Iowa. Librarian, Clarence Bell, Clinton, Iowa. The next convention will be held at Davenport, Iowa.

Mrs. Cora E. Weir.

PASTORAL.

To the saints of Winnipeg District:—

Another year has rolled around and is fast drawing to a close which reminds us forcibly of the fact that our probation for usefulness is one year less. Can we look backwards upon it with pleasure from the fact that we have heeded the admonition to "seek first to build up the kingdom of God and to establish his righteousness and all these other things will be added unto you," or have we sought to reverse this admonition and sought to acquire the other things to the exclusion of the building up of the kingdom of God.

In the building up of the kingdom of God it requires all the elements to build with that are required to build the kingdoms of the world, but distributed in such a manner as to be conducive to the most, and best good to all concerned, hence the financial law given of God, was designed of God to be a blessings to all who observed it, and to all that come under its influence or the influence of that law. Jesus said "not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven." Get that thought? We cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven unless we comply with the will of God, or the law governing this condition. God did not say, invest your money in stocks or bonds, houses or lands, life insurance or fraternal societies and I will open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, but "Bring all your tithes unto the storehouse that there may be meat in mine house and prove me herewith saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room to receive it." D. C. 64:5 says, "Behold now it is called today, until the coming of the Son of man and verily [or truly] it is a day of sacrifice and a day of testimony of my people." Also read D. and C. 72:3; 75:4. Also Sections 101 and 102.

In the Book of Mormon Alma 2:19, 20, gives us to understand that by observing this law and thus providing for those whom God sends forth to bear the message of peace and aid salvation to a sin cursed world, as also providing for the poor and the needy that we retain a remission of our sins. So it is only by obedience and a continuing in his word that we are made free and when the Master comes to hear that plaudit "Well done." The church needs your assistance not only in that which is honestly due in tithes and offerings but requires a little sacrifice on our part.

The Bishop has called for a special effort on our part to help liquidate the church debt; will we arise to the occasion and free the church from this burden? A church with a membership of nearly 70,000 with a debt of $75,000 is only a trifle over one dollar each, but suppose we take less than one fourth of that number say 15,000 and make it $5.00, each payable in one month. About 16 two-third cents per day would wipe out this debt, and surely there is enough to immediately arise and relegate this debt to the memories of the past.

God does not judge us by our ability to pay but by our willingness. Now let us all arise to the needs of the work of the Lord, and free the church from this burden, and unite the hands of the ministry, so they will be free to go out with the message of peace and salvation; that Zion may flourish and blossom as the rose, for we are all workers (or should be) with God for the upbuilding of this (the greatest work on earth and when we get to the other side we shall find our inheritance built up with the material we send. Let us hasten the work by a prompt response to the Lord's call to this very essential part of the Lord's work entrusted to all.

W. I. Arnold, Bishop's Agent.

535 Richmond St. Winnipeg, Oct. 26.

BAPTISMS AT GRACELAND.

From time to time young people, not members of the church, living in parts of the country remote from Lamoni are brought under the influences of the gospel in a much more direct way than in their home locality. Some of these young people have parents, one or both, or some relatives, who are interested in having them become interested in the gospel. The more favorable environment of college life at Graceland often arouses in them an interest in the church resulting in their baptism. The writer has had the privilege of administering the rite to quite a number of students, and others of the ministry have officiated in like manner at times.

Since the opening of the present school year in September two such baptisms have occurred. The first was a young man whose home is in the far western state of Washington, coming to Graceland as a result of the persuasion of his grandmother, an estimable lady and a faithful saint. This young man was a member of one of the popular churches of the world, and when he came felt quite secure in the faith he had espoused. But occasional arguments with the young saints, with attendance at Sunday services, Sunday school, Religion, and the young people's prayer meetings at the college, all contributed to opening the eyes of his spiritual understanding. He accepted the gospel, and the Spirit has borne witness to the fact that the Master has an important work for him to do in his kingdom, and we shall expect to hear the name of James A. Wadsworth mentioned as one of the faithful soldiers in the army of the Lord.

The other is a young lady from far off Saskatchewan, Sr. Emma Irene Dow, baptized by the writer on Sunday, the 26th of October. This young lady was baptized into the Lutheran Church when an infant, but upon arriving at years of discretion she failed to see the consistency between the claims of Protestantism and the teachings of the Bible. Her step-father is a Catholic, and she entered a Catholic school, but in a very short time severed her connections therewith and concluded that the truth did not lie with either Protestantism nor Catholicism. By a peculiar circumstance she became acquainted with a sister in the church—a real live one—who told her of the gospel and gave her literature upon the subject. Her investigation was rewarded by spiritual evidence which convinced her of the truthfulness of the position of the saints, so that soon after her arrival at Graceland, she was ready for baptism.

This sister had a peculiar experience concerning coming to Graceland which she regards as divine direction. Upon leaving the Catholic school she heard of Graceland through the sister mentioned, and at once had a desire to attend, but it being so far from her home thought it best to investigate other schools with a view of entering some institution nearer home. She wrote to a number of colleges and universities, but felt a little while she would and should come to Graceland. Her mother consented, and she came, and is now happy, not only in the association of the saints, but happier in the thought of being one of them in deed and in truth.

TO THE EVANGELICAL ORDER.

I would like to have the address of each of the members of the Order, with items of birth, baptism, confirmation, and so forth of the new members, so that I may be able to complete my list, and forward to each the blank for reporting, and would like to have report as soon after the first of March as is possible.

Hyrum O. Smith,
Secretary of the Order.

Box 701, Fall River, Mass.

ADDRESSES WANTED.

Having been chosen superintendent of the home class department of the Religio of the Eastern Michigan District I would like the addresses of all the scattered members of this department, also of the isolated saints who wish to take up the home class work. The records were lost and we have no other way of getting in touch with the scattered members. This does not include the branch home class members.

WE HAVE OXFORD BIBLES, TOO.

Yes, we have the celebrated Oxford Bibles, none better in the world. That is saying a good deal, but it can be backed up. These Bibles are published by the American branch of the Oxford University Press.

We have lately put in the Oxfords in addition to our line of Bagster and Cambridge Bibles, which are also of the highest class of Bibles. Send for list. These make nice Christmas presents.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Whereas, the hand of death has removed from our midst our beloved brother and co-laborer, Walter S. Taylor, and he being a member of the First Quorum of Elders of Spring River District, was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Therefore, we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones, and present a copy of this letter to the Saints' Herald and Zion's Ensign for publication, and also a copy be spread upon the records of our quorum.

Yours Respectfully, W. H. Smart, Pres. Quorum, S. G. Carrow, J. A. Graves.

MARRIED.

CHRISTENSEN-DIAMOND.—At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. A. L. and Sr. Diamond of Eagle City, Okla., on Sunday, Nov. 2, at 2:30 p. m., Elder Alva H. Christensen of Independence, Mo., and Sr. Emma May Diamond Elder Hubert Case officiating.

CLOSSON-MAYHAN.—At Independence, Mo., Nov. 2, 1913, by Elder W. H. Garrett, Bro. Glenn B. Closson and Miss Lenore E. Mayhan, both of Independence. Bro. Closson was employed in the ENSIGN Office a number of years. Himself and bride departed for Tulsa, Oklahoma, Tuesday evening.

DIED.

ROWAN.—Harriet Tyson was born July 10, 1825, in Ontario, died September 1, near Cook, Nebr. She married James Rowen near Nauvoo, Ill., in November, 1845; baptized by C. H. Porter in 1890 at Elmwood, Nebr. Of nine children, three daughters and one son survive her. Burial at Elmwood, Nebr.; sermon by James Huff.

DAVIS.—William Denver Davis, eldest son of Bro. Wm. and Sr. Elizabeth Davis, of Wabash, Indiana, was born in Bates County, Missouri, October 30, 1892, but came with his parents to Wabash, Ind., when four years old. He died Sept. 12, 1913, after a short illness with peritonitis. He was an exemplary young man, beloved by all his associates. Elder Chas. H. Fish, of Indianapolis, preaching the funeral sermon, assisted by Rev. Penny, pastor of the Second U. B. Church.

Home life is often very trying. But cross words are sent to make us gentle, and delay bath patience, and care teaches faith, and press of business makes us look out for minutes to give to God, and disappointment is a special messenger to summon our thoughts to heaven. Seek not to run away from these things. Learn God's lesson in them, and you will cease to call them trying.

EDITORIAL

THE CAUSE OF SECTARIANISM.

An editorial in the Christian Union Quarterly on the subject "Is not baptism the greatest barrier to Christian Union?" answers the question negatively. It says that baptism "has never been much of a factor in causing divisions, and points out that "Baptists and Disciples, who practice a common baptism, are no closer together than Baptists and Congregationalists, or Disciples and Presbyterians."

The real causes of sectarianism, according to this article, are stated in the following striking paragraph:

"It must be acknowledged that manifold baptisms contribute in some instances to sectarianism, but union on a common baptism does not touch the root of the matter. The greatest hindrance to union today is ungodliness in the church in the form of bigotry, sectarianism, pride, meanness, history and self-righteousness. Upon these issues divisions have come and until these are scourged out of the portals of the church, union is impossible. There is not a communion in Christendom that is not infected with this disease, some in one form and some in another, and in all there is an element of ungodliness that will poison the whole church if it is not cured. The hope of victory is that in all communions there are some that are uncompromisingly fighting this evil and they are fighting it with a heroism of soldiers on the field of battle. Scriptural texts are frequently used to hide the hypocrisy of sectarianism, but its ungodliness has beneath it deception and deadly germs that spread discontent and bigotry wherever they go."

This arraignment of sectarianism corroborates the Lord's statement given by revelation to the church soon after its re-establishment in 1830. He said: "They seek not the Lord to establish his righteousness, but every man walketh in his own way, and after the image of his own god, whose image is in the likeness of the world, and whose substance is that of an idol, which waxeth old and shall perish in Babylon, even Babylon the great, which shall fall."—Doctrine and Covenants 1:3.

THE "OPEN LETTER TO THE CERGY."

In another part of this issue will be found an excellent article entitled "An Open Letter to the Clergy," by Pres. Elbert A. Smith. This letter is out in very neat and attractive pamphlet form and is designed for distribution among the clergy of all denominations, and other persons of prominence. It answers well as a tract for all classes. The Bureau of Publicity desires your co-operation in distributing it. See the Bureau's announcement in the Miscellaneous Department.

MARS INHABITED.

Prof. Percival Lowell, astronomical expert on Mars said recently:

No startling new discoveries have lately been made." I have been asked many times whether I have discovered people on Mars; in other words, whether I have actually seen them through my telescope. Of course not, but the many changes that are taking place on that planet not due to natural conditions prove sufficiently that Mars is inhabited.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

No. 21.

PROPHETIC FEATURES OF THE WORK.

Our series of historical sketches would not be complete without some mention of the prophetic part of the latter day work. Prophecy in the sense of portraying the future has always been a part of God's work, and this dispensation has been no exception to the rule. The purpose of prophecy is not to answer the demands of the curious and unbelieving, but to assist those engaged in the work of God to do that work aright, and to add confirmatory evidences of its divinity from time to time, in harmony with the statement of Jesus to his disciples: "And now I have told you before it come to pass, that when it is come to pass ye might believe."—John 14:29.

Prophecy which came with the restored gospel, outlined the work to be done, as well as pointed out the pitfalls and dangers attending it. The angel who first visited Joseph Smith quoted from Malachi 3 relative to the messenger whom God would send to prepare for the coming of Christ; also from chapter four regarding the coming of Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord; also Isaiah 11 which speaks of the changed earth, and the setting up of an ensign which will be for the gathering of Israel, with Acts 3:22,23, and Joel 2:28-32, and said that they would soon be fulfilled. When it is remembered that at that time, (1823) the Christian world did not believe in revelation, or prophets, in the establishment of a literal kingdom of God, or in the literal gathering of Israel, and but few in the literal return of Christ, the prophetic force of the above claims appear striking.

An incidental statement made to this young man was, in his own words, "That God had a work for me to do, and that my name should be had for good and evil among all nations." It is generally known that while the name of Joseph Smith is held in esteem by hundreds of thousands throughout the world, millions of others hold it in abhorrence, innocently perhaps, because of the false reports and charges made against him by both enemies and many who have professed to be his friends and followers.

Portions of the prophetic quotations have had their fulfillment and events are pointing more clearly each day to the literal fulfillment of them all.

The first written revelation (July, 1828) said: "The works, and the designs, and the purposes of God, can not be frustrated, neither can they come to naught. . . . Nevertheless my work shall go forth," and a little later the statement was made, "Now behold, a marvelous work is about to come forth among the children of men." Whether springing from the divine mind as purported, or from the mind of Joseph Smith, these statements are prophetic, and the magnitude of the proposed work, with the positiveness of utterance, constituted dangerous ground for a poor, unlearned boy of twenty-three to step upon were he depending upon his own resources with which to carry them out.

The bringing forth of the Book of Mormon, and the organization of the church with its subsequent growth, marked a partial fulfillment of these prophetic utterances. Some perhaps have wearied of the delay in seeing the complete fulfillment of all the promises made, but such have overlooked some of the prophecies which indicate that time would be essential in the accomplishment of God's purposes. It was said to Joseph Smith and his associates that they were honored in "laying the foundation" of the work, and a prophetic parable in Doctrine and Covenants 98 says that it would not be until "after many days," that all things would be fulfilled.

The events of history as they transpire in accordance with God's designs may not always meet man's expectations. They did not do so in ancient times, nor have they in this age, but the march of events both within the church and in the world have been in perfect agreement with the divine utterances as given through the latter day prophet, especially contained in the Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

Under divine direction the saints began to gather in 1831 to Western Missouri, but in about two years they were driven from the region by lawless mobs and were not permitted to return, and some looked upon the event as indicating a failure of the supposedly divine purposes. But they overlook the instruction given in D. C. 38:7,

"And that ye might escape the power of the enemy, and be gathered unto me a righteous people, without spot and blameless; wherefore for this cause I gave unto you the commandment, that ye should go to the Ohio; and there I will give unto you my law," etc.

This law was given as found in D. C. 42, setting forth a standard of life and conduct vastly superior to anything had in the world. The permanency of the gathering, and their escaping the power of the enemy were made dependent upon their keeping this superior law, but this was the supreme test of their faith and here they failed, falling under the power of the enemy as had been previously indicated.

This disastrous result was foreseen by the Lord and it was made known to his servant. Nine months before it came Joseph Smith wrote from Ohio to the saints in "Zion" which was Jackson County, Mo.:

"If Zion will not purify herself so as to be approved of in all things in his sight, he will seek another people; for his work will go on until Israel is gathered, and they who will not hear his voice, must expect to feel his wrath. Let me say unto you, Seek to purify yourselves, and also all the inhabitants of Zion, lest the Lord's anger be kindled to fierceness. Repent, repent is the voice of God to Zion. . . . I say unto you, (and what I say to you, I say to all), hear the warning voice of God, lest Zion fall, and the Lord swear in his wrath, 'The inhabitants of Zion shall not enter into my rest.'"

The literal fulfillment of this prophetic utterance strengthens the claims to divinity. "Zion" failed to come up to the higher law of the gospel, and they suffered judgment until they were removed from the land and eventually driven to the west, rejected of God, while God has sought another people who would build more strictly upon the true foundation—the divine law. The Reorganized Church is doing its part in fulfillment of this prophecy, being the "other people," whom God would choose in the event of failure upon the part of his original children.

In 1832 a revelation was given portraying the civil war, stating that it would begin by the rebellion of South Carolina. South Carolina's nullification act being settled about the time this prophecy was given, caused some to think the prophecy was a failure, but its fulfillment came nearly thirty years later.

Among the many things pointed out by prophecy in the work of God in the last days, are the gathering of the Jews to Jerusalem which has already begun, there being eighty-five thousand Jews in that region at the present time; the gathering of the saints to America, especially to Missouri where is said to be the "center place;" and that the leadership of the work would be in the posterity of Joseph Smith, which is having its fulfillment in the Reorganization which is presided over by Joseph Smith the son of Joseph Smith, Jr., (Not one of the posterity of Joseph Smith is connected with the church in Utah).

The prophetic features of the gospel work are so closely interwoven with history and doctrine that an extensive research is necessary to give one a proper appreciation of it. Like the Bible, the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants contain numerous references to future events, events extending beyond the coming of Christ to reign on the earth, all showing forth the wisdom and knowledge of God, and manifesting his goodness and mercy to the children of men. Thus far latter day prophecy has stood the test of time.

CONCLUDED.

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force.—Emerson.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

The Independence Choir under the direction of Sr. Augusta Anderson has had under preparation for some time a number of excellent musical selections for use at the annual Thanksgiving concert to be given at the church on Thanksgiving evening. The thoroughness of the practice work and the cheerful co-operation of all the members of the choir give assurance of a most successful high-grade concert.

Patriarch F. A. Smith has been a welcome visitor here recently while he is holding special services in connection with Bro. J. W. Rushton at Central Church, Kansas City.

Reports indicate that the meetings at Central are drawing good attendances of both members and non-members, and a most excellent feeling prevails, and the prospects are bright.

Elder Joseph Luft preached an inspiring sermon at the morning service Sunday which urged many to a greater effort to live a higher life. He warned the saints against judging others by a single act of error, but the general tenor of one's life should be considered in passing judgment, and even then the motives and desires should be regarded rather than external appearances only.

The prayermeeting in the afternoon was somewhat different from the average in that many of the testimonies borne were by those whose voices are not frequently heard in the prayermeetings. The testimonies as a whole were filled with thoughts and experiences that appealed to the mind as well as the heart, and were attended with a peaceful spirit bringing comfort and strength to all. The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular session at 4:30 p. m.

The pulpit was occupied in the evening by Bro. M. H. Siegfried of the stake bishopric who in his earnest manner presented some striking truths of the gospel. In speaking of the Apostle Paul bearing in his body "the marks of the Lord Jesus," he spoke of the many who today bear in their bodies the marks of sin through the various forms of dissipation, and showing that sin always leaves its marks upon the human form, and how much better it is to bear the marks of the righteousness of God as taught by Jesus Christ.

The stake Religio officers have prepared an excellent program for rendition at the coming convention at Holden, November 29, 30th. The sessions will begin at ten o'clock. Educational and entertaining features are so closely interwoven with the business that it will hardly seem like a business convention. The Independence orchestra under the direction of Prof. Chas. B. Eaton will be in attendance to participate in the music. The stake officers are W. A. Bushnell president, F. A. McWethy vice president, and Sr. R. Brock secretary.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Sunday school had an attendance of 220, and collections, $5.99.

Bro. Marcus Shaw was the morning speaker, using Hebrews 4:9 and Eph. 1:10. His effort was a treat to all present. He held that it was the city of Enoch which had been translated which would return to the earth, and that Enoch foretold the 1000 years reign.

At the 7:30 p. m. service, Bro. George Jenkins was the speaker, the central thought being "Works."

The usual prayer service was held at 2:30 p. m.

CENTRAL CHURCH, KANSAS CITY, MO.

We are just in the midst of a special series of meetings which began Sunday the 9th inst. Evangelist F. A. Smith and Apostle John W. Rushton are the speakers, alternating each evening. It is hardly necessary to say anything about the character of the sermons, the interest and attendance are evidences of this. The attendance seems to be steadily increasing, until last evening, (Sunday) there was the largest attendance had at any preaching service for a number of years. Other drawing cards are the music furnished by the choir and others, in charge of Bro. Orville James; and also the illustrated Bible talks given by our pastor from 7:30 to 8 o'clock, which have a tendency to call the people to gather early.

The interest and general conditions are much better than for some time as evidenced by the marked increased attendance at the prayer service, and other meetings. Since the first of September the attendance at sacrament meetings has increased nearly double what it formerly was, and the outlook appears brighter all along the line.

At the last election of officers, the following were selected for the ensuing six months; J. A. Tauner, president; F. P. Hitchcock, priest; W. C. Rambo, teacher; G. W. Salander, deacon. The financial board was authorized to take steps to raise our proportion of the general church debt, $392. While our expenses have been quite heavy during the past year owing to numerous repairs on the building, believe the church debt should have our first consideration, and we will doubtless be forthcoming with our part before the next General Conference. Bro. Orville James and family were received on letters of removal from Independence, also Sr. Nellie Scott from St. Joseph. We feel very fortunate to have these additions, as they are all willing workers.

And while we have so many encouraging things to report, there are some sad features also. Some who in the past seemed to be capable and willing workers have seemingly departed from the path, while others who might render effective service are engrossed in the affairs of the world so that they have not the time to devote to the work of the Lord. All such should have our prayers, sympathy, and whatever other assistance we are able to offer them.

One other favorable sign of the onward progress of the work here is the organization of a Woman's Auxiliary local some few weeks ago. Also the Junior League, which is composed of the younger members of the Sunday school. All of these organizations have the tendency to put more people to work, and if properly guided can only result in much good being accomplished.

The Ladies Aid is also taking steps to make its influence felt for good. This organization contemplates giving a turkey dinner Thanksgiving Day. The pastor announces a Thanksgiving sermon at 11 o'clock a. m.

Interest and attendance at both Sunday school and Religio mark the progress these societies are making.

BENNINGTON HEIGHTS BRANCH.

For some time our branch has been making good spiritual progress. Elder D. F. Winn acted as branch president. Most of the preaching has been by Pres. D. F. Winn, F. C. Warnky, D. E. Hough, W. S. Brown, C. A. Selbe and J. W. Nanny.

In October Pres. Winn invited Elder John Zahnd and Geo. Jenkins to hold a protracted meeting. They continued fifteen evenings including three Sundays. The attendance of the saints was good but of the outsiders it was not so good as it was desired, but all who came were instructed, edified and built up and much good was accomplished. On the closing Sunday at prayermeeting we had a grand outpouring of God's Holy Spirit, it was a real little pentecost. God manifested to us through the gift of tongues and interpretation, saying "that if we would apply the instructions which we had received, then Zion would soon be redeemed; and that Bro. Zahnd and Jenkins should receive as a reward, sheaves of glory for their faithful labors.

On the first Monday evening in this month we held our regular business meeting, and the following names were elected as officers of the branch for the next six months. C. A. Selbe for presiding elder; J. Cleveland, priest; B. F. Wright, teacher; R. H. DeTray, deacon; L. H. Ashbaugh, chorist; Sr. Kate Hastings, pianist, and F. C. Warnky, reporter and historian. Bro. F. Phillips was granted a letter of removal to Walnut Park Branch, Independence. Sisters Edith M. Rees and Elsie Arnold were granted letters to Grandview Branch, Kansas City Kas. A very quiet peaceful spirit prevailed.

Sr. H. Winn has been very sick for some time and we are all glad to see her well and at meetings again. Sr. O. L. Barker from Chicago is here visiting her brother Wm. Crum, and attending our meetings.

The sister's aid society with the help of Bro. Driese are making some needed improvements on the church building.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., FIRST BRANCH.

On Sunday morning the ninth the Sunday school service was enlivened by beautiful spirited singing. Our music committees are live active workers in both Sunday school and Religio and as a consequence we have music of quality above the average, and not stinted in measure, in both these auxiliaries. Bro. Harry Tilden our superintendent gave us a touching little sermonee on "Love," reminding us that as "God so loved us that He gave His only begotten Son, etc." it should be our duty as well as pleasure to love and labor for one another.

The eleven o'clock service in charge of Wm. Burlington as had been previously indicated was a sermon by our pastor on the "Temporal Law." The speaker clearly expounded the written scripture on this subject, and impressively admonished us that "Zion can never be redeemed until the temporal law is observed." The evening discourse was a continuation of the same subject by the same speaker. Those who heard these sermons can have no excuse of ignorance as to their duty in the observance of this law. In the afternoon the Woman's Auxiliary held an interesting and enjoyable program. At three o'clock, three children from 3rd. branch were baptized in the font. A fine social service followed and our day was well spent, in "doing good."

On Tuesday evening the eleventh, the young people of the Religio enjoyed a nice little outing, which they styled a "weenie roast." The young folks repaired in a body to an ideal spot in the suburbs of the city, where they proceeded to build a huge fire over which they toasted "weenies" which by the aid of buns they converted into sandwiches which were devoured with a relish and washed down with cider. The weather was ideal and the "children" surely had a fine time. Our dear Bro. B. J. who is deeply interested in the young people, and who is as young as any of them that promoted and arranged this nice little social outing, and like a good shepherd went and watched over the flock.

On Friday evening as announced the Religio was privileged to have as its guest of honor Sr. M. A. Etzenhouser of Independence. She was greeted by a large attendance of interested workers and at the close of lesson period gave a splendid talk which was both instructive and entertaining. A nice little program was rendered a feature of which was musical selections given by the Bear Brothers, Geoffrey, Paul, and Clarence, sons of Bro. John Bear. Their instruments were the mandolin and guitar, and as a Religio greatly enjoyed and appreciated their work.

Sunday the sixteenth was a day of enjoyment to us, and was so filled with good things that we will have food for thought for some time to come. We had a good attendance at Sunday school, a busy lesson period, at the close of it a vocal selection by Gladys Christensen, and of course "our own Ida" to talk to us. You see we feel that she belongs to us, as it was here she took up the work she has so ably and faithfully continued. She is endeared to the saints in St. Joseph by many a loving tie and we rejoice to have her with us. She occupied in auxiliary work both the morning and afternoon sessions, and we know that both the Religio and Sunday school workers understand their purpose and duties better and are in all ways better equipped for service, because of her work among us. The word "Welcome" in big letters stands always ready to greet you in St. Joseph. Sr. Etzenhouser.

The final treat of the day was the evening service in charge of our young brother and teacher of the branch, J. O. Wordeu. He introduced as the first speaker Bro. H. W. Tilden our Sunday school superintendent who talked for twenty minutes on Sunday school work. He was followed by Roy Fifer with twenty-five minutes discussion of Religio work, and to say that we were truly entertained is saying but little. Those three young men acting jointly in service to God, made a pleasing picture that will long be a treasured memory at least to some. We were impressed by the earnestness and zeal, and realization of responsibility, and its sacredness that these young brothers manifested. Perhaps we may be over proud, but we do rejoice to see the young men of our number coming boldly to the front and fearlessly standing in defense of our precious cause.

A large audience gave close attention to the speakers the choir rendered some beautiful selections and we believe everybody went away feeling well repaid for attending. Bro. B. J. Scott was compelled to be out of the city, on church work, and we missed him.

Bro. J. S. Lawton has taken unto himself a helpmeet, whom we cordially welcome among us.

Word comes to us from Jacksonville Tex. of the approaching marriage of two of our young sisters, members of this branch, the Misses Violet and Margaret Wilke, who will have a double wedding on Thanksgiving day.

Last Saturday Bro. and Sr. Wm. Hill became the proud parents of a dear little baby girl.

Bro. N. Nesser has returned from a visit to California. A number of our people are going to attend the state Sunday school convention which meets here the 18th and continues three days.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

The work in this point of the city is still rolling onward, slow perhaps, but never the less sure. The saints are today feeling more than ever before, the great individual responsibility which rests with us as a people, that we may show by our daily walk and conversation, a people appointed of God; whose desire is to work righteousness unto all men. Our cottage meetings still continue with all apparent success.

Beginning Monday evening Nov. 3rd and continuing throughout the week, Bro. Gowell of Independence conducted a series of meetings at the church. Bro. Gowell is a logical talker of considerable force and his discourses to the saints were quite interesting.

Sunday evening Nov. 16th we rejoiced at being able to witness another soul born into the kingdom through the watery grave. Bro. J. L. Bear Jr. officiating.

The baptism was followed by an interesting prayermeeting wherein the Spirit of God spoke peace unto his people.

May the little stone, cut out of the mountain without hand, roll on; unto the consumption of the nations, is our prayer.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Our sacramental service was strengthening and uplifting. Encouragement was received to enable us to bear the things that so often tempt us, and by faith and patience we will come out conqueror.

Thoughts derived from Bro. Gall's sermon the evening of Nov. 2nd were "Be attentive to duty, not seek after pleasures of the world, and obey all of God's commandments." The morning of Nov. 9th Bro. A. W. Smith spoke to the Sunday school, his subject being, Character," and Bro. Frank Smith spoke to the school Nov. 16th. Both talks were edifying. The early morning young people's prayer service is still found beneficial.

Bro. Archibald was the speaker the morning of Nov. 9th, his subject being directed to the young. His reading was taken from Ecclesiastes 12, and the 85th section of D. and C. Bro. John Davis was the evening speaker, his reading was from the 10th chapter of Romans and 1 Cor. 1:21, his subject was, "Preaching and its meaning."

The morning of Nov. 16th a very instructive sermon was delivered by our young brother H. C. Burgess on the relation of Science and Religion. Thoughts gleaned were: Lose self in God's service. God a personality. How mysterious are his creations and how wonderful and powerful he is.

The priesthood meeting was held at 5:30 p. m. Nov. 16th. Bro. Archibald delivered a good reviving sermon the evening of Nov. 16th on the restored gospel, authority of the ministry and power attending them.

Two have been called to homes beyond since last report. Sr. Ross passed away Nov. 9th. We did not learn particulars of her funeral arrangements other than it took place in St. Charles Mo. Bro. Oris Crowley the seventeen year old son of Mr. E. and Sr. Crowley (nee Banks) passed away Nov. 15th. The bereaved ones have our sympathy in their hour of trial.

The choir will render the cantata "Daniel" the evening of Nov. 30th.

We were pleased to meet Sr. Bina Nesbitt of Independence at our Sunday school service Nov. 16th.

We correct the place of Bro. Betts' death as appeared in our last items. It should have been Milwaukee Wis. Elizabeth Patterson.

CHICAGO, CENTRAL BRANCH.

No doubt it does everybody good to see or hear of a growing interest in the church circles. The interest and enthusiasm manifested here, in our prayermeetings especially, in the past seven or eight months, has been wonderful and also a source of comfort and cheer and inspiration to all who attended, and to many who did not attend. Of course we know that a large majority of the saints should be present at all services and that they should come in the right spirit, and always show an interest in order to keep up the good spirit and to keep in harmony and in touch with the good thoughts which are given us through the Lord's servants.

For some reason or other there was a falling away and lack of interest in the prayer services for some months, until it dwindled down to six or seven. But thanks to the Almighty who has been instilling into the hearts of his people the necessity of meeting often to pray and testify of his goodness to them. For some time past there has been a gradual upbuilding until at the time our average attendance has increased to about thirty-two.

Our last meeting was the largest to date, the attendance being thirty-seven, but with the united efforts of the saints, we hope to continue on the increase until we are compelled to seek larger quarters.

The writer was ordained to the office of deacon on Wed. Nov. 5th.

Bro. H. Passman was the speaker in the morning, and at 3 p. m. preached at 3401 Cottage Grove Ave. Bro. D. E. Dowler addressed us in the evening.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Bro. J. A. Saxe held very pleasant meetings at Irvington on Sunday last, where he visits once each month. Bro. Kenneth Richmond, a young priest assisted him in the services. Kenneth's visits are more frequent than Bro. Saxe's. There are some splendid cooks there.

The city pulpit was filled Sunday last by Bishop C. A. Parkin in the morning and Elder J. A. Anthony at night. The sweet babe of Sr. Edna Johnson was blessed at the morning service by Bro. C. A. Parkin and J. A. Anthony. A spirit of peace prevailed through all the services.

Bro. J. D. Stead is at East Auburn holding services in two places with some encouraging features. Some are interested in the angel message. Bro. C. W. Deuel and C. J. Cady are still at Dinuba doing what they can for the Master. Bro Reiste is still at Sacramento having a good hearing and interest.

The Oakland pulpit was ably filled Sunday by Elder G. S. Lincoln in the morning and E. Ingham at night. The auxiliaries were good and interesting but there were vacant seats anxious for occupants. Are you going to attend next Sunday.

February 28 and March 1, 1914 has been set as time of our district conference at San Jose. A splendid time is expected.

We spent Sunday morning with the Santa Rosa saints. At 3 and 7:30 p. m. We spoke at Windsor nine miles north of Santa Rosa, where our little meeting room was filled. There is a splendid interest at Windsor which we hope may develop into the ingathering of precious souls. The outpouring of the Spirit was in double measure and all rejoiced in the preached word both members and non members. We found a welcome home with Sr. Minnie Misner and husband, a generous hearted man, and at Santa Rosa with genial Bro. and Sr. W. E. Case. At Windsor we were assisted by Rev. Handy a Free Methodist, minister, who is looking into our work, also his sister.

Bro. Geo. Taylor our newly ordained and elected deacon is taking hold of his work in splendid shape. He has been confirmed in his call by the testimony of the Spirit. Yes, the Lord is with us.

CORRESPONDENCE

CENTER, Ark., Oct. 13.

Dear Ensign:—I feel it my duty to write to the many good saints. Although I am not a member of the church, yet I enjoy reading the good sermons and letters. There are not any saints around here since father and mother are gone. I ask the prayers of all the saints for myself and husband that we too may some day be Latter Day Saints. Although my husband is opposed to the true church. I hope we can have some preaching here before long; there hasn't been a sermon preached here for about eight years. I remain your true friend.

Stella Thomas.

SPRINGFIELD, S. Dak., Oct. 10.

Editor Ensign:—I feel it my duty to add a few words to your columns as we very seldom see anything from here. We are still trying to press onward and upward. I can see the necessity of living a better life every day. We have a great responsibility (especially where we have children) to always try to set a good example before them, if we do not, how can we expect them to be what we would have them to be. I know that God will be with us and help us through the dark places if we will let him, or that has been my experience. In the last two years he has helped me in more ways than one. When things looked so dark two years ago he showed light and when I thought I had lost about all I had to live for, he showed me there was still a work for me. He has helped me in many ways.

We have no branch here. Bro. J. W. Smith and Bro. Levi Gamet are here quite often but the people don't seem to want to hear. My earnest prayer is that we may some day have a branch here. I ask an interest in your prayers that I may ever be faithful.

Yours in bonds,
Mrs. Jennie M. Allen.

SHOALS, Ind., Sept. 2.

Dear Ensign:—You come to us weekly and you are all the preacher we have as we are isolated saints and very seldom hear any preaching. We enjoy reading the many letters and feel like a few lines from this part of the Lord's vineyard might help some. My wife became a member of this church in August, 1912, and I obeyed the gospel last July—was baptized by Elder Jacob G. Halb. He held several meetings at our home and we feel like the good seed has been sown and trust it may some day bring forth much fruit.

Bro. Halb is an able defender of the truth and a willing worker. May the Lord greatly bless him in his efforts. We are the only saints in this place and of course meet with much opposition, but the Lord will not forsake his people, and may we so live that the people may see that this gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Some seem to be interested as they are reading our books. We have sent in our little mite to help pay off the church debt and trust the Lord will bless us in so doing. Will close asking to ever be remembered in the prayers of the saints.

Yours in the gospel,
Solomou Shoaf.

ESCALE CITY, Oklahoma, Nov. 4.

Editor Ensign:—I wish to call attention to the fact that the work among the Indians is spreading as fast as I can see how we are to take care of it. They wish me to conduct the work among them for another big meeting on Christmas, and for a week following. The meeting of a year ago caused much comment and interest, and we may hold the one this year near the same place. The leading ones among them have decided that it would be better to have the Christmas tree and give presents to each other, than to spend as they have in the past, and put in a week dancing. Last year the saints responded to the call I made for a few small presents to put on the tree, and the saints of Independence sent us some second hand clothing, and we have some of them yet. Now for this year I wish to tell the saints who wish to help in the matter that you send small presents such as pin cushions or any small presents such as you would give to children. An Indian woman would appreciate a calico dress more than all the second hand goods we could give them. The other churches have been giving second hand goods and the Indians simply make fun of them.

I have the Indians now to agree to buy the presents for each other, and I want to give them a treat and put on some nice presents, not expensive ones, but such as we gave them last year which delighted them so much.

I am very glad to see the item of the work among them in New York, California, Nebraska, Dakota, and other places. I was also delighted to get the letter from Bro. Mills of Denver about the great Indian convention there, and to learn that the leading Indians of the nation know of our church, and the work we are doing among them in Oklahoma. There is so much to do preaching to the white people that we have not been able to do much for them during the year. Phillip Cook and Reuben Taylor have both done some missionary work among them, Reuben has lately been among the Poncas, Otoes, Kaws, and the Osages. We feel the time has come for sowing the seed and we hope to reap before very long.

We baptized our first convert here in this place last June, and now we have a nice little Sunday school of sixty, and have decided to build a new church costing about $300. We have the building about half finished, and hope to preach our first sermon in it next Sunday. We were surprised last Sunday at our young missionary Bro. A. H. Christensen taking unto himself a wife, Sr. Emma Diamond, the ceremony was very impressive. It occurred at the home of the bride's parents, in Eagle City, where they had assembled about fifty people to witness it.

We shall visit as many of the saints as we can the remainder of the conference year.

Sincerely your brother,
Hubert Case.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 24.

Dear Ensign:—I have not contributed to your pages for a long time, but am always interested in the message you have for us every week, sometimes we get to a place where the saints don't take the church papers and we feel lost without them.

Bro. F. M. Slover and I are now traveling together over this part of my field, this is near the coast in south west Florida. I was never in this part before. I am favorably impressed with the conditions of our work in most places. I can see that some one has done a good work here in the past. It is nice to follow men who have left a good record, and hear the saints speak so well of them. I like that kind of a report. I consider myself fortunate to have such a good man as Bro. Slover to pilot me over the field, he has been in this part for several years knows the field and is well liked. We just closed a reunion at Dixonville, Ala. We have a good church building there, well finished, and will seat about 500. The branch is presided over by Bro. B. L. Jernigan a good safe man.

We all decided the reunion was a success, eight were baptized. The missionary force in attendance were I. M. Smith, F. M. Slover, Sven Swenson, Hale W. Smith, Albert Miller, Albert Warr, and the writer. Bro. C. J. Clark, the district president, and his wife were among the helpers also as well as the local men. The singing was good, Sr. Clark and Hale W. Smith had this in charge. Bro. Hale rendered some solos that made quite a bit.

I have visited the following places since coming to this part. Theodore, Ala., Bayminette, Ala., and Pensacola, Fla. We have good churches at these places and a fine lot of saints. I ate my first oranges off the trees at Theodore.

I spent from the middle of May to Oct. 1st in Oklahoma, and Texas, attended one reunion in Oklahoma, and one in northeast Texas, assisted in a two weeks meeting in San Antonio, and about the same amount of time in Houston. At the latter place I organized a branch with thirty members. I believe they will do a good work they have the opportunity any way, and have good officers.

We just got the last Herald with the Bishop's annual report of the finance of the church. It is interesting to look over the gifts from different ones, but some that we would expect to see on the titling list are not there. I wonder where they will be when the judgment sits. If all would do their part there would be no debt to bother or hinder the progress of the gospel. Most of the saints now believe in the law of tithing and are willing to do their part of the work, I am glad to say, and only once in a while we find one that it against it. I hope the time will soon come when all will fall into the line of our duty and we will be co-workers together with God in carrying on his work on earth.

My field and work has been very interesting to me this year. I have tried to do my duty, and think most of the men I have are doing their part, and I am glad to be associated with such a noble lot of men.

Sincerely yours,
W. M. Aylor.

AVA, Mo., Oct. 21.

Dear Ensign:—I obeyed the gospel three years ago when Bro. J. T. Davis baptized me, I can say of a truth I believe it to be the true church of Christ and I have been made to rejoice many times in the gifts and blessings my heavenly Father gives me. Still the Spirit says there are many gifts and blessings withheld from the church and people for not living up to the law and paying their tithing. I know there are many of us yet in this world's goods, of which I am one, but I am determined by the grace of God burning in my heart to pay all my tithing.

There may be some one who would like to hear from Bro. J. W. Dubose and what he has been doing. He left the conference at the Ava Branch and went to Rome and held two weeks meeting and baptized five. He came to Ava with the tent ten days, baptized one, had good crowds in spite of the picture show which showed every night for a week. Sometimes the tent would not hold the people if they had all come in but some would crowd around the door and stand and listen in the rain. It seemed as if the Spirit of God would rest on the people so they would not leave until preaching was over. Some said Dubose was the finest speaker they had ever heard, while others would say it was more like going to school to go and listen to him preach. He went from Ava to the Ava Branch and held a few days meeting and baptized four more and went from there to Tigris, Mo. to baptize some more. So the good work goes on and I think Bro. Dubose is a man worthy of his call.

Your sister in the one faith,
Sarah A. Fletcher.

MILL SPRING, Mo., Oct. 10.

Dear Ensign:—Will you give space for a few "dots and dashes" from the grand old hills of the Ozarks? It has been a long time since I have written for your readers.

This has been a great year for this field. New openings and baptisms have surpassed any year in the history of this district. All the missionaries are on the jump, and some of the local men are doing a good work this year. Already for this conference year I have preached 130 sermons, baptized 41 dear precious souls into the kingdom of God, and organized one branch by the help of the district president; organized one Sunday school, and am here to assist our district president to organize another branch at this place, making two new branches for our district this year.

Quite a few of the saints are sending in their "mite" to apply on the church debt, and we hope to see the good work continue until the welcome news is heard, "The church is out of debt."

We have all kinds of claims to religion down in this part of the world. But the latter day gospel sounds so strange to us and you might like a whale, over "the doctrine of the Mormons." Well, we just inform them that their best muzzle shot gun has gone wide of the mark; that we are not the fellows that they are hunting if they are after the "Mormons."

One Baptist divine got up in my meeting a few days ago and said that "the Baptists did practice the calling of the elders, the laying on of hands and praying for the sick." Say, isn't that news for you?—from a Missionary Baptist too. But when I told him that he had the chance of his life to prove that to the people, for I disputed it, and that he also had the chance of his life to show "the rot" of the Reorganized Church, before that people, that I was ready to tie the rot" belonged; right there he quit. I suppose his reason for taking a shot at me was due to the fact that I had baptized 26 of the finest people in that community, and had just organized a fine branch there that day—while he sat and looked on. He killed his own influence for good.

We are still having calls to "come and preach." We preached on the streets of Carutherville, Mo., the other day to a large crowd of fine listeners. A "Holy Roller" preacher had just closed his sermon when we mounted the same "dray wagon," and opened fire. There had gathered from 40 to 50 negroes to hear this "Holy Roller," and had said "Amen, dot's de va my Bible reads." But when I quoted Mark the first chapter where John said, I indeed have baptized you with water, but he, Christ, will baptize everybody else with the Holy Ghost; they all shouted aloud "Amen! dot's jes de way my Bi be reads, and dot's de way I believes it too. Dot's it boss." "No that isn't the way it reads either," said I. "You are mistaken this time." Well, after quite an uproar of laughter the "color'd folks" got quiet and were good listeners. Many of the people gave me money and said that they wanted to hear me again, as I had told them that we were not Utah's Mormons but true Latter Day Saints. God speed the right.
Elder J. T. Davis.

Papeete, Tahiti, Society Islands, Oct. 16, 1913.

Dear Ensign:—Bro. Griffiths, Bro. Charles May and myself left Papeete Sept. 7th, on the steamer St. Michel, a French vessel, bound for the diving island of Takume, 500 miles from here. I don't believe that boat would have been permitted to leave an American port, as she is top heavy and lists fearfully. The crew are afraid of her and say they don't know what would happen in a heavy sea. Fortunately we didn't have to make the experiment as we had fairly good weather. It is reported they are going to take her away again, she has only been in service a month or so. You can imagine how unpleasant it would be to try to walk up or down a roof, well that is what the deck of the St. Michel was. On Sept. 8, we arrived at the island of Kaukura, only Bro. May, after a vigorous plea, was permitted to land, with some of the boat officials. The natives had gathered in the church, which is a new one, and were very much disappointed when they learned we could not land. Offered the officials in charge of the crew, $10 if they would permit us to land but he refused, then they said if we couldn't come to them they could come to us, and a number came to Papeete to see the Apostle, or as they say, the Apostolo, but they sent gifts and money out to us. Three of the native Elders, Farara, Turatahi, and Taia came out in a sailing canoe or vaa, which is built like the Malay canoes, having a runner at one side about six feet from the boat, to keep it from capsizing. When the crew took town the scow to go ashore, the weight changed the list from one side to the other of our vessel, it is impossible to keep it on an even keel unless heavily loaded.

On Sept. 9th we landed at the island of Pa-ka-ra-va. Stayed here for three days while they repaired the engine. An old woman was wading along the beach, pulling a raft of coconuts after her. Saw how they made "copra." This island is only about 5 feet above the sea, as are the majority of the other islands. Are generally about half a

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE CLERGY.
Office of
FIRST PRESIDENCY.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Dear sir:—Understanding that you are interested in the nation-wide campaign against "Mormonism," I desire to approach you with a request that I believe you will concede to be only fair and just.

The request is this: that in your lectures, and articles written for publication, you will make a clear distinction between the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and the Latter Day Saint Church of Utah, commonly called the Mormon Church. We have suffered much from misunderstanding and misrepresentation, owing to the popular tendency to confuse us with the dominant church in Utah, and we ask your help to clear up this misunderstanding, to the extent demanded by common justice.

As a representative of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and as a member of the highest presiding council of that body, I crave your indulgence for a moment while I set forth some facts that you should clearly understand before you reach a conclusion or express yourself upon "Mormonism." For no study of "Mormonism" is complete that ignores that body of believers in the Book of Mormon and the prophetic mission of Joseph Smith that is sometimes called "The nonpolygamous branch of the Mormon Church," a title that is not wholly correct, but is perfectly true so far as the nonpolygamous clause is concerned.

First of all let me state that we do not teach, practice, or believe the doctrine of polygamy, nor have we ever done so. We regard it as unscriptural, unscientific, and contrary to the nobler sentiments of manhood. We look upon it with unmixed abhorrence, as a menace to that great corner stone of civilization, the home. We believe that a man should have but one wife, and her he should love and cherish with all his heart, keeping himself sexually for her and from all others.

We reject the doctrine advanced by Brigham Young, that "Adam is our God, and the only God with whom we have to do." We believe in God the Father, Jesus Christ the Son, and in the brotherhood of man, just as those great facts are set forth in the Bible.

We reject the idea of "blood atonement" taught by Brigham Young, and recognize excommunication from the church as the extreme penalty within the power of the church to inflict here on earth. The State alone may deprive a man of life, liberty, or property.

We do not believe in political interference. Our members are free to support any political party, without dictation or interference from the priesthood.

We do not believe in commercialism within the church as exhibited in Utah. While we hold to the law of tithing as a scriptural doctrine, the paying of tithes is optional with the membership, and the spiritual authorities are not permitted to enrich themselves from the tithes gathered. A strict account of all money received and expended is published annually, and the account is audited by a committee elected by the membership of the church.

We are democratic in principle, to this extent—that in the annual conference, legislation may originate with any delegate, whether of the priesthood or the laity, male or female; and that all proposed legislation is freely debated on the floor of the assembly, and is decided by majority vote.

We believe that the laws of the land should be strictly obeyed, and hold to the principles laid down by Joseph Smith during his life: "He that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land."

Here permit me to state briefly a few items of history: Joseph Smith organized the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints April 6, 1830. He was assassinated in June, 1844. During the period of his life and presidency both he and the church taught strict monogamy and denounced polygamy and similar evils, as evidence abundantly shows; though it is true that he did hold to the doctrines of continued revelation, divine healing and kindred ideas that were not considered orthodox by his religious contemporaries. But these other things of evil import were no part of his religious propaganda, despite the statements of certain encyclopedias and sensational exposes of "Mormonism"

After the death of Joseph Smith, Brigham Young led a part of the membership of the church to Utah, where he later introduced the doctrines that we have mentioned; and these doctrines have become so notorious that many now suppose that they were a part of so-called "Mormonism" from the first.

Those who could not conscientiously follow Brigham Young and could not accept his doctrines, came together and reorganized under the leadership of Joseph Smith, the oldest son of Joseph Smith, the founder of the church. The Reorganized Church has its headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa, with a large following at Independence, Missouri.

To avoid confusion, I will here state that Joseph F. Smith, president of the Utah Mormon Church, notorious for his polygamous views and practices, is a son of Hyrum Smith; while the president of the Reorganized Church, Joseph Smith, is the son of Joseph Smith, the founder of the church. The descendants of Joseph Smith who founded the church have a regularly-organized association, with constitution and by-laws, and a membership of over one hundred, including direct descendants and those who have married into the family. Not one of these descendants ever at any time held membership in the Utah Mormon Church or gave allegiance in any way to the erroneous doctrines of that body of people.

You will discover by this that we regard the Utah Mormons as apostates from the original faith. It is equally true that they regard us as apostates. But in this we have the advantage of the argument, because the civil courts have twice sustained our contention that we are the true successors—and that after long and exhaustive investigation. You will see the deep significance of that fact at a glance. It means that all that we stand for now in the way of morality and religion, the church stood for under the administration of Joseph Smith, prior to 1844; and the conditions in Utah to-day are not a true criterion by which to judge the church in its beginning. Behind the evil mask of Utah Mormonism is seen the face of Brigham Young, not that of Joseph Smith. The so-called revelation sanctioning polygamy—found in Utah editions of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants—while it bears the name of Joseph Smith, was never published until eight years after his death, and was then produced by Brigham Young. It is a fraudulent document.

At this juncture you may well ask for some proofs to support my statements. Space will not permit me to produce one tenth of all that might be furnished; yet I will cite you to a few evidences.

The following is an extract from a decision rendered by Judge L. S. Sherman, in the Court of Common Pleas, Lake County, Ohio. (See Journal entry, February term, 1880):

That the said Plaintiff, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is a Religious Society, founded and organized upon the same doctrines and tenets, and having the same church organization, as the original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, organized in 1830, by Joseph Smith, and was organized pursuant to the constitution, laws and usages of said original Church, and has branches located in Illinois, Ohio and other States.

That the church in Utah, the Defendant of which John Taylor is president, has materially and largely departed from the faith, doctrines, laws, ordinances and usages of said original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and has incorporated into its system of faith the doctrines of celestial marriage and a plurality of wives, and the doctrine of Adam-God worship, contrary to the laws and constitution of said original Church.

And the Court do further find that the Plaintiff, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the True and Lawful continuation of and successor to the said original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, organized in 1830, and is entitled in law to all its rights and property.

March 16, 1894, Judge John F. Philips, in the Circuit Court of the United States, for the Western District of Missouri, Western Division, rendered a decision in the famous "Temple Lot Case," from which I quote:

The Book of Mormon itself inveighed against the sin of polygamy. . . . Conformably to the Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants expressly declared "that we believe that one man should have but one wife, and one woman but one husband." And this declaration of the church on this subject reappeared in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, editions of 1846 and 1856. Its first appearance as a dogma of the church [the dogma of polygamy] was in the Utah Church in 1852.

Claim is made by the Utah Church that this doctrine is predicated on a revelation made to Joseph Smith in July, 1843. No such revelation was ever made public during the life of Joseph Smith, and under the law of the church it could not become an article of faith and belief until submitted to and adopted by the church. This was never done. . . .

The Utah Church further departed from the principles and doctrines of the Original Church by changing in their teaching the first statement in the Article of Faith which was, "We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son, Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost," and in lieu thereof taught the doctrine of "Adam-god worship." . . .

In 1852 the scattered fragments of the church, the remnants of those who hold to the fortunes of the present Joseph Smith, son of the so-called "Martyr," gathered together sufficiently for a nucleus of organization. They took the name of "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," and avowed their allegiance to the teachings of the ancient church; and their epitome of faith adopted, while containing differences in phraseology, in its essentials is but a reproduction of that of the church as it existed from 1830 to 1844.—Abstract of Evidence.

These court decisions must stand until reversed by some higher tribunal, and they should outweigh sensational statements of careless and uninformed writers.

United States Senator Julius C. Burrows was chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections during the long drawn out Reed Smoot Case. Great masses of evidence were examined, and scores of witnesses summoned. No man ever had a better opportunity to study the subject of Mormonism from the standpoint of an unprejudiced student. And at the close of this well-remembered case, Mr. Burrows made a speech in the United States Senate, from which I present two extracts for your consideration:

In order to induce his followers more readily to accept this infamous doctrine, Brigham Young himself invoked the name of Joseph Smith, the Martyr, whom many sincerely believe to be a true prophet, and ascribed to him the reception of a revelation from the Almighty in 1843, commanding the Saints to take unto themselves a multiplicity of wives, limited in number only by the measures of their desires. . . . Such mythical story palmed off on a deluded people.—Congressional Record, December 13, 1906.

The death of Joseph Smith in 1844, however, carried dismay and demoralization throughout the entire membership of the Mormon Church, scattering its adherents in divers directions and for the time being seemed to preface the complete overthrow and dissolution of the organization. Recovering, however, from the shock, the scattered bands soon reappeared in various parts of the country and promulgated their doctrines with increased zeal, and set to work to reassemble and reorganize their scattered forces, resulting finally in the formation of what is now known and recognized as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa, and presided over by Joseph Smith, a son of the Prophet. The courts have repeatedly declared this organization to be the legitimate successor of the original Mormon Church, and its adherents—numbering some 50,000 peaceable, patriotic, and law-abiding citizens scattered throughout the United States in small church societies, conforming to the laws of their country wherever they may be, and adhering to the faith of the founder of their creed, repudiating and denouncing the doctrine of polygamy and its attendant crimes, without temple, endowment house, or secret order—worship in the open like other church organizations, unquestioned and unmolested.—Congressional Record, December 13, 1906.

At the same time, Senator Fred T. Dubois another member of the committee, made the following statement:

It is only fair, I think, for me to say—and I am glad the distinguished Senator from Michigan (Mr. Burrows) treated upon it the other day—that there is a branch of the Mormons, called the "Josephites," who ought to be separated clearly in the minds of all Senators from the Brighamite Mormons. The Josephites claim that they are custodians of the church as it was founded. They claim that Brigham Young has introduced doctrines into the church which the Mormons did not accept in the beginning. At any rate, however that may be, the Josephite Mormons, with their headquarters at Lamoni, in the State of Iowa, and wherever they are, no matter in what part of the country, are among the best of our citizens in all respects.—Congressional Record, December 17, 1906.

So, in conclusion, I will repeat the statement that no investigation of "Mormonism," as it is termed, is complete that ignores the Reorganized Church. Here is a great body of people who command respect because of their morality; and yet they believe in the Book of Mormon and in the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith. You must approach them from a different angle than that from which you approach the Mormons of Utah. You can not wear them from their faith by attacking polygamy, for it has never been part of their creed. You can not convert them by relating the old stories that prejudiced people told about Joseph Smith,—to the effect that he was ignorant, dishonest, drunken, etc. They know that these stories are not true; and that just as evil stories were told about Wesley and Luther in their time, and about the prophets of old, not even excepting the pure and holy man* of Galilee, Jesus, the Son of God. You can only reach them by showing them something fundamentally wrong in their church structure or belief, or in the standard books of the church—such as the Book of Mormon, or Doctrine and Covenants—published during the lifetime of Joseph Smith.

Of course I do not expect you to accede to all of our views without further investigation. Yet, I believe that you will concede the justice of the plea presented in the opening paragraphs of this letter. And as a man of honor and fairness—as I assume you are—and as one who holds to the old idea of the "square deal," I trust that in your public and private utterances on the question of "Mormonism" you will make a clear distinction between our people and the dominant church of Utah, on those fundamental questions of religion and morality outlined in the opening paragraphs of this communication.

If you desire further information in regard to our position on any question, it may be obtained from the Bureau of Publicity, Lamoni, Iowa. Church publications may be obtained from the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

Sincerely yours,
 Elbert A. Smith.

For the First Presidency of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

THE PRESENT ORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH: IS IT SCRIPTURAL?

ELDER E. E. LONG.

The present organization of the church had its beginning April 6, 1830. To be scriptural it must correspond organically with the Church of the Holy Scriptures, because God is unchangeable and his law immutable, as the following Scriptures plainly indicate:

"For I am the Lord, I change not."—Mal. 3:6.

"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—James, 1:17.

"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today, and forever."—Heb. 13:8.

"The law of the Lord is perfect converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure making wise the simple."—Ps. 19:7.

"But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you, let him be accursed."—Gal. 1:8.

"Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son."—2 John 9.

Assuming that the reader will coincide with the thought that there was an apostasy—departure—from the ancient gospel simplicity, resulting in the rejection of the church by the Lord, making a restoration necessary, we will at once consider the proposition. Is the present organization of the church which had its beginning, April 6, 1830 organically correct?

As rapidly as available material was at hand the church was "set in order" by the ordination of the following officers and their respective duties defined: apostles, seventies, high priests, bishops, evangelists, elders, priests, or pastors, teachers and deacons, including subsidiary organizations—helps, governments, etc., as expediency made necessary; because it is evident there were assistant organizations in the New Testament Church coming under the head of "helps and governments," (1 Cor. 12:28) as Acts 6:1-6 seems to indicate, where seven men were appointed to "serve tables" that the apostles might give their attention more particularly to "spiritual matters. Here, in a minor way, is designated two lines of authority in the church, general and local, the general authorities having the direct oversight of the entire body, (2 Cor. 11:28) the lesser officers having the oversight of local organizations (Acts 20:28; 1 Pet. 5:2) so that there was no "schism" in the body being "fitly framed together," (Eph. 2:21) every man working in his place as the Holy Ghost directed.

There is a very close analogy between the church of the New Testament and the church in the "wilderness" under Moses, so much so that we cannot escape the conclusions that there was some relation between them, type and antitype. In the church in the wilderness there was a body of twelve men (Joshua 3:12; 4:4) chosen for a special purpose. In Numbers 11:16-24 we read of the choosing of seventy men from among the "elders of Israel" who had specific duties to perform. Then there were high priests (Lev. 21:10); elders (Num. 11:16); priests (Lev. 6:7); and the Levites were set apart for tabernacle service who acted as pastors and deacons. (See 2 Chro. 13:5-14, 15.

When Jesus began to build his church he chose twelve men.

"And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples. And of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles."—Luke 6:21, 13.

"And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach."—Mark 3:14.

"After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come. Therefore said he unto them, the harvest truly is great but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he would send forth laborers into his harvest."—Luke 10:1, 2.

The foregoing officers were general whose calling was unto all the world, whose primary duty was to preach the gospel and "set in order" the house of God. Matt. 28:19; Mark 16:15; 1 Cor. 11:34.)

"And when they had ordained the elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed."—Acts 14:23.

"For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldst set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee."—Titus 1:5.

There may have been elders ordained prior to the calling of the twelve and seven y but we have no record of such event. However, circumstantial evidence seems to indicate that there were. Moses chose his seventy from among the elders, and Peter declares he also was an elder (1 Pet. 5:1) though we have no record of his ordination to such office. He certainly would not be ordained to the lesser office after being called to the highest. The seventy, too, were no doubt ordained elders before their appointment as seventies.

The office of high priest is the most difficult to maintain from a New Testament view point of any, and yet a little sober thought, it would seem, should convince the most skeptical. Jesus was a high priest beyond all cant (Heb. 5:5-10) after the order of Melchisedec, having an "unchangeable priesthood." (Heb. 6:24.) Could it be truly said there was such a thing as an "order" with only one member? A priesthood with only one priest, or a "brotherhood" with only one brother? In the sense in which they are here used the terms "order," "priesthood," are in the plural. Now notice: "For every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins."—Heb. 5:1.

There was a priesthood in the church in the wilderness whose duty it was to offer sacrifices, but under the christian economy the "priesthood" was "changed" (Heb. 7:12) the bloody sacrifices ceasing with the offering of the "Lamb of God" on Calvary, of which they were a type. The sacrifice now being spiritual they offer "spiritual sacrifices" for sins (Heb. 5:1.) Their calling being of a higher order than formerly.

This is a true saying, "If a man desireth the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work."—1 Tim. 3:1.

No further evidence is necessary here to prove the office of bishop in the New Testament church. It is universally recognized.

Along with other "gifts" of the Lord to his church was that of evangelist, the first mention of such an office being found in Acts 21:8 where Paul's company entered Caesarea and were entertained by Philip the evangelist, one of the seven referred to in Acts 6:1-6.

"And he gave some, apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers."—Eph. 4:11.

The above Scripture makes it quite certain that an evangelist was as much an officer in the church as an apostle or deacon. From 2 Timothy 4:5 we might infer that Timothy held such office. He is there admonished to "do the work of an evangelist," though that of itself does not prove that he occupied that position. Holding another higher office would entitle him to "do the work of an evangelist" in the commonly accepted sense of the term, which is simply an itinerant preacher, a revivalist. In Titus 1:5 we learn that Paul had "appointed" Timothy to "set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city." We have no record of Philip "setting in order" but we do read that when he had preached in Samaria and baptized a number of people he waited the arrival of the apostles, Peter and John, from Jerusalem to confirm them. (Acts 8:12-17.) The responsibility of setting in order devolved upon the twelve, and seventy when "appointed by the twelve.

In the restoration as portrayed by Isaiah it is written; "But ye shall be named the priests of the Lord; men shall call you the ministers of our Lord."—Isa. 61:6.

From the above we gather the idea that the office of priest, or pastor, in the latter day restoration has been provided for, prophetically. While the term priest is not referred to in the New Testament as directly as elder, bishop, or deacon, Peter wrote, "Ye also as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." 1 Pet. 2:5. Moreover, we find the term "pastor" in Eph. 4:11, "and he gave some pastors," etc., and since the priest's duties are pastoral it is easy to infer that they may be one and the same. The New Testament writers have furnished us with a very meager account of many things aside from the organization of the church which has caused considerable speculation and difference of opinion, and if men differ on some of the plain teachings of the book, we should not be surprised at their disagreement over things which, to a large extent, are clothed in obscurity.

"Now there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers." Acts 13:1. "And God hath set some in the church, . . . thirty teachers."—1 Cor. 12:28.

From the foregoing the office of teacher seems to have been a fixture because God "set" it there along with other offices in the church.

"For they that have used the office of deacon will purchase to themselves a good degree, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus."—1 Tim. 3:13.

There is no controversy concerning the office of "deacon" so we pass it by without further comment. Like the office of bishop, it is a recognized fixture with nearly all the protestant bodies of whatever name.

Aside from the foregoing offices and "gifts" mentioned in the New Testament, we also read that "God set in the church, . . . helps, governments," 1 Cor. 12:28. The record is not clear as to just what is comprehended in these helps and governments, but considerable latitude is given for the "setting in order" of such subsidiary organizations as may be found expedient, under the direction of the Spirit of wisdom in those having the authority to "set in order" whatever may be wanting. Organization of any kind implies official capacity. There could be no organization without officers to direct the affairs of the same. The latter day restoration was to be a "restoration of all things," (Acts 3:21) the grand climax of organic perfection in all that pertained to the kingdom of God on earth, in preparation for the coming of the Lord in glory.

The local congregation, or branch, is the primary organization of the church, presided over by an elder, or high priest if a large branch, assisted by priest or pastor, teacher and deacon. A district being the confederation of a number of branches with a president, secretary, and treasurer. Jesus said, "Whosoever the body is, there will the eagles be gathered together." Luke 17:34. Stakes are gathering places organically larger than districts affording greater facilities for the maintenance of order discipline that greater unanimity might obtain among the membership, and, per consequence, greater spiritual benefits be enjoyed. Officially they consist of a president and two counselors, or assistants, a counsel of twelve high priests a bishop with two counselors, a secretary, treasurer, and recorder.

The various grades of officers in the church are formed into quorums and officers chosen to preside and maintain order in their deliberative assemblies. While the entire body is presided over by three high priests chosen by the body. To be more precise we quote: "Of necessity, there are presidents or presiding officers, growing out of, or appointed of, or from among those who are ordained to the several officers in these two priesthoods. Of the Melchisedec priesthood, three presiding high priests, chosen by the body, appointed and ordained to that office, and upheld by the confidence, faith, and prayers of the church, form a quorum of the presidency of the church."—Doctrine and Covenants 104:11.

These three presidents, in conjunction with the twelve, direct the affairs of the entire body. This order of arrangement is reflected as far back as the church in the wilderness with Moses, Aaron, and Hur, and in the New Testament, Peter, James and John, so we believe the present organization of the church is Scriptural and "built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto a holy temple in the Lord, in whom ye also are built together for a habitation of God through the Spirit."—Eph. 2:20-22.

"From whom the whole body fitly framed together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love."—4:16.

We believe, that we have sustained the proposition that the present organization of the church is correct. Being "fitly framed together" in the "measure of every part," it corresponds to the Scriptural idea of a "restitution of all things" that pertains to the glory of God and the salvation of man.

THE ROUND TABLE.

In Acts 8:12-18 we read that when the apostles at Jerusalem heard that Philip had baptized some at Samaria they sent Peter and John to them that they might receive the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands. If Philip had authority to baptize why did he not lay on hands? Did he not have the authority?

In the sending of Peter and John many of the elders see a reason for holding that Philip though holding the lesser priesthood as held by John the Baptist which gave him authority to baptize, did not have the authority of the high priesthood by which he could officiate in the laying on of hands. This position may be correct but the evidence is not conclusive. Other reasons might appear for the sending of the two apostles, one of which is based upon the order of the priesthood as outlined in latter day revelation where it provides that the apostles are to hold the keys of opening the door of the gospel to the world. The gospel had been preached up to that time only to the Jews, but by the scattering through persecution Philip had to the Gentiles of Samaria, gone converted and baptized some, and though he may have held the authority to lay on hands, it is not impossible that he observed the order of the church, and waited for the apostles to come that they might "open the door," in accordance with their prerogatives. The extent of Philip's authority at that time is uncertain. It may be observed that the lesser priesthood which was held by John the Baptist gave authority to baptize but not to lay on hands for the giving of the Holy Ghost.

By Matthew 27:50-52 it seems that the saints arose at the time of the earthquake accompanying the death of Jesus on the cross, while verse 53 seems to indicate that the saints did not come out of their graves until after Christ's resurrection. How are we to understand this? What became of the saints after they appeared to many while in the city?

There seems to be a contradiction here, but the Inspired Translation reads that at the time of the earthquake following the death of Jesus "the graves were opened; and the bodies of the saints which slept, arose, who were many, and came out of their graves. And after his resurrection, went into the holy city and appeared unto many." This rendition makes the whole passage harmonious, showing that the saints arose at the time of Christ's death. The holy city could hardly refer to Jerusalem as many suppose, but probably refers to the assemblage of translated beings in heaven, or perhaps to the "Holy City" which is to come down from God out of heaven. In that heavenly city they would find an abiding place until they return to the earth.

In Mosiah 2:1-20 of the Book of Mormon we read that through faith in Jesus Christ people received a remission of their sins, and received the Holy Spirit, but there is nothing said about baptism. Please explain.

That baptism was known to and taught among the Nephites may be seen from 2 Nephi 6:48, 49; 13:6-13, though there is no direct historical statement of its observance until the time of Alma. It is not improbable that it was observed in the early years of the colony in America though when it ceased is not shown. Whether the people referred to in the question had been baptized or not is not clear, but if they had not been and baptism was not available to them at the time, their observance of the law of Moses still entitled them to many of the blessings of God. Nephil says: "And notwithstanding we believe in Christ we keep the law of Moses, and look forward with steadfastness unto Christ, until the law shall be fulfilled; for, for this end was the law given; wherefore the law hath become dead unto us, and we are made alive in Christ, because of our faith; yet we keep the law because of the commandments. See 2 Nephi 11:45-47; Jacob 3:5-7; Jarom 1:6-13, and Mosiah 1:30. The last reference shows they were still observing the law of Moses in the time of King Benjamin the time referred to in the question. Obedience to this law brought forgiveness and many blessings of the Holy Spirit, as many instances related in the Bible show.

mile wide and around 30 miles long, strung around in a circle. Very often there is a pass where the ships can enter into the lagoon. There were no birds or any form of life here, except domestic animals and the inhabitants of the islands. There are no springs on these islands, on some of them they get water by digging down six or seven feet, where they get rain water which has seeped through the soil, mixed with some salt water. The coconut furnishes both food and drink for the natives. It is God's gift to them. The tree furnishes them with leaves for their huts, hats, mats, baskets, fans, and they even weave a little square box from them, which makes a "jack" for the children, they can juggle these with great skill.

On the 13th we stopped at Anaa for a couple of hours, did not land: The tidal wave of 1906 swept away 500 natives from this place. There are many bare places here, showing where the sea had uprooted the coconut trees, and these places are pathetic evidence of the struggle which here took place between man and the mighty deep. I took a degree of pride in seeing them unload from our boat American Soap and good old Slandered Oil. A moving picture operator got on board here, bound for our destination. Have moving pictures on all these islands. Charge 60 cents admission, prize fight from $1.00 up. So while the movies are decidedly educational, the evil is mixed up with the good. The natives know what a river, or train or flying machine looks like, although never having seen them, but the movies makes it all plain. On the 14th stopped at Hikuru. Here is where Elder Gilbert saved the population during the period right after the storm from perishing from lack of water by improvising a still and converting sea water for drinking purposes. The island bears evidence of the tidal wave. We have a church there the name lettered on it is "Bethel" which means Bethel.

On Sunday, Sept. 15, we arrived at Takume. There is no pass into the lagoon here, so we had to land in boats, on the rocky reef, where natives were waiting to carry us ashore. They had a joke on one of the brethren. They think it quite an honor to carry the missionaries ashore, or in fact to be of any service to them, so they were waiting to let us get on their backs. They had a description of us, and soon picked out Bro. Griffiths and of course knew Bro. May, and I was soon on the back of a big fellow. There was a millionaire Jew in the boat, and one of the natives thought he was the high priest, and carried him ashore; so the others joked him about it quite a bit. Well, I felt thankful that if I wasn't a millionaire, I at least looked like one! Here is a specimen of native reasoning. In talking over the incident, one of the natives said, "well, the Book of Mormon said we shall be rewarded if we only have a desire for doing good, and our brother not only had the desire, but he did more than that, he did good to a Jew, who was an enemy to Christ." One of the Native Elders argued that he would not be rewarded for carrying the Jew ashore as he didn't do it intentionally, but mistakenly, and anyway his motive in the first place was to get a little honor, therefore the promise in the Book of Mormon did not apply to him," then they all laughed, including the victim.

The report had spread over the island that an Apostle had arrived, so about everybody was on hand, and as we marched up the "street" to the meeting house, we were followed by saints and sinners. We were given a hearty welcome at the Church, where a number of the saints had arrived before us, and others did not go down to the boat. As we entered, the congregation all arose as a mark of respect.

Big men in every land and among all people naturally take their place as leaders. The Elder in charge of the meeting was a giant in stature and is considered the most able man in the islands, and other denominations have tried to get him, but he seems grounded in the faith and is quite an orator, his name is "William."

Dysentery had carried away about 16 of the natives up to the time we arrived, and they were panic stricken. We were kept busy administering, day and night, and during all this sickness we didn't lose one person, but they seemed to recover rapidly, while the Catholics, Protestants, and Mormons had a death or two every day during the two weeks we were there. Protestants even sent for us to administer, and they apparently received a blessing.

The brethren hired a gasoline tug and took us out to see the diving for shells, three miles out in the lagoon. We returned on the boat which pulled in the canoes. The company which buys the shell, furnishes the tug to take the divers out in the morning and return them in the evening. As they are scattered out in the lagoon, the tug circles around gathering up the canoes, which operation requires over an hour, as there are 70 or more boats hitched on to the tug, forming a line a third of a mile long, and it presented a picturesque sight, twisting and turning with the movements of the tug.

Our best diver can go down 150 feet, and many of the natives stay under three minutes. The pearl shell are about six inches in diameter on an average, almost flat. When the diver is ready to descend he has a lead weight, weighing about 25 pounds, between his feet, and he lets go of his hand hold on the canoe, descending rapidly. Having a pair of glasses which fit closely around his eyes, keeping out the salt water, he is enabled to see the shell, which are always attached to the rock, the shell standing on edge. A basket holding about a bushel, is near at hand, so the diver places the shell in it, and pulls himself up with the rope attached to the canoe, which holds the lead weight. The shell average about 25 cents a pair. A diver can make from $6.00 to $35.00 a day. When the canoes are attached to the tug, the divers begin removing barnacles from the shell, open and remove the oyster, throwing the bivalve back into the sea, in compliance with law, as the seed for reproduction is in the oyster. We were puzzled to know how they found the pearls, some of which are no larger than a pin head, when apparently they just dug out the oyster and threw it overboard. One of the brethren said the Lord had made it easy for them to find the pearls; after it had formed on the shell, it always dropped in a little sack in the oyster, to receive it, and when it is not there, they know there are no pearls in that shell.

A session of the Religo is interesting to a foreigner. The classes are not conducted as in America, but in turn recite in review. The whole lesson having been committed to memory. One sister had the Religo Quarterly committed to memory! They all seem to have splendid memories. There is very little inflection in their reading or reciting, but sounds like a lot of professional proof readers, using a monotone.

In their singing, I recognized such tunes as "Lead Me Gently On," "Bringing In the Sheaves," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "We're Marching to Zion." As the Tahitian is a vowel language, many of the words sound soft and pleasant. For instance, in the latter hymn, Zion is translated "Teona," so the words "Zion, Zion, beautiful beautiful Zion," are sung, "Teona, Teona, nehenehe nehenehe Teona." The sisters who have been to this mission have taught them these tunes and translated the words. Sr. Lake especially has done a good work along this line.

The high cost of living wall is heard here also, and no wonder. With the exception of fresh fish, nearly all food comes to the island in cans. There are very few coconuts there. A can of pears costs 60 cents. Everything else in proportion. Even a 5 cent bottle of ink costs 20 cents. Bro. May had a couple of boxes of canned goods sent with us, as it was so much cheaper purchasing in Pa-pete, but everything is high enough there, too. A native, with a pariu wrapped around his loins, came in with an up-to-date nail puller, and opened our boxes. The assistant secretary of the Mission was walking around with a fountain pen back of his ear. Another brother came in our "house" bringing a pair of hair clippers needing a little repair. A moving picture concern runs a dynamo, and generates its own electric light. So the modern, in juxtaposition with the primitive, is an ever interesting sight.

The native dress is the ever indispensable and handy "pariu." It is a piece of cloth 40 inches wide by 5 feet long, with a leaf or geometrical design in flaming red and white or blue and white, but the red is generally worn. It is the dress of both men and women. Is wrapped around the waist, and falls to the knees, skirt form. There are no pins or fastenings of any kind used, but is given a little twist which binds it around the waist securely. Over this the men often wear a shirt. The women generally have on a mother Hubbard. I have seen the pariu used for a portier, a coat, a blind, shawl, table cloth, a doll baby, bed spread, couch cover, turban, torn into quarters and used for infants' underwear, basket, towel, rug, and finally, hoisted on a canoe as a sail, speeds the boat to its destination, and with a grand final, of being placed on a pole, at the bow, triumphantly waves over the lagoon on the flying canoe as the proud flag of the Tuamotu Islands! Is there such another such useful flag in the whole world? Hurray for the red and white, (and blue.)

I never before realized how little human beings could get along with and be fat, healthy and happy. Seeing their homes, without a chair, table, bed, or anything thought almost indispensable at home, reminds me of an incident that happened in the wilds of West Virginia. A city chap was camping out for a couple of weeks, on a trout stream. A native had arrived opposite the tent, early one morning, prepared for fishing, just as the city man finished his bath. After dressing, he shaved, combed his hair, cleaned his teeth, polished his shoes, and manicured his nails. This last operation was too much for the native lad, so he shouted across the stream, "say mister, ain't you awful nuisance to yourself?" How about it, you folks in the lands of graft, adulterated foods, and appendicitis?

At our conferences, on the big days the natives put on shoes, and the men try and dress as the foreigners. In one branch, which attended the conference, the sisters all had on white satin dresses, costing $10.00 a piece. When they appeared in all their glory, the Bishop promptly rebuked them, so the next day they demurely appeared in calico! As at home in civilized lands we have not been able to agree on just what our women should wear, and what is respectable and what is not, don't know if the Bishop did right or not. One thing is sure, the $40.00 satin dress idea was imported from a civilized land!

Some of the men insisted on having a board platform, one of the white missionaries said he thought it was a useless expense, but the natives persisted, and it finally developed they wanted the platform so their shoes would make a noise as they walked on the boards! A squeaky pair of shoes is worth more in the eyes of a native than the anti-squeak kind. So alas, this child of nature is not without vanity.

We were teaching the natives to say "good morning," they wanted to know what that meant, Bro. May told them, William said our language was no good, we wanted to know why, he said because it is so twisted, we should say "morning good." We had quite an argument with him, Bro. May interpreting. Finally Charley thought of a clincher, he said, "would the Lord have selected a language that was no good to restore the gospel in? That settled "Big William."

Babies are afraid of white people. Even the dogs are prejudiced against our color, or the lack of it. An old native sea captain was in a few days ago, the government has him estimated as being 90 years old, but he thinks he is 80. He has a perfect set of teeth. These people nearly all are so blessed. There are no mosquitoes at Takume, I think the reason is that the wind there seems to be in an awful hurry all the time. Moving pictures, showing wild west scenes, are in great demand. A steamer landed a calf the other day, and the children climbed Texas and ran in all directions, thinking it was a wild Texas steer, as shown in the movies!

THE NATIONAL CHILD CONSERVATION LEAGUE.

On Thursday November 13th, Mrs. Eleanor Wetz representing this organization, lectured for an hour in our church at Independence, to an interested audience of ladies, mostly. She with her assistants are visiting personally, the mothers' in town, trying to interest them in organizing locals in their various churches. The work of this league is planned along the same lines that our Auxiliary has laid for its aims and labors. We can merely present a brief outline of the lecture; but desire others to share the good thoughts presented.

Mrs. Wetz divided the first fourteen years of human life into periods as follows; That of innocence, that of out-door pursuits; the barbaric, and the chivalric. She strongly condemned the thoughtless answers mothers often give children in reply to their questions as to their origin: the inevitable, "where did I come from, mama?" "Not from the stork on the Doctor's grip—but—the truth!" She told us of a little acquaintance, who when his mother answered him truly, and he realized that she had risked death for him, threw his arms about her neck; kissed her and exclaimed; "Oh, mama; now I know why I love you better than I do papa!" And he loved his papa too!

Concerning the moving pictures, she conceded the fact that they are a most wonderful means of education,—but—until they can be properly weeded out, they are something to beware of. Likewise the dance, which has become such a perversion of the pure and beautiful.

"The home problem has become a community problem." There are no more the garden, the horse, the cow, the chickens, pets; an acre or more of ground, no more wood to chop and saw and split, etc., there is only the street and the neighboring barns and sheds and alleys left the town child. But children will do something. Therefore it behooves parents to keep them busy! The girl still has her house duties left her, if the mother sees to it. But keep the boy busy too, if you have to train him to do in door work. Keep them busy, is her remedy against childhood's social evils.

Dayton and Cincinnati, Ohio, and Saginaw, Michigan, and most other large cities of the day now provide play yards for children, properly supervised by clean, interested persons.

She herself meets with mother's clubs teaching, and with their children, teaching them the uses and care of vegetables and how to can them so as to have them in their cellars, fresh from their own gardens.

She urged upon mothers not to become discouraged when their children enter into the various periods of listlessness, rudeness, and cruelty, or tomboyishness, the display of a vivid imagination, and the inevitable "hair dressing" age, etc. Some parents give up hope during these trying years, and impatience, and other evils follow. These characteristics in children are normal, and under careful, prayerful training and supervision, will be outgrown.

So be frank and truthful with children. This has so much to do with their after lives. So many marry in such utter ignorance, of sex matters and self control. A prominent Kansas City lawyer, who has long been on the bench confided this in his opinion, the chief cause of divorce: saying that seventy-five per cent of divorces had their foundation laid in the first twenty-four hours of married life. [But, the population of today is more scientifically educated along lines of sex than it was fifty years ago; and still divorce statistics show a large percentage of increase over that time!]

Mrs. Wetz says that the Department of the Interior, has given two and one half million dollars for the improvement of animal and vegetable life, and has granted but thirty thousand dollars for the benefit of human beings, but consoles us with the fact that it is a beginning, and a means to an end. That money is used to carry on the National League.

ATTENTION! GIRLS!

We were called upon, recently, to introduce the work of the Young Woman's Department in a near-by town. With our assistant Della Braidwood, we presented what we have outlined as the mission of this department. Meeting, in the social way, the young women and girls, and the opportunity to tell them of this work were enjoyable, of course and gratifying, as well, but what we appreciated most of all, I think, was the response we received when the following letter came.

"Dear Sr. Gardner:—I believe I have 'caught the spirit' of the work, and shall quite early begin operations. 'Deeds, not words' shall be my motto, and by degrees I shall instill this same thought into the hearts and minds of those with whom I shall be associated in this work. Well do I know the source of all our strength. There is wonderful power in prayer.

I have been slow to take up this work, as I told you, but, having once realized its worth I shall do my utmost to promote its cause. I shall begin myself this evening, (for this work, I see, like charity begins at home) by writing a good long letter of cheery news and encouragement to a friend whom I know is bodily in need of such a missive but whom I have neglected for more pleasing correspondence.

We are such selfish creatures! Really when one stops to consider for a moment, the magnitude of our selfish desires and interests it is almost appalling.

Very sincerely,

Mrs. J. A. Gardner.

Another place we visited and introduced the work, the question was asked a young girl. "What do you think of it?" She arose and answered, "It is somewhat different than I had expected, but it is even better and it is surely a beautiful work. It would make us all happy to do it."

Watch the Autumn Leaves for further explanations of the work of our department.

NOTICE TO LOCALS

The funds we have now on hand are insufficient for expenses we must meet very soon. As next month is the time for reporting the year's work and also when the assessments fall due, we kindly urge the presidents of all locals to see to it that their assessments are promptly sent.

If this is done it will enable us to meet these expenses, and we trust all will co-operate to this end. Also will the local secretaries please take notice that the new report blanks being prepared will call for financial items as follows: "Money raised for Children's Home;" "Money raised for local purposes;" "Money raised for other purposes." If you have not kept a record of these, please gather the items now so that you will be prepared to make out a complete report when required.

Mrs. D. J. Krahl, Gen. Sec.

CORRECTION.

In the editorial for last week, we wish to correct the following "typo" errors. One paragraph should read, "We should not allow our zeal to be weakened by the prattle of some of those who are not mothers," etc. The words "some of" were omitted; and we hope the consequences will not prove serious in any way, for we all realize that some of our best encouragement and suggestions and untiring efforts are from the childless among us. They remember the days of their youth, and all that that embodies; and some have loved and studied children and ferreted out truths to which many a mother may well give heed.

Also the phrase "work for a method of moderate means" should read "for a mother of moderate means."

PASTORAL.

To all:
The Lord said—"Pay that great debt." He had reference to the college debt. The college board feel that we should wait no longer but that this God-given duty should be done. Some of the members of the board are willing to subscribe $25.00 each, though financially they can ill afford to do so.

The board has authorized me to travel in behalf of the college in our effort to keep God's command to entirely liquidate this debt, which we hope to do by next annual conference, so that we can present a clean balance sheet at that time.

I hope to visit you personally so far as possible, but do not wait for my presence. On reading this write me immediately even though you have nothing as yet to subscribe and it will be seen to that you get your name on the list if you wish it there, and you certainly do.

The Lord said in Malachi's time—"Try me and see." He has commanded us to pay the debt. Let us do as we are commanded! The presiding Bishop concurs with the board in our effort to cancel the debt and in thus putting a man in the field.

Ask the president of your branch if he has heard anything from my yet. If not you write to me no difference what part of the world you are in. We are in need of present help!

Yours for liquidation of debt,

J. W. Wight.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 11, 1913.

WE HAVE OXFORD BIBLES, TOO.

Yes, we have the celebrated Oxford Bibles, none better in the world. That is saying a good deal, but it can be backed up. These Bibles are published by the American branch of the Oxford University Press.

We have lately put in the Oxford in addition to our line of Bagster and Cambridge Bibles, which are also of the highest class of Bibles. Send for list. These make nice Christmas presents.

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS
HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means new members or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, just as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to and I tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.

DIED.

CRUSE—At Conifer, Col., Lucy Pearl, daughter of Mr. J. R. and Sr. Lucy Cruse, and granddaughter of Bro. James and Sr. F. M. Kemp, passed away August 23, 1913, after an illness of two weeks. She was born September 4, 1911, was permitted to stay with us only two short years and was then called home to mingle with the pure and blessed to dwell with the angel children among the flowers, which was her greatest delight. She leaves to mourn, father, mother, and three brothers, two brothers having preceded her. Sermon by T. B. Neron.

W. H. DEAM, BUS. MANAGER

In writing concerning subscriptions, always give the name of the Post Office to which your paper has been going, as by so doing the loss of hours in looking for it may be avoided.

When desiring a change of address, always give the old as well as the new address, and when sending subscriptions always state whether it is a renewal or a new subscription.

In making remittances Money Orders are preferable. If coin is sent it should be folded in a card so it will not lose out and then enclosed in an envelope with your letter. Be sure and sign your name and give your full address. All business letters should be addressed to the Ensign Publishing House, and do not put matter intended for publication on same sheet with that which is of a business nature.

Address all letters and make all remittances payable to

THANKSGIVING.

Once again that period of the year has come around when it seems especially appropriate to show in some general way above the ordinary our thankfulness to God for the bounties of his hand. The appointment of a special day of thanksgiving by the chief executive of the nation is in keeping with the spirit of Christianity, and tends to remind the careless and indifferent that it is from the God of heaven that all blessing comes.

Men do not always take time to consider that the privileges which they enjoy in life, and the innumerable blessings which meet the needs of both mind and body, come from the hand of the one loving God, but a thanksgiving day should be one upon which the mind should recall the source of all blessings, and render the acknowledgment and praise that are due.

What are the things that have been and are blessings to us which have come as the result of the providences of God and the interposition of his hand? Are we to suppose that the blessings of civilization, of liberty, of peace and prosperity, are the products of human wisdom and human might only, as many do? Are the harvests of grain and fruit but the products of self-existent laws co-operating with man's labors? Did the precious metals and other minerals deposit themselves in the earth in such position and form as to be freely accessible to men? Did the wonderful organization of man's body with its inherent intelligence result from spontaneous generation and evolution?

To answer these questions in the affirmative would be as inconsistent as to hold that a great factory with all of its intricate and smooth running machinery, its electric power and light, its raw materials, and its stores of manufactured products, came into being of their own accord. But we know there is an intelligence back of the factory and its working, and seeing the marvelous intelligence displayed in the admirable arrangement and movements of the heavens, in the structure of the earth, in the wonderful organization of the various forms of life both vegetable and animal and the processes operating under harmonious laws by which the life of these forms is developed, maintained and perpetuated, we must conclude that the source of that intelligence is in none other than the Creator of all things.

The wonderful developments of the world cannot be attributed altogether to man. It is not difficult for the student of history to see the evidences of an intelligent power superior to man shaping the destinies of men and nations. Since the beginning of the Christian era civilization has followed the spread of Christianity in accordance with the teaching of the Son of God—"I am the light of the world." The spread of divine truth has brought light to the nations, and under that light they have become great. Other nations have not overcome the restraints of tyranny and bondage, but in proportion as so-called Christian nations have applied the principles of Christ's teaching light and liberty have come to them, and the evidence of the divine interposition on the side of liberty and freedom are not lacking.

The rights of civil and religious liberty enjoyed today are thus the result of God's blessing. The harvests are the products of His hand, for "the maketh His sun to shine on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." The wonderful advancement in science and invention has come through the light shed upon the world from heaven, for John the Revelator records that prior to Babylon's fall an angel shall come down from heaven whose power is to lighten the earth. Trace if we may every material blessing, whether its existence began during this present year or countless ages before, whether it grew into being under the operation of nature's laws without man's interposition, or through the labors of man, and it will be found that the Creator of the universe participated in, and made possible its production. Trace to their source intelligence, truth, liberty, and life itself, and we come to God.

Words cannot express to God more than the heart feels, so that where thankfulness does not exist words are valueless. Thankfulness for manifold blessings is best manifested in extending blessings to others who have greater need than we, rather than in celebrating the occasion of Thanksgiving with feasting upon the bounties of God's providence while our hearts are closed to the needs of others. A proper recognition of God's hand in all things, and a liberal distribution of blessing to others according to one's ability will cause the heart to overflow with thankfulness and joy.

THE PLACE OF BAPTISM IN THE CHURCH.

That baptism as an ordinance had a place in the early Christian Church is conceded by all, but that there is a great difference of opinion regarding its mode and purpose is apparent. Since John the Baptist who was sent of God to prepare the way for the Messiah and make straight the way of the Lord both taught and practiced baptism, and since Jesus Christ acknowledged it by offering obedience to it and commanding his apostles to teach it to all nations, its permanency in the church of Jesus Christ is established.

The repeated changing of its form, and the conflicting opinions as to its purpose, in the various Catholic and Protestant churches since the days of the New Testament, have tended to minimize the importance of baptism generally, until many have concluded that its observance is optional rather than a necessity. The eternal character of God's word, including that of baptism, leaves no latitude for change in any degree, much less a complete abandonment of the ordinance, and no substitution can be made by man that will answer the divine purpose.

After the first change in this ordinance had been made by the authority of Rome during the "dark ages," it seemed an easy matter for other changes to be made, and each class of reformers which arose looked upon it as though it were a piece of plastic clay to be modeled and used in such a way as would best suit the fancy of the worker. That God designed that the principles of his doctrine, and the ordinances of his church, should be subjected to the manipulations of men we cannot believe, but the principles and ordinances of the church established by Christ are unchangeable, not only as to the individual parts but as to the relative importance of these parts which made the harmonious whole.

Baptism, as one of the principles of the doctrine of Christ, should not be considered, as an abstract principle separate from the great plan of salvation, but as one of the essential integral parts of the whole. Any change or disarrangement of one part will disarrange the whole making it of no effect as certainly as the breaking or disarranging of some part of an intricate machine will stop its working.

John the Baptist taught baptism as one of the preparatory steps to a higher life, and Jesus refers to it as the door into the sheepfold, and Paul speaks of it as the means of entrance into Christ and the separation from sin and the world. Jesus also speaks of it as the ordinance constituting the birth of water, which with the birth of the Spirit to follow constitutes the new birth into the kingdom of God. While it is the door which separates between the world and the church, the ordinance carries with it a remission of sins when the prerequisites of faith and repentance have been met, and it justifies a continuance of forgiveness so long as loyalty to the principles of truth is maintained.

Upon this beginning culminating in the new birth rests the hope of eternal life, and no deviation from the divine pattern can bring such a hope which can be secure. But the processes of change have been applied by man so long that the masses believe it makes little difference what one believes or conforms to relative to this doctrine if it be so that he is sincere, but such must eventually learn that the Lord is also sincere holding to his word which he said would not change, for "the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." (John 12:48.)

"Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." Jer. 6:16.

A SUGGESTION.

We fully appreciate the frequent word of cheer received from our readers who write of the good that is being accomplished by the ENSIGN, but the following which we take from a letter of a brother at Belvidere, Illinois, expresses more that a word of cheer, in that it contains suggestion which will help many another one to do good and help in the great work of gathering souls for the kingdom of God. We quote:

"I wish to tell you how much I appreciate the ENSIGN. I look forward to its coming each week and have often remarked that one paper is worth what we pay for a year's subscription.

Realizing the bargain months have arrived again, and being desirous of taking advantage of same, I would say the writer sent a fifty-cent piece for a non-member's subscription about a year ago, and now there are five saints in that family, and they are trying to pay their tithing and also helping with the church debt. I do not say this boastingly, but I do say we can all help a little if we give time, talent, and a little means to help the work along.

There are some who would like to help but do not know where to send the paper, so I am going to ask you, dear editor, to give us a little corner in your precious paper to be known as "The Free Ensign Corner," where each can send a contribution of from twenty five cents to one dollar or more to constitute a fund from which the ENSIGN can be sent to such non-members as would not otherwise receive it. I herewith send the first dollar to start the fund."

We frequently have opportunity of sending the ENSIGN free to worthy non-members, and occasionally receive from others donations for such purposes. The opportunity is always open to our readers who wish to help in this way, and any offering received will be applied on such subscriptions, so that the ENSIGN can go to homes which would not otherwise receive it. We have now the name of a non-member with a large family to whom a subscription would be acceptable. It is not necessary for a "corner" to be set apart for this purpose, but any subscription money received will be credited to the "Free ENSIGN" account.

A leaflet issued by Bro. R. W. Farrell, pastor at Somerville, Mass., announcing a series of meeting by Bro. P. M. Hanson contains the following paragraph:

We are very happy to inform you that our church work in Somerville is being a success in every way. The attendance on our preaching services is increasing, and men are beginning to understand that the Reorganized Church stands for clean hands, honest hearts and Christian doctrines. In the past few months there have been several lectures delivered in the different churches on the subject of Mormonism, but this has been of advantage to the Reorganized Church, for the distinction between the two churches has been made plain in many cases. The Rev. Mr. Paden of Salt Lake City, in his lecture in Park Street Church, April 7, 1913, stated emphatically that he had nothing whatever to say against the "Josephites" or Reorganized Church, its members not being connected with the Utah Mormon Church. The large number present heard him make the statement. We are very enthusiastic and optimistic concerning this matter, for we know that time will relieve the Reorganized Church from the cruel burden of misrepresentation, placed upon it by the thoughtless and unkind. The Reorganized Church offers a full gospel message, as it is contained in the Word of God.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

On Thursday afternoon, the 20th, about fifty of the ladies of the branch met at the church, and with Bishop Bullard in the chair were organized into a society to be known as "The Society of Patronesses of the Independence Sanitarium," electing the following officers: Mrs. E. L. Kelley president, Mrs. W. J. Mather vice president, Miss Della Criley secretary, Mrs. M. T. Short corresponding secretary, and Mrs. E. E. Ranne treasurer. The object of the society is to provide for the current needs of the sanitarium in furnishing the rooms and wards. This society will no doubt find many ways in which to help the sanitarium in the grand work of caring for the sick and afflicted, and its present efforts will not hinder the friends in other places from rendering the service which may be in their power along these same lines.

Thanksgiving services have been announced for Thursday morning. The evening will be taken up by the annual concert given by the choir. A varied program has been prepared and the frequent rehearsals give promise of its being well rendered. A collection will be taken for the purpose of providing music for choir use.

Bishop R. Bullard dispensed the word of life Sunday morning, and in the evening the pulpit was occupied by Rev. Albert N. Bushnell, representing the Anti-Saloon League. He spoke encouragingly of the growth of public sentiment against the liquor traffic, and declared that the warfare would not stop until under a national constitutional amendment the liquor business was driven from the land. The afternoon prayer service in charge of Bro. Wm. Aylor, A. H. Parsons and W. H. Garrett, was full of interest and encouragement.

Bro. J. W. Rushton went to Nevada, Mo., on Saturday to begin a series of meetings there, leaving Bro. F. A. Smith to preach the closing sermon at the Central Church.

Bro. Wm. Aylor returns from his mission field in the South recently and reports excellent conditions prevailing, there having been over 140 baptisms. In Alabama and Florida there is a noble band of saints, some of the branches numbering over three hundred, and the prospects for future growth good.

The monthly priesthood meeting was held on Monday evening when the various quorums met in separate capacity to consider subjects of interest to each. The priesthood meetings may be made effectual for much good among the officers of the branches, but a good attendance is essential in all cases to make the gatherings what they should be.

Sr. J. E. Winnegar of this city requests the prayers of the saints for the daughter of Bro. H. Newberry, her brother, at Tryon, Neb. She was recently thrown from a horse with such serious results that it is necessary to bring her to the sanitarium for treatment.

Bro. Joseph Arber and Hale W. Smith have both been called home recently on account of sickness in their families. Bro. Arber returns to his mission at Blue Rapids, Kansas, the latter part of this week.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

The second branch of Independence, had a good attendance on Sunday, 23rd inst, it was 256, and a collection of $5.16, not so bad.

At the 11 o'clock hour, Bro. William Aylor gave a very interesting talk on the subject, Whosoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. 2 John 9. To abide in the doctrine of Christ was to live in obedience to all the commandments at all times. The afternoon prayer service was excellent.

Bro. W. K. Odell was the evening speaker, and his remarks were concerning the restoration of the temple of these latter days, while sacred and profane history was resorted to in order to establish the different dispensations. Many new thoughts were presented.

Let all those who are not able to have a good Thanksgiving dinner be sure to come to the Second Branch of Independence, fasting and prayer in the morning 9 a. m. preaching at 11 a. m. dinner in Curtis' hall, to which all are welcome, those that are able, bring enough for themselves, and to spare. No charges everything free, W. S. L.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

The question of uniformity of texts in the Sunday school quarters is being agitated in this district and will be made a question at the coming convention at San Jose in February. The various schools should discuss the matter and instruct their delegates.

Any wishing to suggest changes in the blank form for reporting of the priesthood of this district, please report to the writer at once according to resolution of last conference.

The Oakland Religo was well attended and very interesting last Sunday—Dr. Busu with his cello, Bro. Claud with his flute, accompanied by Sr. Ethel Crocker at the piano and Sr. Addie Taylor's solo made an interesting program. The services were all well attended, with good interest. The pastor spoke morning and evening.

The young people's prayermeeting in the city Sunday morning was well attended and spiritual. The morning sermon was by Bro. G. S. Lincoln followed in the evening by Bro. E. Ingham. Bro. C. W. Duell and C. J. Cady are continuing the tent work at Diuaba—having a stove in the tent and carpeted with saw-dust. Some are bearing the glad message of life.

The San Jose saints are preparing to entertain the religious conference and conventions to be held there from Feb. 27 to March 1, 1914. Six have been added to their number since occupying their new church. A program for the conference is in process of preparation. We wish to make this the best conference and conventions yet held—Why not, as we are a growing people.

Bro. H. J. Davison is working away at Stockton and vicinity in the good cause. Bro. J. D. Stead was there recently enroute south to continue his labors in the San Joaquin Valley, having concluded his services at Auburn.

We just had a pleasant call from Bro. J. R. Wedlock a former St. Joseph, Mo., acquaintance. He will probably locate here. J. M. Terry, 1202 14th St., Oakland, Calif., Nov. 20.

NEBRASKA CITY, NEB.

Sunday the 16th was especially fine for this time of year and the Sunday school was well attended. The preaching was by W. M. Self and in the evening by our beloved brother, H. A. Briggs.

Bro. and Sr. R. O. Self of Holden, Mo., have been with us visiting old-time friends; we was very glad to be associated with them once more; they left here for Omaha on the 15th.

We are looking for a visit from Bro. Gilen who has promised to stop at this place on his way home.

Our Sunday school has begun preparations for a Christmas entertainment. The Religio is fairly well attended and we think growing in interest.

Mrs. E. D. Briggs.

HOUSTON, TEX., Nov. 17.
HOUSTON, TEX. BRANCH.

Just a little news from this part of the vineyard.

There is a vast difference now and seven years ago, there were no saints in Houston at that time to the writer's knowledge, but one was investigating and Bro. Manuering came and held a two week's meeting the result of which four were baptized. Then different elders came and preached as they were passing through here, now and then one or two more were added to the fold.

A little over a year ago we organized a Sunday school, then a Religio. Last August Bro. Aylor came and held a two weeks' meeting and organized us into a branch with a full set of officers and about thirty members. We have good attendance, every one seems to take an interest. We will not soon forget the prayermeeting of two weeks ago when the Spirit was present with much power. One Sr. spoke in prophecy.

We had the pleasure of having Bro. Maloney with us last Sunday when he preached such a splendid sermon, and then again we greatly enjoyed the Spirit. Bro. N. L. Starks is our presiding elder, T. J. Jett, priest; George Leigh, teacher; S. Armstrong, deacon and clerk.

There is plenty of work to do here but the question arises will we do it? It needs a great deal of courage and faith on our part, but let us ever be mindful of the duty that is before us and thus help along the Master's cause. We hold regular services Sundays, and prayermeeting Wednesday evenings at 110 East 9th St. Houston Heights.

W. H. Smith, Mrs. N. L. Starks, Mrs. Catherine Duffy, Pres Committee.

CORRESPONDENCE

TIGRIS, Mo. Oct. 26.

Editor Ensign:—Having read so many interesting letters in your paper we decided to write a few lines from the saints at Tigris Mo.

Sun-Jay Oct. 19, Bro. J. W. Dubose closed a very interesting series of ten meetings, baptizing five on Sunday afternoon, confirmed before the evening services by Elder Benj. Pearson.

Attendance was small for here, as in many places. The true gospel is not very popular, however the good Master abundantly blessed our worthy brother with the Spirit of his calling. And he aided the saints by labors, also financially in preparing our chapel for services during the winter, it having previously been unloved. The saints greatly appreciated his deeds of loving kindness to all. May our heavenly Father bless him and reward him accordingly, and also our very worthy officer in charge, Bro. Benj. Pearson and family who by long years of patient toil and self denial have tried to let their light shine according to divine command.

We as a people think we have much to be thankful for, in the past year for, having tasted the bitterness of the spirit of darkness, we rejoice that the darkness has fled before the light of God's Holy Spirit. And we feel to say "all is well." May God help each one to watch and pray that we enter not into temptation for although the enemy of souls may roar without he can not harm or destroy unless we will it so.

May God bless you in spreading your glad tidings of peace and good will to all the nations of the earth.

A subscriber.

HAMILTON, Ill., Oct. 5.

Dear Ensign:—I feel a desire to write a few lines to your dear pages. It gives me great comfort to read the letters and testimonies of the good saints as I am now all alone in a place where there are none of my faith, and I feel lonely and long to be with the people of the church. Today, the first Sunday in the month, is sacrament day and I feel sad that I can not be with you, dear saints, to partake of the emblems, for I love the dear work of God but feel my weakness to do anything.

I went to Independence to live but it seems as though I wasn't destined to enjoy such a great blessing long; but I will try to live faithful and try to do God's holy will as near as I can. I am thankful that I am numbered with the saints for I know this church is His, and I repose in the truth of it. I am 74 years old, have been a member of the church since in the sixties, but have had but little chance or privilege that many of the saints have, to know about the dear blessings of going to the church and mingle with the people of God. I enjoyed the privilege while I was there and feel the loss deeply now.

I rejoice in reading the good letters that so many write. I cannot make known my great desire to be among the good people of the faith who are so interested in the faith and work of our dear Savior. I desire to live right and I ask the prayers of all that I may so live and let my light shine that others may know I tried to live, according to his will, and oh may I be saved with the blessed is the greatest wish of my soul.

Your sister in the one faith,
Isabella Arnold.

Kindness has converted more sinners than either zeal, eloquence, or learning.—Faber.

CLAYBURN, B. C., Oct. 10.

Editor Ensign:—At this writing I am domiciled with the congenial Bro. Hartnells, John and Richard, located in the woods at Clayburn, where the latch string is always on the outside, and a warm welcome on the inside. I am making a visit to the various branches of the district with the view of imparting whatever encouragement may be in our power.

I left home on the 24th of September all went well until we reached the Canadian boundary where we were called upon to answer such questions as were necessary to satisfy the demands of "international" law. When asked what church we represented, and answering properly, we were informed that Mormons were not desirable citizens, consequently not wanted in Canada, and we were ordered to get our baggage ready for deportation. He passed on, but returned with one who seemed to be a superior officer. My credentials were examined, and passed as O. K. Sitting directly behind me were three ministers who were enjoying the scene. On being O. K'd I demanded an apology for being called a Mormon, which was reluctantly complied with. There is too much at stake for the elders to travel even under the suspicion of being Mormons, that is a stigma that we ought to rid ourselves of at every opportunity.

I have not completed my round of calls as yet. I have some three branches to visit and several isolated points, thus far we are struck with astonishment at the attitude of some saints to the interest of the work and the marked indifference that is seen in their lives. On the other hand our hearts were made to rejoice at the faithfulness of others, under somewhat difficult conditions. They were making a good stand for truth in the cities of the Pagan Saviour. We suffer for the lack of city workers, (street preachers, and distributors of tracts) preaching in private houses is not the most satisfactory, it is alright in some cases, but to reach the discouraged and disappointed, benighted masses we must go into the "highways and byways," not occasionally but persistently.

Oct. 28. I am now writing from the hospitable home of Sr. Dancer at Bellingham, Wash., having visited the Chillicothe Branch for several years. Bro. H. Stade has stood unflinchingly at the "helm." This branch is made up of dairy farmers exclusively, who are scattered over a considerable territory that makes it difficult to meet together. We found them cheerfully pressing onward with a persistence that will eventually win. At Rosedale we were comfortably provided for at the home of Bro. and Sr. J. Muirhead, and sumptuously fed at the homes of the several saints, and also provided with the means of transportation. In all we were encouraged.

We called next at Sumas, Wash., where we met with the few isolated saints, held three meetings, (one the Sacrament) with them enjoying a degree of the Spirit, and leaving them with the appeal "come again." Tonight we began cottage meetings at the home of Sr. Hager. Not only at Rosedale were we joyfully entertained, but at Vancouver and Westminster, B. C., where there are noble saints, but space will not permit me to name them. I have never gone hungry, nor have I had to walk for lack of means to ride. I see though that this is not the good fortune of all my brethren.

In a recent issue in the ENSIGN we saw a letter that bespoke an experience of hardship, brought about through lack of funds in the bishop's hand to furnish the elder's family with the one thing needful. A glaring contrast was illustrated prior to it in the ENSIGN also, by the donation of an automobile to one of his brethren in (equality?) the ministry. This was brought to my attention by several of the saints where I have visited. We admit that all have a right to do what they please with their substance, but will it be justifiable?

Saints, let us place our offerings in the hands of the bishop, who is in a position to know where it will do the most good and meet the demands of the law of God. Pure and undefiled religion is to meet out to the needy of our goods, without respect of persons. May God help us to magnify his name, and win his approval.

Your brother in Christ,
Wm. Jonsson.

3618 Evanston Ave., Seattle.

NEBO, Ill., Oct. 22.

Dear Ensign:—For the first time this year I wish to drop a few lines to let your readers know that I am still in the fight. In the latter part of May I left loved ones and arrived in my field all O. K. and began to arrange for tent work which materialized at our June conference, after which I went to Brentwood, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, and occupied four weeks. From there I moved to Maryland Heights, another suburb, where I continued five weeks, baptizing six at each place, and at the latter place I baptized four men, three of whom have been ordained since and become the officers of a newly organized branch, also a branch was organized at the former place.

From there as per previous arrangement I came north one hundred miles to this place where I have been holding forth for seven weeks, four weeks at Pleasant Hill, Ill., and three weeks four miles from Nebo, Ill., where we have had excellent crowds and good interest. I have been ably assisted by our local brother here, Bro. W. A. Guthrie, who has given excellent help in the preaching as well as assisting, also the excellent assistance in preaching given me by Bro. R. Archibald at Brentwood and Maryland Heights deserves favorable mention.

Sunday night we closed the tent services for this year as we were compelled to abandon the effort on account of the inclemency of the weather. However, we closed with a full tent and we felt we had accomplished much good. While at Pleasant Hill, which was a new opening, we felt we had sowed some seed that will in due time ripen into a golden harvest as there were several of the finest business men of the town who scarcely missed a sermon in the entire four weeks, also the professor of high school who took our books and read them gladly. So we hope for results.

My work this year has been enjoyable as I have seen some of the most wonderful conversions from the depths of sin to the light of the gospel truths, several of which I could mention who have frankly come forward and said, "I will lay down my tobacco and my liquor and profanity and show you I want to do right, and they have done so for some time before I baptized them. At this place the success we have had has antagonized the opposing forces so we are told by the Non-Progressives (rightly named) that we will have to fight or run, so I guess we will have to try and hold the fort and at present are arranging for the conflict, hoping and praying that the truth may be victorious. I desire to still remain in the conflict.

Your brother,
J. A. Dowker.

TOPEKA, Kas.

Dear Ensign:—It has been a long time since I have written to you, but thought the saints would like to hear from the Topeka Branch again.

We are glad to make a very encouraging report of conditions in general in our branch at the present time. Since we wrote to you last April the writer has baptized five precious souls into the kingdom, and we have had several families of saints move here from different parts, swelling our number about twenty more, including children.

Our worthy Sunday school superintendent, Bro. M. D. Robison, is hauling the work in that line in fine shape, and has increased its membership about double since he took charge of the school; we are very thankful for this good showing.

Our Religion is progressing nicely with good interest manifested in both old and young.

Elder J. W. Metcalf of Independence, Mo., came over October 11th and 12th and gave us a nice visit which we very much appreciated. He preached at both Sunday services in his very interesting manner. Bro. Metcalf has made many warm friends during his visits with us.

The 19th of October Elder Joseph Arber of Independence, Mo., stopped off for a week with us on his way to Blue Rapids, Kas., and preached several fine sermons for us, and Sunday, October 26th, he baptized two children, and in the evening at 5 p. m. the saints met in prayer and testimony meeting in which the spirit of prophecy was manifested through Bro. Arber, calling one young faithful brother to the priesthood and giving admonition and encouragement to all present. We all felt the presence of God's Spirit to a remarkable degree. Such blessings as these are such a great source of strength.

We have another special thing to mention this time. We have been trying for a long time to get out of debt on our little church building. We have paid the last payment and are clear from debt, and have a clear deed to the property, which we expect to dedicate and turn over to the bishop. Bro. E. L. Kelley has promised to be with us on that occasion if possible. We have not decided the date yet.

Our Ladies Aid Society assisted by our Sunday school and Relief Society have purchased a new piano for the church. We have painted donated to paint the building, and an orchestra is in course of training also to assist the choir in our services.

Any saints contemplating making a change in location will do well to look up Topeka. There is plenty of employment for good mechanics in most any line of work. Plenty of good schools and every convenience anyone might want. We have two elders, two priests, two teachers and one deacon.

We have regular priesthood meeting every two weeks and every officer is working in fine shape, no jealousy or strife or malice amongst us. Every member is visited regularly by the visiting officers.

Your brother in gospel bonds,
Elder E. T. Lucas.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA, Nov. 4.

Dear Ensign:—I feel there are quite a number of saints who would like to hear from this part of the vineyard. My home is really in Kansas City, Kas., but owing to a matter of business I have been detained in Cedar Rapids since July 17th, but have been enjoying my sojourn here immensely. Most all of my nearest relatives live here. I have been enjoying the companionship of my three sisters who I am happy to state are members of the Reorganized Church.

We have but very few Latter Day Saints here and no church or hall to hold meetings in. We seldom have an elder to preach here, so a few are weak for the want of spiritual food and a word of encouragement, but their wants have been well provided for here of late. We had with us for awhile Elder S. J. Fields, who preached at the home of Sr. Motelj. While the meetings were very interesting, the bad weather at that time kept many away. Next we had with us Bro. I. M. Chamberlain of Eldridge, Iowa. He entered into the work with much vim and earnestness and has aroused the interest of many, and has almost awakened the drowsy ones. His geniality has won for him the admiration of many outsiders and they find themselves drawn within the sound of his voice where they can catch the precious truths as they fall from his lips. Both he and Bro. Fields are able defenders of the gospel.

Last Sunday evening, November 2nd, we had the pleasure of hearing Bro. Ralph Motelj preach his first sermon in our midst. We had our service at the home of Sr. Alexander of this city. There were twenty-one present and six were outsiders. We had a short song service and Sr. Motelj presided at the piano. Bro. Motelj took for the basis of his remarks Amos 8:11,12,13, and had good liberty.

Bro. Motelj is called to the office of priest and we hope through his efforts and ours to reach the people in this locality. I feel that much has been accomplished in the last few weeks. We desire the prayers of the saints to help us in our efforts. I remain strong in the faith.

SPIEGARD, MO., Nov. 6.

Dear Ensign:—The branch up is broken up, no meetings of any kind out, as some of the elders come and hold meetings three or four nights, possibly twice a year. Once we numbered fifty-three members; at present fifteen.

I have noticed in quite a few letters in the ENSIGN of different ones sending money for church debt, some of them quite old. It made me ashamed to think I had done so little for this cause and the church so I told my father that I was going to send $5.00 and he said that he would too. I have sent it to Bishop E. L. Kelley.

The Ensign is a paper I prize above all others, after reading them I distribute them among our neighbors so they have a chance to hear the true story and the gospel of Christ. We have taken the ENSIGN over twenty-one years, and would be loathsome without it in our home. Bro. B. Dice and Bro. Eley are holding meetings at the Little Mt. Hope Church. The attendance is so poor that it seems to hardly pay for good preachers to use their time that way. There are some few faithful saints here, trying to let their light shine. Perhaps there is someone that would like to hear from this part of God's vineyard, among those who have labored here years ago, and to know that their work was not all in vain. It seems that we are waiting for an opportunity to do something. I know that when I live the nearest to God and try the hardest to live right, I am the happiest.

I write this letter to tell that we were going to help on the church debt. Maybe someone else will see this and say, "Well, I guess I will help too." The different letters in the ENSIGN telling what others had given, were what made me move to give, and I thought if all helped it would be worth while.

My desires are to live faithful and do right, yet I fail in many ways to do the commandments of God. I hope many will be gathered into the fold of Christ.

Your sister,
Kate Elvert.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 11.

Dear Ensign:—As one of your most devoted admirers I feel greatly indebted to you for the comforting influence which invariably comes to my heart each week as I read the contents of your dear pages, and the inspiration which is generated within by that influence creates a strong desire for a closer walk with God, a strong incentive to be up and doing those things that make life worth while. I believe your mission to be the noblest and grandest calling that pen or press could possibly be applied to. And although situated as I am, with all church privileges and very busily engaged therein, yet I feel and sense as great satisfaction and joy in perusing your pages. And why not? Is not the same spirit engendered by each? Although many times I have been unable to have you as a constant companion yet the sense of a spiritual loss comes to me and I feel that I can ill afford to do without you. Not wishing to be selfish I try to love or give you to others hoping thereby to arouse the divine spark in their hearts to a living flame.

I desire to correspond with some one of our faith who is interested in art, who loves pictures and who would like to become established in an art store. Have an excellent location, here in Chicago for one, or would go anywhere. Have just lost many hard earned dollars by trusting the financial end of the business to a get rich quick schemer not of the faith. This is an awfully hard blow to me. Am in a position that needs quick action. Have some things to start with and know the business from A to Z. Thanking all the dear saints and the editor for their united efforts to make the way more pleasant and profitable, I am

LETTER FROM PAPEETE

On Sunday morning, Sept. 28, we had to leave Takume in a hurry, we were expecting our beloved St. Michael. She was to stay for a day or two, but when some of the officers landed, from her, informed us she was going to leave in two hours, so we hurriedly packed up, while Bro. May engaged passage for us. They refused to let us go at first, as the boat was crowded and there were no rooms. Bro. May told them the officials here said we could return and we had to get back to Papeete to prepare for going to Australia. Finally they consented so we bid good bye to as kind hearted a lot of people as has ever been my lot to mingle with.

We should not judge a nation by a few of its representatives, but if the French officials, officers of the boat, and the women passengers are a fair sample of the French people, I hope it may never be my lot to have to travel on another French vessel with French passengers. I think each of them drank three quarts of wine every day. We had to eat at the second table. The proverbial French politeness was entirely absent among them. They would sit around and smoke and drink, and often we had to wait nearly two hours after they had eaten before we had our meals. Yet we paid first class. We had to eat food that was cooked in the dirtiest kitchen, served by the most untidy waiter I have ever seen. There was certainly a wonderful difference between the English ship and crew we left America with, and this French vessel. As there were no rooms, we had to sleep on the hatch. This is the place where they put the freight down in the hold. Is about 20 or 30 feet long, and 15 feet wide. Is covered with heavy plank, and is built like a roof but not as much pitch. Over the planks is placed a canvas cover to keep out the sea when it breaks over the vessel, and likewise the rain, but it got in on us as I shall explain later.

Our shabby treatment didn't seem to make us very happy somehow. Bro. Griffiths' talent is to rise to an emergency. As we were lying there, with the stars reminding us that they were the "forget me nots of the angels," Bro. G. started "Lead Kindly Light" "I am far from home, lead thou me on," in his deep base; Bro. May fell in with his tenor, and the writer followed with his!!! ?? The chief engineer came running up to us, thinking some of his crew had developed marvelous musical talent (?), and not seeing distinctly, turned on the electric light. Then he saw his mistake. We asked him if we were disturbing the sick captain, he said no, to go ahead. The native crew gathered around us saying "mita, mita" which means, "good, good," so we had an appreciative audience while singing the sweet songs of Zion, and our spirits were cheered, and then we tried to recall some of the scenes the early missionaries had to go through on some of the small sailing vessels, and how much better we fared than they did, as we only had to be on the boat three days as they were not stopping at any of the islands, were hurrying the sick captain to Papeete.

The following night it rained so we had to go down in the hull with the sailors who were lying around in every conceivable position, on the freight. There was hardly a place under the hatch which was not wet, as the canvas didn't keep out the rain, and the other parts of the vessel was taken up with freight. Finally we found a little dry place, also a set of springs, going as freight, we appropriated them unto ourselves and were fairly uncomfortable in that bake oven. Finally we arrived at Papeete about seven o'clock in the evening. We were congratulating ourselves that now our sisters would have a nice clean, clean! supper ready for us, and a good bed. We saw them standing on the pier. But the doctor coming on board, forbid us to land, on account of the captain being sick. Said he would call the Board of Health to determine if we would be quarantined out on a little island in the harbor for fifteen days! You can imagine our feelings and disappointment. That night we again slept on the hatch, with a cow, pigs, sheep, and goats as near neighbors.

It is not the climate which kills the missionaries to the islands, but such experiences as these, and "the half has not been told." Finally we were permitted to land next morning, but had to go to the hospital every other day for ten days. There was some satisfaction in seeing those haughty, upstart, petty officials of the boat and the government brought down to authority superior to their own. There was one of the boat officials who treated us with contempt. When we landed we reported him to the manager, he said he would not go on the boat again, and he didn't when it left, so we had the glorious privilege of getting in a good old fashioned American "kick." We thought it might make it easier for some future missionaries. The manager also refunded some of our fare.

Here are good news to those who are acquainted with conditions here. Bro. Griffiths, under inspiration, has succeeded in getting the leaders of the "Poopo Society" to be rebaptized. This organization has been the means of splitting up this mission, and now with the leaders coming back, the others will follow. Some of the best people in this mission were in it, and the Elders who are the leaders, are among the most able we had. So there is great rejoicing among the saints. Bro. Griffiths told me about a dream he had as we were on the Tahiti, the steamer from America; we didn't know who it referred to, but when negotiations were opened with these people we saw the dream gradually work out as Bro. G. saw it. Sunday is set apart for the baptisms. There are about 100 affected through the mission. Possibly 20 or 30 will be baptized before we go. It would have justified the church in sending Bro. Griffiths here especially to get these people back, as he is the only one who was able to cope with the situation effectually. It should be a great comfort to his family to think that at least 100 precious souls have been won back to the gospel plan, through his efforts, assisted by the Lord.

The other evening, Bro. Griffiths, Bro. and Sr. May, Sr. Lake, and myself were in the living room of the mission house. Charley got down the guitar, and remembering we were far from home, on an isolated island in the Pacific Ocean, he sat on the corner of the library table and played "Old Black Joe." We all soon fell in with song, and then other American pieces followed until time for prayer meeting.

On the 27th we sail for Australia, going farther and farther away from home, sweet home, for the sake of the gospel. Christ had to leave his home, as did Abraham, Moses, and the ministers of all time, to preach this same gospel. May we be effectual instruments in God's hand of forwarding His work, that our sacrifices may not be in vain.

The experiences here have been interesting and educational. Sometimes new scenes engender new thoughts. A few days ago, Bro. May and myself climbed one of the mountain peaks. The mighty Pacific was before us. Ten miles away the mountains of the island of Morea pushed their peaks into the clouds; at our feet lay the city of Papeete, and its harbor. Amid a perfect silence, as apparently there was not a living thing except ourselves on the mountain, we looked down into great valleys. With this ensemble of a mighty environment, the smallest soul could not help thinking big thoughts, so we saw God moving in His majesty and power. May that force direct our life work, and when we are in the dark and dismal valleys, lead us out and help us climb to the mountain tops, where we can see, so our faith will be renewed.

We shall soon bid goodbye to Tahiti and its inhabitants. Bro. and Sr. May and Sr. Lake did all they could to make us comfortable. We shall say a reluctant farewell.

MY ISLANDS.

"On the edge of the world my islands lie,
Under the sun-steeped sky,
And their waving palms
Are bounteous alms
To the soul-spent passer-by.
On the edge of the world, dear islands, stay,
Far from clamorous day,
Content with calm,
Hold peace and blast for aye."
Re Isles of the Blest for aye?"

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

SERMON DELIVERED AT CENTRAL CHURCH
KANSAS CITY, MO., SUNDAY NOV. 2, 1913.

BY ELDER J. A. TANNER.

REPORTED BY BELLE ROBINSON JAMES.

The text that I have selected tonight is in the 14th chapter of the Book of Job, 14th verse; "If a man die, shall he live again?" I will connect with this the statement of the Apostle Paul found in the 15th chapter of the 1st Corinthian letter and the 25th and 26th verses; "For he must reign until he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."

In these two texts we have practically a question asked and an answer given, which might be satisfactory in and of itself, to a great many people, but to a number of others it would not be satisfactory. The studious and the thinking person would like to have more light upon the question than just simply this answer, and it is between these two points, the question and the answer, that I wish to speak for a little while this evening, trusting that we shall be able to present something that will be helpful to us and that will be stimulating and educational.

I presume we will all agree that death is an enemy to the human family—that it is the great enemy that all mankind—speaking of them upon general principles—fear. It is true that Christian people and those who claim that they are in a saved condition, state that they have no fear of death—that they are ready to be taken over to the other shore any time the Master may call for them; that if the Lord speaks the word they are ready to receive their passport and go into that condition that is in the future. There are other people who are not so free to confess this, and they freely state that if there is any one thing in life that is a terror to them, it is this question of dying—of passing out of this life and its mortal state, going into a state of decomposition and decay—that they would rather meet any other thing, seemingly, in life than this—and this class of people, and others who are skeptical, very frequently state that they do not think that even the Christian workers mean all that they say when they claim that they are ready to die whenever the Lord calls upon them. Because, as they look at it, they think that Christian workers employ every means that is known to the skill of man, just as well as nonchristians, in trying to preserve life, and remain here upon this mundane sphere just as long as they possibly can; no matter what disease or affliction rests upon them, nor how much they become aged and infirm and decrepid and helpless, yet there is a longing desire to still live and live.

One time when discoursing upon this question of the hereafter, a very notable judge who was attending the services came to me at the conclusion of the evening meeting and said that he appreciated and enjoyed the remarks that had been made but that he could not agree with my position in regard to the hereafter and he said that he had come to the conclusion after some years of study and meditation upon the matter, that the reason the human family, at large, feared death, was because of the uncertainty of the future—that death was entering into a condition unknown and a step into the dark. He said he had not found anything in all of his human experience to convert him differently.

It has been frequently said that there is no hereafter and because of this condition that people are afraid to die, because they feel that that is the end of them, that when they are put in the grave that life is ended for them, and that it is out of the question to think that they would ever come from that grave again.

There are practically two schools in the world, one of them holding that there is a Creator and that he has brought into existence all that we witness in our human experience. He created all of the planets—this planet upon which we dwell—everything that is inhabiting this planet, and that by reason of this creative act, he had the right to say whether death should be placed upon the work of his creation, and if he had the right to say this and could pronounce death and cause it to prevail, that of a necessity there must be a restoration back to life again, to a condition in the hereafter, and a place different from this where people are to occupy and inhabit.

The other school presents just the opposite of this. They call our attention to what they present as a fact, that there was no creative act, that it is out of the question to talk about a God or a Supreme Being; that there is not anything within the bounds of our human experience that will warrant us in believing in a creative act or that we shall live after we come to the grave. This school presents this thought, that what we see today as life is but an act of spontaneous generation, that at some time in the past, millions of years ago, that some power similar to electricity or something of that kind, moved upon a little piece of dead inert matter, and life was started in a very small degree and that from that small degree of life, there has come by the process of evolution all the varying forms of life until we reach the high type of life we see in the world today, and that because of this spontaneous generation, there being no creative act, and this process of evolution from that dead inert matter, to the condition that we are in now, that when we pass from this condition by dissolution, or breaking up of this highly developed organism that we have, that it goes back to the dust of the earth and becomes inert matter again and that life will not exist any longer.

With these two thoughts, these ideas as expressed by the two leading schools of the world today, incorporating all the various systems of religion as well as the various systems of evolution, skepticism and atheism, the question propounded here and used as a text tonight comes to us with more force than ever: "If a man die, shall he live again?" It is a question, no doubt, that you have thought over very seriously—that you have tried to solve the problem in your mind, that no matter what the mystery is that has surrounded it you have tried to get a ray of light coming through the mists and the clouds that would stimulate the hope within you that death does not end all, but that there is a continuation of life and that there is a hereafter.

Men in all the ages of the past, no doubt, have given this matter just as much consideration as they give it today; they have been as much concerned about it, and men have studied it until they have lost their minds. Others have studied it from various angles and viewpoints until they have concluded that they are ready to doubt everything even doubting their own existence as well, and you sometimes see that thought creeping out in some of the systems of religion that are presented to us, and it does not always come from the skeptical school that is in the world.

Is it true as it is contended, that life started through spontaneous generation, millions of years ago, and sprang from a small piece of dead, inert matter? Is it true, as we are confronted with the statement of the world today—and has been a statement in the world for hundreds of years—that it is the evidence of a weakened and diseased brain to believe in the resurrection of the dead, or a restoration to life after death? and of a miracle that would be so stupendous in its character as to bring back the elements of this body and reorganize them and implant into them life again, and that these bodies would continue to live?

If this be true, then we have some very serious problems confronting us from the other side of the question. For instance, I ask the atheist, or the skeptic, or the person who believes in spontaneous generation to take me with him in his travels in the past and point to me where life first had its start; and as we go back through the dizzy heights and travel for centuries and centuries and we come to a point, he says here we have located life for the first time, I propound the question and ask, "Is the starting point of life there?" "Oh, No," he says. "Well, where did it start?" He says, "That is something that we cannot tell; it may have started even millions of years prior to this time." I ask him the question: "How do you cross the gulf here where you first locate life and go away back there a million of years further and say it may have started there?" "Why," he says, "We must do this by conjecture." He wouldn't say by faith, of course—it would be out of the question to say that. We must do this by conjecture. We must believe that life started somewhere back there. Here is the point: if it is the evidence of a diseased mind, that it is only those who are weakened in brain power and are incapable of grappling with the serious problems that confront us in life because they believe in a miracle or because they exercise a faith. Does not the logic of the situation force us to the conclusion that it is an evidence just as much on the other side of the question, of a diseased and afflicted mind and weak brain, to exercise faith and belief that must extend to millions of years to some point where life started?

But we reason further: suppose that for a moment or two, that we accept this idea that we sprang from inert matter, and that this piece of matter finally starts in its processes of evolution until we have evolved to this condition that we find ourselves in tonight! I look out upon the expanse of broad eternity; I view this world with its teeming millions of people the best I can, and I look upon their inventive genius, the productions of their minds that which they have brought into existence and the benefits received through the work that they have done. We see here tonight that we have light; this light is given to us because of the intelligence of someone or more who has wrought until they have discovered a principle, which, when put into operation through appropriate material elements, produces the electric light which is so convenient to us here tonight.

I stop sometimes to think, as the mail carrier passes my door or drops off a piece of mail, of the wonderful postal system that we have. I think about the thousands and thousands of pieces of mail that are handled in the post office down here, the thousands of pieces that go out with trusty carriers to the homes of Kansas City. I think of all the other large cities in the world and of the many millions of pieces of mail that are distributed here and there and everywhere, and, comparatively speaking, but very few pieces are lost because of a system being perfected so well—at least, that they can do the work with apparent ease. These things are the results of intelligence, which some hold has come from dead inert matter.

I take the telegraph system, and it has been thought a wonderful thing in the past half century, and we know how remarkable it was when it was first announced, to know that they could send communications almost instantaneously from one point to another over the wires; but notice the development since that time; even the wires are not necessary now, and thought can be transmitted over land and seas for thousands of miles, connecting with vessels in all parts of the ocean, so that their movements can be directed by those on land. This manifests a wonderful degree of intelligence, yet that intelligence has come from lifeless matter through spontaneous generation if the theory of evolution is correct.

I take the telephone system as we have it today, and see the wonderful convenience it is in a city like this. What a remarkable convenience for the whole of this broad land; and there are so many things about it that we admire; there may be a great deal of mystery concerning it, yet its convenience is so adapted to our wants and necessities that we would think it was terrible if we were deprived of its benefits. That wonderful system with all of the inventive genius that has been displayed in giving it to us has come from that little piece of dead, inert matter!

I take your gigantic railroad system today, with all of the brains that has been displayed there. I find the same result. I go into larger cities than Kansas City, into the busy marts and various railroad centers with their shipping departments, etc. and I see that it is just one continuous network, like the bees in the hive, completing and working out the processes of a system that indicate the wonderful intelligence of man. And so tonight, I might for some time stand here, calling your attention to the various departments of life, revealing to you the intelligence that has been displayed, and admitting, for the argument's sake, for a moment or two, that it has all come from this little piece of dead, inert matter, and without going farther,—I will conclude like this, that if it is the evidence of a diseased mind or weakened brain to believe in such a stupendous miracle as the resurrection of the dead, bringing back to life again, then I must confess that the evolutionist, the atheist, the skeptic asks me and you, when they present their philosophy to us, to believe in a miracle when they say that all of this intelligence that you see in the world today has sprung from this little piece of dead, inert matter. This miracle is more marvellous, and stupendous, and eclipses any miracle of the resurrection of the dead; but are we ready to accept that philosophy? Are we agreed that the position is correct when the arguments that they present to us seem to be so illogical? Are we ready to accept them without consideration on our part, without investigation and without the cold facts being presented in the case—and I beg pardon for referring to facts.

It is again argued that the resurrection of the dead is an impossibility from the fact that they say there is no power that can bring us back to life again, or at least for a people to live after the various stages of dissolution that they pass through. For instance; they say, we have a man that has been born in Asia, reared up there, he loses one of his limbs and it is buried in that country. Later along in life he travels down into Africa, he loses another limb there and it is buried in that territory. After a while he comes up into Europe and he loses another member of the body there and it is buried. Finally he gets over to Australia and from Australia to some of the Islands of the Sea and from there to America and he keeps losing different parts of his body in these different countries until finally there is very little of the man left, having met with accidents, losing the various limbs and members of his body. These have been buried in all these countries hundreds and thousands of miles apart, and they ask: do you mean to tell us that that person can be resurrected and restored to life after such a scattering condition as that? They say it is impossible. It is surrounded with too much mystery for them to understand and with so much that they cannot conceive, or that which surpasses their knowledge, and they state that because of these mysteries we cannot fathom the resurrection, consequently it is unworthy of our credence and belief. And they state further: why we take people, and they have been dying for a period at least of six thousand years according to your Bible chronology; they are put in the earth and they pass through this state of decay. They go into dust: this dust becomes assimilated with the earth; after awhile, the strength of the gases etc., that is springing from the decayed matter springs up from the earth into grass and the cattle come along and eat the grass, the cattle are killed and the people eat the cattle and other cattle are raised again and this process is gone over and over for hundreds of years and will continue to do so. How in the face of all this mystery can we believe in the resurrection of the dead?

As this is a proposition that confronts us, of course there is a task for us to solve it, and the first argumentative question that I wish to propound is this: must we refrain from believing or having faith in God, or anything that may be shrouded in mystery, or that we cannot understand? If so, where are we to be relegated to? Where will we go? As far as I am personally concerned, there is not a thing that I meet with in life but what is clouded with mystery to me, at least I cannot understand even this organism right here. I cannot understand digestion or assimilation, etc. It is beyond my comprehension. There may be some people who have worked upon this and developed a learning, to some extent with reference to it, that may have a broad conception, but as far as I am personally concerned, it is a mystery to me. Must I therefore, say it is untrue and unworthy of belief of honest men and unintelligent men and women because of its mystery? I would hardly think so. Must I object to the telephone I referred to a short time ago because I do not understand or comprehend the principles involved in that work? If so, I would have to do away with that convenience I do not understand, and as far as I am personally concerned, those that I have asked about the matter who have been electricians, have not satisfied my mind, and one of the questions is, how it is when I take down the receiver and attempt to converse with some one a hundred or five hundred miles distant that by reason of my former acquaintance with the party, I instantly recognize his voice—the articulation has been preserved, and the sound is there just as naturally as when I have heard his voice in my presence. Must I say it is false and untrue and unbelievable because I cannot understand how it is done? I don't know where we would end, if such was the case.

Take the process of life as we have it today. Who can understand it? Who of all the philosophers and wise men of this world can explain it satisfactorily to you? I am glad to know that in the twentieth century we have some brilliant, thinking men even upon the agnostic side of the question who concede that as far as life is concerned, it is beyond the ken of human investigation and understanding to know where it has its starting point or even to define it satisfactorily to all minds. So we have the great mystery of life as well as of death and the mystery of the resurrection of the dead.

I wish to present a few thoughts now, without dwelling too long upon some of these statements, and make partial answers to them, with reference to our condition at the present time. I find that as far as this physical body is concerned, drawing my conclusions from anatomy, that it is not impossible for the resurrection of the dead, that the very processes that perpetuate life here in this physical environment are the evidences in favor of a revival to life again. One would think sometimes in the illustration about being buried in Africa, and in Asia and Europe and Australia and America and those different points that the mind was confined just simply to the localized condition and it seems as though that was true when it comes to the question of perpetuating life and the continual growth and development of our body. Does all the food that you eat come from the State of Missouri where you are residing? Does it all come from the states of Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma? You know that through our transportation facilities there come the grain and the fruits and the cereals from all parts of America, the islands of the sea, Europe and Asia. They pour into our department and grocery stores, so that you and I are nourished and our bodies perpetuated by the products gathered from all parts of the earth. And you ask, what is the point? Simply this: I clip my finger nails and they grow again. I go to the barber and he cuts my hair. The hair grows again. What causes this? The things which come from the various lands of the eastern continent and from this continent and the islands of the sea. They all help form the physical body, so that my body comes from the various lands where the man buried his limbs. Do you mean to say in the face of this miracle, the resurrection of the dead is impossible?

I stop sometimes to think of a principle that is presented to us from the scientific side of life. It is said that wherever we find the law of demand, that logically there must be the law of supply to meet that demand, and they reason from cause to effect. They call your attention to the vegetable kingdom and point it out to you. They will even go up to the starry realm and make their deductions there. They will delve down into the earth from the geological point, giving their deductions trying to show you that this law of universal demand is met by the law of universal supply everywhere.

I take up the proposition and go anywhere in America and I see many families who lose their loved ones. There is a great deal of sadness and sorrow left behind. Loved ones follow them in sorrow to their last resting place irrespective of what their belief is with reference to the future and with a fallen countenance and broken heart, and pained and distressed mind, they look longingly into that grave where they are placed, and I ask you the question, why do they do it? The answer comes, because they long for that loved one to come back to them again. Ah, but says someone that is only true of a Christian country like America or parts of Europe or some parts of Asia. Is it not true when you go down into darkened Africa, unto the peoples that have not learned religion, or of Jesus Christ, that the savage there, although you may consider him in that dark and semi barbarous condition, when he walks to the resting place of one who has lived and one who is near and dear to him, he has that same longing desire that you have here in this Christian country, and everywhere you go, you find that universal demand upon the part of humanity, that in death there is the desire that they shall be returned back again, or at least that you can go to where they are, if they go to some other sphere.

The point is this: if it is true, then that where there is a universal demand that there should be a supply to meet that demand—if we come to a place where there is an invasion of the rule, if we come to a point in life where we must lay it down and say, it doesn't work—is it not a case where there is a violation even in nature, of its operation and a contradiction? Will they ask us to believe the rule will not hold good in all cases? Surely not. Surely they will not ask us to take that position. Then I ask you the question tonight: where is the supply that meets this universal demand upon the part of the human family that their loved ones should be restored to them again? The only solution that I have found to the question is that which I have taken as a text tonight in which it is stated with reference to the Christ that he must reign until all enemies are put under his feet and the last enemy that shall be destroyed, is death out of existence, is death, when death will be no more.

What is death? Do you ever stop to think about it? I take it for granted that there are very few here tonight who have not stood by the bedside of some loved one and has seen life pass out, and there are some here that would give it some consideration and try to solve the question to some extent, but did you ever find an answer that seemed to satisfy you? I must confess that with all of the light that has come from the eternal courts of glory, that with the limited understanding and learning I have had in God and godly things, that there is a mystery that shrouds death that I cannot penetrate and satisfy, in every sense of the word, my own mind. I go into the realm of science and I ask the question, What is death? I think it is Mr. Faber who wrote that "death is an unsurveyed land—an unarranged science." Just think of that; how cold and cheerless it sounds. No wonder the less thoughtful think it a leap in the dark—a fathomless abyss.

I go to history and all that it reveals to me is that death is a universal fact. I again consult the poet and I see him with pen poised moving up to write and give us a definition of what death is, and he withdraws again in terror and leaves only terror as the solution to the question.

I go to the philosopher and ask for the definition of death and he says it is one of the great mysteries of being and the great mystery of not being. Where are we? Alongside of this definition, I wish to present one that was uttered as death was gradually approaching him—I refer to Bro. Morris Short, one of the staunch missionaries of this work, he made this statement: "Death is but the entrance through the door of the triumphal arch and on through to the fair fields of immortality." Now in the various solutions that are given here, which do you prefer? Looking down deep into your soul tonight with your personality, as you understand it—which do you prefer? Which of these sounds the most pleasing in your ears? Is it the one that it is an unsurveyed land, an unarranged science that one presents, or is it the answer that is given, that you will use for an answer, that it is the entrance in through the gate of the triumphal arch to the fair fields of immortality? I prefer the latter, and let me ask you the question again, which do you prefer?

So tonight, on both sides of the proposition there is a mystery that we can hardly solve, which we do not understand, suppose we admit, for argument's sake the claim of the skeptic, or the agnostic and the evolutionist and those who believe in spontaneous generation as being correct, that their philosophy is true, that death ends all, that there is no life after the grave, and I ask you, what is there in my religion, in my belief, in my philosophy, in all of my Christian work in life that will hinder or prohibit me from occupying that wonderful place of no hereafter, in six feet of earth alongside of the other man? Then if I should find something good in the philosophy, something that is elevating, uplifting, stimulating, that makes men and women better, is it not the best proposition after all? And there isn't anything on the other side of the question that is held out that deprives any man of his berth in that two by six resting place, so that I prefer the religious side of the question.

Mr. Herbert Spencer, a great writer and educator, has given us a partial definition of death, doubtless from the standpoint of the physical side of life. He says that death is the falling out of correspondence with physical environment. Now, how true that is when you stop to think of it! If you destroy the sight, you are dead that much to the world; all of the beauty that you are surrounded with you cannot see. So if you destroy the hearing, you are further dead to the world because the sounds that are around you, you cannot hear. It would not make any difference how beautiful an anthem they would sing to-night or how nicely it would be executed, you would be dead to it; and if you destroy the sense of taste, you would be dead to that which was palatable; and if you would destroy the sense of touch, you would be dead to the sense of feeling, and so we might go on enumerating these various features until after awhile we find that this physical body has fallen out of correspondence with the physical environment, consequently we are dead—dead.

Now, accepting that to be true, it would answer just as well in a spiritual sense. To fall out of correspondent with spiritual environment we would be spiritually dead; but here is the point—shall that individual that once fell put of correspondence with physical environment, not correspond again? Is it an impossibility to get back into correspondence again? That is the thought. Is it impossible? I would not think so, and in this history that we have here and the revealed word of God that comes to us, we find that another man Adam—lost his lofty estate in the Garden of Eden when he died spiritually, and was expelled from the presence of God; and later, he died physically. There was sent from the eternal courts of glory one who was a part of the God-head who came down here to earth, took upon him a body of flesh, passed through the trying scenes and vicissitudes of life as you and I do and finally met death; fell out of correspondence with physical environment; was placed in the tomb, but what was the result later? Brought back to life again. And there we have the great hope that has stimulated the human family all along the pathway of life from that time until the present.

I know that as far as the history here is concerned, its credibility is attacked. That is not a question for discussion here to-night as to the credibility of the witnesses that have testified of Christ's resurrection. That would be a question with ourselves, to accept the word of Jesus Christ and the apostles and the historians as they have left their record behind. We have here a solution in demonstration of a resurrection from the grave, a coming back to life again. Here the Apostle Paul seemed to catch the idea, and I will read it: "But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? And with what body do they come? Thou fool! That which thou sowest is not quickened except it die; and that which thou sowest thou sowest not that body which shall be, but bear grain; it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain; but God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body. All flesh is not the same flesh; but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beast, another of fishes and another of birds. There are also celestial bodies and bodies terrestrial, etc. This in a brief way shows the proposition to us.

Now again we might be asked, How are the dead raised from the dead? The Apostle refers to the vegetable condition; he calls attention to the fact that the body must pass through a state of dissolution before it can spring into life again and he says it may bring forth the wheat or of something else but that everything will bear after its own kind, so that when you plant a grain of wheat in the ground, it will not remain the grain itself that you put there—the old hull will decay and pass off, but the very elements that lie there are taken on again with the life that was in that grain of wheat and it comes back and it brings forth its own kind; and in that analogy and illustration there, we have presented to us the principle of the resurrection of the dead.

Another passage of scripture found in the Philippians letter says that our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself."

It is a continual process of change going on, and it is to be fashioned like unto the glorious body of Jesus Christ and we have called attention to his resurrected body. The Apostle John, speaking of the great question of life says: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be but this we know that when he comes, we shall be like him. In the processes of the gospel development, there is that force at work, there are those principles involved, that in time will bring about this resurrection from the dead and mankind will be restored to life again. That is the hope that is held out here in the Scriptures; it was the hope of the Psalmist David who said, "As for me, I shall be satisfied when I awake in his likeness," referring to his blessed Lord and Savior.

Then the question to-night is this: we believe that from the proposition that is before us that there is a hereafter; that death does not end all; that there is a resurrection from the grave; that all of the evidences in life, in nature, in the various kingdoms that we are surrounded with, deducting from the analogies that confront us, indicate this resurrection of the dead and confirm us with a strong hope, that like the one mentioned who has passed to the other side, that like him, when we die, it will be but entering through a triumphal arch by which we pass into the fair fields of immortality, and that is what we value, and hope for as individuals.

So that our effort to-night is that notwithstanding we may have to suffer the pangs of death, we may have to be separated from loved ones, we may have to be placed in old Mother Earth and become dissolved and assimilated with the dust of the earth yet through the matchless powers of Jesus Christ, the son of God, we shall be brought back from that condition or element, that this body shall be restored to us again, and this spirit which has inhabited it shall again be placed within the body and it shall dwell upon this earth in its celestialized state as God has provided and outlined to us through his prophets and representatives as recorded in the scriptures.

What can be the purpose in this divine philosophy of the resurrection of the dead? I look out upon humanity to-day and I see the conditions that confront them. I find that this world with its teeming millions is in a state of death all the time, notwithstanding the life that we see. It is one continual day and night and round of death, and you and I believe that the time will come sooner or later when we shall have to lay down our mortal bodies just the same as those who have passed on before, but that is not the worst feature. I ask you to look at the mal-formations that are in the world to-day. Did God create them that way, do you think? Look at the physical wrecks that we have at the present time. Did God purpose and create them that way? Look at the abnormalities in the human family, where you will find a little Tom Thumb 24 inches high on exhibition, and standing alongside of him you will find a giant seven or eight feet high. Here you have the contrast. Did God create them that way? A great corpulent person who will weigh four or five hundred pounds, will stand on exhibition and right alongside of him on exhibition is the living skeleton that weighs less than a hundred pounds. Did God create them that way? Why no. I would not like to take that position; because we are told away back there in the beginning that God created man in his own image and when he looked upon the workmanship of his hands he pronounced it very good, and we have reason to say it is. Every intelligent believer in God's word believes that the great Creator, who brought us into existence, when he created back yonder in the Garden of Eden, that he created in a perfect physical state. I don't know what the perfect height or weight may be—we could say six feet and one hundred eighty pounds—whether that was the figure or not, but this is a thought worthy of some consideration, that if God then created in a perfect condition back there physically, how is it we find these abnormalities to-day. How is it we find the person born without ears or eyes sometimes, without the lower limbs; how is this? You say, because of an estrangement from God and a departure from the commandment of the Eternal One that was given back there in the Garden of Eden. Alright; you come right on down here today and if there is anyone that we are ready to love, it is a mother and father; it is those parents that have given us life and brought us into this world, and yet as the years go by and they are growing older each day, as the gray locks come upon their heads or wrinkles in their faces, as they are viewed from that condition of death and decay, there in that decrepit state, did God create them that way? No. What is our hope? That as you look there at those loved ones that the resurrection of the dead is to meet this human necessity and to weed out the abnormalities of the human being and to restore him back to the perfect physical condition as he was when God created him.

That is the purpose of the resurrection—not just simply to arise from the dead and bring back the diseased body, but it is a restoration of the former Edenic conditions. To redeem that which is lost—or as Paul says—"to wit, the redemption of our body.

THE ROUND TABLE.

The "Round Table" department of Nov. 13 contains the question "Where is Ephraim's posterity?" which has been of considerable interest to me. The answers do not quite satisfy me—seem even a little evasive, especially on the ground that the Book of Mormon is held to be "the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim." Ezek. 37:19. By reading the Book of Mormon one must almost concede it is in the hand of Manasseh. I would like to have more light on that subject.

By referring to the answer of Nov. 13th it will be found that scriptural references are given covering three main points, viz., 1st. That whoever of Israel should forsake God for idolatry should be driven from their land into the kingdoms of the earth. 2nd. That Ephraim turned to idolatry. 3d. That Ephraim was scattered among the nations, and was mixed among the people.

The Book of Mormon states that Lehi who was the head of the colony which settled America was a descendant of Manasseh, the son of Joseph from which it is apparent that the Book of Mormon was written by the posterity of Manasseh. Ezekiel speaking of the book, which he calls "The stick of Joseph," at the time when it is to assist in the gathering of Israel, says it "is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows." "Ezek. 37:19.

The whole of Israel has been corrupted as the prophecies said, but the Lord declared that when he commenced the work of gathering Israel in the last days that Ephraim would be his firstborn.

Jer. 31:7-10. If the Book of Mormon, which is held to be the stick of Joseph, (or more specifically Ephraim,) was to have part in the conversion and gathering of Israel it is evident it must first come into the hand of Ephraim—the Lord's firstborn, and later be used also by "the tribes of Israel his fellows," in that work. Since Ephraim mixed himself among the people, and followeth after the east wind," (going westward) the claim of many both within and without the church that Ephraim may be found today among the nations of northwest Europe, and North America is not without scriptural support. Doctrine and Covenants 64:7; 108:6; and 84:3 seem to favor this view. We understand that Joseph Smith was designated as being of the lineage of Ephraim, as also others in the church, and at present the patriarchal blessings indicate that the majority of the church membership are Ephraimite. This being true the Book of Mormon today is in the hand of Ephraim, though it was written by Manasseh.

In Doctrine and Covenants 86:1 we read: "Hot drinks are not for the body or belly." As regards tea and coffee, should they be considered as injurious from the temperature, or from the ingredients of the leaf and berry?

We believe that the warning against "hot drinks" was due to the injurious effects of some of the ingredients of the products from which the hot drinks are made, including those placed there by nature, and those placed there by "conspiring men" in the form of adulterations. The warning is not alone against tea and coffee but includes other beverages coming under the head of "Hot drinks." It would seem unreasonable to hold, as some do, that the Lord should need to warn men against drinking things too hot.

How about the antithesis of hot drinks, the use of ice water and the soda fountain drinks, ice cream, etc?

There is little doubt that these are deleterious ingredients in some of the hundreds of drinks sold at soda fountains, and the warning of the Word of Wisdom may well apply to them. It was reported some time ago that some of the drinks which had been sold contained cocaine, a most poisonous drug. As to ice water and ice cream, each person must judge of the effects upon himself of taking things at ice temperature. Thanks to the pure food laws ice cream is more likely to be pure than formerly.

HOME REMEDIES FOR CHILDREN'S AILMENTS.

BY HORTENSE SELLOM CRAMER.

Note.—Children have many little ailments which can be corrected by home remedies instead of sending for a physician as I have known some people to do. When a child shows symptoms of real illness, it is necessary to send for a physician in order to comply with the laws of health. In case of a contagious disease the mother cannot tell what it is, a physician usually can though mistakes have sometimes been made—as measles is declared to be scarlet fever. I had that experience. However, there are the children of our neighbor's to protect, and the greatest precaution is necessary.

COUGHS AND COLDS.

Coughs and colds are among the most common of children's ailments, so I will begin with them. Children take cold, and sometimes we scarcely know how. I would like to observe right here that it takes judgment, common sense and eternal vigilance to care properly for the health of our children. Many people dress their children too heavily, especially in the house in the winter. Indoor clothing should be light and wraps heavy in cold weather. If the day be moderately warm and the children engaged in active play, the wraps should be lighter. I have read that covering a child's body from neck to feet with very heavy wool under-clothing may cause adenoids, and I think it seems reasonable. I know of a case which I think may have been caused that way.

The other night when we were dressed in very thin dresses, we met a family below the Capitol. The father and mother were dressed in summer clothing, also, and behind them came a little fellow of three years, fretting to take off a heavy coat. The most healthy child cannot stand such treatment as that. A cold is almost certain to follow the wearing of unseasonable wraps, to say nothing of the discomfort and unpleasantness which the child experiences. It is good to accustom a child to light clothing for it is so much more easily worn and helps to make him more rugged. The healthier he is the less apt is he to take cold.

Once he takes cold, do not neglect him. He feels wretched and for his comfort needs care; and if he is not better soon he is apt to develop any number of serious diseases. By giving him care I do not mean to send for a doctor immediately. In case of an ordinary cold this is not necessary. Rub the throat and chest with mentholatum or carbolated vaseline, or lard and turpentine or lard and kerosene. A very little turpentine or kerosene should be used as it is apt to blister the tender skin. Envelops in soft flannel afterward. Cut an oblong piece, and sew or pin with safety pins to a longer, narrow piece to go around the throat. Plain vaseline mixed with sugar can be given internally.

If there is a cough which annoys and prevents sleep, dampen a cotton cloth with cold water and pin it under the flannel, on the throat. Be sure that the damp cloth is well covered to prevent taking more cold. I have often known this to relieve a cough when every other means failed.

In the morning wash the throat and chest well with soap and water, then be sure to rub thoroughly with cold water. The child will usually feel better during the middle of the day. It will be better for him to be out part of the time if the weather is pleasant. But commence your treatment early in the evening and continue every night until he is better.

Cold is often accompanied by fever. A good esum of almost hot water will greatly relieve this. Physic is doubtless good in some cases but severe. I never could quite believe in castor oil, though many use it. All patent medicines should be strictly avoided. Cough medicine or cough drops sometimes derange the stomach, so use them sparingly. There is usually a narcotic in them, also.

Toast and tea is not always a good diet for ailing children. Coarse foods and plenty of water is almost as good as medicine. Bran crackers, bran bread, graham mush with milk or butter, or fried, with syrup, are usually enjoyed. A moderate quantity of fruit may also be given. Bananas should be used with caution and the outside scraped off after peeling. They sometimes cause fever. The more clogged the system is the more easily cold will be taken.

CROUP.

Some children never have croup, others do, and have a croupy cough whenever they take the least cold. A child is apt to wake in the middle of the night with real croup startling the parents and rousing the household. He coughs with a very deep hoarse cough and chokes and struggles. Use your remedies for a common cold as quickly as possible. This will often relieve and put him to sleep.

If a child is subject to croup some reliable remedy should be kept in the house, given preferably by a good physician. It is well to be prepared, for there must always be a first time, though as I said, some children never have croup. The old remedy was ipecac and vomiting, which is exceedingly severe. The homopathic remedy was spongia and aconite given alternately. Anything which is given to a child must be given according to the written directions of a physician, or druggist. Be sure to keep medicine out of the way of children. A child I knew climbed up and took her medicine a number of times when her mother did not know it, and died in the night despite the efforts of the physicians.

SORE THROAT.

Many children's diseases begin with a cold, as whooping-cough, measles, or diphtheria or scarlet fever and the throat is very sore. The throat should always be examined if the child has a cold or seems sick. Rubbing the throat as directed above relieves some, but a good gargle must be used. Salt and water is good. Listerine and water to which has been added a few drops of carbolic acid is a very good gargle, indeed. Always keep poisons in another room, on a high shelf, never with other medicines.

Peroxide of hydrogen is a good gargle but ought not to be used oftener than three times a day as it is apt to burn the throat.

A child once told me in a thick heavy voice that his throat was not sore, but upon examination I found it swollen almost shut and dotted plentifully with white spots. I cured many a sore throat of the kind with the remedies at hand. But when the child grew older and had the quinsy, I did not try to cure that. He could not swallow medicine, and we found that osteopathic treatments were most effective, relieving in a few days.

What I have given are a few hints only, which perhaps you all know. But the season for children's ailments is coming on and it is just as well to be reminded. When I speak of children I do not mean infants, although most rules will apply to them when they are ailing and not really ill. Denver Colo.

PASTORALS.

To the saints of the Utah District:—

The Presiding Bishop has laid upon me the responsibility of looking after the finances of the Utah District. My address is C. A. Smurthwaite, 751, First Ave., Salt Lake City, Utah. It will be a pleasure for me to hear from each and every member of the church in this district with consecrations, tithings, offerings, etc. We don't want you to wait until you have "saved" a good sized amount before you send anything. It is much preferable for everybody to send in what they can spare from week to week, or at any rate from month to month. Don't think because your donation is small it will be less thankfully received or that it is not worth sending. It is not the amount we give but the spirit of the giving which is the important thing; and a little given promptly and often will do more real service than larger amounts at long intervals.

We have two chief financial necessities in this district. (1) Caring for the families of our missionaries. (2) Paying off the debt on the Salt Lake City church building recently acquired. Surely supporting the missionary force is the most important demand upon our financial system. If we had no missionaries we would not long have a church. If we had never had missionaries we would not now have a church. So that the very existence of the church as an institution depends upon the support of the missionaries and their families. If an individual may be said to be worse than an infidel who fails to provide for his family, can it not be said with equal truth that the church which does not provide for its missionary families is alike infidel? Let not this charge be laid at our door. Therefore, let us rally to the support of our brethren of the missionary force and see to it that their families are suitably provided for.

The debt against the newly acquired church building at Salt Lake City is a part of the general indebtedness of the church, for which the Bishop is responsible. When we are helping to pay off the local Salt Lake City church debt, therefore, we are helping to lift some of the burden from the Bishop. This church building is not merely a Salt Lake City affair, but it is a building for the district, having a parsonage attached where the general missionary whose objective is this city, together with his family, may reside. It is also the headquarters of the district, and gives us much needed facility in this chief city of the mountains.

We have faith that such financial support is going to be given by the people of the Utah District that it will not be necessary any longer to call upon the Bishop for anything. We ought to be self sustaining, if nothing more. Salt Lake City is prospering, and if we all work together in honor preferring one another there is no reason why we should not receive heavenly blessings individually and collectively.

I have appointed two assistant agents, to wit: Elder J. C. Christensen and Elder John E. Vanderwood. Their receipts will be equally as valid as my own for any moneys given them for my account.

Ever praying for the welfare of the honest in heart everywhere. I am,

Sincerely yours,
C. A. Smurthwaite,
Bishop's Agent for Utah.

To the saints of Northern California. Greeting:—

The time for closing books and making annual report is near at hand. Have you done your part? If so, all is well, but if you have not, how will it be then? Can you expect the same divine favor? This is a month for each one to decide for himself. One thing is clear, "If any man shall take of the abundance which I have made and impart not his portion, according to the law of my gospel unto the poor, and needy, he shall with the wicked, lift up his eyes in hell, being in torment." D. and C. 101:2, latter part. Of course the "poor and needy" are to be cared for by those in charge of the finances of the church,—the bishopric; and the Lord says: "They shall give account in the day of judgment for their conduct." Let us not forget the tenth is the Lord's. Thanking all who have done their part and asking all others to consider what their duty is to be in favor with the Lord, I am yours in hope,

Chas. A. Paxin,
Bishop Northern California.

San Francisco, Nov. 20.

To the saints of the Independence Stake:—

The Independence Stake Bishopric gave notice in ENSIGN October 26, 1911, that all applications for help should come through the branch president; since such applicants held membership, we again repeat this as this rule will from now on be adhered to.

The membership is so large that we cannot know all those who have membership in the branches making up the 5,500 total, and it is necessary that this office should receive an authentic appeal for the paying out of the church funds. Do not forget this notice as it may cause unnecessary delay in doing our business.

AUSTRALIAN TRACT.

We have received copies of a pamphlet tract issued by the Standard Publishing House, 623 Darling St., Rozelle, N. S. W., entitled "The Many Gods of Mormonism versus The One True God," The doctrines of the Utah Church and the Reorganized Church touching the Godhead are contrasted, the standard books and history of each church being the basis of the discussion. Copies may be obtained from the publishers for eight cents each, 13 for 75 cents.

WE HAVE OXFORD BIBLES, TOO.

Yes, we have the celebrated Oxford Bibles, none better in the world. That is saying a good deal, but it can be backed up. These Bibles are published by the American branch of the Oxford University Press.

We have lately put in the Oxfords in addition to our line of Bagster and Cambridge Bibles, which are also of the highest class of Bibles. Send for list. These make nice Christmas presents.

DIED.

ROY.—At Lamoni, Iowa, October 31, 1913, Sr. Mary J. Roy, aged 71 years, 10 months and 12 days. She was born in Coles County Ill., was baptized in 1894 by Bro. Isaac Hogaboam in Caster Co. Neb. Later moved to Dow City Iowa, being blind and having no kindred to care for her she was received into the Saints' Home at Lamoni in 1907. She endured her affliction and maintained her hope in the Lord. Service in charge of John Smith, sermon by H. A. Stebbins.

FISHER.—Bro. Lyman Fisher, widely known throughout the East, lately from Lamoni, followed his wife who passed on about a year before. Bro. Fisher is probably more widely known as the father of Brn. E. H. Fisher and Bishop Myron C. Fisher who own and operate two business colleges at Roxbury and Somerville Mass. The funeral was held at the home of his sister Mrs. Eliza C. Badham this city Oct. 20th his other sister Mrs. A. A. Eggleston was also present. The sermon was by Bro. V. M. Goodrich. A goodly number were in attendance and the spirit of peace and brotherly love seemed to predominate to the extent of filling and pervading the entire assembly.

CHAPPELL.—Sr. Harriet Rebecca Chappell, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ira Gifford 1143 Normandie Ave. Oct. 23, She was baptized in England in 1857 by Eld. Win. Hart, came to Utah with her father's family and later to San Francisco. She had not actively associated with the Reorganized Church, though it is evident that her membership lay with this church. She exhibited the characteristics of the true Latter Day Saint in her severe and protracted sickness. Funeral sermon by V. M. Goodrich assisted by R. T. Cooper.

HOLSORTH.—Mabel Clair, daughter of William and Emma Holsworth was born August 6, 1879. United with the church Feb. 27, 1898. Died at her home in Pittsburg, Kas., Nov. 1913, of dropsy. She taught for sixteen years in the public schools of Webb City and Pittsburg, and attained the principality of the Lincoln School and the last year as Assistant City Superintendent. She was laid beside her father in the Waco Cemetery, who died twelve years ago, the funeral being in charge of J. Arthur Davis and J. T. Riley. She is survived by in other, three sisters and two brothers.

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS

HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means new members or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, just as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to and tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.

EDITORIAL

THANKSGIVING ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH, DELIVERED AT INDEPENDENCE, MO., NOV. 27, 1913.

REPORTED BY MRS. A. MORGAN.

Note.—It is not often of late that Pres. Smith is permitted to speak in public because of his advanced years, but the weather being fair he was permitted to meet with the saints in their Thanksgiving service and make the following address. The saints abroad will no doubt appreciate the privilege of reading it as those of Independence enjoyed hearing it.—Editor.

This morning, as on a morning a year ago, as a citizen of the great Republic, I meet with a representative body of citizens of that Republic, to pay heed to the notice given by the supreme magistrate of the government that the people should gather together upon this day and offer thanks to him whom we recognize as the Giver of all that is good, the Ruler of the universe, seen and unseen, the one from whom all the blessings that characterize human existence come, and to give these thanks from hearts that have been taught by the events of human life in which they have been active participants and by serious reflection to offer these thanks for the benefits which have been received because of that which would come to them of knowledge of these events, and the consideration which they have given to the things of which they have been cognizant.

As I stand this morning with you to represent a portion of the citizens of this Republic, my thoughts are carried back in the history of the nation, and while I may have, with others, extolled the magnitude of the service which early settlers upon the eastern shores rendered to humanity, I confess this morning with a small degree of humiliating shame, that while, in a sense, these men banded better than they knew, they seemed for awhile to have forgotten the chief reason why they left the shores of England because they were proscribed; left the shores of Holland that they might establish homes where they could worship God without fear and without molestation; judging from the history of these early settlers from the time that the first national representative thanksgiving dinner was eaten on the shores of Massachusetts, until, by sheer force of the example of a few men and the heroic attitude which they adopted against the persecution or the causes which led to it, there came a realizing sense of what was due mankind in the declaration of the principles mapped out in the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

I do not know what may be the thoughts of some who have read the history, but I confess, so far as I am concerned, that I read in the history from the settlement of the Huguenots from France and the Catholics from England and from Spain, who settled the southeastern shore, all along to the frozen regions of Maine, there was a succession of persecution for religion's sake that should have shamed those religionists who became bigots rather than the advocates of a freedom to worship God. When I reflect that the Spanish settlement fought against the French, and the French against the Spanish, exterminating settlement after settlement, and follow them north through Florida, through Virginia and up along the coast to New Jersey and Massachusetts and Connecticut, I am struck with astonishment to think that men should have so soon forgotten why they sought a western clime and a land where they might be free.

Authorized and empowered by kingly authority, men came to this country, and feeling themselves secure, they enacted scenes of persecution that in looking at them as we do from our advanced position, we cannot but regard as horrible atrocities, committed not for the sake of freedom, but for the sake of gratifying individual hate and the spirit of persecution. When I think that at one time Roger Williams was compelled to seek safety in flight from the then judicial authority of the state, held by religionists, and seek an asylum among the Indians in the Providence plantations because he proposed to take from the religious element the reins of government and have them settled with the people who alone should reign supreme in this land,—when I think of that, and then about the persecution that ensued that sent other men than himself for years, for years! as wanderers, seeking safety from their persecutors,—and remember that even at staid Salem at one time nineteen persons were hung for their belief and a hundred and thirty were confined in prison for witchcraft, shame on such who had so soon forgotten. But before the dawn of the year that brought men to their senses there were enacted scenes of cruelty so horrid and so heart-rending that we who read them now are not only astonished but are grieved in our hearts that men should so soon have forgotten the reasons why they left their native lands and wandered off to the wilderness.

I realize what rejoicing there was on that Thanksgiving Day, when the small number that came over in the Mayflower gathered together for the purpose of enjoying the fruits of the land which was new to them, and to hear their hymns of rejoicing must have been inspiring indeed, when the grand old woods did resound with the tones of religious sentiment and thanksgiving to God. All the way through, from that small band until now, when nearly a hundred million of men are occupying the territory from east to west, from north to south, and that we, as a small body, representative in its character, and situated somewhere about the geographical center of the United States, that great Republic, it stands unique in the world's governments as the representative system of government, having as its base the right of the people to govern themselves, or as that matchless orator said, "A government of the people, by the people and for the people." I have personally imbibed something of the spirit that must have been felt by Roger Williams when he chose to absent himself from those who would persecute him and take refuge among the red men because he saw that they who ruled as religionists were very apt, in their excessive zeal, to serve the devil in persecuting men rather than in serving God, in saving them from the evils to which they were subject.

Hence, this morning, I may say safely that of all the people who may gather together this day anywhere in these United States of America, under the benign rule of the Republican institutions, under which the government has flourished, no people have greater reason to thank God and sing songs of rejoicing and meet together in association around the table upon which may be spread something of the good of the land, than have these people who have this morning assembled here in this geographical center of the great Republic; and as one of them, on their behalf, I feel to offer their thanks to God for many things.

While we may recognize, to a certain extent, the evils to which society has been and is now subjected, we may also recognize the wonderful things that have come from the Master unto all the people, and so far from the world growing worse, according to our understanding, even about the things that we are surrounded with, the world is growing better. I know that some will challenge this statement of mine, but I call your attention to one thing that certainly will be an argument attestatory in behalf of the statement which I have made.

I have lived to see the country so far released from the bonds of drunkenness that men who are used to the intoxicating cup are not put into positions of trust and confidence like they used to be. I have lived to see the time come when it is becoming a disgrace for men of brain, men of honest, upright intentions in the government to suffer themselves to take into their systems that which steals away their good intentions and destroys the finest faculties of their heart and brain. If nothing else than that, the fact that in the state of Missouri, and in all the states surrounding us, there has been at work a characteristic movement to save mankind from the cruelties, and society from the disabilities incident to the habit of drink, and a better condition of things in this respect has largely ensued.

I know what I speak about, because I have from my fifteenth year to the present time, been a continued and persistent advocate of the temperance that should rule among men. I have taken the ground from the first that the only and sure and sufficient and efficient way to accomplish the complete reduction of this evil was by teaching the people until there should come a time that there should no longer be a demand for the existence of the saloon and the selling of intoxicants, and when the demand ceases it is an absolute certainty, according to every line of argument, and every rule of commercial and business activity in this world, that the supply will not be apt to continue if there is no demand. So long as human beings are careless in this respect and suffer the evils to continue in society and to break down the individual forces of men, and will demand the use of intoxicants, so long will the government labor in vain to suppress its creation and its sale.

Again, all over the land from north to south from east to west, we have lived and are living under the beneficent laws of the states under the influence of which there has risen in every valley a school house; in every township public institutions for the education of the people until even in my own life I have witnessed it all the way from the private tutor in a log house—but what little they could give in efficient efforts they rendered assistance by no means like that which we have now,—to the time when even the books which should be used in the schools may be furnished by the public to them who have not the means to pay for them. Is not this a thing sufficient to create in our mind's a sense of thankfulness this day?

When I remember that at the beginning of the war, called the "Civil War", (but if there ever was a war that should be characterized by some other name than that it was that war,—brother against brother; household against household; state against state, county against county, near by and far off; father and son taking different sides under a different status of intelligent advancement and education, and then call it a "civil" war,—it is a misnomer!)—the thought I desired to express was this, that at the opening of the war in one portion of the United States the ratio of illiteracy was seven per cent; and in another it was seventy per cent of the population. That of those who took the oath, at the close of the war at Yorktown Virginia, out of nine hundred that took the oath upon one day six hundred of them made their marks instead of signing their names, showing they were not able to read or write,—they showed the result of a failure, that they had not had the facilities of education which they should have had, and for which they would have been grateful. I am not speaking this to find fault with the locality where this strange occurrence took place, but I simply state it as one of the reasons why we, located as we are at the center, can now look North and see all the way across the broad stretch of the country along the northern lakes, from the extreme west to the extreme east, a row of school houses dotting the land everywhere, and intelligent men taking up the service of their fellows in securing the best facilities for the accomplishment of education, and we may turn to the south and see over the extreme width from ocean to ocean where the same thing is going on until we may realize faithfully and surely that the people are to be educated until there should be a complete competence everywhere, that men in any locality may be entrusted to govern themselves and even now there is hesitancy upon the part of the government to bestow the right of self government upon localities, may they be near or far, upon the statement of intelligent men who are acquainted

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Acting on a suggestion of Dr. Frank Criley the city of Independence has purchased with the help of some of its leading citizens, a pulmotor. It is a machine to be used for the purpose of resuscitating persons who have been drowned or overcome by gas. It is well known that many persons supposedly dead from the causes mentioned have been restored to life by establishing for a time artificial breathing, and the city is now prepared to meet emergencies along this line and save many, who would otherwise be lost to this world.

The concert at the church on Thanksgiving evening under the direction of Sr. Audonita Anderson was considered a grand success, and formed a fitting close to a day of thanksgiving and praise to God. The church was well filled even to standing room. No admission was charged in accordance with the rule of the church that all gatherings shall be free to all, but a collection was taken amounting to $48.09 which will be applied to the purchase of music for the use of the choir.

An unusual feature of the Sunday morning service was the occupation of the hour by the priest, teacher and deacon of the branch, the time being divided among them. Bro. Abraham Morgan spoke first of the work of the priests, his talk being interesting and instructive and tending to bring the membership into closer touch with the officers and establish a unity of understanding and effort. Bro. W. H. Callin followed, speaking on the work of the teachers, and emphasizing the thought that the teacher's work was a work of love and of helpfulness, though often considered otherwise by some of the members. The deacon's work was presented by Bro. J. G. Jenkinson who spoke of the matter of decorum in the church, the care of the sick and afflicted, and the raising of finances for the needs of the local church. Each of these talks was opportune and appropriate, and gave the saints a better understanding of the attitude of the officers and the difficulties they have to meet in performing their duties, thus enabling the saints to co-operate more freely with them in their work. We believe the plan of giving the officers of the Aaronic priesthood frequent place upon the rostrum as speakers could be followed with profit to the church everywhere.

The afternoon prayer service in charge of Bro. I. N. White and W. H. Garrett was equal to the average in interest and activity. Elder Gomer Wells was the evening speaker, his sermon being well spoken of.

Monday evening the monthly business meeting was held and in addition to routine business it was resolved that all entertainments given for gain in the dining hall pay 40 per cent of net proceeds to the support of branch. Bills for the winter's supply of coal, for a new furnace, and insurance, had created a deficit in the branch funds of over $500, and further steps in addition to the amount raised last Sunday were ordered taken to raise the amount and preserve the credit of the branch. Following some discussion of the financial question appeals were made and $229 were raised on the indebtedness.

Responsibility in maintaining the work with temporal means rests upon all the members equally in proportion to their ability, but for various reasons many shirk this responsibility and thus throw the burden upon the few who are willing to sacrifice and who pay more than their share often when they are unable to do so in justice to themselves and their families. The indifferent ones should awake to their responsibilities along this line, or be awakened if possible, for by coming to the help of the work it is this way they will have a better appreciation of the gospel and a deeper interest in its work.

A resolution was introduced providing for the dedication of the church but because of the lateness of the hour it was tabled.

Bro. Zahnd reports that four were baptized last week from the Englewood Mission. Prospects there are encouraging.

The saints upon "Enoch Hill," (The Order of Enoch addition) are making efforts looking toward the erection of a mission house and the establishment of a mission in their quarter of the city. There is room for many of these.

The Laurel Club will hold its annual bazaar at the dining hall on Thursday and Friday. Announcement was made that there would be a good place to buy Christmas presents. Articles of various kinds will be for sale, with candies, etc. Supper will also be served.

On Thursday afternoon of this week a local society of the National Child Conservation League will be organized at the stone church by Mrs. Eleanor Wetz who lectured there on November 13 of which mention was made in the Woman's Auxiliary Department. The name indicates the line of work the society will follow.

An excellent Religio convention is reported at Holden on last Saturday and Sunday, the attendance being quite large. The Independence orchestra attended in a body furnishing music for the convention, and on Saturday evening giving a concert. Bro. Will Bushnell presided. One of the interesting features was the report of Bro. Vernon Lee in behalf of the Good Literature Committee showing the distribution of 4,600 pieces of literature, two tract cases installed, and the ENSIGN sent to two non-members for a year. Delegates were elected to the general convention, and the next convention appointed at Kansas City Central Church.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

Sunday school had an attendance of 234, collection $4.42. At the 11 o'clock hour Bro H. W. Gould was the speaker, the foundation for his remarks was "Charity," taken from the 13th chapter of 1st Corinthians, and all were edified by his talk, it being plainly shown that charity is and must be the watchword for all saints. Brotherly love seemed to occupy the minds of the speakers throughout the day.

At the afternoon prayer service the gifts were manifested the Spirit manifesting a union of love as prevailing. At 7:30 p. m. Bro. M. J. Siegfried was the speaker, using as a text 1 Peter 3:10. It was a very forceful argument from start to finish and some of his talk was in regard to fault finding.

On Thanksgiving Day Bro. W. M. Aylor was the speaker and he surely gave his hearers some good and useful information; he introduced his subject by praising all that had any part in the preparation of the feast. He then gave a history of the origin of the day, when the people assembled for the purpose of giving thanks, after this service the Religio, under the presidency of Bro. J. L. Dickerson, gave an interesting and entertaining program. The day was spent in rejoicing and praise, to think we were so blessed. About three hundred ate at the tables without cost or price, and after the feast baskets full were gathered and given to those not able to furnish a feast for themselves, no cost to any.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., FIRST BRANCH.

Our district officers having appointed a two days meeting for our branch on the 23rd and 24th of this month, Bro. J. S. Roth and T. H. Hindricks, were sent to conduct it.

Sunday morning and evening the 23rd, Bro. Roth was the speaker, his subjects being "The resurrection" and "Judgment," the latter being the evening theme, and illustrated by chart. Both sermons were very interesting.

Roy R. Fifer preached in the morning at the Mission and J. O. Warden at night. Bro. Roth preached again on Monday night. There was a fine attendance at all the meetings on these two days.

The Thanksgiving dinner at the church was a success in every particular. The arrangements were convenient, the food abundant, and of excellent quality, there was a host of diners and the sisters will realize a nice sum as the result of their labors, which were not light we assure you. Supper was also served to all who came. Ice cream and cake on the side. Those who worked so faithfully and unceasingly for this event, are to be congratulated upon its success. The funds resulting will be put to good use.

On Sunday morning the 30th Bro. Roy Fifer spoke on "The efficacy of prayer," and Bro. W. W. Scott in the evening took for his theme "Jesus Christ." Both were good talks. Our pastor had to be away on both Sundays, the first at Atchison, the second, holding a two-day meeting at Cameron.

Our Sunday school on the 23rd was treated to a nice talk by Sr. D. H. Blair General Superintendent of the Normal Department. Sr. Blair is another of "our own home folks," and we enjoy the visits of such very much indeed. Gladys Christiansen sang a beautiful solo.

On the 30th our membership committee had worked to break the record in attendance, but the result demonstrated the truthfulness of the old adage, that "The best laid plans o' mice and men, gang aft agley." It was a rainy morning and we came near breaking the record the wrong way. However we had a most enjoyable session, the entertaining features of which were a sweet little song by little Juanita Nixon, a reading by Edna Scott, and a piano duet by the Christian sen sisters.

Our religio is just filled with the spirit of activity. On the 21st a remarkably good prayer service was held. In this the young people set their elders a fine example in the way of improving the time. We do not believe a moment was lost.

Last Friday night after 1:30 period an interesting program was given. The first number was the regular monthly issue of the "Bugle," edited by Bertha Lewis. This was followed by a debate on the question—Resolved that Christopher Columbus deserved more honor than George Washington. The affirmative was taken by W. W. Scott and Roy Fifer. The negative by B. J. Scott and Paul Pugsley. Each side did well but the judges decided two to one in favor of the negative. We think it was Bro. B. J.'s oratory that won the day.

Next Sunday morning Apostle John W. Rushton will commence a series of meetings here lasting over the next Sunday. Posters showing a cut of Bro. Rushton and advertising the meetings have been printed and will be distributed over the city. We hope for good results.

We are sorry to learn that we are to lose the family of Bro. Daniel Lewis from our number. They will remove to Kansas City during the coming week.

Bro. Austin Dobson came from Graceland College to spend Thanksgiving at home.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

Bro. Charles Harp, paying us a flying visit delivered our customary evening oration Sunday Nov. 16th which was greatly pleasing to all who heard him.

Our Sunday school was delighted at receiving a visit from Bro. S. H. Simmons of Far West on Nov. 23rd and greatly appreciate the sacrifice he made in order to be with us. Bro. Simmons also occupied our pulpit for the morning hour.

For the usual two day meetings we had the pleasure of having with us, Bro. C. D. Dice and C. Householder of Stewartville, Saturday and Sunday Nov. 29th and 30th. We always love to have God's servants with us. They generally leave with us some thoughts for good.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Bro. Billinsky, one of our ex-superintendents gave a nice little talk to the Sunday school Nov. 23rd, his theme being, "Striving for happiness;" after which he was presented with a normal diploma by our Normal Superintendent Bro. G. S. Trowbridge.

In the morning our pastor Bro. T. J. Elliott was the speaker, reading from Doctrine and Covenants 85:9,12. Thoughts gleaned were—System means success to the church. Every organization should be systematically organized to meet with success.

Bro. Rhodes was the evening speaker reading from Psalms 19 and Acts 16:30. Referring to Paul, and Silas and the jailor, we should seek to know what to do to be saved.

Our pastor again occupied the morning of Nov. 30th, his subject being "Thanksgiving." His reading impressed us with the thought that all things praise God. Among thoughts expressed was, we should thank God daily for our blessings. He recommended that we come fasting next Sunday morning and have a real Thanksgiving prayer service.

Our pen fails us when we try to write of the uplifting and soul inspiring influence we felt when listening to the beautifully rendered Cantata Daniel—the evening of Nov. 30th. Our choir leader Bro. E. C. Bell, organist Sr. Walcott and every individual member of the choir deserve credit for their successful effort. The auditorium and gallery were filled with a most appreciative audience and at the close such commendatory remarks as, beautiful! grand! splendid! were heard, many expressing a desire to have it repeated in the near future.

It seems the busy season has started. Meetings and practices for most every night. District conference convenes in St. Louis Dec. 13 and 14. Practices each Thursday night between now and then for the district choir.

A social for the benefit of the Children's Home will be held Dec. 10th at the home of Bro. and Sr. G. S. Trowbridge. Our Sunday school has started rehearsals for Christmas. The result of our Mite Society supper and bazaar will be reported in our next.

The Religio program next Friday evening will be in charge of the Sunday school and a debate is being arranged which no doubt will be good.

We are very sorry that Sr. Alice Molyneux has been on the sick list and we trust God's blessings will attend her.

We regret that Sr. H. C. Burgess had to leave us and we see she will soon be fully restored to health. Come and meet us often Sr. Bertha.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

The Oakland Sunday school was encouraged and edified by a visit from the district superintendent, Sr. M. A. Saxe. Such visitations are of real worth to the cause. She was accompanied by her stalwart husband on invitation, who preached the morning sermon in his usual suave kind manner. The evening sermon, full of good thoughts was by Bro. E. Ingham.

We spent Sunday last with the Stockton Branch where Bro. H. J. Davison has been laboring for about a year, the effect of which is visible in the prosperous condition of the work. Bro. Davison is an "every department man" in the gospel work, equally at home in Sunday school, Religio, normal and general branch work. His health is not the best. We spoke morning and evening, attending their prosperous normal class at 7 o'clock and Sunday school at 10:45 in all of which we felt the divine approval. We roomed and ate with Bro. Davison who did all he could to make us comfortable even offering to share with us his dish of m-m-moons.

Elder H. D. Simpson was the morning speaker in the city branch; in the evening the pastor, Bro. J. A. Saxe, led the flock from the cream of the word.

Bro. S. M. Reiste continues his labors in Sacramento with good success. He baptized Bro. and Sr. Hart recently, a promising couple. Bro. J. D. Stead is with the Ceres Branch and Bro. Deuel and Carly are at Dinuba with their tent but will store it soon for a season during the winter.

A thanksgiving service was held in the Oakland church of an hour of enjoyable service of song and prayer and testimony.

CORRESPONDENCE

DEER LODGE, MONT. Nov. 17.

Elder Ensign.—In reading the Los Angeles item of my niece, Sr. Addie McWhorton's child, being healed. I felt to rejoice very much with her.

I have lost her address, and would like to hear from her, or will some of the others of the branch inform her to write to Aunt Mary Carlson.

There is a small branch here, and have the gospel preached in the same Spirit, as we have witnessed in other places. Our thoughts go back to the saints in the Armstrong Branch, the faithful ones of Kansas City, Kans. Praying for the welfare of Zion.

Sr. C. J. Carlson.

P. O. Box 815.

DELOIT, Iowa, Nov. 14.

Dear Ensign.—Twenty-two years ago today I was ordained an elder under the hands of Bro. H. O. Smith and W. W. Whiting, and the following April the general conference appointed me to labor in the Gallands Grove, Iowa, District and from that time it has been my field of operation. For the past few weeks I have been locating my family in the center stake of Zion, and truly hope our department will be such that we may be worthy to call it our home.

Providence permitting I will do church work in the Gallands Grove District until next general conference. My field address will be Deloit, Iowa, and I trust all members of the district will do what they can to honor the law of tithes and offerings. The branch agents are making commendable efforts to raise their apportionment of the special demands of the church. If you have not contributed to that fund, do so at once.

Very sincerely,
C. J. Hunt.

HIATTVILLE KANS. Nov., 11.

Elder Ensign.—As we are numbered among the isolated saints we renew our subscription, for the ENSIGN is all the preached we have. Once in a while we go down into Spring River District to hear the gospel preached but we are 20 miles from any branch. So we sure appreciate the ENSIGN and enjoy reading the sermons and letters. Hoping with the help of the Lord we may ever live faithful.

Your brother and Sister in Christ
Mr. and Mrs. Jas Broadhead.

The end of learning is to know God, and out of that knowledge to love him and imitate him.—Milton.

WAGONER, Okla., Nov. 8.

Editor Ensign:—I now take time to write a few lines for your columns as it has been some time since I have written. And thought that a few words from Wagoner might strengthen some one who is burdened as myself. I am burdened with the cares of this life and family, and my dear husband needs help to overcome. Dear saints, I ask the prayers of all for him that he may see wherein he stands. I also ask the prayers for myself and children that we may overcome all things which would cause us to do wrong.

Dear saints we as a people are not without sin, as the Savior has said, but we can go on to perfection by keeping the commands of God. Let us all be up and doing. By and by we will behold the Savior coming in the clouds and dear saints who may abide the day of his coming and who may stand when he appeareth; those that have clean hands and a pure heart; those that are walking in the footsteps of Jesus.

Your sister,
Belle Lenan.

POMONA, Calif., Oct. 19.

Editor Ensign:—We are still trying to hold the fort. We had a series of tent meetings here by Elders Roy F. Slye and W. A. Brooner, and had some grand sermons preached. One in particular on "The Book of Mormon" by Bro. Slye was the means of removing a great deal of prejudice. Through this effort we think there will be several come into the church in the future. And hope that God will bless them in their efforts at Long Beach and permit them to return another year with the tent as they made many friends in Pomona while here.

The meetings closed with increasing interest, so that when they return we think they will be able to get a good hearing.

Praying for the advancement of God's work everywhere, and the triumph of Zion, I am your brother,

In gospel bonds,
Frank J. Lacey.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Nov. 6th.

Dear Ensign:—I got this P. O. Order to send you for a renewal of my subscription to the ENSIGN about the time there was some interest being manifest in your columns by some of the saints as to the liquidation of the church indebtedness and intended adding my mite (by way of endorsement) to what had been offered, or suggested, as methods whereby the necessary amount could be raised, but about that time the proposition of the Bishop that the different districts be required to raise their proportion of the amount was made known to us and I held my peace, waiting to know the result and hoping that it might be encouraging, but have heard nothing as yet as to the amount raised.

I will not delay longer, but will forward my renewal subscription as evidence of my appreciation of the valuable service the ENSIGN is giving for the cause of truth and righteousness, and will hope that, when the result of the general collection is known, it will be of sufficient amount to prove that we have faith sufficient to trust the "Author of our being" to amply reward us for whatsoever sacrifice we have made for the cause.

It is certainly a very poor recommend for the faith of this people, if we are to fail to make sufficient sacrifice of our substance, to wipe out this indebtedness. If the Lord cannot return to me through some one or more of the thousands of avenues at his command, the small sacrifice of five or more dollars that I may give for such a worthy cause, He is not the kind of God I worship, and the sooner I demonstrate the fact the better. "Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3:10.

I have seen the folly and regretted the consequences thereof in the past, in failure to be more mindful of, and diligent in keeping my covenant with the Lord. In Moses, Joshua, Caleb, Samuel, Gideon, Elijah, Elisha and many other such characters had been as weak in faith as we apparently are, I fear many of the beautiful lessons we enjoy reading from the Bible would not be ours to enjoy.

May our faith be made manifest by our works to such an extent that the church may soon be placed on an even keel with the world is my prayer for the saints.

In gospel bonds,
W. H. Russell.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 10.

Dear Ensign:—Will you please give space in the "Silent Preacher" for a few lines from the slow preacher through Arkansas, as this is my first time to write to the ENSIGN and my first year in the mission field.

I wish to say to the saints and my many friends, the Lord has wonderfully blessed me in my efforts to present the angel's message to the children of men. I came to Hot Springs two weeks ago, preached a few sermons out in the country, then back to town where I opened up a new place for preaching in North Hot Springs; preached there one week and on Sunday, November 9th, had the privilege of baptizing two noble souls into the kingdom of God. So the good work moves on, and I go south. May the Lord abundantly bless his people is my prayer.

Your brother in gospel bonds,
Walter W. Christensen.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 5.

Editor Ensign:—Conference had an added interest this fall in the dedication of the Detroit church. Also this was the first time the saints of the district have had the privilege of meeting with our mission president, Elder J. F. Curtis. He has won a place in the heart of each one by his very congenial nature and the excellent counsel and admonition he bestowed.

Business sessions were good, business being done fairly rapidly. The one criticism was that the delegates as a whole did not take as active a part as they should in the business; such as making motions, seconding them in order to get the routine matters out of the way. Also in the discussing of questions; this was accounted for evidently because the saints seem to be of one mind on these subjects. We seem to be complying with the Book of Rules better in performing our duty and privileges along the voting line, for nearly all participated in this. This is good, for when we vote for a thing we are certainly interested in seeing that it is done as we desire, and we ought to, and do help.

Another improvement was the appointment of a program committee to outline and publish the program for each day at the reunion which meets in Port Huron, June 19-28. This that all the saints may be able to select the days when the food they need most will be presented.

Bishop's agent, Wm. F. Smith's report showed the receipts as $2,355; disbursements $1,389; balance $966. Reunion committee receipts $942; expense $873; balance $69.

Goldie E. Grant was selected to take the place of the library board member resigning. The board feel they are thus much strengthened.

The reporting proposition was again brought up of necessity because of the failure of ten branches to report. A comical as well as a serious incident came to light when Bro. Grice reported that practically all the priesthood of the district with very few exceptions were agreed on one thing. It was, "We forgot it was time to report." Do you think it is time we tie a red string around our finger? Wait! Good news; they are saying to themselves, it will not happen again.

Preaching done by J. F. Curtis, Daniel Macgregor, O. J. Hawn, Wm. Grice, R. D. Weaver. Meetings were good. That we are still in the process of learning was manifest in some of our social services, where some took up the greater part of the meeting, praying and testifying, making of it a two or three party meeting, when all should have had the time. We are learning though that if we will leave out the superfluous matter and tell the boiled down facts of how we are blessed and assisted along the path, etc., all will be greatly edified; for when we are all working at a thing, we are interested and interest is what always brings results.

Publicity was given to the conference and dedication by all the city papers, the result of endeavor and work ahead of time by the pastor, Bro. A. Allen and others.

The dedicatory service on Sunday, October 26, with the church filled to its capacity, was indeed impressive of its solemn nature. The sermon preached by Elder Curtis was indeed instrumental in bringing a realization of the need and use of such a building. The special singing by the Detroit choir was beautiful. Dedicatory prayer was by Elder Wm. Fligg of Canada; scarce a dry eye was there when the sweet bellowed influence of the blessed Spirit of the Master was felt giving token of the acceptance of the building which the saints had erected at a sacrifice to numbers.

Wm. F. Sage,
For publicity committee.

JOLIET, Ill., Nov.

Dear Ensign:—As we are leaving Joliet today, for our mission field in Kentucky, will send a few lines explaining our whereabouts of the past few months. We arrived home in June, after three years' absence, and only one who has been absent all that time from loved ones, can appreciate our feelings as we neared our little station "Joliet."

How many times during the three years when in foreign lands, we had pictured to ourselves the old home and mother at the door to welcome us, and now that it was so soon to be realized, seemed too good to be true. We found our loved ones at the train to meet us, and we were soon on our way home. All seemed perfectly natural, and as we neared the little corner door to my heart, the door opened, and mother stood before us. My great wish and prayer had been answered, as she was there to welcome us, as she said she would be, when we left. After a nice visit relating to her and others our experiences while with her relatives in Scotland and Australia, we left in a day or two for Chicago to visit Elder Pitt's people. The reception there with loved ones was repeated, and after a few days we returned home again. Soon we were busy holding meetings in different places, and finally left for the reunion in Belvidere. We spent ten happy days with friends at the reunion, and it seemed very pleasant to meet old friends again. After our return home we commenced getting ready for our field of labor and had our baggage ready to be taken to the station, when we noticed mother did not appear to be well. In order to determine the extent of her illness, a doctor was sent for, and we were informed that she might not live forty-eight hours. This indeed was a painful surprise, and we could scarcely realize it, as we had not even surmised she was ill until that time. After waiting for a couple of days, Elder Pitt departed for Indiana, where he was expected, but I remained at home. The following week, mother becoming much worse, Elder Pitt was called home, and after three weeks' illness, during which time, she did not complain of pain, she passed away in her rocking chair, Oct. 10th, at one p. m. surrounded with all her children. She died peacefully, simply falling asleep in Jesus.

We certainly feel that the Lord was kind in permitting us to return home and have a few happy months together, before she was taken. The address was given by Elder Cooper of Plano, and he preached an excellent sermon. It was pronounced by the neighbors and friends attending, the best they had ever heard, and many have called and enquired as to the work, as a result of having heard the sermon. In order to test the willingness of the neighbors and friends to attend, if an opportunity were given, my sister invited nineteen in last Sunday for a farewell sermon, and seventeen came. The other two were not able to attend, and explained the cause of their absence, so we have hopes that in the future, some results may obtain.

Mother was a member of the Reorganized Church for more than forty years, having been baptized by Elder Landers. She had many wonderful visions and dreams, literally fulfilled. At the time she was praying earnestly as to which Church to join, and at the time, she was about to join the Methodist, she having been formerly a Presbyterian. She was given a vision, in which she saw the one who was to baptize her; one whom she had never before seen, and did not know who he was, until he called at the home one afternoon to see father. She at once recognized him as the one who had stood at the water's edge, when the angel spoke and told her she was to be baptized. She recognized the creek where it was to take place also. After envying Elder Landers in, he made himself known to her as an elder who had come recently from California, and told her she was to be baptized. She answered him, that she did not see how he knew, as she had not told anyone. He replied, that he had seen her in vision, and had seen the water where she would be baptized. Mother answered she had seen him also, and he replied, "Thank God, I knew He had shepherd here, or He would not have sent me." So she came in, never having heard a sermon. The latter part of the same vision, she had fulfilled when attending meeting a few weeks later, at Bro. Dancer's, who resided at the Twelve Mile Grove. There in the parlor mother noticed a large portrait on the wall, and instantly recognized it as the man whom she had seen at a table writing, in other words, seemed to be recording names. Mother could not forget the face, so impressed was she, and upon inquiring who it was, Sr. Dancer informed her it was Joseph Smith. Mother had never heard of such an one before, and did not understand the importance of that part of the vision, until it was explained to her. This, with other spiritual manifestations, sustained her hope in the gospel, and made up largely, for the lack of church privileges, denied her, and kept her firm in the faith to the end.

We are about to leave now for our mission, expecting to reach our destination in a few days, and we hope to be able to accomplish some good. We both greatly enjoy our work, and are anxious to get into our field. We have not forgotten our many dear friends in other lands, even though we have not written, and can only say, that we have a warm spot in our hearts for you all. With best wishes to all the ENSIGN readers.

Your sister in the faith,
Rosa Parks Pitt.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. R. Nunamaker, Beeler, Ida.—Several have adopted Bro. Gibb's plan in helping pay off the church debt, and I am sending Bishop E. L. Kelley five dollars the sixth of this month. I would love to send more if possible, but I have been sick for four months, but as soon as I can go to work again I will do better. Wife and I are the only saints here, and we have lived at Kellogg about six years, so we have been neglectful of our church duties, but we are going to do better in the future God helping us. We desire an interest in the prayers of the saints.

John Eulitt, St. Paul, Ind.—I am still a Latter Day Saint trying to do the will of our Master. My wife has been very sick but is much better at this writing, and we give God the greatest praise for his help. We are the only saints in St. Paul. I have been reading the Book of Mormon during the past year and find it a great study. It is much plainer than the Bible on many things.

Mrs. M. J. Spaun, San Antonio, Tex.—After a long time I write that my many friends may hear from me once more, I am partially blind and cannot see the words I write so Bro. Editor please correct mistakes. I am pleasantly situated with my youngest daughter, and if there are any saints here I would be pleased to meet them as none of my children belong to the church. I feel lonesome for the companionship of these who are near to me by the ties of church fellowship. The Lord is still blessing me by his Spirit and gives me the comfort I need. My address is 124 Cy St.

Mrs. Charles E. Smith, Bennett, Neb.—Will some of the dear saints send me some church literature such as heralds, ensigns, etc., I can distribute them among friends. God has seen fit to take our sweet, beautiful, bright baby; Hiram Elmstrom our embrace. It was hard to bear. I became so broken down in body, and my nerves were so shocked again, but under the hands of Bro. Self I have the promise that the dear Lord will carry me through. I am not well yet though I may have many beautiful promises. Pray for me that I may be faithful, and that I may receive a blessing of healing, and that my husband may come into the fold where we can labor together in this blessed work.

A. M. Rife, Anamosa, N. Dak.—We are trying our best to hold up for the faith although we are assailed on every hand, though we have some warm friends among the people, Pray for me that I may grow stronger.

Mrs. Rebecca Fleeharty, Purcell, Mo.—I renew my subscription, for I cannot do without the ENSIGN. It is a great comfort to me. I am not able to go to church often and I love to read the good sermons and letters. I have not been well for some time and ask the saints to pray for me.

George W. Brezsa, 415 S. Tom St., Webb City, Mo.—I belong to the Joplin Branch, and have attended four services today and enjoyed the meetings. I will be glad to receive information from the saints at San Antonio Tex. in regard to carpenter work, as I would like to spend the winter there. I do finishing and cabinet work, and would appreciate any information received. I want to be where I can attend church and Sunday school, for the gospel is worth everything to us.

J. N. Cox, Dalby Springs, Tex.—You may say through the ENSIGN that I have quite a lot of ensigns and heralds to give to any one that wishes them.

Joseph Arber, Topeka, Kansas. Came here by request of branch president on my way to my field, and have preached six sermons, baptized two, and blessed one child, besides getting one subscription for the "Silent Preacher." The ENSIGN is proving a source of great good to its many readers.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

EXPECTING THE MESSIAH.

RALPH E. MOTEJL.

Classic writers of the foremost civilizations, mentioned in their writings a belief in the return of a period of happiness and innocence, from which state or condition they felt sure that mankind had fallen. The "Golden age" as it was termed by these early writers was believed to have begun with the time of Livius Adronicus, in 250 B. C. and ended with the death of Emperor Augustus in 14 A. D. These writers however did not associate the advent of a person or divinity with this age, but during the course of time such influences were brought to bear on the nations as to give them a better understanding.

In 333 B. C. Alexander the Great in making his march through Asiatic countries brought with him the Greek letters, which became the medium of international intercourse. Sometime during 280 A. D. Ptolemy Philadelphus of Egypt requested the Jews of Palestine to send seventy Rabbis down to Alexandria, to translate the Old Testament scriptures into Greek that a copy might be kept in the Alexandrine Library. This work is known as the Septuagint, by the number engaged in its translation. This work gave the nations the teachings of the Hebrew Scriptures and led them to expect a divine person in connection with the golden age. In time this advent became the central thought of the golden age. Vergil about 40 B. C. wrote:

"The last age decreed by the Fates is come, and a new pane of all things doth begin; a Holy Progeny from heaven descends auspicious in his birth, which puts an end to the Iron Age, from which shall rise the Golden Age, most glorious to behold."

The narrative of the fall of man in Genesis gives us the first promise of a Messiah. God said, "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed, it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise [snap at] his heel." (Gen. 3:15). The prediction expressed is general and broad; no restriction is given as to time or place or person for the realization, the hope is dim and distant, but in accordance with the simplicity of the primitive faith. It was reserved for the ages to make known the meaning in a series of gradual revelations. They came and the promise narrowed more and more, and the world received in each instance added details related to the Messiah.

It was not until in Abraham's time that they knew from what nation the Messiah should come: "I will bless them that bless thee, and in thee shall all the families of the earth be." (Gen. 12:3). It was not until the death of Jacob that they knew from what tribe he should come: "Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise. The scepter shall not depart from Judah nor a law-giver from between his feet, until Shiloh come, and unto him shall the gathering of the people be." (Gen. 49:8-10). It was not until David's time that they knew from what family the Messiah should come, "The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David . . . of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne." (Ps. 132:11). "I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever." (2 Sam. 7:13). "In that day there shall be a fountain opened in the house of David . . . for sin and uncleanness." (Zech. 13:1). It was not until the time of Isaiah that they knew what character of woman should give him birth: "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign. Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel;" (Isaiah 7:14); to which Matthew adds, "which being interpreted is, God with us." (Matt. 1:22,23). They did not know of what person the Messiah should be born until Gabriel appeared and declared "To a virgin espoused to a man whose name is Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary." (Luke 1:26,27). "Fear not Mary thou shalt bring forth a son and thou shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." (Luke 1:30-33). The place of the birth of the Messiah was not known until the time of Micah: "But thou Bethlehem Ephrata, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall come forth unto me that is to be the ruler in Israel, whose goings forth have been from old, from everlasting." (Micah 5:2; Matt. 2:6).

Talmudic literature is full of references relating to the coming of the Messiah, as taught by the ancient Rabbis, referring to his birth and character, based upon Hebrew prophecy. Rabbi Frey is on record as saying that most of the distinguished Rabbis agree with Rab, that the time is long past when the Messiah must have come and to identify him we must look into the past. The Rabbis say, "The right time for Messiah's advent is passed and he is now believed to have been born." "For the Messiah is born; his name is Meuachem [Comforter]." "Messiah was born at the royal residence of Bethlehem in Judea." In the Talmudic book called "Generations" it says "Jesus of Nazareth was born . . . under the Emperor Augustus; and at the same time there lived [at Jerusalem] Rabbi Simeon ben Hillel Zochanan ben Zacha. From this time begin the years of the Nazarine." Taking Isaiah's prophecy as a foundation the Rabbi's record that Messiah was born of a virgin, adding that "He should be without an earthly father," because he should not be the progeny of man but should be "the seed of woman; and appearing in the order of Melchizedek, he would come without ancestry, and leave without posterity.

This proposition is substantiated by ancient Rabbis as follows: (1) "Come see the way of the blessed God is not like that of flesh and blood, for the Lord hath created a new thing; a woman shall compass a man." (Jeremiah 31:22). "This is the King Messiah of whom it is written: Thou art my Son: This day have I begotten thee." (Ps. 2:7). (2) "This is that seed which shall arise from a different place. . . . It is the King Messiah." (3) "The man whose name is Branch shall grow out of his place by a different principle of generation." (Isaiah 11:1; Jer. 23:5). (4) "The Redeemer whom I will raise up among you, shall not have a father; according to Zechariah." (6:12,13). (5) "The birth of the Messiah alone shall not be like that of any other creatures in the world; but is an incarnation." (6) "The birth of the Messiah alone shall be without defect; that is sinless." (7) "The birth of the Messiah shall be like the dew from the Lord as drops upon the grass expect not the labor of man." (8) "None shall know his father until he tells it." (John 7:27; 9:29). (9) "The King Messiah shall be revealed in the land of Galilee." (John 1:11; Luke 4:14-22).

The reference describing the Messiah's nativity are Jewish conceptions and the incarnation is the central thought. In the Targum of Onkelos the references to the Messiah are limited to the Pentateuch.

1. Shiloh: "Till Shiloh come." "Till Messiah comes, whose is the kingdom, and to whom is the gathering of the nations." (Gen. 49:10). 2.—Balaam. "A king shall arise from Jacob, and a Messiah shall be anointed from Israel." (Num. 24:17).

Frequent reference to the Messiah is found in the Targum of Jonathan. These references harmonize with later teachings. 1.—A King. "A King shall come forth from the sons of Jesse, and Messiah shall arise from his son's sons. This is the Branch of the Lord, the son given to the house of David, who shall endure forever, in whose time shall be much peace." (Isaiah 11:1; 4:2; Jer. 23:5; 33:15; Isaiah 9:6). 2.—Descendant. Messiah is David's son, who "shall go forth from them, and be revealed from the midst of them, and teach them the worship of the Lord, as the mystical Shepherd to whom the flock should be restored, in whom all the just should trust, and all the humble dwell under the shadow of his kingdom." (Hos. 3:5; Jer. 30:9; 33:13-15; Ezek. 17:23). 3.—Redeemer. "Because God hath cleansed their souls from sins, they shall see the kingdom of their Messiah, they shall have many sons and daughters, they shall prolong their days, and keeping the law of the Lord they shall be happy according to his good pleasure."

We now observe that there are references relating to the Messiah scattered all through the Old Testament, which references the apostles have gathered together. The gospels show us how general was the expectation of the Messiah. The people were anxiously looking for his advent at the time of Christ's coming. He is referred to as a prophet, the son of David, the Messiah of Scripture and the Son of God. All these terms meant the Messianic person and are all applied to Jesus Christ.

When John the Baptist came preaching multitudes besieged him with questions, asking if he were not the Messiah. They said: "Who art thou? And he confessed and denied not, but confessed, I am not the Christ." "Ye yourselves bear me witness that I said, I am not the Christ, but that I am sent before him." (Luke 3:16; John 1:20; 3:28). "What then art thou Elijah? And he saith I am not. Art thou that prophet? And he answered no" (John 1:21). Of the blind born the Pharisees asked, "What sayest thou of him in that he opened thine eyes? and he said, he is a prophet." (John 9:17).

On the day that Christ had risen he joined himself to two of his disciples, Cleopas and another, but they did not recognize him, and related to him the circumstances of his crucifixion "concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet, mighty in deed and work before God and all the people. . . . But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel." (Luke 14:19,21.) When on the last and great day of the feast, Jesus at the temple addressed the people, some of them, when they heard his words said: "This is of a truth the prophet. others said, this is the Christ. But some said, what, doth the Christ come out of Galilee? Hath not the Scriptures said that the Christ cometh out of the seed of David, and from Bethlehem, the village where David was?" (John 7:40,42.)

Peter said unto the people "And it shall be that every soul which will not hearken to that prophet shall be utterly destroyed from among the people, yea and all the prophets from Samuel and them that followed after, as many as have spoken, they also told of these days."—Acts 3:23,24.

The Rabbinical teaching had turned the hope of the people into a channel that led them to expect Christ to come and establish an earthly or national kingdom. Even some of the disciples entertained this expectation and some were ambitious and wished to hold positions of honor. Yet in a great many instances they directly or indirectly identified him as the Messiah; "Andrew first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, we have found the Messiah, which is being interpreted the Christ." (John 1:41). "Phillip findeth Nathaniel and saith unto him, we have found him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth the son of Joseph. (John 1:45.) Nathaniel approaching Jesus said "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God, thou art the King of Israel." (John 1:49.) To King Agrippa II Paul said, "And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made to our fathers; unto which promise are twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, hope to come." (Acts 26:6-7.)

With the just and devout Simeon, many were waiting for the consolation of Israel: "and it was revealed unto him that he should not see death before that he had seen the Lord's Christ." "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, O Lord, according to thy word; for mine eyes have seen thy salvation which thou hast prepared before the face of all people; a light for revelation to the gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel." (Luke 2:25-32.)

How constant and general was the anticipation of the Messiah among the people is shown in these instances. Yet many were in doubt respecting where he should be born and questioned about his identity. "Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ? Howbeit we know this man whence he is; but when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is." (John 7:26,27). "Many of the people said, of a truth this is the prophet. But some said, shall Christ come out of Galilee? Hath not the Scripture said, that Christ cometh of the seed of David and out of the town of Bethlehem where David was? So there was a division among the people because of him." (John 7:41,42.) At Capernaum they said; "Is not this Jesus the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven." (John 6:42.)

The Pharisees said unto Nicodemus: "Art thou also of Galilee? Search and look; for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet." (John 7:52.) Seeing the miracles that Jesus wrought "all the people were amazed and said: is not this the son of David." (Matt. 12:23.) Two blind men followed him and cried, "Thou son of David, have mercy on us." (Matt. 9:27; 20:30.) Jesus himself said to the Pharisees, "What think ye of Christ? Whose son is he? They say unto him the son of David. He saith unto them, How then doth David in the Spirit call him Lord? If David then call him Lord, how is he his son? and no man was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man ask him any more questions." (Matt. 22:41-46.) And in his last and triumphal march to Jerusalem, the people shouted; "Hosanna to the son of David." "Blessed be the kingdom of our father David that cometh in the name of the Lord." (Matt. 21:9; Mark 11:10; Luke 19:38.)

The anticipation of the Messiah was so widespread that other nations besides the Jews were anxiously awaiting his coming. 1. The wise men, the Magi traveled from the far east over desert, mountain and stream to Jerusalem to enquire; "Where is he that is born King of the Jews, for we have seen his star in the east, and have come to worship him." (Math. 2:2.) 2. Canaanite. The woman of Canaan seemed to know who Jesus was when she cried after him, "Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou Son of David; my daughter is grievously vexed with a devil!" (Matt. 15:22.) 3. Samaritans. The woman of Samaria said to Jesus at the well, "I know that Messias cometh, who is called Christ; when he is come, he will declare all things unto us. Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he." She then reported in the city, "Come see a man who told me all things that ever I did; can this be the Christ?" and "Many Samaritans believed on him because of the word of the woman who testified, he told me all things that ever I did, and many more believed because of his word; and they said unto the woman; now we believe, not because of thy speaking, for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Savior of the world." (John 4:25-42.)

This general expectancy of the Messiah was probably due to the activity of the Jews of the Dispersion, who everywhere taught the Greek Scriptures of the Septuagint. Dr. Henderson Buck in the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge 1859, p. 859, remarked: "By their dispersion among so many nations, by their conversations with the learned men among the heathen, and the (Jews) translation (The Septuagint) of their inspired writings into a language almost universal, the principles of their religion were spread all over the east; and it became the common belief that a prince would arise at that time in Judea, and would change the face of the world, and extend his empire from one end of the earth to the other."

The Messiah came, and the circumstances surrounding his birth were in accordance with all the prophecies mentioned in the Scriptures. The Jews were disappointed in him when he refused to become a monarch, or when he did not establish a national kingdom as they had been led to expect that he would do. "When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, and make him a king, he withdrew again into a mountain, himself alone." (John 6:15.) When the Roman prosecutor asked him: "Art thou the king of the Jews? Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world." (John 18:33-36.) For this reason the Jews ignored his claim to being the Messiah, the Christ of the scripture and crucified him.

Since that time, either through a mistaken idea of the Messiah's mission or to vindicate their course, they refer to some heathen ruler as the Messiah or chosen one, who instead of relieving them of the Roman yoke came and destroyed their nation. About thirty-five years after the crucifixion, Vespasian a Roman general, invaded Palestine to subdue the rebellious Jews. News was received that the Emperor of Rome was dead. The soldiery immediately pronounced Vespasian emperor, who turned his command over to his son, Titus, and went to the capital.

This circumstance will explain the references that follow. 1. Josephus. "That which did especially inspire them (the Jews) to undertake this war, was an ambiguous oracle found likewise in their sacred writings, how that someone of their own country, pertaining to that time, should attain the empire of the habitable earth. The Jews took this prediction to belong to themselves in particular, and many of their wise men were deceived thereby in their judgment." After this he adds his own opinion. Now this oracle certainly denoted the government of Vespasian, who was appointed Emperor (whenever he was yet) in Judea.

2. Suetonius. "A firm persuasion had long prevailed through all the east, that it was fated (i. e. contained in the Book of Fates or Prophecies) at that time, to devolve on some one who should come forth from Judea. This prediction referred to the Roman Emperor (Vespasian) as the event proved; but the Jews applying it to themselves, engaged in rebellion."

3. Tacitus. Speaking of the prodigees which occurred prior to the destruction of Jerusalem he says: "A few turned these events into a cause for alarm: The greater number were possessed with a belief that it was written in the ancient writings of the priests that it would come to pass at that very time, that the east would grow mighty and that men proceeding from Judea would gain the Empire of the world, an ambiguous oracle which had foretold (the fortunes) of Vespasian and Titus.

4. Celsus. Representing himself as being a Jew, he says: "The prophets declare him coming to be great. The potentate of all the earth, Lord of the nations and armies." How should we having made known to all mankind that there is to come from God, one punishing, the wicked, dishonor him, having come?

A REPLY

In answer to a letter written by a Baptist minister to his sister who was a member of the Reorganized Church.

My dear Sir:—At the request of your sister, Mrs. — — —, I write in reply to your letter of October 23, 1913. We wish to correct the misrepresentations in your letter concerning the faith of your sister, and which you assail in classing her religion with false ones. You don't seem to understand how closely the Latter Day Saints follow the Holy Bible in their teachings and in their practices. Jesus said of old "By their fruits ye shall know them." They preach the saving principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ, enumerated by Paul in Hebrews 6:1,2; being repentance or a forsaking of sin; faith in our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and in the Word of God; the doctrine of baptism or a burial in water, for the forgiveness of sins; the laying on of hands for the four purposes enjoined in the Holy Scriptures, namely, for the blessing of children, (see Matthew 19:13-15; Mark 10:13-16); for receiving the gift of the Holy Ghost; (see Acts 9:17; 8:14-17; 19:1-6). Kindly notice how that Ananias performed the same work as the apostles Peter, John and Paul; for the healing of the sick with anointing of oil and prayer, (see Mark 6:13; 16:14-18; James 5:14,15); for ordination to the ministry as seen in the Bible; also our belief in the literal resurrection and future judgment.

Permit me to inquire here, are not all these the happy fruits of an intelligent belief in the gospel which our Savior authorized his servants to teach to the end of the world, saying, "Teaching them [the nations] to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." "By their fruits ye shall know them." We believe in the same New Testament church with having not only elders, pastors, evangelists and deacons, but the rest also, apostles, prophets and bishops. If you will but take the trouble turning to Ephesians 4th chapter, you may readily see that Paul who was a minister of Jesus Christ points out the fact that inspired officers are for the work of the ministry: the edifying of the body of Christ; the perfecting of the saints. And for how long, Paul? Answer: "Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God." This grand and true description of the church he gives in order that we might know it from the many human and erroneous ones of today.

"By their fruits ye shall know them." Unhappily, for many centuries the true church was lost in apostasy, and in her place arose first the Catholic then the numerous Protestant churches with conflicting creeds, contradicting many essential parts of the New Testament religion.

So the origin of the church of Latter Day Saints is pointed out by us in the fact of a young man raised up, divinely commissioned to restore or bring back the old time religion, the old Jerusalem gospel to be preached in its fulness and ancient purity; with delegated authority to baptize for remission of sins, and laying on of hands as before mentioned, bearing fruitage in the gracious promises of long ago, and as recorded in Mark 16:15-18; also 1 Cor. 12:1-31.

Instead of being a new gospel it is but the old brought back through the wisdom and mercy of our heavenly Father, and thousands now testify of having received a knowledge of its truthfulness, the divinity of Christ, and the divine calling of the latter day prophet. We affirm in soberness of angels visiting "heirs of salvation," now as well as in days of old to Zacharias, Mary, Cornelius, Silas, John, together with a cloud of others.

We agree with you as you point out in your letter that, "the first and sure way of detecting a counterfeit religion is its origin." As a church we are on record that Mr. Smith received angelic ministrations in the commencement of his religious career and later in the establishment and continuation of the church. This being in strict harmony with the written word of God, "If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him."—James. But none of the Reformers of Protestantism ever told us that they were authorized by any heavenly messenger as to the origin of their several religious societies. Paul assures us that the work of angels among men would continue to the end of time, saying, "Are they not all ministering spirits sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation."—Heb. 1:14.

In your letter you also refer to the histories which are derogatory to the character of Mr. Smith. But what of the others who make favorable mention of him? The press and pulpit are largely responsible for the general misconception as to the position of the Latter Day Saints. Orthodox ministers have ever been ready to prejudice the minds of the people without opportunity being afforded us to present our defense. It is plain that the former day saints had the same perplexing conditions to cope with as shown in the ancient works of Lardner and Mosheim, for they write that "Jesus was born of a poor woman, who subsisted by the labor of her own hands—condemned of adultery, cast off by her husband, wandering about in a shameful manner, and giving birth to Jesus in an obscure place; and he being in want served in Egypt for a livelihood, becoming familiar with some Egyptian charmers he returned and set himself for a god; then taking to himself eleven vile publicans and sailors he went about getting his living in a bad and shameful manner." "Christians were called atheists because they derided the heathen Polytheism; magicians, because they wrought miracles; self-murderers because they suffered martyrdom cheerfully for the truth; haters of the light because to avoid the fury of the persecutions raised against them they were obliged to hold meetings at night."

"The only way the Mormons [of Utah] can live in peace with Gentile neighbors is for them to follow the example of the Josephite brethren [Reorganized Church]—leave politics and government out of their ethics." 369.

"The New Testament is all against plural wives, and though it nowhere in so many words condemns the system, the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants do," 572.

"The most successful of the recusant sects was the one established by Joseph Smith, the prophet's son, who with his brothers, Alexander and David, remained at Nauvoo after the exodus. He at first refused, but in 1860, the number of men being considerably increased by the breaking up of other parties, he accepted the call as prophet, and began to preach the faith of his father, as he affirmed, in its original purity, repudiating the claims of Brigham, and the doctrine of polygamy," p. 644.

In the famous Temple Lot Case, the decision by Judge Phillips of the U. S. Circuit Court, is in part as follows:—"But if it were conceded that Joseph Smith and Hyrum his brother did secretly practice concubinage, is the church to be charged with those things and the doctrine of polygamy to be predicated thereon of the church? If so, I suspect the doctrine of polygamy might be imputed to many of the Gentile churches. Certainly it was never promulgated, taught, nor recognized as a doctrine of the church prior to the assumption of Brigham Young."

In an appeal case up in Canada in the year 1890, Chief Justice Armour, and other Judges concurring said, "We think it quite clear that the conviction cannot be maintained. Assuming that Christianity is the law of the land in a sense, there is nothing contrary to Christianity in the tenets of this body. It is true they have something supplemental to the Bible, but that is the case with every church or denomination. The church of England has its creed, and the Presbyterian its confession. That does not make the church an ante-Christian one."

With these weighty and withal convincing utterances before us, I trust you may see how tenable and Scriptural our positions are before the public, consequently worthy the respect, consideration and belief of all truth-loving people.

After showing how the church would be disorganized, or "go into the wilderness." In Revelations 12:1-6; John afterwards describes the restoration of the gospel in these words, "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth to every nation, and kindred, and tongue and people, saying with a loud voice, fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come. Rev. 14:6,7. This gospel we present, asking that you give it your thorough investigation. Dr. Wm. Smith and as well Dr. Buck, eminent authors, have testified of the apostate condition of the early days of Christianity. The latter informs us that "the apostles being dead everything came to pass as they had foretold, the whole church system underwent a miserable change. Christianity was maintained, though under gradual decay during the first three centuries."—Theological Dict. p. 475.

The good John Wesley in his published sermons portrays the restoration of the gospel. And Roger Williams, founder of the Baptist denomination in America writes to the point, "I conceive that the apostasy of anti-Christ hath so far corrupted all that there can be no recovery out of that apostasy till Christ shall send forth new apostles, and plant churches anew."—Knowles History, p. 172.

Yours for the truth,
Elder F. J. Pierce.

Note.—By an oversight in making up the forms the following was inadvertently omitted from the above article. It should follow the second paragraph of third column on page five, after "they were obliged to hold meetings at night," and before "The only way the Mormons," etc. We regret the mistake but it was not discovered in time to correct.

Regarding Mr. Smith and the work performed by him, we invite you to note carefully the following unbiased opinions. In a work called "Figures of the Past" by Josiah Quincy, on page 376 occurs the following: "It is by no means improbable that some future text book for the use of generations yet unborn will contain a question something like this: What historical American of the nineteenth century has exerted the most powerful influence upon the destinies of his countrymen? And it is by no means impossible that the answer to that may be thus written: Joseph Smith the Mormon Prophet. And the reply absurd as it doubtless seems to most men now living may be an obvious commonplace to their descendants. History deals in surprizes and paradoxes quite as startling as this. The man who established a religion in this age of free debate, who was and is today accepted by hundreds of thousands as a direct emissary from the Most High, such a rare human being is not to be disposed of by pelting his memory with unsavory epithets. Fanatic, impostor, charlatan, he may have been but these hard names furnish no solution to the problem he presents to us. Fanatics and imposters are living and dying every day and their memory is buried with them but the wonderful influence which this founder of a religion exerted and still exerts throws him into relief before us not as a rogue to be criminated but as a phenomenon to be explained.

Joseph Smith claiming to be an inspired teacher faced adversity such as few men have been called to meet, enjoyed a brief season of prosperity such as few men have ever attained; and finally forty-three days after I saw him went cheerfully to a martyr's death."

Smucker in his History of the Mormons page 183, says, "But whether knave or lunatic, whether a liar or a true man it cannot be denied that he was one of the most extraordinary persons of his time. A man of rude genius, who accomplished a much greater work than he knew, and whose name whatever he may have been whilst living will take its place among the notabilities of the world."

I will now produce extracts from Baneroff's New History of Utah, and on page 7 of preface he says of works written against Mormonism. "Most of these are written in a sensational style and for the purpose of deriving profit by pandering to a vitiated public taste, and are wholly unreliable as to facts:

"Thus is organized the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in accordance with special revelations and commandments—and after the manner set forth in the New Testament!"—p. 66.

"But when the testimony on both sides is carefully weighed, it must be admitted that the Mormons in Missouri and Illinois were as a class more moral, honest, temperate, hard working, self-denying and thrifty people than the Gentiles by whom they were surrounded"—p. 164.

"Of all that has been laid at their door I find little proved against them"—p. 165.

THANKSGIVING ADDRESS

with the conditions, that the people are not in a condition to be suffered to govern themselves. They have not yet come to that sufficient degree of education and intelligence that they may be trusted to make and to carry out the beneficent institutions of the country to a sufficient degree in safety and to avoid the continued succession of internecine war among themselves. Is not this a condition which you and I and all similar assemblies this day may be moved upon by the principle of thanksgiving to God?

Again: Where in all the land, is there a ruler, authorized by kingly power, supposed to have supreme right over us that has the right and the authority to persecute us for our religious belief? You do not have to think a hundred years back to find a locality where religious intolerance existed, and men did not have liberty to worship God as they pleased. I, in my own person, represent a condition of things that shows this fact, and I am here filled with gratitude to God that now from the north to the south there cannot be found a locality where there may not be enjoyed the principle of worship to God according to the dictates of one's conscience. I make this one saving clause, and that is, where the practice imposed or suffered by such declaration of belief does not call upon them to disregard the beneficent rule of the government under which they have their political and civil existence. Ought we not to be thankful for that? I have lived under conditions which have shown me that the love of liberty has not died out of the minds of the people, and that this wonderful principle of self-existence under self-made laws by the people has secured such a hold upon the world that from this center it is moving out everywhere until there is hardly a kingly crown in all the world that is worth the liberty of a single inhabitant or citizen of this wonderful Republic of ours. Aye, how many of you men would change your existence as men, as individuals, how many of you, my friends, would give what you enjoy as citizens of the Republic for the bauble that might mark you as a king, and a scepter that would give you autocratic power over the nations of the earth or any one of them?

I am glad that when I raise my voice of thankfulness with you today the time when men so earnestly believed in the divine right of kings to rule, no matter what may have been the character of that rule, is passing from the face of the earth, and when tyrants rule they must begin to give a reason for that which they do, or the subjects over which their tyranny is exercised must assert their power, for sooner or later the voice of the people must rule.

Again, and here I may trench upon perhaps a small portion of forbidden ground, but I will try and do it gently so you people will not feel to ostracize me when you meet me hereafter. The wonderful increase of the population of the United States from three million and a little more which fought the great battles of the Revolution, until now over ninety millions of people occupy the land, has made a wonderful difference in the commodities of life, the institution of human existence, and yet there is not now any reason why men should die anywhere of famine or poverty from a failure to get something to sustain human life, and with the prospect of higher becoming the cost of living, we may still gather together and have a portion of the earthly elements with which to sustain our human nature and enjoy them. Let us then be thankful to God for this.

One evidence of the increase of that which I have spoken of is found in the result of the last general election. Think back for a moment, if you please, for a little over a year and see what confusion was had in the political world. I don't mean abroad, but I mean at home, in the Republic. Look at the wide, divergent political parties. Look at the peculiar animosities engendered during the campaign. Look at the asperities that existed that we heard from the rostrum by the different speakers and then when, on that notable day in November a little over a year ago this month the people met at the various places where they polled the expression of their will, they laid down the small token of citizenship into the hands of the judges, and they, after the day had closed, summed up the great result of the election in the different portions of the land, and there was an entire change of national administration until one party's candidates carried but two of the great States of which the nation is composed, and the entire vote practically went for the purpose of creating an entire change in the personnel of the government, and put into the White House and in the various offices at Washington a class of politicians who had not ruled for years.

Has there been any very great commotion since that time? Has there been any disturbances of human life because of the result of the election? Ah, no. The principle that the will of the majority of the people should become the voice of God, so far as the great mass of the people was concerned, again asserted itself and we have all existed in quietude because Mr. Woodrow Wilson represents the government, and he is our president whether he was our choice or not. And we thank God for the existence of such a thing as that. I do, at least, and I believe I represent the people this morning, although I have not uttered my voice here on a public occasion for something like a year, and I am very thankful, my friends, for the privilege of saying what I have said to the people,—disjointed as the thoughts may have been—to show you I am still an American citizen and am thankful for the privilege of enjoying the munificent rule of the institution of the great Republic.

May God in his infinite mercy help us that we may live for the coming year in such a way that should we be permitted to meet again on next Thanksgiving Day it may still be under such auspices as gives us the right to lift our voices in praise to God for the good that we have received in this great Republic of ours.

NOTICE.

All persons sending money to the Woman's Auxiliary for any purpose including subscriptions to Home and Child Welfare leaflets, or Children's Home donations, please forward same to the treasurer of the Auxiliary, Mrs. J. A. Gardner, 707 S. Fuller Ave Independence, Mo.

The Independence Home and Child Welfare Department has a library of very good books, which have been made very little use of, and in which the local desires to interest the mothers.

Therefore a book committee has been appointed and each month one of its members reports with a synopsis or outline of one of these books. We present the last one in this issue and hope to publish others occasionally.—Ed.

BOOK REVIEW.

Having always felt an especial interest in the handicapped children of this earth and in making a choice from these books in our reference library, I chose the one entitled "The Dullard," by Thomas Edward Shields, associate professor of psychology in the Catholic University of America. Published by the Catholic Education Press, Washington, D. C.

The book is written in the form of a dialogue, which presents the author's ideas, while it affords full scope for the discussion of some delicate problems in psychology. It also shows the weak places in our present educational system.

The story of Studevan's Omadhaun claims to be a faithful transcript of the record of this child and read by himself after he had "fought his way back to the company of normal and intellectual men." It has a message of courage and hope for every dull child. It explains how he conquered mathematics and studied mechanics while working with simple farm tools and no help but his own keen observation.

He says, "Minds with the greatest strength at maturity often develop slowly in early childhood."

That a child who grows, too rapidly, up to the age of fourteen or sixteen should not be hurried or his mind overtaxed. One boy, here mentioned, was one day scared into speechlessness, by his teacher, which so injured his vocal organs that he was unable to speak for sixteen years. He stuttered the rest of his life as a consequence of that teacher's blundering.

Dr. Studevan was sent home from school at the age of nine, as hopelessly dull. At the age of thirteen he fell from a load of hay and broke his arm, and so was sent back to school. After two months' trial and a good thrashing he was sent back to his parents as hopeless. From that on, the story tells of one long struggle to try to be as other boys, and of how he taught himself to read books. He was unusually large and strong for his age and soon could do the work of a man on the farm. The most interesting details are brought out in the dialogue.

The book is full of valuable information along this line of child training. He especially speaks against forcing a young child's mind too much and over burdening his nerves.

On page 250, his application of the scriptures here, may be peculiar, but I believe they can be used sensibly.

"But it is well to remember that the God of truth ordained that we should give milk to babes and meat to men, and that even at the last he said to his apostles, 'I have many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now.' What do you think he meant by the parable in which the servants came to the Master filled with indignation on having found cockle growing up with the wheat, and anxious for permission to pull it up, but the Master said, 'Let it be until the harvest, lest in pulling up the cockle you should pull up the wheat with it.'

"There is no real disagreement between us. Truth is life and freedom to the mind; the only question is—how shall we attain it? Have you not heard the old story of two men who built a shanty, and having nailed on the last board, one said, "Let us out a whole to let the dark out," and the other replied, "No, but let us cut a hole to let the light in."

"The salvation of the child must ultimately come from the truth; but the question is, how shall he attain the truth? It's a graceless task to go about plucking error and illusion from a child's mind. The human mind grows in knowledge under the law of development wherein it is written that each subsequent phase shall be attained through the reconstruction of the previous phase. In the human mind you cannot build with the naked truth; the mind cannot look upon it and live. The child needs his fairy stories and Santa Claus and his childish settings for all manner of truths.

"The crayfish can grow only by casting off his shell from time to time, but if in your mistaken zeal to help its growth, you proceed to tear off the shell, you will kill it instead of helping it.

"Error and illusion, after all, are but the natural limitations of the mind's growth; they drop away as naturally and as inevitably before the light of growing truth as do the shadows before the rising sun."

Ruth D. Bullard.

Following is a story with an easy moral by Sr. C. R. Smith, who has told many stories to Kindergarten children during her years as a teacher. This is the third number of her Series—Ed.

THE LAZY SQUIRREL.

Well! what is the use of going to all that work; to carry all those nuts from the ground and put them into that big hole in the oak tree over there? When I want a nut, I can go down to the ground and get one, and eat it; then I do not have to waste so much time."

"Very well; my dear; if you have decided not to do what I have asked you; but please remember this; winter is coming, the ground will be covered with snow, and you will not be able to get the nuts that are on the ground. And another thing you must remember; the little boys around here are as fond of nuts as you are, and when they come they bring their baskets and carry off a great many at once, and if we do not hurry there may not be any left for us."

"Well! I am not going to work today anyway. I do not think winter can be as bad as you say it is."

"Your mother has lived longer than you have; but if you will not work, you can go and keep house your own way, by yourself. Good by."

This is the conversation that took place, one fine fall morning in the big walnut tree that stood in the center of Mr. Thompson's pasture. The two people talking were Mrs. Grey-coat and her son Bushy-tail.

Mrs. Grey-coat had three children, Busy-tail, Bright-eyes and Sharp-nose. Bushy-tail was called by that name because he had such a beautiful tail that curved up over his back so gracefully. Bright-eyes was a fine little grey squirrel like his mother, and his eyes were so bright that he could find nuts when his little brother could not see any at all. Sharp-nose was the wath-man of the family; he could always smell a dog before any of the others could.

That day after the conversation in the walnut tree Mrs. Grey-coat was very sad, because she did not like to send one of her children away from home. But she knew it was the best thing to do, and hoped Bushy-tail would soon learn his lesson. Bushy-tail did not worry, he thought it would be fun to live by himself and do as he pleased.

Soon he saw Sharp-nose sitting away out on the end of a lit tle limb, eating a nut. He ran out to him and humped him so that he himself lost his balance, and down, down, they both went to the ground below. Neither of the little squirrels were hurt by the fall, but Sharp-nose was angry because he lost his good nut. Bushy-tail only laughed and ran away again.

He decided to have the old summer house for his home. It was away up in the top of the tree where it would rock back and forth whenever there was the least bit of wind.

Mrs. Grey-coat and her other two children worked hard all day, carrying nuts and putting them in their pantry store house in the big oak tree. At night they crawled into their snug little hole in the same tree and went to sleep. Bushy-tail played all day long by himself, except when he was teasing his brothers and at night he ran up to the nest in the top of the walnut tree and crawled in and curled up all by himself. He was a little lonesome at first but was soon fast asleep. When he awoke in the morning his nose was cold, but it soon got warm as he frisked about.

All that day the sun did not come out and towards evening it turned quite cool. His mother did not seem to pay any attention to him but worked as hard as she could all day with Bright-eyes and Sharp-nose. They stored away walnuts, acorns, and hickory nuts.

When it grew dark Bushy-tail went to his own nest again. This time he was more lonesome than before. He was cold, and no matter how much he wrapped his tail around his nose he could not get warm. He was very tired and finally went to sleep, but he only slept a few minutes, when he awoke, shivering with cold. He began to wonder if that was what, winter was like. He thought that maybe his mother did know best when she moved into the big oak tree, where it was warm. He began to wish he had not been naughty, and he wondered if his mother would let him come home again if he would promise to be good and help her.

He decided to go and ask her, so he climbed up to the top of the nest and peeped out. Everything was white, and the air was filled with little white feather-like things, falling all around.

Bushy-tail was more lonesome than ever, and I am sure he would have cried if a little squirrel had known how to cry. He wanted his mother so badly, but was afraid to go to her for it was snowing so hard. But he did go, and just as fast as he could, too. He got his feet wet and cold, but when he arrived at the hole in the big oak tree, he did not stop to knock, but slipped in as quietly as he could and curled up by his mother, a repentant little bunny.

His mother moved up close to him and told him how glad she was to have him back and she told him how lonesome she had been without him.

But Bushy-tail although silent at first, for he felt very foolish as he remembered how he had talked to his mother a few days before, and of how dreary those days and nights proved to be, soon promised to be a better squirrel, and to help his mother in the ways she wanted, for it always makes home happier when children are willing to learn from their parents, and to obey them.

NOTICES.

All persons having claims against the treasurer of the General Sunday school Association are hereby requested to send the secretary's orders direct to the treasurer for payment.

The Bank in Lamoni has been instructed not to pay such orders.

John Smith, Treas.

The recent notice in ENSIGN covering appointment of Elder Jay Hoffman appeared inadvertently before the matter was finally disposed of. Bro. Hoffman will labor locally instead of under general appointment for balance of conference year.

PASTORALS.

To the saints of the West Virginia District:—According to the revelation received at our last general conference we as saints of latter days were instructed to pay off the existing general church debt which our bishops tell us amounts to about seventy-five thousand dollars. The amount which the West Virginia District is called upon to contribute to this large debt is only three hundred and fifty dollars, and I am requested by our presiding bishop to endeavor to raise this amount as soon as possible; will you help do it? Who is on the Lord's side? You remember in Moses' day when the Lord commanded Moses to build a tabernacle and to send out all those who were willing to assist in doing so and they brought forth their jewels, ornaments, etc., and gave them to Moses. You note that those who were willing were the ones that were permitted to help. The Lord has said that he desires the heart and a willing mind.

While the nation is celebrating today as a day of thanksgiving let us show to God our thankfulness by helping with our mites to free our church from debt and thereby enable it to accomplish the work that God designs it should.

We are also instructed that we should cease from buying unnecessary wants. Do we buy unnecessary things? The Lord enumerates in Doctrine and Covenants 86 some of the unnecessary and also injurious things (wants) such as tobacco, strong drinks, hot drinks, [tea and coffee] excessive meat eating, etc. Let us not forget that the Lord says that this is a day of sacrifice. Let us ask ourselves what are we sacrificing for the cause of him who said "Father thy will be done," when he gave his life as a sacrifice for us. Faith without works being alone is dead. Is our faith a living or dead faith?

Your brother in Christ,
Francis L. Shinn,
Bishop of Agent.

Clarksburg, West Virginia, Nov. 27.

A NEW ORGANIZATION.

A ladies society called the "Patroness Society for the Independence Sanitarium" was organized on last Thursday afternoon, November 20th, in the basement of the stone church, the object of which is to assist the sanitarium in a material way, by soliciting donations both of money and merchandise, and by making articles of linen and other accessories needed in such an institution, that they can make.

Their officers are a president, vice president, secretary, corresponding secretary, and treasurer. Those elected were Mrs. E. L. Kelley president, Mrs. Dr. Joseph Mather vice-president, Miss Della Criley secretary, Mrs. M. T. Short corresponding secretary, Mrs. Edward Rannic treasurer. Membership of the society not confined to independence alone.

Those invited to participate in the organization of the society were Richard Bullard, John W. Rushton and G. E. Harrington of the Sanitarium Board, and W. H. Garrett of the Stake Presidency. Richard Bullard was chosen temporary chairman and J. W. Rushton secretary. There were about fifty ladies present, a good feeling prevailed, and the business was done in a satisfactory manner. The bringing of this organization into existence is largely due to the efforts of Sr. E. L. Kelley.

Respectfully,
G. E. Harrington.

WILL YOU HELP.

Who will join with us to swell the Christmas offering?

No doubt by this time, there are many who are planning what they will give to their relatives and friends for Christmas, and I wonder how many are making as great an effort to give to Christ, our elder Brother, or to the cause which he gave his life for, a Christmas offering, as we are to give to our earthly friends. It appears to me that we are observing the day more than we are the Christ. We only have to look back to the time when the Christmas offering was first observed among our children, it was then but a small amount which was sent in to the Bishop, but we have seen it grow and for the last two years, with the help of some of the older ones, it has reached something over eight thousand dollars a year; this ought to be encouraging to all of us and shows us the possibilities that lie before us.

We all must know that a portion of the money that is expended for Christmas gifts are for useless articles which we could easily get along without, and are forgotten in a short time, would it not be better for us to put the money in the treasury of the church where untold good may come from it, and receive the approval of our Father in heaven with the assurance that it will stand to our credit at the Judgment bar of God. As I have gone over our district this summer in the interest of the general church debt, I have tried to impress upon the minds of the saints the necessity of sacrificing our own pleasures, in the giving and receiving from our friends, and put our means where it will help the Bishopric to carry on the work more successfully. I believe if we would do this there would be no need of the church making a special call for help. I know some say they want to get a gift for their friends, but if so, let us act as wisely as we do in the things of this world, we have our taxes to pay and we do not let our Christmas gifts interfere, so let us do likewise in this and feel that we have an offering to make where we can hope for a better return.

We wish to express our thanks to the saints and friends, who have so kindly helped in trying to cancel the church debt, and trust those who have signed with us will try to send it in before December 25th, as we would like to send in the full amount to the Bishop Jan. 1, 1914.

I also want to mention that our district treasury is empty, and I find that there are many whose names do not appear on the agent's book; we hope no one will feel that what they have done for the general church debt will excuse them from their duty to the church by the way of tithes and offerings.

Hopefully in the battle for right.

S. Stroth, Bishop's Agent.

Interment in Woodlawn Cemetery.

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS
HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means non members or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, just as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to and tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.

Into the boundless sea.

One word at a time, and the greatest book

Is written and is read;

One stone at a time, and a palace rears

Aloft its stately halls;

One blow at a time, and the tree's cleft through,

And a city will stand where the forest grew

A few short years before.

One foe at a time, and he subdued,

And the conflict will be won;

One grain at a time, and the sand of life

Will slowly all be run;

One minute, another the hours fly;

One day at a time, and our lives speed by

Into eternity;

One grain of knowledge, and that well stored,

Another and more on them;

As time rolls on your mind will shine

With many a garnered gem

Of thought and wisdom. And time will tell

"One thing at a time, and that done well,"

Is wisdom's proven rule.—Sel.

THE PROGRESS OF LIBERTY.

One by one the shackles which have bound the nations of the earth in various forms of bondage have been and are being broken. The demands of the masses have been so strong and general that the powers which have exercised control have gradually yielded until today men enjoy many rights and privileges that in former years were considered as beyond the power of the masses to enjoy.

Under the march of liberty tyrannical governments have given place to those in which the people have a voice, religious liberty has supplanted the restraints placed upon the conscience, the opportunity of education has been given to the ignorant, and in many other ways the divine rights of liberty and equality have come to be more fully recognized among men.

But the struggle between tyranny and liberty is not finished, nor the victory complete. Modern history is largely a history of this struggle which concerns every phase of human life. The forces that tend to bondage do not readily yield, and if defeated upon one point they seek others where there is still opportunity of success, or at least to stay final defeat. But the signs of the times point unerringly to the ultimate destruction of every form of unjust restraint and the inauguration of a new system of life wherein full liberty will be enjoyed by every man.

Tracing the changes of the last four hundred years there is seen unfolded the purpose of God as expressed in the words of his Son Jesus Christ. "Ye shall be made free," and the trend of the present time is toward such a condition. The freedom already gained has but inspired men to seek for still higher liberties, and they will not be satisfied until they are "free indeed." Some of the recent steps in this direction may be noted as follows:

In addition to seeking a free government, China has also recently sought freedom from the blight and bondage of opium, and while other nations have urged its import as an article of trade, the nation has seen fit to prohibit its import from other countries, and also to stop its production at home. The suppression of the opium traffic is as essential to the welfare of the nation as to have a free government.

The republican government which has come into power has been preparing a constitution and one of the points over which a struggle is now on is the effort to make Confucianism the state of religion. A large portion of the Chinese including over a million Christians are opposing bitterly this effort and are demanding full religious liberty for all. Should they lose today they must win tomorrow.

Liberty has had a rapid growth in Great Britain, but many forms and customs of the days of feudalism have remained to the present. Several years ago the power of the House of Lords was broken. This House of Lords holding their power independently of the people existed as a barrier to progress, especially that which involved the rights of the people; but under long-continued and extreme pressure changes were made which removed the barrier to progress and forever prevented this department of the law-making body from staying the enactment of any law which the people's representatives desired to pass.

Statesmen have come into power who discerning the trend of the times and recognizing the justness of the people's demands, are working for the people's emancipation from the bondage of poverty and industrial oppression. Millions of acres of land lie idle being held by the nobility as game preserves while thousands of people are suffering for the bread of life. Fields of grain and grass are frequently trampled into the ground by this same class of nobility while following the chase without recourse upon the part of the toiler whose fields are despoiled. Low wages and excessive rents are the common lot of the masses.

David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer in England, is urging a reform in the land laws, the present laws having been made by or only with the approval of the lords who held much of the land of the realm. Mr. George's policy includes six main points, viz., the creation of a new ministry of lands; the appointment of commissioners under them with power on rentals, evictions, and compensations of working farmers; the establishment of a minimum living wage; protection of farmers against the game laws; government construction of cottages for farmers and laborers; a great land reclamation and forestation scheme. The carrying out of this great scheme, which will not be done without a hard fight, will be a great step toward social and industrial equality in Great Britain, and will put the people in the line of further advancement.

Various movements in the United States as well as in other countries are leading gradually but surely to a lifting of the burdens which bear heavily upon the people, one of which is the protest against the burden of taxation for the maintenance of the armaments of the world. Protests are being raised against the injustice of justice through delays and long-drawn-out trials, against the unequal sharing of profits, against monopolizing the natural resources, and many other evils. How long it will take to attain ideal conditions may not appear, but with the evidences of God's hand guiding men, and his power supporting them in their efforts at progress, that time may be at our doors.

TWO PROPHECIES.

While doing some research work recently at the library of the Missouri Historical Society at Columbia, the editor found the following statement in the Missouri Intelligencer of April 13, 1833, it being the concluding part of an editorial:

"As a curiosity, we have carefully examined the Golden Bible and pronounce it not even a cunningly devised fable. Every page bears the impress of its human authorship. Though free from vulgar obscenities, it is an absurd collection of dull, stupid and foolishly improbable stories, which no person, unless under the influence of powerfully excited feelings, can mistake for truth and inspiration.—With its authors, the Book of Mormon cannot survive this generation. The next will remember it, only to smile at the credulity of the present."

The Book of Mormon was published in March,

1830, by Joseph Smith, who at that time had practically no following, the church being organized a month later with six members. The book contained the following prophetic statement:

"These last records [including the Book of Mormon] which thou hast seen among the Gentiles shall establish the truth of the first, [the Bible] which are of the twelve apostles of the Lamb, and shall make known the plain and precious things which have been taken away from them; and shall make known to all kindreds, tongues and people, that the Lamb of God is the Son of the Eternal Father, and Savior of the world; and that all men must come unto him or they cannot be saved."—1 Nephi 3:192,193.

"It [the Book of Mormon] shall be brought out of darkness unto light, according to the word of God; yea, it shall be brought out of the earth, and it shall shine forth out of darkness, and come unto the knowledge of the people: . . . And no one need say, they shall not come, for they surely shall, for the Lord hath spoken it; for out of the earth shall they come, by the hand of the Lord, and none can stay it."—Mormon 4:20,21,33.

The Book has maintained its place in the world for all it purports to be, and after eighty-three years it has upwards of a million believers and has been translated into seventeen languages. Prophecies are dangerous things to make except by divine direction.

THE 1911 BIBLE.

For three hundred years the King James translation of the Bible has remained the standard for English speaking people. It has long since been recognized however that errors existed in this version and steps were taken many years ago which resulted in the publication of the Revised Version in 1881-1885. In the latter numerous changes of a trivial nature, many of which were unnecessary were made, by which the beauty and dignity of the King James text were marred; the convenient division into verses was dispensed with so that the book never found a kindly reception with the public and there is little prospect that it will ever come into general use.

A new Bible has just been published by the Oxford University Press, known as THE 1911 BIBLE, dating three hundred years from the publication of the King James or Authorized Version. The text of this new Bible follows closely that of its popular predecessor though having been carefully corrected, in the light of the best modern research, by eminent American scholars. The versification is retained and the paragraphs are indicated by spaces left between them.

This work of comparing the text of the Authorized Version with the most ancient manuscripts as well as those of later date and of correcting such errors as might be found was committed to thirty-four eminent Hebrew and Greek scholars drawn from the various evangelical bodies and the leading universities, and while their work cannot in the strictest sense be called a translation, it is a correction of the historic English Bible according to the advanced knowledge of the times. This new edition is commemorative of the publication of the Authorized Version in 1611.

A DESCRIPTION OF JACKSON COUNTY BY WASHINGTON IRVING.

(The following letter from Washington Irving to his sister, Mrs. Paris, is sent to the Star by Mr. Edward S. Herdier who found it in reading a compilation of the letters of the American author and diplomat):

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Sept. 26, 1832.

My Dear Sister:—We arrived at this place the day before yesterday, after nine days' traveling on horseback from St. Louis. Our journey has been a very interesting one, leading us across fine prairies and through noble forests, dotted here and there by farms and log houses, at which we found rough but wholesome and abundant fare, and very civil treatment. Many parts of these prairies of the Missouri are extremely beautiful, resembling cultivated countries, embellished with parks and groves, rather than the savage rudeness of the wilderness.

Yesterday I was out on a deer hunt in the vicinity of this place, which led me through some scenery that only wanted a castle, or a gentleman's seat here and there interspersed, to have equaled some of the most celebrated park scenery of England.

The fertility of all this Western country is truly astonishing. The soil is like that of a garden, and the luxuriance and beauty of the forests exceed any that I have seen. We have gradually been advancing, however, toward rougher and rougher life, and are now at a little straggling frontier village that has only been five years in existence. From hence, in the course of a day or two, we take our departure southwardly, and shall soon bid adieu to civilization and encamp at night in tents. . . . The climax will be our expedition with the Osages to their hunting grounds. . . . —Kansas City Star.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Governor Major was a visitor at Independence Monday, attending an "possum dinner given in the parlors of the Christian Church by the ladies of the church, at which about four hundred citizens ate roast "possum and browned potatoes. The governor as the guest of honor addressed the diners in humorous vein, telling some of his youthful experiences in his boyhood home near the head waters of "Pussam Creek, in Pike County. The more serious part of his talk was the subject of good roads, and declared his intention of going to Washington on the following day to help induce congress to appropriate $25,000,000 a year for permanent highway improvement. Should such an appropriation be made Missouri would receive about $1,000,000.

Interest in the church work is being maintained in the several branches. The Wednesday evening prayer services have increased in attendance of late as well as interest. The Religio is awake to its opportunities and is helping maintain activity among the young.

On Sunday morning the whole Sunday school with difficulty crowded into the main auditorium for the closing exercises of the school. The several department superintendents occupying places upon the platform. A short address was given by the superintendent, Bro. D. J. Kral, expressing sentiments of loyalty and good will toward the church and its officers, which was responded to by Bro. G. E. Harrington in behalf of the branch presidency. The occasion tended to strengthen unity among the departments of the school, and between the Sunday school and the church. 809 were present.

Following the excellent morning sermon on the proper formation of character by Bro. W. H. Garrett, a further effort was made to liquidate the indebtedness of the branch due to the installation of a new furnace, laying in the winter's coal, and insurance. An effort will be made by the deacons to reach every resident member of the branch in order to raise the required amount. Every member having ability to help in maintaining the current expenses of the church should not neglect to do so, for the obligation rests upon all according to their ability. A weekly or monthly allowance from each member would remove the necessity of making special appeals.

An unusually large number assembled for the sacrament service in the afternoon, many not being able to find place went to the young people's meeting.

In the evening Bro. M. H. Bond gave an address adapted especially to the young people, warning them against the dangers of sin in various forms, especially those that are destructive of virtue and honor. It was to be regretted that more of the young people were not present to receive the help of his wise counsel and warning.

The editor spent several days of last week at Columbia, Mo., doing some historical research in the library of the State Historical Society in the University Building. He found some valuable items of history relating to the church and the saints in Jackson County in 1831-1834.

The annual election of officers was held at the Sunday school business meeting on Tuesday evening. No other business of importance was transacted. The following were elected for the ensuing year: D. J. Kral superintendent, Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser assistant superintendent, Mrs. Eva Holdsworth secretary, J. A. Gardner treasurer, Myrtle Gerber home department superintendent, Mrs. J. F. Weston superintendent beginner's department, Mrs. J. A. Roberts superintendent primary department, Mrs. Logeman superintendent junior department, M. A. Etzenhouser superintendent intermediate department, Frank Rudd superintendent senior department, Mrs. W. H. Deam superintendent normal dept., Eli Etzenhouser supt. adult dept., Mrs. Anna Roberts supt. cradle roll, Florence Pointer supt. of enrollment. The election to be continued at a later session.

The ladies of the Laurel Club held their annual bazaar last Thursday and Friday but the stormy weather with rain prevented a large attendance. The sale was continued on Monday.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

The morning preaching hour was occupied by Bro. U. A. Austin this being his first effort here, though he has been a member since the organization of the branch. It was an effort that the saints of this branch will not forget soon. The saints were all admonished to be as an army of battling soldiers standing in solid column.

The 2:30 p. m. prayer service was well attended, it being sacrament Sunday, and the saints took advantage of the time in order to renew their strength in the Lord.

At 7:30 p. m. Bro. J. A. Gillen was the speaker, relating some of his experiences while on his mission work. He could have held his audience for another hour. His closing remarks were from the Lord's prayer: "I pray for them; I pray not for the world but for them which thou hast given me."

HOLDEN BRANCH

Your correspondent being away from home for some time, no items have been sent from Holden Branch, but in no wise are we dead, but alive. The work of the Lord is steadily going onward and upward, saints rejoicing in the gospel of divine truth.

On Nov. 29 and 30, the stake Religio convention was held and from all reports was one of the very best conventions held in the stake, the Independence Orchestra gave a concert Saturday night which was enjoyed by all, the church being crowded.

Old Bro. Parsons, father of A. H. Parsons passed away on the 29th after an illness of 11 months, his passing was as a child going to sleep.—Sweet rest.

At the semiannual business meeting Dec. 1st Bro. J. W. Layton was released with a vote of thanks for faithful service as president of the branch, and Bro. James Moler was chosen to fill the place, Bro. Moler has had much experience in the Lord's work and we feel that he will be able to do much good for the work.

Bishop Bullard is holding meetings, and is greeted each evening with a fair sized congregation, considering the weather as it has been raining all week. Today, Saturday the sun is shining brightly.

Sunday morning dawned clear and bright, though cold. 110 were in attendance at Sunday school, morning hour being occupied by our president Bro. J. Moler who gave good counsel and advice which if heeded will result in good to the branch.

Not the activity that should characterize the Sacramental meeting was manifested, however many good testimonies were given.

Bishop Bullard was the speaker for the evening hour closing his effort at this time. A goodly number were in attendance at all the meetings.

A. A. S.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Bro. J. W. Presley and A. Severy, priest and teacher of the Oakland Branch occupied the pulpit Sunday evening the latter in charge and the former delivering a concise acceptable sermon. The morning sermon was by the pastor, the Sunday school and Religio were up to the usual standard—good.

Bishop Parkin was in San Jose on the 23rd on business of his office, and spoke for their morning and evening with good spirit, he occupied the city pulpit Sunday morning last with like results.

News comes to us of the continued good work of Bro. S. Reiste in Sacramento. There has been five baptisms since he began work there.

Sr. Wood who has been so long time afflicted with cancer finally succumbed and was laid to her peaceful rest. She was buried in Sacramento. Bro. Reiste preaching the funeral to a large audience of sympathizing friends. She rests from her labors.

We had the enjoyable privilege of meeting with the city branch Sunday evening going in time to attend their Religio which was good. The program consisted of a unique display of a knowledge of chemistry by Bro. Ali a Saxe who is deeply interested in that study. How wonderful is the world of chemistry. We spoke to the good audience with liberty and general good feeling. The good sisters are having a bazaar this week to help on the good work. Success to every such self denying effort.

SANTA ANA, CAL.

Bro. W. A. McDowell has been holding meetings here in the branch during the past week, that has created some interest among those not of the faith, and has refreshed the saints, though they were not drooping. The interest seems to be steadily increasing. The hall was so well filled last Sunday that more chairs had to be brought from an adjoining room. The Sunday school is a pleasing feature, Sr. Mitchell superintendent, deserves great credit for the uniting efforts she makes to entertain, and instruct the little ones, as well as to oversee the larger classes, and the beauty of it is she does not appear to be making any effort, but fits smilingly about from one place to another, in her rounds of attentiveness.

The Religio is interesting also, and well attended. It is presided over by Sr. Kraschel. The prayer meetings are fairly well attended and enjoyed also. Of late there has been added one hour of choir practice before prayer meeting each Wednesday night. One might ask how I knew that these services are interesting if I cannot hear. Well, I can see, and feel too, and when the average attendance of Sunday school is only three less than the enrollment, upwards of 60, nearly the entire branch, it speaks well for the interest; and about the same for the Religio.

The prayer meetings are held in the houses of the saints. Last Wednesday evening was a most excellent meeting. The good Spirit was present in a marked degree. Bro. Pankey spoke in prophecy, or by the direction of the Spirit to two individuals, and at two different times. In the early part of the meeting a sister bore a vivid testimony of a remarkable instance of healing by the power of God, in her family, and afterwards spoke with liberty exhorting the saints to have faith in God in times of sickness and affliction. After a while all bowed in prayer, and several took part. At the close and before rising from our knees, the Spirit words "Lift up your heads, ye heirs of glory," were spoken most distinctly to the writer. True I knew these words as the first lines of a hymn some years ago, but they had passed from my mind for a length of time, and I realized that they were given as new words for the encouragement of those saints, as the writer informed them after joining the whole verse, with a renewed meaning. And all rejoiced in the most precious re-annunciation of the Spirit.

OMAHA, NEBRASKA.

Omaha has been under a cloud for nearly two weeks now. The faint gray light that becomes perceptible about seven in the morning and gradually brightens as day advances, assures us that the sun still shines and the other day someone said he saw a spot of blue sky. (I wish to record that as a memorial to his optimism).

The weather has slightly affected our attendance at church services. We hope every one will get used to it soon and even though the days are gloomy and wet, they'll go to church "weather or not."

The Ladies Aid Society has been busy preparing for the bazaar to be held in the rotunda of the "Bee" building, December 17th and 18th. They have a fine large stock of material already and a pleasing variety.

The Woman's Auxiliary gave a very interesting program and box social Thanksgiving evening. There were papers and talks on child raising and some very enthusiastic discussions. Musical numbers were added to the program. The box supper, after the program, was given for the benefit of the building fund.

The Sunday school and Religio are doing well. The Book of Mormon Normal Class is better attended than the Bible Normal Class. The B. of M. study seems to be more interesting. The Religio has been having some instructive lectures given by Bro. R. W. Scott, on Bacteria. Next Sunday the 14th a physician of this city will lecture at Religio on Alcohol and its effects on the body.

The branch priesthood have their regular meetings Monday night each week. Their public speaking course which they are taking is an excellent study and very beneficial. These meetings are well attended and always instructive, regular programs being arranged for each meeting.

A men's prayer service was held last Sunday afternoon at the church. The meeting was good and the men enjoyed the Spirit's presence. It seemed to unite them more closely, if possible, than ever.

At the regular business meeting, Wednesday, Nov. 26th, Bro. H. A. Scott and Arthur E. Stoff were called to the office of elder and Bro. T. A. Hicks to the office of deacon. Bro. Hicks was ordained at the next Wednesday night prayer service. This makes eight calls to the priesthood in the branch this year.

Next Wednesday, Dec. 10th, is the regular election of officers. These new officers take their places the first of the year. The saints have been prayerfully considering this important meeting as they do all important special meetings. The Lord has blessed us as a result in the past and so we look forward to his direction in this meeting.

The choir and Sunday school are working up a Christmas Cantata together called "The Holy One of Israel" to be given Tuesday night, Dec. 22nd.

We feel a spirit of unity and progress all through the branch and are hopeful of the work in Omaha.

CORRESPONDENCE

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 14.

Dear Ensign:—Last August I accepted an appointment to labor in the field which I have done since that time. On the 16th of October I went to Seligman by request of Bro. S. Farrington who took me about ten miles into the Ozark Mountains. I stayed with Bro. J. H. Poe and preached there twelve times assisted by Bro. John Shifflet, but not much interest. From there I went down the Roaring River about six miles to the Muncie school house and preached six times and stayed with Bro. Farrington, and held one prayer and sacrament meeting.

By request I went to Eagle Rock school house and preached there six times to a full house, and then some Baptists raised the cry that I was a Mormon so the people would not come out any more. There was a rough lot of young men and boys wired up the wheel of Bro. Emmett's wagon and said that they were going to egg me out of the country. So I went again to the Muncie school house and preached on Sunday night, and the same gang came four miles to egg me there, but the leader got too much whiskey, and got drunk, so I didn't get any of their eggs.

A Baptist man came to Bro. John Emmett's house and would have me go with him to his house. I did so and had a good time with them, and convinced them that we were not Mormons. He said that he had done with the Baptist Church, and said that if I ever came there again I could preach in his house. Another man came to Bro. Emmett's house and talked with me all day and said that he was satisfied that we had the truth and he was going to investigate. I left there and Bro. Poe took me back to Seligman and there I visited Bro. Bearley and Bro. King. There has been no preaching there for some years. I remain yours in gospel bonds,

J. W. Thorpe,

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Nov. 30.

Editor Ensign:—Thanksgiving has passed on from this year 1913, but has left many a soul happy, for sweet hopes born, for sorrows dead, for the ready cup, for the daily bread. It has left us with many beautiful things for reflection, one is this latter day gospel, in which many are engaged. I find it one of the safeguards to all that is noble and good. What a grand experience to us was the day the good Messenger from his throne high up in heaven again gave us communication between heaven and earth by establishing the invisible cable, extending from every believing heart straight up to the eternal throne, on which messages can be dispatched both ways, and by which God's light, love and power and blessing can be received and felt in human hearts and homes.

Many times his message has come to me in great power, as I have been reflecting on the great and mighty work of the gospel in all of its fullness. I do not have the ready tongue to speak my thoughts; sometimes the soul knows what it ought to do, but like a man paralyzed it cannot do what it wants to. Paul says to will is present with me but how to perform I find not. I am in the same straits, I cannot do what I wish to do. The Lord is just and my prayer is that he will take the will for the deed. He knows our cir-circumstances, he does not forget us but showers blessings on all of his work according to their susceptibilities, making his saints to grow in wisdom, the grass to spring up on the mead, the grain to vegetate in the fields, the shrub to grow on the plain, and the flowers to blossom over his creation. He also causes the influence of the Holy Spirit to descend on the moral soul, producing conviction in the guilty, illumination in the ignorant, holiness in the defiled, strength in the feeble, and comfort in the distressed.

The spirit of pure holiness imparts a pure love, as the spirit of glory it throws a radiance over the character, as the spirit of life it revives religion, as the spirit of truth it gives transparency to understanding, the spirit of prayer melts the soul into devotion, and the spirit of power covers the face of the earth with works and labors of love, wherever the hand-work of God is seen, we behold the most perfect order and harmony. God is emphatically a God of order. Order is heaven's first law; it is only where sin has left its foot prints, where the trail of the old serpent is seen.

Mary A. Atwell.

LAMONI, Iowa, Nov. 23.

Dear Ensign:—It has been some three or four years since I contributed any items to your readers. The ENSIGN is always interesting to me and one reason is I have some knowledge of its influence for good out in the "field," as a messenger for the restored gospel.

On October 5th I was called by telegram to Benedict, Neb., where my sister, Mrs. Lizzie C. McConnell and her two daughters, and one son live. Her daughter, Mrs. Minnie Mostrove, had been very sick for nearly eight weeks and died the following morning after I reached there. Arrangements were made for me to preach her funeral in the Lutheran Church, which I did to a large gathering, being assisted by the M. E. minister. My text was Job 14:14, and 14:7: "If a man die shall he live again? All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change comes." "For there is hope of a tree if it be cut down, that it will sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not cease.

"Minnie" was a good woman and saint, having lived the life that reflected the light of the gospel, and had many warm friends. She is now gone to her reward in the paradise of God to await and receive the expressed desire of the Psalmist David: "As for me I will behold thy face in righteousness. I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness." The day following the funeral I baptized three precious souls, names and P. O. addresses as follows: Mrs. Lucilla McConnell, Benedict, Neb.; Norman Richardson and Don Curtis McConnell, North Loup, Neb. Sr. Norman Richardson told me she would like very much for some missionaries to call on them, she thought there would be no trouble in getting the use of the church to hold meetings in. Arrangements were made for me to occupy in the Lutheran Church over Sunday, but after the baptism, confirmation and preaching a sermon on the laying on of hands, the church was closed against me. Some of the good friends hired the town hall, paying $4.00 for it for one night, at which time ecstasies got a little shaking up. Kind friends offered to furnish the hall for a few nights but I felt it was asking of them too much, when at the same time two churches were in town not occupied. I preached two sermons at a private house, and blessed two children.

On October 13th, in company with my sister took train for St. Joseph, Mo., and made a short visit there with my daughter, Etta Mason. From there on the 16th we visited my daughter, Jennie Branson, at Waldron, Mo., about seventeen miles north of Kansas City. Mrs. Branson has been living at this place for some two years, and of late has been organist and Sunday school teacher in the Methodist Church. I was requested to preach in their church. I raised most of the day and was quite muddy, but somewhere near thirty-five or forty were out and I felt well in talking to them. They were hungry for something they had not been receiving—the true message of life. I was asked to remain and preach for their week, but could not, stopping a day or two at Independence; from there to Lowry City where my brother, T. R. lives. I spoke for them twice on Sunday and once on Monday evening, feeling blessed in spirit, and trust good was done.

On the 23rd I took train at Kansas City for El Reno, Okla., where my son Oliver and wife live. I found them interested in the gospel. Bro. Hubert Cass of Kingfisher, Okla., had just spent the night before I arrived, at my sons. They surely enjoy the company of the elders and the gospel food they dish up.

Old Lady Finney was visiting at my son's and I spent many a pleasant hour talking with her on the restored gospel. She had been educated and matured in the Catholic faith, but for all of that the gospel as delivered by the angel seemed to be sweet to her. I have learned since my return here that in about two weeks after I left she suddenly fell ill and died in three or four days. She said she wished I were there to pray for her, and she will no doubt be among the honorable ones of earth and blessed of our Father in heaven. While at my son's I blessed my grandson, Russell Curtis White, and the old grandmother seemed to enjoy it as much as any of us. Oliver took his auto and speeded me down to Oklahoma City. This surely is a fine town, but almost a failure of crops for the last two years makes business dull and many of the merchants are closing out (if not closed out by the officers) and seeking other trades.

I just spent a week at El Reno, returning to Waldron, Mo., where I had preached in the Methodist Church. Nothing would do but, I must preach for them again, so on Monday night, November 3rd, I spoke to a well filled house. Never had better attention, and at the close almost every one in the room gave me a hearty shake of the hand expressing desire to hear more. I believe good could be done by holding a few meetings at that place. If anyone will look after the work there, just write to my daughter, Mrs. Jennie V. Branson, she will let them know at what time the church can be had for service. As I move out among the people I see there is almost a consensus for the word of God. I lose trust in the Lord may remember all of his people and that by and by the gospel may reach all that are ready to accept it.

Your brother in Christ,

D. C. White.

Fayette City, Pa., Nov. 6.

Dear Ensign:—The sands of time pass rapidly and there come the peculiar changes incident to life. Of the work in Fayette City it may be truly said—the kingdom, of heaven suffereth. However we are thankful for the hope that prompts us to quote Dan. 7:27. "And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High." The names of Pierre, Gaskill, Raisbeck, Winship and Ashton with many others are closely connected with the local work in Fayette City. Nearly all the missionaries who have labored in the Pittsburgh District have given some time and talent to this branch and no doubt, have found recollections of saintly associations.

October 24, 25, 26 many of the saints of the Pittsburgh District met here in convention and conference capacity. The Sunday school met under the superintendency of Bro. J. A. Jaques. Field Worker Sis. G. T. Griffiths was in attendance and rendered valuable aid. Conference convened at 10 a. m. Saturday. There was very little business done the object being educational. The preaching was of a high character, Bro. A. V. Closson of Independence occupying in the morning, Bro. R. Baldwin in the evening. The social service was remarkable. All were comforted and inspired to do better. We had the gift of songs declaring the glories of Zion. Then by the same Spirit we were told we were not yet prepared to live in Zion. Nov. 27 Bro. R. Baldwin baptized two sisters in the Monongahela River. The incident attracted the attention of the reporter which resulted in a short and appropriate write up with flaming headlines on the front page. Bro. A. V. Closson and writer are holding a series of meetings here in which we hope and pray we may be permitted to do some good.

ASHLAND, Wis. Nov. 1st.

Dear Ensign:—We have learned something lately that I know if all understood as we have learned to understand, the financial question which has assumed itself to be a burden to some would be made a pleasure. We have learned that if each member of the church in our district should send 15 cents a month to Bro. Nalmer Johnson, Chetek, Wis., our missionaries would be kept in the field and not find it necessary to work to help the members of their families who the membership should support.

I want to tell you how we have decided to do it. Once a month each member brings in fifteen cents and the superintendent of the Sunday school sends that amount in to God's store house and receives from the church through Bro. Johnson a titling receipt for that amount. In sending it in this way one letter and one money order will be all that is necessary and the saints will not feel backward about sending in small amounts. Now this is the smallest amount that can be sent in by each member and keep our missionaries in the field. It should be sent as titling until your individual titling is all paid and then no one could refuse or feel too poor. I am sure to send in that amount as an offering which may be used by bishop's agent, Bro. Johnson for the same purpose as titling if necessary. I want to quote a few passages which have helped me to see God's will in this matter.

Who claims the gold and silver of the earth? Answer, Hagai 2:8. In what capacity does man hold property? Ans. Matt 25:14-30. How does man have power to get wealth? Ans. Deut. 8:18. What part of that which we own does the Lord require us to give to him? Lev 27:30. If one withholds from God that which belongs to him in return for the abundance he gives us, of what sin is he guilty? Ans. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." Mal. 3:8. How early in the history of the world do we read of tithing? Ans. Heb. 7:1,2. Tithes were collected under the Melchisedec priesthood. Is that order in existence now? Heb. 6:20. Abraham paid tithes under the Melchisedec priesthood. Christ, is of the same order. If we are Christ's then we are Abraham's children. Gal 3:29. If we are Abraham's children indeed, what should we do? Ans. John 8:39. Did Christ approve, when on earth, of the tithing system? Ans. Matt. 23:23. How does Paul say ministers of the gospel should be supported? Ans. I Cor. 13:14.

How much of the tithes does the Lord demand to be brought into the storehouse? Ans. Mal. 3:10. What will the Lord do for those who give him his own? Mal. 3:11,12. Is tithing enjoined upon saints in these last days, "a day of sacrifice, and a day for the fitting of my people; for he that is tithed shall be not burned." D. and C. 64:5. See also D. and C. 106:2. We have only one thing to do and that is to look over and add up our tithing receipts and see if they foot up to one-tenth of all we own that we did not own when we came into this world, if they do not, then we ought to begin to pay God what we owe him. No less than 15 cents a month will we owe him no tithing and then no less than that each month as offerings. Someone is robbing God. We must ask ourselves, "Is it 15?" There are 433 saints in our district and if we each sent in 15 cents each month that would be $64.95.

One dollar and 15 cents short of what it costs to keep the families of our two missionaries besides what they must help themselves. Some will send more than 15 cents a month that will make up the shortage. Our missionaries' families are now two months behind in their allowances, let us increase the amount as much as possible at least until they have caught up. Another thing we want very much is an outfit for two of our missionaries to take with them from place to place and preach in tents during the season when such preaching is possible. Let us send in enough so we can have this and then the isolated members and outside people will be able to hear more preaching.

Your sister in Christ,

Mabel M. Dennis.

1711 5th St. E.

The foregoing letter of Sr. Mabel M. Dennis is appreciable from the standpoint that Sr. Dennis is urging everybody to get to work; but we suggest that instead of fixing the amount of the contribution of each one at fifteen cents per month, that the amount should be left as stated in the law, "Let every one lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him."

Members of the body of Christ should be ever prompt and active in performance of their respective duties in that body. It is tersely stated in the Scriptures that if we perform our respective parts, we are "workers together with God." If we do not perform our part of the work, however, it is very easy to see that we cannot appropriately be termed "workers with him." There should be promptness of assistance given in every district, and the saints and friends should be ever ready in this good work, but never forget that the rule is, "As the Lord hath blessed every one so let him give," and no one should wait to ascertain just how much some other brother or sister shall give, but each contribute as "The Lord hath prospered him," remembering the injunction of the apostle "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully."

Trusting the Lord may waken each one to the performance of his or her full duty.

Very respectfully,
E. L. Kelley, Bishop.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Nov. 25.

Dear Ensign:—I ask for this way to inform my many friends and all concerned in my case as to how I am. Nine months ago today in our sanitarium a ten pound brace and a five pound shoe were put on me, as the surgeons said I would have to wear these for a year and a half or two years to make my diseased left hip solid ridged, and stout enough for me to get about as a missionary minister of the, to me, beautiful gospel of Christ.

Eleven months ago I came to the sanitarium for treatment. It took nearly two months to rest and build me up from overwork and suffering, because of trying to keep busy in gospel work, under great inconveniences because of the serious condition of my limb. Thirty-six years ago when I was fourteen years old I strained the hip joint, climbing in a tree. When the doctor at that time came he treated it for sciatic rheumatism, which only caused me greater suffering under his treatment for weeks of blistering, cupping and taking a great amount of bitter liquid medicine and powders, all to no purpose. Hence for all these years I have known what great pain is.

I have been doing missionary work about twenty years, and have brought a goodly number of people into the church. Several of these I have baptized are today branch officers, a few are effective missionaries, others are workers in the Auxiliaries, and in various ways, homes and individual lives have been made brighter and much pleasanter, because of the efforts I have put forth under these trying conditions.

During these long months of enforced rest I have taken real pleasure in thinking over the experiences of bringing these people into the church, of their progress in the work and great love for the same. Also of the pleasant associations of the brethren of the ministry and true saints and friends. I also remember their kindly ministrations of sympathy in so many ways too numerous to mention.

I am improving slowly and have confidence in the treatment to believe it will be a success finally, and that again I will be able to put in several years more of active ministerial work.

I was in the sanitarium in all for near eight months, have been with my family at home for six or eight weeks. We live at 820 West Kansas Street, about one block east of the Stone Church here in Independence. I am not able to write much, but an encouraging letter from any of the saints would be gratefully received and read by me. In conclusion I will ask the saints everywhere to pray for me that I may be blessed with the needed degree of patience, endurance, hope and faith in the gospel, in its promises, and in God, so that I may have a speedy recovery to health and strength. I want to assure all that I desire and aim to try to live fully worthy of your sympathy, confidence, faith and prayers in my behalf.

So may God bless all his saints and especially the afflicted ones, is the earnest prayer of your humble and much afflicted brother in the gospel.

Elder F. L. Sawley.

GLORIFICATIONS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Lee German, Websdale, Alta.—I have been reading the Evening and Morning Star for over a year. The people it represents claim the name "Church of Christ," and also to be the church organized by Joseph Smith in 1830. They seem to agree that they have only part of a church as yet—no apostles or seventies, etc., but hold that those will yet be added. I do not want to turn back to the times of the world, and if I should leave the true church I must say like the apostles of old, "Where shall we go?"

Mary A. Asa, Dexter, Mo. I am all alone so far as saints are concerned, and the ENSIGN is the only preacher we have and I am anxious for its arrival every week. But I thank the Lord that he is just as near as if there were thousands of us. I am one of the oldest saints living, having been in the church fifty-four years out of my seventy-one, and by the help of God I am going to remain in it the rest of my days. I ask an interest in the prayers of the saints.

Dan Lewis, Lowell, Ark. We are trying to let our light shine so that people can see by our daily walk that there is something to what we preach. I have had some experience since I have been in the church, but I understand that that goes with the work. Our Sunday school is small but still we attend, and walk six miles and ride White River twice. We go to prayermeeting every Wednesday night when the weather is fit. May God help us all to do our part, and keep his commandments.

Otis Reed, Stillwater, Okla. I take pleasure in letting you know that the ENSIGN is a great pleasure to me. If there are any saints in or around Stillwater I would be glad to meet them, if they will drop me a card stating their address,

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE TRUE FOUNDATION.

BY ELDER F. J. EBELING.

In all successful undertakings there must be a proper beginning. The very first thing to consider in accepting any proposition, should be the basic principles upon which it rests. A correct conclusion can only be reached when correct premises underlie them; This is a fundamental truth, and more especially when considering the great proposition of the church of God which Paul says in 1 Timothy 3:15 is "the pillars and ground of truth."

The great plan of salvation has a foundation upon which rests the happiness of those who build thereupon, and it should be the earnest and honest effort of every individual seeking salvation to find this foundation.

Some have argued that the apostles are the foundation, and in support of this quote Eph. 2:20 which says, "and are built upon the foundation of the apostles, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone."

Our opponents have urged this idea in their endeavor to destroy our position of apostolic succession. If the apostles are the foundation then only those apostles whom Jesus placed there could be the only ones, they contend.

Note the language: "The foundation of the apostles." The specific article before the word "apostles" indicates that the apostles had a foundation which is veritably true, and this is the foundation for which we are searching.

Instead of the organization being the cause of the gospel the gospel is the cause of the organization. The organization is simply the gospel functioning itself. In the days of Christ as well as in these last days, the church existed and the gospel preached years before there were any apostles.

The foundation existed prior, and finally produced the complete organization of which apostles and prophets are a part.

We are now prepared to state positively, by the word of God, just what is the true foundation, and by a test very familiar to all Latter Day Saints. Heb. 6:1,2. "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ let us go on unto perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms and of the laying on of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead and eternal judgment. Those six principles are called by the inspired apostle, "the foundation," then goes on and names the six stones. Upon these rests the whole plan of salvation. They are the warp and woof of God's plan to redeem man. And in all the stages from fallen to heavenly angels, they must be reckoned with. Upon them the organization rests. For no individual, let him be ever so learned and influential could be ordained to any office in the church unless he had first subscribed to those principles.

It is by and through the doctrine of Christ we can only receive God and Christ, consequently eternal life. Hear what the Apostle John says touching them.

"Whoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son." 2 Jn. 1:9. How any one after reading this plain and positive declaration, can set aside any of the six principles mentioned in Heb. 6:1,2 which Paul calls the very foundation of the doctrine of Christ is more than we are able to say, unless blinded with prejudice and bound by tradition.

Now since the principles of the doctrine of Christ are faith, repentance, baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment, and John says we cannot have God or Christ unless we abide in them, we therefore must of necessity honor and obey those six principles before we can secure full salvation.

Many are trying to climb up, some other way but Jesus says of those in John 10. "They are thieves and robbers."

All those who build upon those six principles as the foundation of their hope of glory are those who build upon the foundation of gold and silver. Hear what Paul says with reverence to a proper foundation.

"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ: Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble: every man's work shall be mademanifest, for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire, and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." The fire referred to here is the time of the judgment when all shall have answer to the great Judge for the way in which to they have received the word of God, which word is to be the thing which is to judge us in the last day.

But says one, the foundation referred to here, is Jesus Christ. True, but Jesus Christ cannot be separated from his doctrine as we have already quoted in 2 John 9. We can only find Christ through the gospel for which he gave his life, consequently the one includes the other.

When we speak of being saved through Jesus Christ, it is the same as being saved through the gospel. In the great commission as recorded in Mark 16. Jesus says "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel . . . he that believeth, and is baptized shall be saved." Believe what? why, believe the gospel, for that is the very thing he told his apostles to preach.

About the first declaration Jesus made after entering upon his ministry was, "The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God is at hand, repent ye, and believe the gospel." Mark 1:15. So you see we are to believe the gospel, of which there are six foundation principles, and there is Christ and his gospel the foundation, but Jesus the "chief corner stone."

As important as the foundation is, there is something still more important, and back of that yet. And that is the thing upon which the foundation rests.

A building may be ever so elaborate, the foundation made of the best and costliest material, but if it rests upon sand the whole thing will tumble to the ground. The first thing to consider in erecting a building is a firm base upon which to place the foundation.

Jesus makes this very plain in Luke 6:47. "Whoever cometh to me and heareth my sayings and doeth them I will show you to whom he is like: He is like a man which built an house and digged deep and laid his foundation on a rock." You will note that Jesus says, "Whoever heareth his sayings and doeth them are the ones who have a true and firm foundation resting upon a rock. This agreeing with John, who said "Whoever abideth in the doctrine of Christ, hath the Father and the Son."

The question now arises, what is the rock upon which the foundation rests. Those principles are the product of something and that something is the rock. What was it that brought forth the principles of the gospel? Was it not the authority of God, through divine revelation? Then in fine the authority of God is the rock upon which the entire structure sits. A man may preach the principles exactly as they are recorded in the New Testament but if he has not been authorized by God, it is tantamount to building a beautiful house and foundation upon the sand. The preacher and preaching may be beautiful but unless God has authorized him the storms of God's judgment will undermine the whole work as far as the celestial reward is concerned. Or as David declares in Ps. 127, "Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it."

That God's authority is the rock we need only to read John 13:20. "Verily, verily, I say unto you he that receiveth whomsoever I send, receiveth me and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me."

According to this the receiving of God depends entirely upon the sending of God. According to Jesus Christ the only way we can receive God, is by receiving those servants whom he has authorized to represent him. So back of all organization and foundation there rests God's authority, the message of which all must receive in order to receive full salvation, for remember in order to be received of God, we must receive those servants whom God sends. Again Christ says in John 12:47. "He that rejecteth me and receiveth not my words hath one that judgeth him. The words that I have spoken the same will judge him in the last day."

By this statement the way one can and does reject Christ is by rejecting his word. And how many are rejecting Christ today? And all those who will not believe and obey the principles as given by the Apostle Paul in Heb. 6:1,2, are building upon an uncertain foundation of hay, stubble, or wood, And the day of judgment will reveal the human folly.

The clergy of the day claim all the authority we need is what we find recorded in the Bible. To them that is all the gospel there is while in reality that is only a small part of the gospel.

The great rock of authority is little recognized by the preachers of the day. All claiming to be sent of God, but all representing him differently. How long do you suppose a firm could do business if all their agents went out representing their goods in as many different ways.

Paul tells us very plainly the four elements of the gospel. See 1 Thess. 1:5. "For our gospel came not in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost and in much assurance. The power referred to here is the authority for preaching the word. In here we find the four elements, word, power, Holy Ghost, much assurance. But the clergy has only one fourth of the gospel, the written word. Therefore not having the power (authority) cannot impart the Holy Ghost, which brings the much assurance.

All those denying the principles of the gospel, which Paul declares to be the foundation or failing to adopt them, have absolutely no foundation, and at this juncture comes the statement of John again to our minds. "Whoever abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God." It seems passing strange the learned clergy cannot see the groundless position they occupy. But as it was in the days of Christ so it is now. They have eyes and will not see, ears and will not hear.

We should take courage and rejoice every day in the fact we are engaged in a work whose maker and builder is God, and whose foundation standeth sure.

Stonington, Me.

WILL THE RESURRECTION BE PHYSICAL AND REAL? CAN AND WILL RESURRECTED BEINGS EAT AND DRINK?

Resurrection from a scriptural standpoint means redemption or restoration; to be restored back to Edenic condition, with the addition of knowing good from evil and being immortal, (not subject to death.) So what the first man, Adam, lost through transgression, will be restored through Jesus the Christ; (to eat of the trees of the garden and to live forever).

I will now quote from the three standard books of the church. Job 19:26. Here Job said that he would yet in his flesh see God; (last days). Ezekiel 37:1-14 shows that the resurrection will be physical, a reality, that we will have bodies of flesh and bones, bone to his bone, flesh and sinews upon them and skin covering them. And this is to be the whole house of Israel. Their bodies are to come up out of the graves, (not from heaven). Matthew 27:56,57. I. T. says that many bodies of the saints which slept, arose, that their graves were opened and that they came out of their graves. Alma 8:10, 11 tells us that "the spirit and the body shall be reunited, in its perfect form; both limb and joint shall be restored to its proper frame, even as we now are at this time. . . . Now this restoration shall come to all, both old and young, both bond and free, both male and female, both the wicked and the righteous; and even there shall not so much as a hair of their heads be lost; but all things shall be restored to its perfect frame, as it is now, or in the body. . . . This mortal body is raised to an immortal body."

Doctrine and Covenants 85:4-6.—Here the Lord tells us that "the spirit and the body is the soul of man, and the resurrection from the dead is the redemption of the soul; . . . that the poor and meek of the earth shall inherit it, . . . for notwithstanding they die, they also shall rise again a spiritual body; they who are of a celestial spirit shall receive the same body, which was a natural body; even ye shall receive your bodies."

The dead (speaking of the body) shall come up out of the grave, or earth. Ezekiel 37:1-14; Matt. 27:56,57; Isaiah 26:19; Hosea 13:14; 1 Samuel 2:6; Daniel 12:2; 1 Thess. 4:14-18; John 5:28,29; 2 Nephi 6:5; D. C. 28:6; 85:4,27; 108:10.

From the above quotations we can see that something is coming out of the earth; this surely must be the body; just as Jesus arose from the grave. We are told that we will be like the resurrected Jesus (immortal) when we are resurrected, 1 John 3:2. And in Acts 1:11 it is stated that the same Jesus that ascended will again descend from heaven. And then he will slay the wicked and cleanse the earth by fire; (Isaiah 11:4; Mal. 4:1-3). Then is the earth to be made new, and peace will prevail. Then we are to build new houses and inhabit them, plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them. Now if it were only mortals who were going to build houses and plant vineyards and enjoy them, then this explanation is unnecessary, as that was and is the way that mortals have done ever since the days of Adam, for we know from experience that mortals will need houses to protect them from the rain, etc., for it will rain after the second coming of Christ; (see Zech. 14:16-18; Amos 9:14,15; and Micah 4:1-4 says they shall plant gardens and eat of them, they shall plant vineyards and drink the wine of them; and that every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree. This is to be after the resurrection when they are placed back in their own land, Amos 9:15; Ezeck. 37:13,14. Now we all believe that Jesus was immortal when he arose from the dead; and he was called the first fruits of those that sleep, (1 Cor. 15:20-23), and we can all understand that the second fruits will be of the same nature of the first fruits. (1 John 3:2; Rom. 6:5).

In John 21 we read of Jesus preparing a meal over a fire of coals with his own hands.

Luke 24:39-43 tells us that the resurrected Jesus met with them and showed them his hands and his feet, that it was he himself, and he told them to handle him, and that spirits did not have flesh and bones as he had: then "they gave him a piece of a broiled fish and honeycomb and he took it and did eat it before them." (He was immortal then). Now to prove for sure that it was the same Jesus, I call your attention to John 20:27 where he met Thomas eight days later and told him to put his finger in his side; it was still the same Jesus, and Thomas saw him. Zecharias 13:6, and Doctrine and Covenants 45:8,9, tell us that he will still have those wounds in his body when he comes the second time. See Zion's Praises page 34: Here we sing of his coming and that we shall know him by the print of the nails in his hands; if we do not believe this to be true, then we ought not to sing it, for it is just as bad to sing a falsehood as to teach one.

In Matthew 26:29 he promised his disciples that he would drink wine with them when he comes again. (See Braden and Kelley Debate page 335). Surely the disciples will be resurrected beings when Jesus comes again. The very same bodies we have, can and could be made immortal. There were Enoch and all his people that were taken up to heaven without passing through the grave, but were translated, (were made immortal beings), and there was Elijah who was taken to heaven, besides there are many others that will not pass through the earth or become de-composed, but will be changed from mortality to immortality. (1 Cor. 15:51-3; D. and C. 63:13).

Then we will all live and reign with Jesus a thousand years here on the earth, where the gardens and the vines will grow, and where universal peace will reign, and we will learn war no more.

HOW TO KNOW.

Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself.—John 7:16-17.

This is the whole lesson of modern psychology and philosophy. The way to know is to do. "The worth of a man depends on his will, not on his knowledge," was the profound observation of the great philosopher, Kant, a century ago.

"In one word," says Fichte, one of his successors, "it is only through the will that a new light is thrown on our existence and future destiny. Without this, let me be endowed with ever so rare intellectual gifts, darkness remains within me and around me."

"Doubt of any kind," Carlyle writes in "Sartor Resartus," "cannot be removed except by action. On which ground, too, let him who gropes painfully in darkness or uncertain light, and prays vehemently that dawn may ripen into day, lay this other precept well to heart—Do the duty which lies nearest thee."

The most recent interpretations of life by such brilliant and original thinkers as William James of Harvard and Henri Bergson of Paris, have emphasized the fact that purposes are the fundamental things in the world, and that the processes of thought are poor representations of reality.

"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine." We only find ourselves, come to ourselves, understand ourselves, through activity. We may think we have fine ideals. But they have never been tested in action. We do not know whether we really believe them or not. Under the stress of temptation we discover whether we amount to anything. Then we learn what we believe.

When we start out in life we have a stock of inherited beliefs of one sort and another. We are not in a position to test them and learn which are the essential ones, and which the trivial. We learn by living. "Experience," the adage says, "is the best teacher," and the adage is right.

That is why the mere theorist never makes the impression on us that is made by the man of affairs. A professional lecturer may be amusing, clever, instructive. But unless there is a life back of the lecture, it carries little weight. The average audience would rather hear the man who has done big things, even if he is a clumsy speaker, than the man who never has done anything but talk.

"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine." "So far as I can see," an eminent psychologist writes, "all the evidence points to the fact that we must depend on our active living to bring us light as to our part and place in the world. In our soberest, sincerest activity comes our revelation—the touch with the Infinite."

Our education lies not in dreaming, but in working—in doing a man's part, or a woman's part, in the daily life. "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine."—Sel.

NEGRO TROOPS IN THE CIVIL WAR.

As showing the fulfillment of the statement in the prophecy of war by Joseph Smith, Jr., relating to slaves being martialled and disciplined for war the following is to the point:

"The idea of commanding negro troops was at first severely ridiculed, and the prejudice was so great that but few men could be found who possessed the moral courage to face the obliquity which threatened to overwhelm all who accepted position in colored regiments. There were, however, a few commissioned and non-commissioned officers in some of the white regiments, whose patriotism and courage could stand the test, these men stepping into the breach, formed the nucleus of what ultimately became an army of nearly two hundred thousand well organized, finely drilled, and highly disciplined troops. These troops, as fast as organized and equipped, took the field and, by their conduct under fire, soon won the respect of the whole army. The prejudice against them disappeared, and at least in the army, and thereafter, white and colored soldiers fought side by side, mingling their blood in the common pool on many hard fought fields."

A DAY OF REST.

A new law which went into effect in the State of New York yesterday provides that all employees shall have one day of rest in seven. It applies to all factories, mills and stores, even to cigar stores and drug stores. The only general exceptions are janitors, superintendents, foremen and watchmen. Bakers may work three hours on Sunday for setting their bread material. Persons who care for live stock or attend to boilers may remain on duty part of the day. It is estimated that in Greater New York more than fifty thousand persons are employed seven days in the week. The new law will mean a day of rest for the greater number of these toilers.

It is a serious reflection upon the public as well as upon employers that such a law is necessary. Common humanity, aside from religious impulses, should lead the public to demand that every person regularly employed shall have one day of rest in seven. It is not simply a question of recreation and attention to religious duties, but one of health. The person who remains at his post of employment continuously without an occasional day off, must be exceptionally strong physically if he does not feel the effect of the monotonous strain in a way to seriously impair health. The increase of Sunday work in recent years, a great deal of it unnecessary, is due to the fact that the public has not raised its voice in protest. Unless the public expresses its disapproval in a way that will carry conviction inconsiderate employers will continue to exploit the health of the wage earners and incidentally secularize the Sabbath. More law should not be necessary.—Sel.

ANCIENT SCHOOLBOOKS DISCOVERED.

Professor Langdon of Oxford, England, who is spending some time at the University of Pennsylvania, has discovered that one group of the famous Nippur tablets stored at the university are in reality the oldest schoolbooks known to exist. They show that the children of the ancients learned much that the boys and girls of today have to study,

According to these tablets the children of 4,200 years ago were taught arithmetic, geography, history and grammar just like the children of today. The multiplication tables are remarkably distinct, and in plain numerals show the incontrovertible fact that three times one are three and five times one are five. On one tablet the schoolboy had been given a lesson in phonetic signs corresponding to the shorthand of modern times. The Sumerians to the authors of these tablets at the Pennsylvania University, also invented the use of writing syllables and combining them into words, being the first step toward the alphabet.—The Christian Herald.

JONAH REALLY HAD A RIVAL.

Tonganoxie, Kas.—To The Star: Some years ago in the struggle of a whaling crew with a whale, one of their number was lost. The whale was towed alongside the ship and cut up. When the stomach was reached the missing seaman was found inside. Life was not extinct and he was resuscitated. He had been in the belly of the whale thirty-six hours. His skin was blotched and discolored from the action of the gastric juice. The French Academy of Science thoroughly investigated the occurrence and pronounced it true.—H. U. Needham.

A PARABLE.

Then shall the kingdom of Satan be likened unto a grain of tobacco seed, which, though exceeding small, being cast into the ground, grew, and became a great weed and spread its leaves rank and broad so that huge and vile worms formed their habitation thereon.

And it came to pass that the sons of men looked upon this weed and the eyes of their understanding being darkened thought it beautiful to look upon, and much to be desired to make youth of tender years look big and manly. So they did put forth their hands and did chew thereof. And some it made sick, others to vomit most filthily.

And moreover it came to pass that those who chewed thereof became weak and sick, and could not deliver themselves from the desire of having bits of it continuously in their mouths, which aforesaid had been clean and ruddy, but now became foul and black, and besides, the chewers were seized with a constant and violent spitting of unclean humors, and they did spit in all places, even in ladies' parlors, and in the courts of the Lord of Hosts. And the good and true, and all that led pure lives were grievously plagued thereby.

And it came to pass that men were dissatisfied with merely chewing the strange weed, but sought out other and cunning devices for using it. Some indeed, did make into a fine powder and filled their nostrils therewith, and they were taken suddenly with fits, and they did sneeze with great and mighty sneezes, inasmuch that their eyes were filled with tears, and their faces with wrinkles, and they did look foolish exceedingly.

And yet others cunningly wrought the leaves thereof into rolls, and did set fire to one end thereof and did suck vehemently at the other, and did look very grave and calf-like, and the smoke of their burning and sucking ascended up forever and forever.

And there were men whose wisdom being that of the fox beholding the multitude which did chew, and smoke, and snuff, and said among themselves, "Come let us plant and water, and increase the production of this weed whose name is tobacco, for therein is a mighty and increasing business;" and they did so, and the merchantmen waxed rich in the commerce thereof.

And it came to pass that even the saints of the Most High became bondservants to the weed and defiled themselves therewith; even the poor, who said they could not buy shoes and books for their little ones, spent their substance therefor.

And the anger of the Lord was kindled by such wickedness and he said "Wherefore this? wasteful? And why do these little ones lack bread, and shoes, and books? Turn now your fields into corn and wheat and put the evil thing far from you and be separate, and defile not yourself any more, and I will bless you, and cause my face to shine upon you."

But with one accord they raised their voices and exclaimed: "We cannot cease from chewing, snuffing, and puffing—we are slaves."—A Tract.

The Holy Spirit would lead us to think much upon our own sins. It is a dangerous thing for us to dwell upon the imperfections of others.—Ichabod Spencer.

THE ROUND TABLE.

Does the church interpret the parable of the laborers in the vineyard as given in Matthew 20:1-8 to mean the different dispensations of time? If so how do we harmonize the thought in verses 9:16 that they who went into the vineyard in the early morning labored all day when those who labored in the first dispensation have ceased their labors and gone to their reward?

The church has never formally declared its interpretation of this parable, nor is it necessary that it should, but it seems to be the general opinion of the elders that it applies to the different dispensations in which the gospel has been ministered to men. Those who labored in the earlier dispensations with some who have labored in this last, have passed from this life and "rest from their labors" so far as the flesh is concerned, but as stated by the voice from heaven in Revelation 14:13, "Their works do follow them." That they continue to labor as angels for the salvation of men may be seen by the record of Moses and Elias appearing to Christ, and the angel appearing to John who declared "I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the prophets." This thought is supported by latter day revelation which, speaking of those who die and have been faithful, they "shall rest from all their labors here, and shall continue their works."—D. C. 107:27. Paul's statement "That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are on earth," indicates that the heavenly forces will be required to accomplish the work of the last dispensation. In the light of this statement the following is in point:

And again what do we hear? Glad tidings from Cumorah! Moroni, an angel from heaven, declaring the fulfillment of the prophecies—the book to be revealed. . . . The voice of Michael on the banks of the Susquehanna, detecting the devil when he appeared as an angel of light. The voice of Peter, James and John . . . declaring themselves as possessing the keys of the kingdom, and of the dispensation of the fulness of times. . . . And the voice of Michael, the archangel, the voice of Gabriel, and Raphael, and of divers angels, from Michael or Adam down to the present time, all declaring each one their dispensation, their rights, their keys, their honors, their majesty and glory, and the power of their priesthood.—D. C. 110:20,21.

These angels were all like those who came to John—men of God who had of old passed from this life but to continue their work in behalf of lost humanity. See also Hebrews 1:7-14. We offer this as a probable explanation of the query.

Why do resurrected beings eat? What would be the result if one were deprived of food?

This question with its tinge of irony seems to refer back to a question and answer upon this subject which recently appeared in this department. We do not know, but we read that angels were placed at the gate of Eden to keep Adam from eating of the tree of life, for by eating he would live forever. (Gen. 3:24; Alma 19:82-87). From this it will be seen that immortality would be one of the effects of eating of this particular tree. The angels ate with Abraham, Jesus ate with his disciples after his resurrection, and the Scriptures make reference to others eating and drinking during the millennium. We eat of the bread and drink of the wine of the Lord's supper now but not for the purpose of maintaining the physical body, but the spiritual life, and may not food be for some such purpose to the resurrected being? If "all things have their likeness," (Gen. 6:66 I. T.), and the temporal bears record of the spiritual, the occasion of eating in this life may have its counterpart in the spiritual realm, though for purposes not fully understood.

Will the saints assist in the judgment or will they be judged in the judgment day?

Paul says in 1 Corinthians 6:2, "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world." Yet the Scriptures seem to teach that all will stand before the judgment bar. It is probable that the judgment of the righteous will precede that of the wicked, after which the former may participate in the judgment of the latter. Those who by means of the gospel have been cleansed from all sin, and forgiven in this life will have only their good works to account for, while the disobedient will need to answer for their wicked deeds also.

Who are the ones who will receive their reward at the resurrection of the just as mentioned in Luke 14:14?

The resurrection of the just evidently refers to the first resurrection, at the time of Christ's coming. It seems that the honorable men of the earth will have part in the first resurrection, so that those of the world who follow deeds of charity and are honorable may not have received the gospel in this life, but receive it hereafter will be among that number. Compare D. C. 76:6 and 85:28. Notice that the latter class are not the saints, and are not raised with the saints but just subsequently to the coming of Christ.

HOW WE REARED OUR CHILDREN.

It is not the intention of the writer to set up unchangeable rules to guide in the government of children in a home. To have such rules would deprive parents of the privilege to have the Holy Spirit to assist them in their work. Parents who live and act in the light of the gospel are entitled to receive the Holy Spirit for that purpose. The less number of rules in a home the easier it will be to govern the children. The Golden Rule will meet every emergency in the government of a home. It shall be the writer's effort to tell in short paragraphs how we did in our home and at the same time state that we have had a reasonable degree of success in having a home where peace, happiness, good will and love prevail.

We loved each other and made expression to that love by acts of kindness in all those little courtesies toward each other that bring sunshine and good cheer. We made the effort daily to live according to the precepts of the gospel of Christ. We taught our children to pray by having prayer twice a day and have them learn to pray by taking part. We taught them to be thankful for all blessings, and to partially express that thankfulness in asking a blessing on the food and in family prayer.

We went to Sunday school and church with them in the morning, except when circumstances of a legitimate nature prevented us. When under the age of about twelve or fourteen we did not urge them to go to evening service; that meant being out as late as ten o'clock, which we considered improper for young children. The afternoon and evening was usually spent in reading some good book or such articles in the Hope or Autumn Leaves as were suitable to their age and development. In the summer months a ramble or street car ride to a public park would sometimes be indulged in.

We always had good books in our home. Never let a year go by without buying new ones. Among them was a reasonable number of religious ones. We encouraged and developed the habit of reading by reading for them. We considered the welfare of our children an important duty and that their welfare was a higher duty than our personal pleasure. So the mother curtailed her visits among friends and minimized the amount of company received.

For the boys we bought tools, boards, lath, nails and tacks, and let them make what their childish fancy desired, and we often helped them, and whether it was wagons, sleds, bridges, railroads, dams, kites, or airships, we did not consider it a waste of time or money. We delighted to see them at home, if the yard was sometimes dug up or the kitchen turned into a workshop.

For our only girl, she had what was common to childhood, dolls, dishes, and a variety of playthings and with it went music and allotted household tasks in accordance with age and strength.

During their young childhood, we always gave them money for Sunday school and laid by a small amount each month, the amount increasing as they grew older, and from that amount came their Christmas offering and what was needed for the purchasing of Christmas gifts that is common in families. From the time the boys were about twelve years old, they earned enough money to buy all their clothing and to meet their incidental expenses of going to school and others that are needful for boys of that age. We did not take their money from them, but helped them to spend it wisely, which included Sunday school, religious and branch expenses and also tithing, and to save a portion of their earnings, and in that way they were never without money when they needed it. After they graduated from the high school and went to work we charged them board in proportion to their income, increasing as their wages increased. We had no Meado-Ferrian rules to govern them in their pleasures. The canvas covered traveling shows and moving picture shows were sometimes visited, but it never became a craze with them, they found most of their pleasure in the association with the young people of the church in their public and private gatherings.

From the time they entered the public school until they graduated from the high school, only sickness with them was a sufficient excuse for their absence. Conferences, reunions, and friends were taboos if they interfered with their attendance at school.

In our government of the children, we never criticized the acts of either parent in their presence. We conferred in private on matters of their government. If we discovered we had made mistakes, and especially if our criticism had been harsh, we went to them and made suitable apology and asked their forgiveness. We seldom administered corporal punishment and we usually felt ashamed afterwards. It was always done when we were in a condition of anger; we do not believe it was any special help to them or us.

We did not permit grandparents or uncles or aunts or special friends to be a part of the governing power of our home. The rules in that department were very strict; if they did not realize that their interference was not desired from a gentle hint, they were told in language so plain and positive that no future misunderstanding would occur. We believed we were justified in such a positive course, not because our friends were less considerate of what was right, but because it was a right principle; there can be no divided authority between relatives and parents. It sows the seeds of disobedience which may destroy the peace and happiness of the home and places a ban on the children when they go out into the world to engage in life's great battle.

We taught them to be clean, orderly, neat, punctual, economical, industrious, and all those habits that make for success in life, by doing those things ourselves. What we do has more impression on the child mind than what we say. In the observance of the Sabbath day we did not make their lives miserable by making it a day of gloom in following the rules laid down by the early Puritans or rob it of its sacredness by adopting the loose rules of some churches. Pleasures were not absolutely prohibited, but they were of a kind that were not boisterous in their nature, or interfered with their religious duties at the house of worship.

Hoping that these few thoughts may help others to have the same degree of pleasure that has come to our home, I will subscribe myself as Hester.

WHAT A CHILD NEEDS MOST.

It is not, after all, a smattering of chemistry, or an acquaintance with the habits of bees which will carry our children through life, but a capacity for doing what they do not want to do, if it be a thing which needs to be done. They will have to do many things they do not want to do later on, if their lives are going to be worth the living, and the sooner they learn to stand to their guns the better for them, and for all those whose welfare will lie in their hands.—Agnes Repplier in the Atlantic Monthly.

GOING HOME.

Just to go home when the day's work is over,
Just to go home when the sky's getting gray,
That's best of all, if a man's a home lover—
Just to go home with the laddie to play;
Just to go home to the wife who is waiting—
What of the cares which are past or to come
When it brings sweetness, the tired heart elating,
Just to go home?
Bright visions fade and hopes buoyant must perish,
No man may live without sorrow and pain,
Yet, if life's one dearest gift we but cherish,
Love brings the dreams and the hopes back again.
Knowing our loved ones are waiting to greet us,
Troubles must melt like the bubbles in foam;
Sorrow and loss of content cannot cheat us,
When we go home.
What a good world is this world which we live in!
What a good life is this life which we lead!
Weary we grow in the race which we strive in,
But the reward is repayment indeed!
Long is life's workday, but sure is the guerdon
When stars awake in the darkening dome;
Gladly we live and toil on with the burden,
Just to go home.—Lee Shippey, in K. C. Star.

ONCE AGAIN.

The way in which the responses are coming in for the liquidation of the college debt encourages us to make this additional request.

Feeling that some either did not see or laid aside and forgot our other request we ask that when you read this you write us immediately, laying all other work aside to do so, and state what you will do to help pay the debt. We want pledges enough, or cash if possible, to be able to say that the debt is "off" when we report to next annual conference. If there be those who cannot see their way clear to pay before July 1, 1914, all right, we will be glad to get it.

Besides giving over $500 on "College day" Lamoni has already pledged more than $550, quite a lot of it in cash toward paying the debt.

Graceland cannot afford to pay interest. But to dispend with the college now would be a serious mistake as its possibilities are not commencing. This year we have a Japanese student from far away Honolulu, a member of the church, and who shall say that he is not being helped to yet become an instrument in God's hands to carry the gospel to and thus open up the work in Japan? We expect to have students from every nation and even from the islands of the sea yet, and that at no distant day, if we but maintain the college. Who will help?

Fifty cents apiece from the church membership will more than pay the debt! SEND IT RIGHT NOW! with what more you can spare. The Salvation Army raises thousands of dollars in "self-denial." Shall we let them be wiser in their generation than we? How much did you spend for gum last year to say nothing of ice cream, candy, etc., etc.

Hopefully,
J. W. Wight.

1100 S. 7th St., Burlington, Iowa.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN.—Semi-annual conference convened with the Clear Lake Branch at Ray, Ind., Saturday Nov. 1, at 10 a. m. with J. F. Curtis associated with the district president. Reports of branches were had from Holding, Buchanan, Capital City, Clear Lake, Coldwater, Gallen, Grand Rapids, Hartford, Knox and Sparta, showing a net gain of about 40 since last report. Ministry reporting were G. A. Smith, S. W. L. Scott, J. W. McKnight, B. H. Doty, S. Stark, W. F. Buckley, Starr Corless, F. Earl, F. T. Field, N. A. Hill, C. F. Ellis and Wm. Dowker. All officers were sustained for another year.

The following were chosen as delegates to the next general conference: G. A. Smith, Sr. C. A. Clark, Sr. Belle Royce, Sr. John Rutt, C. F. Ellis, E. B. Blett, S. W. L. Scott, and W. P. Buckley.

Preaching was by Elders J. F. Curtis, E. A. Blakeslee and Daniel McGregor from Port Huron. These were all very spiritual and very much enjoyed. Two were baptized. On Monday morning was held a priesthood meeting and a farewell prayer service. The Lord saw fit to visit us with his Spirit, in words of counsel, cheer and comfort as well as to bestow his healing power over the saints. About 12 were administered to at the close of the prayer service and some wonderful blessings were enjoyed.

Adjourned to meet with the Grand Rapids Branch the 2d Saturday and Sunday in June, 1914.

This closed one of the best and most spiritual conferences as well as one of the largest (about 300 in attendance) it has been our lot to attend.

NEW BOOKS.

Latter-Day Saints and others who are looking forward to the establishment and development of an ideal city under Zionic conditions and those concerned in the improvement of our present cities, will be interested in a recent book entitled "Modern Cities," from the press of Funk & Wagnalls Co., ($1.50). The authors are Horatio M. Pollock, Ph. D. and William S. Morgan, Ph. D.

The growth of cities from ancient and medieval times is noted and especial attention is given to the wonderful changes made possible through invention and the discoveries of science in the last three decades. The planning of civic centers and streets, home planning, the beautiful in architecture and landscape, sanitation and health, conservation of human life, education, and religion are among the many points dealt with, all of which are considered in their relation to the welfare of the whole people. It would seem that America has much to learn in the way of civic improvement from the cities of Europe which, the authors say, "have advanced more rapidly than ours," and even Rome has taken the most progressive steps in properly housing the poor and educating the children. The needs of American cities are closely analyzed, and the possibilities of future improvement leading to the ideal are presented.

BAILEY.—St. Elizabeth Bailey, wife of Bro. Allen Bailey fell peacefully asleep in the Lord, at her home, Independence, Mo., Nov. 4, 1913, pneumonia being the contributing cause. She was born in Toronto, Ontario, August 2, 1857, and was baptized at London, Ont. Can., Feb. 1871, by Elder John J. Cornish. In December, 1880, she was married to Henry Robertson, at Armstrong, now Kansas City, Kansas, who later deceased, leaving one daughter Atha, to comfort the mother. About the year 1888 she was married to Bro. Allen Bailey of Independence, who with almost helpless daughter, Atha, one brother, Robert J. Parker, three sisters, Mrs. William Clow, Mrs. Joseph Luff, and Mrs. G. E. Harrington, together with a large acquaintance, mourn her demise. She was retiring and unselfish in her nature, and lived a consistent saint, desiring to remain only for the sake of her deeply loved invalid daughter. Funeral from the home, Nov. 6th, sermon by Elder W. H. Garrett, assisted by Elder M. H. Bond, interment in Mound Grove cemetery.

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS

HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means new members or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, just as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to and tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months; for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.

EDITORIAL

WAS JOSEPH SMITH A WEAKLING?

A recent book entitled "Brigham Young and His Mormon Empire," of which Frank J. Cannon and George L. Knapp are the authors, presents Joseph Smith the Prophet as a weakling, according to a review in the Kansas City Star. To quote:

Mr. Cannon finds Joseph Smith, the founder and prophet of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to have been a very negligible person. Without will or constancy, says Mr. Cannon, and utterly devoid of any practicable ability, he seems to have gone on his way with selfishness as his only dominant positive quality, dreaming greatly and accomplishing nothing.

Joseph Smith has been charged with having had almost every discreditable trait, but this is the first time we have known of his being represented as a weakling, and like the other charges we believe it to be unsupported with evidence. The human founder of a great movement, his life was a constant and heroic struggle to maintain the principles he advocated in his youth, in the face of the fierce fires of persecution which brought him repeatedly into the hands of violent mobs, into wretched dungeons, and at last to his death.

Mr. Frank J. Cannon is the son of George Q. Cannon who was personally acquainted with Joseph Smith and had some association with him. In a series of magazine articles written by the younger Cannon not long since he held his father to have been a man of strict honor and integrity, hence we are free to quote the latter's estimate of the man Joseph Smith as given in his "Life of Joseph Smith," and put the same in comparison with the estimate given by the son who never knew him personally.

In the day of Jesus, every act and every circumstance of his life was ridiculed and belittled by his jealous enemies. But the record of his career, from which the present world of Christians makes up its judgment of him, was not written until all insignificant or paltry things had been forgotten; and now his character, illuminated by the eternal sunshine of heaven, stands outlined against the blue vastness of the past in sublime simplicity. Let us view Joseph Smith in the same light—see him as he towered in the full radiance of his labors; see him the reconciler of divergent sects and doctrines, the oracle of the Almighty to all nations, kindreds, tongues and peoples.

Joseph Smith had been a retiring youth—the Spirit made him bold to declare to rulers and potentates and all mankind, the gospel again revealed. He had been a humble farmer lad—Divine authority set so becomingly upon him that men looked at him with reverence awe. He had been unlearned in the great things of art and science—he walked with God until human knowledge was to his eyes an open book, and celestial light beamed through his mind.

His lofty soul comprehended the grandeur of his mission upon earth; and with divine fortitude he fulfilled the destiny which God had ordained for him before the world was.

When he had achieved the prime of his manhood, he seemed to combine all attractions and excellencies. His physical person was the fit habitation of his exalted spirit. He was more than six feet in height, with expansive chest and clean-cut limbs—a staunch and graceful figure. His head, crowned with a mass of soft, wavy hair, was grandly poised. His face possessed a complexion of such clearness and transparency that the soul appeared to shine through. He wore no beard, and the full strength and beauty of his countenance impressed all beholders at a glance. He had eyes which seemed to read the hearts of men. His mouth was one of mingled power and sweetness. His majesty of air was natural, not studied. Though full of personal and prophetic dignity whenever occasion demanded, he could at other times unbind and be as happy and unconventional as a boy. This was one of his most striking characteristics; and it was sometimes held up to scorn, by his traducers that the chosen "man of God" should at times mingle as a man of earth with his earthly brethren. And yet it is a false ridicule; for Savior and prophets must, like other men, eat, drink and wear apparel. They have the physical necessities and the affections and enjoyments which are common to other men. And it is this petty human fact—that a divine apostle with an earthly body has hunger and thirst to appease, that he cannot always be prophesying, but has hours to smile with the gay and to weep with the saddened—which leaves him "without honor in his own country."

But whether engaging in manly sport, during hours of relaxation, or proclaiming words of wisdom in pulpit or grove, he was ever the leader. His magnetism was masterful, and his heroic qualities won universal admiration. Where he moved, all classes were forced to recognize in him the man of power. Strangers journeying to see him from a distance, knew him the moment their eyes beheld his person. Men have crossed ocean and continent to meet him, and have selected him instantly from among a multitude.

It was a part of Joseph Smith's great mission "to combat the errors of ages, to meet the violence of mobs; to cope with illegal proceedings from executive authority; to cut the gordian knot of powers; to solve mathematical problems of universities with truth—diamond truth." He performed a work, "not pagan ire, nor tooth of time, nor sword, nor fire, shall bring to naught." The Prophet's life was exalted and unselfish.

As a leader Joseph Smith held his following together with only individual exceptions, and that under the most difficult conditions, until his untimely death at the age of thirty-eight years. Of the condition of the church during his life time Judge Philips of the U. S. Circuit Court in his famous temple lot decision says: "During this period there was no schisms, no secession, no 'parting of the ways,' in any matter fundamental, or affecting its oneness."

Notwithstanding Mr. Frank Cannon holds out Brigham Young as the dominant figure in the church and by whom the people were held together even prior to the death of Joseph Smith as well as after, it is a notable fact that not until Mr. Young began to assert his claims as a leader was there any division in the church. Of him Judge Philips further says: "Brigham Young, a man of intellectual power, shrewd and aggressive, if not audacious, . . . gathered around him the greater numbers, and it was an easy matter for him to seize the fallen reins of the Presidency. . . . There can be no question of the fact that Brigham Young's assumed presidency was a bold and bald usurpation."

Upon Mr. Young's first assumption of power, August 8, 1844, he was repudiated by Sidney Rigdon one of the presidency, who became the leader of a faction with headquarters at Pittsburg, Pa. He was repudiated by William B. Smith, one of the twelve apostles, and brother of the prophet; by Lyman Wight another member of the twelve, both of whom retained a following. Others also in turn left Brigham Young until the body which he led to Utah was but a fragment of the original church.

It has been the contention of the Reorganized Church (which Judge Sherman of Ohio said "is the true and lawful continuation of, and successor to the said original church.") that Utah contains but a perversion of the system of faith and practice held by the original church. It was under this perverted religion that the younger Mr. Cannon grew up and from which, no doubt, he received his conceptions of Joseph Smith's character, and the character of the work which he established and which is perpetuated in the Reorganized Church.

Joseph Smith should be judged by the principles which he advocated and by the record which he made. His principles were permanent, and his life showed an unswerving purpose toward putting them into practice. Mistakes he may have made but they were not of the kind or character to show him in any sense a weakling. His work was finished before most men reach their period of greatest strength, and while we do not know what he might have been had he lived longer, if he is to be judged by what he accomplished in his youth we could expect nothing else than a man strong in character and power.

Alcohol pollutes whatever it touches. It enervates where it does not enslave. It destroys slowly that which it does not degrade quickly. For the individual it is a malignant disease, for the community it is a murrain, for the nation it has become a self-inflicted obstacle to all phases of progress, and it lies athwart the path of personal reformation, municipal progress, and State sanctification; obstructing all the forces of slow remedial reform, and rapid changes to industrial elevation.—Rt. Hon. John Burns, M. P.

FALSE STORIES REFUTED.

A report has recently been going the rounds of the press to the effect that a note given by S. M. Smith the father of Joseph Smith the Prophet (the name of Joseph Smith's father was also Joseph) to a Mr. Gates in 1837, and which remained unpaid, had been recently presented to Mr. Smith's grandson, Joseph Smith of Independence, Mo. for payment. Upon inquiry we learned that no such demand had been made upon President Smith, and nothing was known of it. The report contained so many apparent errors that one informed of them would give no credence to it, but to those not informed the statements and insinuations of the report would be very misleading. We wrote Mr. Gates asking for particulars and received a frank response which will be found with the clipping below. S. H. Smith, (not S. M.) was a brother of Joseph Smith Jr., and the "young man" of whom payment was said to have been asked is Pres. Joseph Smith now in his eighty-second year. There was no such thing as "Mormon Script."

ASKS PAYMENT OF NOTE SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD.

HOPKINS, Mo., Nov. 27.—A note for $45, which was given seventy-nine years ago, has been presented to the great-grandson of the man who gave it, with the request that the young man shall pay it. The interest on the note now amounts to $3,940.

The old note, now in the possession of Freedom Gates, of this place, was given to his father in the year 1834, by S. M. Smith, the father of Joseph Smith, the "Mormon Prophet." The note reads: "Payable in Mormon script, in three days after demand."

It was never paid however, and after the death of the old Mormons, it was preserved as a relic, by members of the Gates family.

The present possessor of the note has now located a great-grandson of Smith. His name is Joseph Smith Jr., and he lives at Independence, Mo.

HOPKINS, Mo., Dec. 4, 1913.

Mr. Charles Fry,

Independence, Mo.

Dear Sir:—Your letter of recent date received and contents carefully noted. And in reply will say that the account you saw in the "Saturday Blade" is only partially correct.

True I have the note as stated, given by Samuel H. Smith, to my father Thomas Gates, at Kirtland Ohio, in 1837 for $45.00, payable in "Kirtland Safety Society Bills."

Why it was not paid I don't know; I suppose Mr. Smith was a poor man as most men were in those days, or perhaps the paper of the Society declined till it was worth nothing, I never heard my father say as to that.

As to me presenting the note to President Smith for payment, I never thought of such a thing. I have too much respect for Mr. Smith to think of insulting him by such a thing. I have always taken care of it as a kind of relic or souvenir, never thought of selling it to anyone.

Our editor and I got to talking one day casually about relics and I showed it to him. He wrote a little sketch about it, I never thought of its going any further, but it seems the press got hold of it, and I have received several letters from different editors in regard to it. Some wanted me to send it to them, but I was afraid I would lose it.

I am personally acquainted with Mr. Smith, his brother, Alexander, and his sister Mrs. Salisbury. I first got acquainted with the brothers Joseph and Alexander at Plano, Ill. in 1873. They both have been at my father's house visiting, stayed all night on more than one occasion, and I think a great deal of them both.

Will send you a verbatim copy of the note.

With best regards to you, and kindly give my personal regards to Mr. Smith.

Freedom D. Gates.

COPY OF NOTE.

Kirtland, 4th Oct. 1837. Borrowed and received of Thomas Gates, forty-five dollars of Kirtland Safety Society Bills, to be paid in the same in three days after it is demanded.

Samuel H. Smith.

The date I think is 1837 though not very plain, the editor called it 1834.

Respectfully F. D. Gates.

It may be noted that the money received on the note was in "Kirtland Safety Society Bills," and the note was to be paid in the same kind. These bills, like those of numerous other banks at that time had depreciated in value due to the panicky times of 1837, and in August 1837 Joseph Smith Jr. in a warning published in the Allentown Star said "Those bills are of noworth here." From this it appears that as early as August the bills were without value and hence were valueless in October when the note was given. This is implied also in the note itself which specifies that it is to be paid in the same bills. It is probable that payment was never asked.

"THE MORMON PLATES FORGERY."

Under this heading the Los Angeles Examiner publishes the following editorial which is evidently based upon a report which has been going the rounds to the effect that a group of men deceived Joseph Smith and his associates by preparing a set of plates and burying them in such a way that they were discovered, and that Joseph translated them, etc. Whatever may be the facts relative to these plates known as "The Kinderhook Plates," it is a fact that Joseph Smith was not deceived by them for the reason that he never attempted to translate them and no such book as the "Second Book of Mormon" was ever published, nor any other work purporting to have been made from such plates. A purported find of supposed ancient plates would naturally attract the attention and interest of any public man, and Joseph Smith may have been thus interested, but further than that he had nothing to do with them. The editorial follows:

Time unravels many mysteries, and now the secret of the hidden Mormon Plates has been placed in the hands of the Illinois Historical Society by the sons of the man who perpetrated the deception.

Their father, Wilbourne Furgate, back in the forties, when the followers of the Latter Day Prophet, Joseph Smith, were invading Illinois, had heard the assertion that the plates would be found in the bowels of the earth. He thereupon took a blacksmith into his confidence, and, after securing two copper plates, cut them bell shape. Furgate, who had a knowledge of hieroglyphics, sketched some figures and applied acid to his tracings. He then treated the plates with a rust paste which gave them an appearance of great antiquity, and buried them in a mound near Kinderhook, Ill.

Having invited a Dr. Harris, a close friend of Smith, to accompany him on a relic hunting expedition. Furgate unearthed the plates, which were at once hailed as those the prophet had foretold. Smith proceeded at once to translate the hieroglyphics, and shortly thereafter the Second Book of Mormon appeared.

The affidavits submitted with the story prove its truth and throw a further light on the credulity of human nature.

The above items show the sensational tendencies of the press, and the exaggerations and misrepresentations which the church has so often to meet.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

Upon recommendation of the city marshal and by unanimous vote of the council at its meeting last Wednesday evening, the pool hall located on West Maple Ave. was ordered closed at once, the reason being that it had become a loafing place for toughs, and that minors frequented the place. The marshal stated in answer to a question why minors were allowed to visit such places that most of them who did so had written permits from their parents which put them beyond police control in that regard. Too many pool halls and even restaurants at late hours, are becoming places for questionable characters to assemble, and it is surprising that any parent will consent for their children to frequent them.

We need a picture of the saints old brick church at Independence, for historical purposes. If any of the saints have one we shall be pleased to have the loan of it in order to get a cut made. It will be returned.

Several have been called away by death during the past week, viz., Bro. Francis G. Dungee on Thursday, at the age of ninety-three years. Bro. Simeon Townsend on the same day at the age of eighty-two, whose remains were sent to Chicago for burial, and Earnest the six year old son of Bro. Evert Bowen.

Through a misunderstanding Bro. I. N. White was not aware of his appointment to preach until he arrived at the church Sunday morning, but he gave an excellent talk in line with his special work as patriarch which was strengthening to the saints. He related some spiritual experiences which were exhortive, arousing the saints to greater effort and activity in the service of God. Bro. Charles Fry was the evening speaker.

Bro. J. F. Ridd addressed the quarterly priesthood meeting Monday evening upon the subject of Psychology and developed matter which was both instructive and interesting. Many experiences were drawn from members of the priesthood present illustrating various points in the science. Bro. Earl Corthell also addressed the meeting pointing out some of the mistakes often made in preaching. Both addresses were followed by general discussion.

Tag day was observed in Independence last Sunday for the purpose of raising funds to help the poor on Christmas day. $488 was the amount secured. The object is commendable though we cannot approve of the method.

President Egan of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company is said to recognize the necessity of express cars for quick service between Independence and Kansas City, and says that the matter will be taken up soon. Independence people would appreciate such service and the number of passengers we believe entitles them to it. The schedule time is now 50 minutes though the motormen say they cannot make the trip except in the slack hours in less than 55 minutes.

According to the Independence Examiner the first courthouse in Independence was built in 1827 of logs hewn by Sam Shepherd the negro slave of James Shepherd one of the pioneers of the county and who gave a part of his land for the court house site. The original courthouse is still preserved and stands one block east of the square on East Lexington Street.

Bro. A. H. Bond has sold his home known as Sunny-side on the Lexington Road and on Saturday 20th will hold a sale of improvements, tools, household goods etc. He expects to locate closer in town in order to devote more time to church work.

Humility is the root, mother, nurse, foundation, and bond of all virtue.—Chrysostom.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

The past Sunday was spent at the place of worship in a very enjoyable manner. The Sunday school had a good attendance. At the 11 o'clock hour we were entertained by Bro. Edward Rannie who spoke on "Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." He referred to the vast army of pleasure seekers who may be seen thronging the highways, seeking the places of amusement, while the poor preacher was pounding away to convince a few of his faithful hearers of the plan of salvation.

At 7:30 we were greeted by Bro. Hale Smith with that broad smile of his, and in his earnest way he told a great many truths. It was good, and we feel to say, Come again "Hale."

W. S. L.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Our sacrament service was well attended and a peaceful session was enjoyed. We were pleased to hear Bro. Joerdnt formerly of our number, but now of the Lansdowne Branch, express his sincere desire to do all he can for the Master. Remarks were made by our pastor; his admonition being that we remain steadfast though others fail. The little babe of Sr. Belva DeLaney and husband was blessed by Bro. Cooke and Trowbridge.

Bro. Cooke and Dowker have been laboring in Vosholl, Mo., and there about, good interest attending their efforts; several being baptized in fulfillment of a dream given to Bro. Cooke.

The bazaar and supper given by the Ladies' Aid Society was well patronized and we believe a success financially. A very pleasant evening was also reported as having been spent at the home of Bro. and Sr. G. Trowbridge, a social being given for the benefit of the Children's Home.

The evening of December 7 Bro. Geo. Reeves preached one of his best discourses, his subject being "Life."

The St. Louis District Conference which convened here December 13 and 14 was one to remain in our memories for some time to come. A very large attendance was at all the sessions. The Religio and Sunday school held a session Saturday afternoon, the district business meeting Saturday evening, Bro. Dowker left some good thoughts when he talked to the Sunday school. Our district president, Bro. R. Archibald, was the morning speaker, his text being Proverbs 14:12. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man but the end thereof are the ways of death." Many uplifting thoughts were given.

The afternoon prayer service was a most enjoyable feast. Many sincere testimonies were borne; a feature which will not be soon forgotten was the admonition and counsel sent us from above in the words of a song beautifully sung by Bro. Archibald. Sr. Weidman, thoughtful as she always is, took it down, for which we feel very grateful, as such precious truths as it contained should not be forgotten.

There were three baptized by Bro. Baird and confirmed by Bro. Archibald, Vandel and Guthrie. One ordained to the office of teacher by Bro. C. J. Remington, and one child blessed.

The priesthood held sessions, also the Aid Society after the afternoon prayer meeting, and at 6:30 Bro. Guthrie very ably occupied, reading from Matthew 18:26, his subject being "Saints should keep all the law."

A very busy day was spent in a most profitable manner. Most all of the saints brought lunches and a most sociable time was enjoyed between services. Conference adjourned to meet in St. Charles, Mo., next March.

ST. JOSEPH MO., THIRD BRANCH.

At our election of officers Bro. W. P. Pickering was placed in charge. We appreciate the kind, wise and fatherly labor of Bro. Taddick during his leadership with us, but circumstances over which he had no control prevented him from continuing the work. We are also glad to have so good a shepherd as Bro. Pickering at the head once more. The other officers were as follows: Priest, Bro. Clay; teacher, Bro. Vann; deacon, Bro. Hale; chorister, Clarence Pickering; organist, Ora Jones; clerk, Sr. Liggert.

We have lost another of our members by death, our dear Sr. Backus. Truly we're crossing the river one by one. But while the flowers are fading the little buds are springing forth.

There has come to the home of Bro. and Sr. Vann a girl Bro. and Sr. Hamilton a boy and Bro. Lowmie and Sr. Grace Woodside a boy. While it is sad to see the mature flowers withering and fading from our view it is good to see the little baby blossoms all fresh and sweet springing up in their places to brighten the lives and gladden the hearts of all those surrounding them.

A good two days meeting came to a close Sunday p. m. with Bro. Roberts as the speaker. One good thought especially he brought out was that when Christ comes he will not go to the shows and places of amusement to call out his saints from among them before this swift destruction overtakes them. Oh, how true this is for we are told to stand in holy places, and to have our lamps trimmed and burning. Not in shows, at ball games, dance halls and such places can we be replenished with this precious oil.

Rosa Francis.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

The sisters gave a public dinner Thanksgiving Day in a building on West Missouri Ave., which was well patronized by the public generally. It was quite a success from a financial standpoint, netting something over fifty dollars. Not only the saints, but many of the merchants of South St. Joseph donated liberally to the success of the dinner, and seemed to be well pleased with the privilege, signifying to our minds at least, that the saints are being recognized as a factor in the religious development of South St. Joseph.

Situated as we are among the many different classes and nationalities of people which go to make up the working force of the great packing industries, we have problems to face and overcome that are not met with elsewhere, where faith is tried and truth is tested to the proof. But the people are beginning to recognize the Reorganization in its true light,—to know the difference between this and the Utah organization—to know that this people stands for all that is virtuous, all that is true. And so the influence for good goes forth; so the light is held forth unto all mankind. Will we, as a people, collectively and individually, continue in the light of truth? Let us pray to this end.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Elder J. D. Stead is actively engaged in the missionary work in the region of Ceres and Modesto. He has preached at five different points and is now trying to open a new place near Denair. Bro. Duell is still at Dinuba with his tent, having a fair hearing.

The sacramental service in the city was very enjoyable, being spiritual and peaceful. Bro. and Sr. J. A. Lawn of Hollister were present. The former assisting in the service. Bro. Lawn was former pastor of the branch there. Bro. J. A. Anthony preached at night.

We were pleased to meet Bro. Dr. A. W. Teel at our services Sunday. He embraced the work in Chicago recently. He is located near Los Angeles as a specialist. Our acquaintance was short but very agreeable; being from Chicago our former field drew us a little nearer to him.

Bro. L. J. Searcy, the priest of the Ceres Branch, has moved his residence to Stockton, having engaged in another vocation. This will weaken the work at Ceres. Bro. Searcy and family were among the main stays. Stockton however has gained some good church workers. We perhaps will no more sleep in that section house where the trains pass in the night.

We had an extraordinary prayermeeting last night in Oakland,—an ideal one. Each one present took an active part in prayer and testimony, some speaking twice. The young who were present were especially active. Surely the faithful ones are growing. Our sacramental service was largely attended and very spiritual. Bishop Parkin was present and assisted in the service. Also Sr. DeSalyer was present from the city. The Lord gave us a message of encouragement.

Once again, we seek admission at the portals of the dear ENSIGN, this time as correspondent for a more western city, of Indian fame, as well as name, and trust our little mite may be of benefit to all, and offense to none.

What good things have come to us of late. Shortly after the 1st of October Apostle James A. Gillen gave us some soul-searching sermons, then attended; the Blair conventions and conference. The angels seemed very near at our prayermeeting on Sunday morning. The assistance of Sr. Blanche I. Andrews in the auxiliary work was very much enjoyed. How much some of us need more enthusiasm to study and work!

Patriarch Fredrick A. Smith visited us some two weeks later, and gave excellent instruction. A number also were greatly helped in receiving their blessings. How much comfort and aid we might receive, if we would meditate on the good things contained in our blessings more frequently.

Beginning the fore part of November Apostle Gillen favored Council Bluffs with about a ten days stay, and preached the first sermon in their new commodious church: equipped with a lighting system which is a charm to all. Quite an interest was manifested and very good audiences. It did not appear nearly so far across the Missouri River those glorious moonlight nights, feeling that we would be brought almost to the gates of the Eternal.

How near is the Christmas Tide! If the money expended for useless ornaments, and that which is not "food or raiment" were poured into the coffers of the church, how many missionaries families could be provided with the necessities of life? "Tis more pleasant to give than to receive."

"To give happiness, and to do good, there is our only law, our anchor of salvation, our beacon light, our law for existing."

CORRESPONDENCE

PAPEETE, TAHITI, Oct. 28.

Editor Ensign.—On Sunday, the 19 inst., the leaders and all of the members of Heberona Branch known as the Pupū people met with the saints at the Tarahona Branch in Papeete, and were in attendance at the first service which began at eight o'clock. At nine-thirty o'clock we all retired to the shores of the Pacific, only a few hundred yards away, and after singing and prayer, we had the pleasure and privilege of leading thirty souls, men and women with the exception of two children, out into the waters of the great Pacific, and baptized them back into the Reorganized Church.

It was a scene that will not soon fade from memory. There was a large crowd standing upon the shore witnessing this auspicious event, as all of the saints of the Tahiti District were present as also many saints from other islands and outsiders.

The day was beautiful as the sun was shining down upon us. All the candidates walked out into the water together and stood in a circle as I baptized them. Two old sisters about eighty years of age walked in and out of the water arm in arm which was a pathetic sight indeed, one being a cripple having a long stick in her hand to support her as she was very feeble, by reason of old age, being the mother of two of the leaders of the priesthood, namely, Lui and Poti, and also being the great-grandmother of about seventy-five children. The Spirit of the Lord was present in great power bearing witness and approving of the work done. Nice of the men were leaders of the pupu movement, and elders in the church formerly, some of whom were very prominent church workers and missionaries, Pori, a man blessed with extraordinary ability, and recognized as head man among those people, and well thought of by their people and ours. Pori, his brother and another influential man, and Tapu who was a very efficient worker both in missionary and Sunday school departments when Bro. and Sr. Devore were here. He was Sr. Devore's main support in carrying on the Sunday school work. The other leaders who were baptized were equally efficient in the church work and did wield a good influence with the people and are still held in high esteem. All these brethren were reordained and will be very useful men in this mission, as they seem to be very much in earnest and desirous of making up for lost time.

They truly manifest a true spirit of repentance on the day of their baptism we could see happiness and the spirit of love manifested itself in their every movement. They were all confirmed in the afternoon session and ten were ordained during the same service, and the power of God was in attendance directing in all that was done to the joy and comfort of all present. Truly it was a day of great rejoicing on the part of the saints here. It was very touching to see the saints welcoming these people back, and many instances where they embraced each other with a kiss while tears of joy streamed down their faces.

Some of these leaders have gone to their home islands to use their influence to bring their families and friends back into the church. There are over one hundred of them including their children throughout the islands, and Bro. May now acting president of the mission, will visit those islands as soon as possible, with a view of inducting them into the church. We have no doubt that by next April conference that nearly all if not all will have returned to their father's house, as all of the leaders with the exception of one are with us, and he has written that he would abide by the decision of the brethren here, so we are glad that the old sore which has been such a source of annoyance and trouble in this mission in the past six or seven years is about healed up. We do not anticipate any trouble from the leaders in the future as they seem very anxious to retrace their steps and to become co-workers with the main body of the church.

We also baptized several women who were very prominent workers in the Pupu movement, one especially, who was called Sarah among them, but she displayed the spirit of humility and she seemed to realize that she had done wrong, she had been a great worker in the years gone by. She is a very attractive and intelligent woman and will doubtless be a power for good in the days to come among their race. Perhaps it would be expedient to give a short sketch as to how these people went astray.

About seven or eight years ago a few of these people began to hold meetings on the quiet in the woods, with a view to receive spiritual manifestations and Satan of course who is ever ready to deceive, took advantage of this movement, and it was not long until they began to tell around that they had seen wonderful things especially in visions. However some of these manifestations did not seem to be in harmony with the law, and their attention was called to it, and they were counseled by those in charge of the work to desist from going into the woods and holding secret meetings. This was the beginning of the trouble, and is to be regretted, that some of our own brethren who had to deal with this matter did not display the wisdom and love toward these people that should characterize the true saints of God, hence it is that while these people made grievous mistakes when they permitted themselves to be led astray by false spirits, which in a sense was a phase of spiritualism. There were grievous mistakes made on the other side also. However these people have learned their lesson and some of them through much suffering, and like the prodigal son, have returned to their father's house, and he has forgiven them of their past sins and has placed his seal of acceptance upon them. They rejoice and we rejoice because of the goodness of God made manifest to them in leading so many of them back into his true fold, and let us earnestly pray that the remaining ones may also return, and thank God that the breach is about closed up we trust forever.

We have great hopes for the future prosperity of the mission, as the people seem united and with this added force we believe that under the presidency of Bro. May, who stands high in the estimation of all these people, and with the assistance of Bro. Savage, and the new missionary help that we are expecting soon from America, that the mission will be on a better foundation than ever before, of course, we don't expect perfection here any more than we do in America, the people here are of like passion and have their peculiar weaknesses and failings and we expect to see these conditions exist until Satan is bound up in the pit and until Jesus Christ is seated upon David's throne swaying his scepter over all the world as "King of kings" and "Lord of lords."

On the 26th of October we organized the pupu people at Hebrona into a branch, and the Spirit of the Lord was present in great power, approving of the work done. Two were ordained to the office of teacher and deacon, and several children were blessed. Bro. May president of the mission and myself administered the sacrament to them, at which the spirit of humility was greatly manifested by them through prayer, songs, and testimony especially. At the organization of the branch Lini their former leader was unanimously chosen as president of the branch, and while it was done without suggestion on our part we felt that he was the proper one to be chosen, and we are pleased to state that every other officer of the branch was chosen unanimously and the spirit of unity was present and prevailed throughout the entire meeting, which evidenced to us their acceptance to God.

These people are beautifully situated, having considerable land in their possession, covered with all kinds of tropical fruits and cocoanuts, they are close to the ocean and many of them follow fishing as an occupation and realize good returns as fish are very high as will be surprising to most people. Most of the people have good homes and they have an up to date church building which they erected since their departure from us. Of course all this returns to the church. I wish to state one thing to the credit of these people and which is supported by the brethren here. The Utah Mormons and other denominations have been very persistent in their efforts to have those people united with them and every attempt in this direction was a failure. The answer was in every instance that the Reorganized Church was the true church of Jesus Christ, and the difficulties that existed between them and us would in due time of the Lord be removed. They have helped to support the missionaries and the church work in many ways, so the Lord wouldn't desert a people who had such good desires and who had such strong faith in the divinity of the latter day work.

We sail this afternoon on the new steamer "Willochra" for New Zealand and Australia. After our meeting with the pupu people in Hebrona yesterday afternoon the saints of the whole district assembled at Tarona, and the meeting was largely attended. Bro. Miller and I preached our farewell sermon to the saints last night at seven o'clock. The saints of the district sang songs of rejoicing until a late hour and the saints of the district have all remained at the branch in Tarona Papete to witness our departure, which will be at about four o'clock this p. m.

We commit these people to the care of our Father in heaven, for his protection and blessings. They are surely very much in earnest and kindly disposed towards the Lord's ministry. We have felt drawn toward them, and we glory in the thought that God is no respecter of persons and that he loves all those who serve him according to the perfect law of liberty.

With best wishes for all of Zion's children, I am still in the conflict.

Your brother and co-worker,

BEARSDTOWN, Ill., Nov. 28.

Dear Ensign—As I have not seen anything from this part of the Lord's vineyard in the columns of your paper for some time will write this to inform all interested that we are still alive in the work.

I have just returned from a little town (Snicarte by name) where I have been holding a series of meetings and believe have some genuine interest which soon will result in good. J. W. Paxton and I were there five or six weeks ago, and after our departure it seems, a Baptist preacher attacked the work, so the saints telephoned me that my presence was wanted. I forthwith departed for said place. I commenced meeting in the house of Bro. and Sr. M. T. Curry continuing over two Sundays.

On Sunday evening Nov. 23d I attended the meeting held by the Baptist elder, our opponent and invited myself to call on the gentleman in his home at Virginia, Ill. But in the presence of a goodly number of outsiders and his members, I was informed that he was busy every evening in the week, excepting one evening, and then he went visiting, so I concluded that I would be an unwelcome guest if I called on him and found him at home, therefore thought it best to give up the idea of a private conference with him. In fact I don't think the elder wanted to discuss matters at all. You may imagine the effect upon "the honest in heart."

I had the pleasure of meeting with Roy Burton who is making his home at Snicarte for the present. While not a member of the church, being the nephew of Elder Joseph F. Burton, he could be nothing less than a staunch friend to the work.

His support is truly appreciated, as all missionaries know what a friend in need is worth, especially one of ability, able to defend the work in our absence. I have enjoyed a goodly portion of the Spirit in my effort of the past couple of weeks and my earnest prayer is that the Lord will so continue to bless me.

Ever praying for the success and promotion of the work,
I remain your brother in gospel bonds.

R. L. Fulk.

PERREAR, Tenn., Nov. 26.

Dear Ensign—I so much enjoy reading your valuable pages that I feel that I should contribute a few lines also.

The work in this part of the Lord's vineyard is progressing some, but more slowly than should be, as many who have labored here can testify. This is a very difficult field in which to labor, better results are realized in foreign lands, even in the isles of the sea, than can be had here for the same efforts. It seems almost impossible to maintain successful Sunday schools, not because we haven't sufficient material, though the quality may be the trouble.

I believe the saints are entirely too worldly-minded, going too much after pride and pleasure and the cares of this life, especially is this true of the young people, so that it is sometimes hard to tell the saints from the world, when they all dress and act alike at all times. Saints, we are living far beneath our privileges, and our condition will not be any better until we made it so.

It may be with the young people—some of them at least—that they fear to make much of a show toward being active lest some one else think they are trying to be a "goody goody" kind, and they will just wait until they are older before they make such a show toward spiritual development thinking there is "plenty of time." That is one of Satan's chief excuses. He tries to deceive by making you think you have many years in which to serve the Lord, but just so you will serve him today he is satisfied. Better make good use of today for it is all that you can call your own, the past and future are not in your reach.

Would like to say that I am making an effort to get out a book of poems by L. D. S. authors only, suitable for children's days at reunions and like occasions. Desire that the subjects be such that set forth the beauties of the church and the restored gospel, that our youth may speak in harmony with the spirit of the work.

I believe such a book of recitations will fill a long felt want with those in charge of programs for the primary grades. I don't see why we should not be able to produce a creditable work of this kind.

I would appreciate original poems from our missionaries who have the poetical ability, and others who are talented along this line. Choose what subjects appeal to you, but let your effort be in the praise of Christ and his church. We would like to secure three or four hundred manuscripts by February first.

I trust this appeal will bring a hearty response from you who write poetry. I will write a personal invitation to those whom I know, but if you have the ability consider this an invitation direct to you.

Help us make this book a grand success, for when published a large portion of the proceeds will go to the Palestine Mission. Send your manuscripts to the undersigned.

Hopefully
Louise A. Wall.

BEARLIE, Nov. 10.

Editor Ensign—There are many beloved saints and friends who will be looking for some word from us and we hope many will read this letter and remember how hard it is to send each one a separate greeting, and we will use this means of wishing you all a Merry Christmas—a bright and thrifty nineteen fourteen.

We also wish to express appreciation for the many prayers offered for us and we trust we will be remembered from time to time for it seems very hard to be contented to live away from the saints. It is an opportunity to be in direct sympathy with the missionary who must labor in a foreign field. One cannot realize this unless they are over in this foreign country where the gospel is unknown.

We find it very necessary to live very near our Master, for we are in what is known as a very worldly city, and we feel we are surrounded by the influence of the prayers sent out by the faithful saints, and we look forward to the hour when we can return home.

We feel to say that it is a wonderful privilege to hear so many artists but the real artists are those endowed with the Spirit of the gospel—and after all as a people we have much to be proud of, much to be thankful for, and the gifts among our own are many. We are privileged to hear McKisch—the most wonderful conductor in the world—every other week. Grand operas are most beautifully staged here, and there is on an average of say at least half dozen good concerts every night.

Here we meet people from every part of the world—every denomination, and what is called "American Church" here is crowded every Sunday. There is quite an American colony here, and in a measure seem like one big family.

Marie is enjoying her work under the great Master Lhevaine, and doing justice to the opportunity afforded her, but she still has in mind her instructors in Kansas City, and the warmest feeling goes out to them.

We ask an interest in your prayers and we hope the Lord will surround us with his influences which will keep us from all harm and permit us to return safely to Zion when the work here is accomplished. With best wishes.

Yours in bonds,
Hattie Riggs.

FULTON, Iowa, Nov. 29.

Dear Ensign—This is my first letter to you although I have taken the paper for years and I do not see how any saint can get along without the church papers for there is so much in them to keep them alive in the work. We do not like to see a little babe stay small but we like to see it grow to be plump and fat; neither do we like to see a member a dwarf, but like to see them progress; and how can they if they do not read the church literature. We as saints should thank our heavenly Father for the good literature that we have. Take the Herald Ensign, Autumn Leaves, Stepping Stones, Hope, and Journal of History, then all the other good books; we surely should grow and develop so that we could defend the work.

We here have a nice Sunday school and preaching every Sunday. Last Sunday five more were baptized into our branch, making nine this fall. Our district conference that we had here in October was a decided success. The Sunday school reader a nice program on Friday evening enjoyed by all,—such a loving spirit prevailed all through the conference.

New saints of the Eastern Iowa District; I wish to inform you that we are still behind with the church debt funds; do not let this year close without you doing your part, even in this. My books will close December 31, 1913, so let me have your name on the financial record. We need one dollar and fifty cents from each member, we can easily pay this much, can we not? Yes, we can; but some cannot respond, then those who can should do better.

Your brother,
John Heide.

326 WEST END AVE., PARIS, Ill., Oct. 1.

Dear Ensign—I feel it my duty to add a few words to your columns. I was baptized two years ago the 8th of October by E. O. Byrns near Birdseye, Indiana. I am a broom maker for the Merkle and Wiley Broom Company here. Several of the broom makers are interested in the gospel and one of them has told me three times today that he wanted to be baptized, and asked me to get a preacher to come to Paris, and I hope you can send one of your preachers here to baptize him, and preach some for us. I feel that there are others. I have two sisters here who are interested in the work. There has never been any preaching here and I am the only member of the church here.

My earnest prayer is that we may some day have a branch of saints here, and I ask an interest in your prayers that I may live faithful and be a shining light to others. Wishing a happy Christmas to all.

Sincerely your brother,
Jacob Williamson.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Mrs. Ina A. Schall, Monte Vista, Colo.—I wish to ask the saints through your columns at Long Beach, Calif. to please call on my sister Mrs. F. M. Hopper and two children who have recently gone there to spend the winter. They are strangers in a strange land and are desirous to meet with the saints there and have fellowship with them. Her address is 821 Elm Ave.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

THE CHURCH BEARS THE NAME OF HER LORD.

BY ELDER CHARLES E. BUTTERWORTH.

"For if a church be called in Moses's name, then it be Moses's church; or if it be called in the name of a man, then it be the church of a man; but if it be called in my name, then it is my church, if it so be that they are built upon my gospel." Book of Mormon, Book of Nephi 12:29. "Behold, verily, verily I say unto you, this is my gospel, and remember that they shall have faith in me, or they can in no wise be saved; and upon this Rock I will build my church; yea, upon this rock ye are built, and if ye continue, the gates of hell shall not prevail against you."—D. C. 32:3.

The above statement being true we commence a research for his name, and find the following: "The angel said unto her, thou shalt bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus". . . "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." Luke 1:30-35. The angel said to Joseph concerning Mary, "And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins."—Matt. 1:21.

"And according to the words of the prophet, and also the word of the angel of God, his name shall be Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Yea, behold I say unto you, that these things are true, and as the Lord God liveth, there is none other name given under heaven, save it be this Jesus Christ of which I have spoken, whereby man can be saved." Book of Mormon, 2nd book of Nephi 2:36, 39. "Behold I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God. I am the life and the light of the world." D. C. 10:12. "Behold, Jesus Christ is the name which is given me of the Father, and there is none other name given whereby man can be saved."—D. C. 16:4.

Jesus of Nazareth was not the only person of his day that was called Jesus, but no one else was anointed of God as he was. "But unto the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever; a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows."—Heb. 1:8, 9.

"And I, John, saw that he received not of the fulness at the first, but received grace for grace; and he received not of the fulness at first, but continued from grace to grace, until he received a fulness; and thus he was called the Son of God, because he received not of the fulness at the first. And I, John, bear record, and lo, the heavens were opened and the Holy Ghost descended upon him in the form of a dove, and sat upon him, and there came a voice out of heaven saying, this is my beloved Son, and I, John, bear record that he received a fulness of the glory of the Father; and he received all power, both in heaven and on earth; and the glory of the Father was with him, for he dwelt in him." D. C. 90:2. "For he whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God; for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him." John 3:34. "How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power; who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil, for God was with him." Acts 10:38. Jesus the anointed or Jesus the Messiah in Hebrew, and Jesus the Christ in Greek. See article Christ Subject-Index, Teachers Bible page 199. This accords with the testimony of the Evangelist, "One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messiah, which is, being interpreted, the Christ."—John 1:40, 41.

Paul says, "And he is the head of the body, the church; who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead: that in all things he might have the pre-eminence." Col. 1:18. "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth: And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, and to the glory of God the Father."—Phil. 2:9-11.

Therefore the church is named in him." But ye are to come unto mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, To the general assembly and church of the firstborn; which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect." Heb. 12:22, 23. "For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in Heaven and earth are named."—Eph. 3:14, 15.

The family here referred to is the church of the firstborn in heaven or in earth; or, in other words, the church militant and the church triumphant, the saints in heaven and the saints in earth are but one family, and they are named in Jesus Christ.

"For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church; and he is the Savior of the body." Eph. 5:23. And as the wife bears the name of her own husband, so does the church bear the name of her husband, which is "JESUS CHRIST." Then it is the church of Jesus Christ.

It is composed of saints who are righteous followers of Jesus—his beloved disciples. "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to him; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white; for the fine linen is the righteousness of the saints."—Rev. 19:7, 8.

The people of God were called saints from very early times, as the following will show: "Yea, he loved the people; all his saints are in thy hand: and they sat down at thy feet, every one shall receive of thy words." Deut. 33:3. "Gather my saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."—Psalms 50:5.

The followers of Jesus were called saints in the days of the Savior and his apostles, as may be seen by the following, "Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the saints which are at Ephesus, and to the faithful in Christ Jesus. Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."—Eph. 1:1, 2. "Paul and Timotheus, the servants of Jesus Christ which are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons." Phil. 1:1. "To the saints and faithful brethren in Christ which are at Colosse: Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ." Col. 1:2. So that we have the Church of Jesus Christ composed of saints.

Jesus says: "My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my father's hand." John 10:29. "But I would have you know, that the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man, and the head of Christ is God." 1 Cor. 11:3. "What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." 1 Cor. 6:19, 20. "Therefore let no man glory in man. For all things are yours, whether Paul or Apollos, or Cephas or the world, or life, or death, or things present or things to come, all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." 1 Cor. 3:21-23. "And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all." 1 Cor. 15:28.

Because we are Christ's, and Christ is God's therefore the church is oftentimes and properly referred to as the church of God, as may be learned from the following: "Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours: Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 1:2, 3. Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the saints which are in all Achaia: Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ." 2 Cor. 1:1, 2. "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood."—Acts 20:28.

Paul refers to the time in which he lived as the last days, as may be seen. God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds." Heb. 1:1, 2. Jesus said, "The time is fulfilled, the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel." Mark 1:15. Paul refers to the same time as follows: "But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Gal. 4:4, 5. For this reason the time when Jesus and the apostles were preaching the kingdom of God, may properly be referred to as the dispensation of the fulness of time, and not as the dispensation of the fulness of times.

Paul refers to a later dispensation in the following words: "That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are in earth, even in him." Eph. 1:10. It would seem that the dispensation here referred to is that in which the gospel in its fulness and power was to be restored, and will continue until Christ shall have come and gathered all things that are in him together; whether they be in heaven, or in the earth, and will be completed by his glorious reign of a thousand years with his saints, when he shall be "King of kings, and Lord of lords."

From this it would seem that under the restoration the church might be properly referred to as, "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," Had the officers and members of the church been loyal to God and Christ from the days of the restoration of the gospel until now, no addition to the name would have been necessary. However, because of the apostasy which commenced soon after the death of the martyrs in 1844, which included the disorganization of quorums; when therefore, a number of the branches came together, and by command of God were reorganized into the church, about 1852 to 1860, it became necessary to add a word that would indicate that fact, which was done by adding the word re-organized. For these reasons the church is referred to in our times as "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints."

RESURRECTION.

BY ROBERT FULLER.

In ZION'S ENSIGN issue of September 11, article, "Thoughts on the Resurrection," there will be found the following statement, "Some have said that the resurrected dead of the celestial glory are to be on the earth during the thousand years." Yes, brother, I think so too, he further says. All right, let us reason together. In D. C. 63:73, it says that the resurrected ones shall inherit a place in the Holy City, and not on the breadth of the earth, so let us reason this city is the seat of government somewhere.

After a careful examination of the paragraph referred to by the brother I am unable to find any evidence that the Holy City will not be located on the earth during the thousand years reign; but reading Genesis 7:70, 71, 72, Inspired Version, I find the following language:

"And righteousness, and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, to gather out mine own elect from the four quarters of the earth, unto a place which I shall prepare, an Holy City, that my people may gird up their loins, and be looking forth for the time of my coming; for there shall be my tabernacle, and it shall be called Zion, a New Jerusalem. And the Lord said unto Enoch, then shalt thou and all thy city meet them there; and we will receive them into our bosom; and they shall see us, and we will fall upon their necks, and they shall fall upon our necks, and we will kiss each other. And there shall be mine abode and it shall be Zion which shall come forth out of all the creations, which I have made; and for the space of a thousand years, shall the earth rest."

Also in this connection read Genesis 9:22. "And the general assembly of the church of the first-born shall come down out of heaven, and shall possess the earth and shall have place until the end come, and this is mine everlasting covenant which I made with thy father Enoch."

Is not the foregoing evidence that the Holy City will be located on this earth, and that it will be the dwelling place of the saints of all ages and lands during the millenium?

The brother infers from the words "caught up" as found in D. C. 98:5 that the saints are to be taken from the earth, but for what purpose are they to be caught up? Reference to 1 Thessalonians 4:16 shows us that all who are Christ's at his coming will be caught up to meet the Lord who is then coming to reign on the earth a thousand years, and those thus caught up will return with him to reign in Zion, a New Jerusalem, which will be located on the earth.

A careful study of section 36 will show this to be the case. Note carefully the language of paragraph same section already quoted.

Now go with me back to section 28, paragraph 2, the latter part, where Christ says, "I will reveal myself from heaven with power and great glory, will all the hosts thereof, and dwell in righteousness with men on earth a thousand years, and the wicked shall not stand."

In connection read Revelation 20:6, "Blessed and holy are they that have part in the first resurrection; on such the second death shall have no power, but they shall be priests of God, and shall reign with him a thousand years."

Now, I ask, are not the foregoing extracts from former and latter day revelations sufficient to establish beyond doubt, that Christ and all redeemed, or resurrected beings will reign on the earth a thousand years? Also that from among those who have worthily occupied in the priesthood, Christ will select those who will represent him in the various departments and provinces of this millennial kingdom?

CHRISTIAN WORK.

BY ELDER J. E. VANDERWOOD.

When we begin to understand the true spirit and meaning of Christianity we will discover the all important fact that it is inseparably connected with our life work, and that Christlike service means infinitely more than mere pulpit preaching, or church going. We will begin at least to see that all work is alike honorable, and also necessary, therefore whatsoever the calling in life may be there is abundant room for service, and if it be small or great, easy or laborious, if it be done in the spirit of divine love it is acceptable with God, and profitable to man.

We cannot divorce Christianity from our industrial pursuits and make a success of either of them,—they must go hand in hand, our labors should be seasoned with religion and our religion should be actualized by work. Industrial pursuits without the Christian standard is incomplete, and religion without persistent, energetic work is a failure; therefore, when we discover the all important truth that religion is not a thing in itself, separate and apart from the daily avocations of life, but is a part of—even the very essence of life itself, we are then entering into a fair way of making a success of life.

Life and success should mean infinitely more than the mere amassing of wealth or the acquiring of a knowledge of letters, it should mean for us the all-sided developing of the individual, the poisoning of the character, the unfolding of the life, that there will be found a proper balance—a proper correspondence in all things. Froebel expresses it thus:

"As for religion, so, too, for industry, nearly cultivation is highly important. Early work, guided in accordance with its inner meaning, confirms and elevates religion. Religion without industry, without work, is liable to be lost in empty dreams, worthless visions, idle fancies. Similarly, work or industry without religion degrades man into a beast of burden,—a machine."

When Christ bid those who were heavy laden to take upon them his yoke, he evidently desired to draw their attention to the fact that by means of the easy fitting gospel yoke the burdens of life become light, and by means of this easy fitting yoke man is lifted from a beast of burden, a machine, to a free, intellectual, independent being, that which otherwise would be unbearable is made light, easily performed, by the aid of the yoke of Christ, the gospel yoke. It also impresses the fact that our labors in life should be seasoned with the gospel of Christ.

Jesus said: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." But how did he work? This after all is the most important thing for us to ascertain. It was the Master of men who said: "It is my meat to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." Work performed in the Spirit of Christ, or in the manner in which he performed it becomes a pleasure, and not a duty, it becomes a privilege and not a necessity, and the reason to be ascribed for this is that he lost sight of himself in the service of others. So likewise when we cease to be self-centered, self-indulgent, we will learn to serve humanity, by forgetting self and selfish desires and with Christ be able to say: "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work."

Work to us will then assume a new aspect, we will no longer be beasts of burden, machines, but with a free and unfettered spirit will enter upon the duties of life as a master and not as a slave. We will discover to our own satisfaction that it is not work that degrades men but the spirit of slavery in which it is performed, and so it is that without Christianity work enslaves men, but by means of the gospel yoke, work liberates, emancipates, uplifts, cheers, comforts and ennoble mankind.

The individual who has thought to find Christianity without work has materially failed in his calculations, and he who is constantly complaining of his trials, hardships, crosses, burdens and privations by reason of his religion, has entirely a wrong conception of religion,—he may have religion it is true,—but one thing is certain and that is he has not taken upon him the yoke of Christ, for if he had the yoke of Christ he would cease galling under his load, the yoke would fit so easily that he could bear his burdens without murmuring.

True religion then is not an extra burden,—something added to the already too heavy load,—it is an instrument of mercy, something that will lighten the heavy burdens, and remove the weight of the cross, it will make life a blessing and the labors of life a pleasure, if therefore we take upon us the yoke of Christ we will not only find the burdens of life lightened but we will be able to comprehend his words and their meaning when he said: "Consider the lilies, how they grow." The lilies begin very small but day by day they draw substance from the elements around them and gradually develop, unfold, bloom, and become beautiful, brightening and refreshing the entire atmosphere about them with their beauty and fragrance.

So in like manner by taking life as Christ took it, by bearing its burdens as he bore them, by performing our work as he performed his, we too may, no matter how small our beginning, become like the lilies, developing, unfolding and blooming into a life and character like unto that of Christ, making fragrant our entire environment by reason of the sweetness of disposition and freshness of life we weave into our daily avocations, and the life and virtue we mingle with our conversation.

Our Christian work then is to weave into our character the attributes of the divine Master, to grow and unfold into a life like unto his life, and to bless the world with the ever cheerful, self-sacrificing spirit of divine love and true devotion, breathing continually the spirit of altruistic service, and following the things only that make for peace.

JOHN DODGE'S SERMON.

The minister said last night, says he,
Don't be afraid of given';
If your life ain't nothin' for other folks,
Why, what's the use o' livin'?
And that's what I say to wife, says I;
There's Brown, the miserable sinner;
He'd sooner a beggar should starve than give
A penny toward buyin' a dinner.

I tell you our minister's grand, he is;
But I couldn't quite determine,
When I heard him a givin' it right and left,
Just who was hit by his sermon.
Of course, there couldn't be no mistake
When he talked of "long-winded prayin'";
For Peters and Johnson they sat and scowled
At every word he was sayin'.

And the minister he went on to say,
"There's various kinds o' cheatin',
And religion's as good for every day
As it is to bring to meetin';
I don't think much of a man that gives
The Lord 'Amens' at every preachin',
And spends the time the followin' week
In cheatin' and overreachin'."

I 'specks that dose was bitter enough
For a man like Jones to swallow;
But I noticed he didn't open his mouth,
Not once, ater that to holler,
Hurrah, says I, for the minister—
Of course, I said it quiet—
Give us some more of this open talk,
It's very refreshing diet.

The minister hit 'em every time;
And when he spoke of fashion,
And a riggin' out in bows and things
As woman's rulin' passion,
And a comin' to church to see the styles,
I couldn't help a-winkin and nugin' my wife,
And says I, "That's you";

And I guess it set her a-thinkin';
Says I to myself, that sermon's pat;
But man is a queer creation;
And I'm much afraid that most of the folks
Won't take the application.

Now, if he had said a word about
My personal mode o' amazin',
I'd have gone to work to right myself,
And not set here a-grinin'.

Just then the minister says, says he:
"And now I've come to the fellers
Who've lost their shover by usin' their friends
As sort o' moral umbrellers
Go home," says he, "and find your faults,
Instead of huntin' your brother's;
Go home," he says, "and wear the coats
You've tried to fit for others."

My wife, she nudged, and Brown, he winked,
And there was lots o' amilin',
And lots o' lookin' at our pew;
It set my blood a-bilin';
Says I to myself, our minister
Is gittin' a little bitter;
I'll tell him when meetin's out, that I
Ain't at all that kind of a critter.—Sel.

CONGRESS AND INTERNATIONAL DISARMAMENT.

On October 31st of this year, a most important matter was discussed in Congress, which will be brought up for reconsideration very shortly, when all the members of the House are present. A resolution was brought forward by Representative Hensley, of Missouri, regarding the matter of international disarmament, which read as follows:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the House of Representatives the declaration of the Lord of the Admiralty of Great Britain, the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, that the Government of the United Kingdom is willing and ready to co-operate with other governments to secure for one year a suspension of naval construction programs offers the means of immediately lessening the enormous burdens of the people and avoiding the waste of investment in war material.

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be furnished the President, with the request that, so far as he can do so, having due regard for the interests of the United States, he use his influence to summarize the agreement suggested by the Right Hon. Winston Churchill."

In the discussion which followed, not one dissenting voice was heard; on the contrary, all the speakers heartily indorsed the resolution. A vote was taken merely because the members wished to wait for a time when a greater number present could give greater weight to the opinion expressed. The speaker Mr. Champ Clark, took the floor to urge the passage of the resolution at the earliest possible opportunity. He said:

"Two weeks before Mr. Churchill made this declaration of his I declared in favor of a scheme of international disarmament in my Louisville speech, and said that that was the only way to get at it; that no one nation was going to undertake it for fear the others would give them a thrashing before they got through with it; but that this scheme of great armaments was the most idiotic performance known among men.

"I am glad that Mr. Churchill made this proposition. I also stated in that speech that if any three great powers would join in a proposition for international disarmament by percentages the rest of them would have to come in. They could not stay out. Then I suggested certain combinations. Of course you can make a good many combinations in groups of three. I took the United States, Great Britain and Germany. There is not a man on earth who has little enough sense to believe that if three great nations say 'We are going to stop this business,' that it would not come about.

"I suggested other combinations: The United States, Great Britain and France; or the United States, Great Britain and Russia; or the United States, Germany and Italy; or France, Germany and Russia; or Great Britain, France and Russia. I have forgotten how many combinations of that kind you can make, but there are a lot of them. Then I added that the United States ought to lead in this matter of disarmament, and I believe it ought for the reason that I stated—of favorable geographical position, our great population; our great wealth, and our indomitable spirit."

Mr. Clark said jingoists "used Germany as the raw head and bloody bones until it became ridiculous in the eyes of the world, Germany was held up in this House as the great terror to Americans. After they had worn that absolutely threadbare, or 'to a frazzle,' as the distinguished American traveler would say, when it was proved that Germany was friendly to us, then they grabbed Japan and held it up in the same way. There is no proof that Japan is hostile to us. There is no sense in it, and this resolution ought to pass when it will give the greatest amount of force by its passage."

Republican Leader Mann expressed himself strongly in favor of the resolution. Representative Slayden, of Texas, called attention to the great military extravagancies—expenditures for rifles, the patterns of which change on an average once in ten years, for battleships which cost more than $16,000,000 each when to the cost of hull and machinery is added the cost of battery and armor. Representative Sisson, of Mississippi, maintained that the United States should lead in the movement to relieve tax-payers of the war-burden. "Let this money be expended in building schoolhouses, be expended in establishing and maintaining educational institutions, be expended in building public highways, building the good roads over which the farmers can haul their produce, be expended in improving our rivers and harbors. By devoting all those millions in other nations to that purpose we get the benefit in America indirectly of the work in improving the harbors and highways of all the world."

PARENT-TEACHER'S CLUBS.

The following incident is quoted from The Kansas City Star.

"Whom can I appoint as chairman? I don't know a mother in this school district."

"That declaration of ignorance on the part of the teacher of the Martin School in the East Bottoms, relative to the organization of a parent-teachers' association for that school, pointed clearly to the need of such an organization. The Martin School is given merely as an illustration and not as being exceptional.

"In four years," the principal said, "not a dozen mothers have been inside this school. They don't know one another. Nobody knows anybody else down here except through the agency of necessity, and necessarily generally presents itself in the habiliments of unpleasantness. Certainly these parent-teachers' associations must change this condition and instead of knowing one another merely when and because they have to, they will know each other pleasantly and because of their common interest in something worthy."

When the organization meeting was called and nominations for the officers were in order, the silence was significant of the condition that existed. Then one woman arose.

"I nominate that woman over there," she said. "I don't know her name."

"That woman" got up and gave her name. The reserve of the situation was dissipated and at the end of the first meeting a beneficial change had been made.

Interest in these Parent-Teacher's associations is nation-wide; a movement which is sure to bring about a long felt want, the co-operation of parents with teachers in the care and training of children who have made a start in school life.

At this time, such a change comes about in the life of the beginners, that by all means, he must have as good a chance as possible (which may never come, unless his parents make the acquaintance of the teacher, and they become confidential.) It never takes long to enlist a teacher as a "member of the family," if we judge by many successes of which we hear, when the effort has been made.

With confidence in himself and teachers strengthened, a child cannot help but do better.

Was it your child a teacher recently addressed thus, "Nellie! Here you've been in this grade two years, and you don't know anything yet. Shame on you!" Well, she said it. And the child may not be "dumb" either; but mostly misunderstood in either case, such treatment is wrong.

A child loses its self respect, its self reliance, its standing among its roommates, under unfair circumstances.

Our children may be very trying to their teachers, so that the teachers need our support and encouragement, if we desire them to show patience and interest in their charges. The teachers' position is a very nerve racking one (if she possesses that much talked of and nourished element in the makeup of womankind now days—"nerves.")

Again, parents need to become acquainted with each other. There is much of confidence, understanding and mutual personal interest which will be developed, when we meet together and become interested in conditions surrounding the pupils at school and in laying plans with teachers, principal and school-board for the betterment of these same conditions.

Here parents will hear also, of existing conditions and circumstances surrounding their children in going to and from school; much knowledge of vital consequence to the unsuspecting parents. Too many need their "eyes opened."

In Independence, over a year ago, the parents and teachers of the Columbian School organized and joined this national movement. This school has the largest attendance of any in town, and has of late years been so crowded that several grades could only attend half of each day, even to the age of ten years, in a few cases.

At the beginning of the term this year, the parents (represented by the mothers principally) had plans laid and their discussions with principal and teachers, led to a petition which a committee presented to the board. Soon the result was apparent, when the janitor's home on the school grounds was converted into a room suitable for school use. And now the fourth grade pupils, attend school all day. An extra teacher has been employed.

Other plans and reforms make the meetings full of life, lectures by physicians and others on moral and physical conditions, etc., are of great interest.

This school is composed mostly of L. D. S. children; hence the officers of the organization are from among their parents, with one exception. Since the organization in this school, other schools have organized this year. It is a movement for great good and one in which the parents and teachers, regardless of creed, are united in an earnest effort for the benefit of child life.

More concerning the work in the Columbian School will appear later; furnished us by the president of the organization.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER.

"Better than a sermon. (Ed.)"

"Oh, my dear, your little boy's start! I sat down in my kitchen by the window and read 'if (when you started the boy to school), and an old ache came in my throat and I cried; for had not I come over that same road and my little boy—O, I would give many wonderful things to touch his bonnie head again—but the miles and miles between us! As I read your story, I cried and I prayed, not for my boy, nor for your beautiful son, but for the thousands who are thrust out of the home without tears or prayers or blessings. What have they to anchor with?"

Sometimes my boy writes, "Mother mine, I am tired of the battle. I want to lay my head in your lap and feel your fingers in my hair. I want to be a little boy and forget these things that fret and wear."

O, if you could see and hear some of the things that he has to meet in his work in the high school of that large and wicked city, you would not wonder at it. In 1911 there were eighty girls in one high school that were known to have been ruined. And we all feel sure that the word "unknown" cannot be restricted to the graves of our dead soldiers or sailors. It marks the graves of much of virtue and goodness in our public schools."

(Parents, begin now to help the teachers train your children; to help formulate plans for their protection against the increasing evils in the world. You will find them willing and anxious for your co-operation. Ed.)

AUTUMN LEAVES FOR 1914.

A WORD WITH YOU.

Autumn Leaves is about to enter upon its twenty-seventh year. As a magazine it is still young, vital, energetic, and alive to the interests of the church.

Objectively, Autumn Leaves might be represented on a three-foot shelf,—twenty-six bound volumes. But this by no means represents the life's work of the editors and publishers.

Autumn Leaves is represented in the lives, in the characters and deeds of men and women who a few years ago were the "young people" of the church, and now are its capable and ardent supporters.

No yard stick or balance can weigh or measure the good that Autumn Leaves has done along that line.

The past speaks for itself, and Autumn Leaves may be judged on its merits so far as the past is concerned.

Our eyes, however, are on the future; like Paul we press forward,—otherwise we could not edit a magazine for young people, or in fact for any class of progressive Latter Day Saints.

We are concerned now with the problem of making Autumn Leaves better during 1914 than it has ever been before.

We think that we shall succeed.

Will you help us by your support?

We shall here name just a few of the good things in store for readers of Autumn Leaves for the coming year. These are merely presented as samples, and will appear in due time, subject of course to unavoidable changes. (Our rule is that when one good article that we advertise is omitted for any reason we give in its place two good articles that were not announced.)

THE GUEST OF THE EDITOR.

We have selected and invited twelve representative men and women of the church each of whom is to occupy in the editorial department at some one number of Autumn Leaves during 1914 as the guest of the editor. Each one is to select his or her own subject. Those invited are:

Mr. M. Walker, Lamoni, Iowa, founder of Autumn Leaves.

W. J. Haworth, Australia, editor of Gospel Standard.

Daniel Macgregor, of Canada, superintendent of the General Sunday school Association.

Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, Independence, Missouri, secretary of Zion's Religio Literary Society.

Charles Fry, Independence, Missouri, editor of Zion's ENSIGN.

Emma Burton, Santa Ana, California, author of Beatrice Witherspoon, and well known as a church worker in the South Sea Islands.

J. Charles May, minister in charge of the South Sea Islands.

J. A. Gunsolley, Lamoni Iowa, president of Zion's Religio Literary Society.

S. A. Burgess, Lamoni, Iowa, president of Graceland College.

Paul M. Hanson, Winter Hill, Massachusetts, minister in charge of the Eastern States and Maritime Provinces.

A. N. Hoxie, Jr., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, general chorister of the church.

In accepting the invitation one of the above named brethren wrote: "Once upon a time that term 'guest' signified rest and entertainment. My, what a reversal of meaning some of our twentieth century writers give to it."

We replied to him that when a particularly gifted guest is present he is sometimes expected to sing a song, read a poem, or make an after dinner speech, according to his particular talents. And as we have invited none but talented individuals as guests of the editor during 1914 we will expect some very interesting articles.

SOCIAL SERVICE SERIES.

The vital topics that are being discussed in the world today are those of a social nature. All of these questions are involved in the general question of the uplift of humanity, and many of them are directly or indirectly involved in the building up of Zion, and in the welfare and safety of individual saints.

We have arranged for a series of articles on social service subjects, and herewith give a partial list of topics and authors.

The Work of Social Reformers, by President Frederick M. Smith.

The White Slave Traffic; Its Methods and Results, by Elder J. F. Garver, chairman of the social purity committee.

A Discussion of Legislation as a factor in Ethical Advancement, by I. A. Smith, formerly of the Iowa State Legislature.

Industrial Education in the United States, by Professor George N. Briggs, of the Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

Co-operation; its Values and Meaning, by Apostle John W. Rushton.

The Relationship of Religion to Twentieth Century Problems, by Bishop A. Carmichael.

Prison Reform, by President Frederick M. Smith.
Trained Men and their Relationship to Modern Social Problems, by S. A. Burgess, president Graceland College.

Social Service (in one or more articles), by Benjamin R. McGuire, of Brooklyn, New York, lecturer on Social Service before the North Philadelphia Institute.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Our "travel sketch" of late years have been among the most interesting articles that we have published. These articles will be continued, and some splendid numbers will appear in 1914. We already have in hand the following:

A Visit to Lexington and Concord, by Elder G. Wellington Robley, illustrated with photographs by Elder H. O. Smith.

Reminiscences of Egypt, by Rosa Parks Pitt, with illustrations by the author.

A Visit to Stratford-on-Avon, the home of Shakespeare by President Joseph Smith.

Through the Mountains of California by Stage, by Sr. F. B. Farr.

A Visit to Catalina Island, by Ella Switzer, with illustrations by the author.

Our Experiences and Impressions in Australia, by Rosa Parks Pitt, with illustrations by the author.

Pearl diving in the Islands, by Gomer T. Griffiths.

Other articles will probably be received during the year, including notes from Jerusalem from the pen of Apostle U. W. Greene, and from Australia from the pens of Apostle Gomer T. Griffiths, and Elder C. Ed. Miller.

FIRST PAGE EDITORIALS.

During the past year the first page of Autumn Leaves has been given over to short and pointed editorials addressed to young people. This custom will be continued during the coming year, as many have already expressed themselves to the effect that they have been greatly helped by these editorials. The following subjects are announced:

The Collector of Virtues.

Brain Paths.

Preserved or Pickled?

The Man Who Never stopped and Never Turned Back.

In Line of Duty; the story of the Evanaalia.

Three Keys to Power.

The Drifting Boat.

Preparation and Achievement.

Vibrating Heartstrings.

Hunting Moon Stones.

The Heavy End of the Log.

Pulling the Load.

OTHER FEATURES.

The regular features of Autumn Leaves will be continued, such as articles of interest and value on various topics by the best writers in the church, short stories, biographies, and poems.

Nor should we forget to mention the regular departments which include the departments of the Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service, and The Religio's Arena. The former is devoted to conservation of the home and is edited by Sister Callie B. Stebbins. The latter is devoted to the work of Zion's Religio Literary Society, and in its management the editor is assisted by Sr. Estella Wight.

ARE YOU A SUBSCRIBER?

Autumn Leaves is edited for the young people of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Men are said to be as old as they feel and women as old as they look. If the brethren will endeavor to feel young and the sisters to look young all may qualify as readers of Autumn Leaves, and they will be the better for it. Let not the old forget the gladness of their youth.

Autumn Leaves is published by the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa; Elbert A. Smith, editor. Address all orders to the Herald Publishing House, One dollar per year, in advance.

CONVENTION MINUTES.

INDEPENDENCE STAKE.—Zion's Religio Literary Society met at Holden, Mo., Saturday and Sunday November 29 and 30, 1913. The first session was a prayermeeting in charge of W. A. Bushnell and F. A. McWilhee. The service was of 20 minutes duration and during that time there were three prayers offered, four songs, and twelve testimonies. A "get acquainted" session was then held, lasting about fifteen minutes in order that the delegates might become acquainted.

Reports from locals showed encouraging conditions throughout the stake. 171 delegates were chosen to represent the stake at the general conference Independence, April, 1914 with instructions for those present to cast full delegate vote, and in case of a division to cast a majority and minority vote. Present membership of stake 1710.

A resolution adopted at Religio convoked at Pertie Springs, June 14, 1913 was read—"Resolved that members of the Religio who are addicted to the use of tobacco for other purposes than those mentioned in the Doctrine and Covenants are hereby declared disqualified for officers in this organization; Further, that this rule be in effect and operation six months from the date of its adoption."

The following resolution was adopted:—"Resolved that the executive committee suggest to each local that its executive committee, or the superintendents of departments, be empowered to nominate all the teachers available for each particular class, and that the election shall be made only from among those nominated."

The Independence Orchestra gave a splendid concert Saturday night, the house being filled to overflowing, many turned away. A heavy rain Sunday morning lightened the attendance at the services but did not in the least dampen the ardor of those who braved the elements. The prayer service was in charge of J. A. Tanner and J. A. Gardner, followed by other interesting features during the day. The closing address of the convention was by P. B. Harrington. Adjourned to meet at Central K. C. in May.

Mrs. R. Brocaw, Sec.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.—District conference was held at Lincoln, Nebraska, July 10th and 20th, 1913. W. M. Self and C. E. Butterworth in charge. H. A. Higgins, secretary. Statistical reports from Nebraska City, Lincoln, Blue River and Eustis branches received.

Ministerial reports from C. E. Butterworth, C. H. Porter, W. M. Self, E. F. Robertson, H. A. Higgins, J. G. Munsell, S. Brolliar, Leon Snow and E. R. Alstrand, received. The bishop's agent's report read, audited, and adopted.

On recommendation of Lincoln Branch C. B. Edwards was approved for ordination to the office of an elder, and provision made therefor. A district choral association was organized, electing Mrs. Blanche Andrews as chorister and Edith Trask as secretary of the association.

Following resolution was passed: "Resolved, that hereafter each branch in the district be requested to forward to the secretary of the conference with its statistical report, the sum of two dollars more or less, to apply as its share of the expense of the conference. Balance of said expense to be provided for by the branch with which the conference is held."

The following officers were sustained:—W. M. Self, district president; H. A. Higgins, secretary; C. H. Porter, bishop's agent and district historian. Next conference at Nebraska City at call of president in January.

H. A. Higgins, Sec.

WE HAVE OXFORD BIBLES, TOO.

Yes, we have the celebrated Oxford Bibles, none better in the world. That is saying a good deal, but it can be backed up. These Bibles are published by the American branch of the Oxford University Press.

We have lately put in the Oxford in addition to our line of Bagster and Cambridge Bibles, which are also of the highest class of Bibles. Send for list. These make nice Christmas presents.

MARRIED.

(CORRECTED FROM LAST WEEK.)

WADDELL—WHEELER.—At the home of the bride on S. Dodgeon St., Independence, Mo., November 30, 1913, Mr. Soren O. Waddell and Mrs. Nancy A. Wheeler, both of Independence, Elder Geo. Jenkins officiating.

DIED.

BOWEN.—Earnest Lester, son of Bro. Evert and Sr. Rhoda Bowen, died December 13, 1913, at their home in Independence, after an illness of three weeks. Born May 29, 1907; blessed when a baby by A. H. Parsons. Funeral sermon by A. H. Parsons, Bro. Garrett in charge. Judge Sewalter also made some very appropriate remarks.

MORGAN.—Elder J. W. Morgan died December 5, 1913, at 10:30 a. m. at the residence of James Farley, Bisbee, Ariz. He was born October 12, 1859; leaves wife, seven daughters, and one son to mourn his departure. Funeral service in charge of Elders S. D. Coudit and W. H. Mannerling. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery at Lowell, Arizona.

RILEY.—Sr. Pearl Riley was born February 6, 1896, died December 1, 1913, of consumption. Sr. Pearl united with the L. D. S. Church December 17, 1912, and was strong in the faith, ever looking forward to the time of meeting her loved ones again, setting an example of meekness and patience, loving yet willing to obey the call from on high. The remains were laid in the Hillside Cemetery, Vera, Okla.

LAMBERT.—Alice Jane, wife of Elder Wm. T. Lambert died at her home near Adrain, Ill., Nov. 27, 1913. Her maiden name was Pilkington; born in Sonora T. P., Ill., June 6, 1848. Dec. 9, 1872 she was married to Wm. T. Lambert and they ave since that time lived near their present home. Eight children were born to them. Ida May died in infancy, Mrs. Anna Byers of Portland Oregon, Mrs. Grace Stevenson of Fairfield Iowa, the Misses Elma and Irene at home are the daughters. Millard G. resides on the home farm, Clarence J. at Wilson Creek, Wash., Arthur W. at Viceroy Canada, are the sons; all present except Mrs. Anna Byers. The funeral service was held at 10:30 a. m. Nov. 29th in the Adrian M. E. Church by Elder Jas. McKiernan assisted by the pastor Rev. Sand. Interment was at the Thornbur Cemetery near Powellton, Ill.

CASSIDY.—Harvey Cassidy was born near Charleston, Lee Co., Iowa, Aug. 12, 1865, baptized by Elder S. M. Reiste, March 8, 1908 at Fort Madison, Iowa. His death occurred on the K. line track near the Galland, Iowa, on Nov. 28, 1913, 3 p. m. on account of being run over by an engine while walking on the track, he being deaf did not hear the approaching train in time to escape. Funeral service was conducted in the undertaker's chapel, Montrose, Iowa, Elder Jas. McKiernan in charge. Burial in Montrose Cemetery.

STOBAUGH.—Oct. 13, 1913, Bro. James E., son of Oliver M. and Mary A. Stobaugh. Born May 4, 1885, baptized Sept. 7, 1913, by Elder F. M. Mauzey, at Coyote, Fergus County, Mont. Death was caused by a complication resulting from a growth in the passage between the throat and stomach. He was a firm believer in the promises of God. He leaves a wife, one child, father, mother, one brother and two sisters. Funeral sermon by Bro. E. J. Scott of St. Joseph, Mo., interment in Davis Chapel Cemetery, near the birth place of the deceased.

DAGONIA, Mo., Nov. 18.

Editor Ensign.—Four years and a half ago Bro. W. P. Bootman and A. M. Baker came here and preached quite a number of sermons, and I and wife and two daughters accepted the gospel message with a number of others, and from that time until now there has been others gathering into the fold. About three weeks ago Bro. W. P. Bootman arrived and preached quite a number of sermons stirring the saints up to their duty and doing much good. He baptized two into the fold—two daughters of Bro. C. C. Counts.

I am a young very older in the work of God with but very little education, but I know by keeping God's commandments he will qualify me for his work. I wish to thank the prayers of all the saints, that I may be able by the help of God to defend his work, and proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Yours in the one faith.

J. D. Keathley.

NEW WINDSOR, Ill., Nov. 17.

Dear Ensign.—I do not know that I can say anything new, but I can say that wife and I, two isolated members are trying to keep the faith and live in that way and manner that when life's fitful scenes are over it may be said of us, "they were a benefit to those around them." While we are isolated from the church associations we are not isolated from our heavenly Father.

I often hear or read what seems to be a cry of self pity from isolated saints. Dear saints, do not mourn or think your lot is hard, 'tis not so, all is well. I would say, be ye lifted up in your hearts and rejoice for 'tis God's will that we stand at the out-posts of his battle line as it were to hold the enemy in check, and help his other soldiers, or servants if you please, in their work of taking the works. Just think how hard it would be (if there were no outer sentries or picket line) for the other fellows to get a foothold on the enemy's works. But by our quiet every day life sowing the seed, here a little and there a little we may prepare the ground for a larger sowing by and by.

Wife and I are the only members of the L. D. S. church here and sometimes the heart feels the lack of association with members of like faith but I shall stay until my work here is finished, whenever that may be. I have the pleasure of teaching a Bible class every Sunday and then I have a chance to tell some of the things the good Father has done for me and bear my testimony to his goodness in such a way that may make others wish that they too had the same testimony and often I have been so impressed by the Holy Ghost the testimony would bring tears to the class so you see I have a work to do. I have two more years to serve Uncle Sam in the capacity of P. M., here (just think of it, a prohibitionist as well as a Latter Day Saint holding a job like that) and then I may have other service for the Master.

Asking an interest in the prayers of all saints that we may so live that we may be counted worthy of an entrance into and an inheritance in the kingdom of God.

I am yours in bonds,

J. Wm. Allen.

FAIRLAND, Okla., Nov. 12.

Dear Ensign.—I wish to find a man by the name of W. L. Cather. The last I heard of him he was in St. Louis; that was several years ago. I am his stepmother-in-law and have his only daughter (as he and his wife are parted), and he does not know of her whereabouts, neither where I am, as I have changed my name and address; and as I feel it is his duty to help educate and raise his daughter, who is now in her teens. I thought perhaps you might give me a little assistance in making a request through the columns of the ENSIGN requesting anyone who knows his whereabouts to notify me.

Your sister in gospel bonds,

Mrs. George Rhonemus.

Box 172.

Mrs. Ralph Motijl, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. We are still trying to keep the banner of the gospel aloft though we are few in number. We love the gospel above everything else, but we need to be taught as we have never had the privilege of a large branch where there is preaching every Sunday. We appreciate the coming of the elders. Bro. Joehnk was here for several days last winter, and Bro. S. H. Fields has visited us twice this conference year, and Bro. I. A. Chamberlain has just left after several days' meetings. I trust the readers will pray for us that God will raise up a good branch in this place, and that we may continue faithful.

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS
HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means new members, or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, but as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to and I tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.

CHRISTMAS EVERYWHERE.

Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!
Christmas in lands of the fir tree and pine,
Christmas in lands of the palm tree and vine,
Christmas where snow peaks stand solemn and white,
Christmas where cornfields lie sunny and bright!

Christmas where children are hopeful and gay,
Christmas where old men are patient and gray,
Christmas where peace like a dove in his flight
Broods o'er brave men in the thick of the fight:
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

For the Christ-child who comes is the Master of all;
No place too great and no cottage too small.

The angels who welcome him sing from the height,
"In the City of David" a king in his might:
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

Then let every heart be His Christmas within,
Christ's pity for sorrow, Christ's hatred of sin,
Christ's care for the weakest, Christ's courage for right,
Christ's dread of the darkness, Christ's love of the light:
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

So the stars of the midnight which compass us round,
Shall see a strange glory and hear a sweet sound,
And cry, "Look! the earth is aflame with delight;
O sons of the morning, rejoice at the sight:
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!"

—Phillips Brooks.

CHRISTMAS GREETING

The wondrous event which the Christian world memorializes upon this twenty-fifth day of December is one that should, and will, delight the heart of every soul. In announcing to the humble Judean shepherds the birth of the Redeemer, the angel said his message was one of "good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people," and many souls have found joy and hope in this Redeemer, while the knowledge of his saving power is extending to all the world carrying joy everywhere. The day is worthy of commemoration, and the heart filled with appreciation to God for his great gift seeks to show that appreciation by spreading abroad the Christmas spirit of good cheer and gladness to all men. We join in the general sentiment and send the season's greetings to all our readers, trusting that none will miss the true spirit of the occasion. May the peace and blessing of Him whose birth we celebrate abide with all is the hope of

The Editor.

CHRIST THE LIFE OF THE WORLD.

As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself. John 5:26.

He . . . giveth life unto the world. John 6:33.

That Jesus held the power of life is affirmed in the scripture quoted above. Other scripture represents him as being one with God in the beginning and that it was through him that the world was made, and that he then held the power of life.

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made. In him was life; and the life was the light of men. John 1:1-4.

For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist. Colossians 1:16, 17.

The crowning work of the creation was the placing of life upon the earth, ending with the creation of man and imparting to him the "breath of life." In this is seen the superiority of Christ over man, one being the Creator, the other the creature, the natural life of the latter being the gift of the former.

It is not strange that when the Creator came in the flesh that he should be found manifesting this power of life in his ministrations among men. At his touch sickness vanished, restoring the sick to the normal degree of life. By his anointing, eyes which had never seen the light were given the power to see. At his rebuke devils which held men in chains of bondage fled away, and by his command the dead came to life.

But all these things only show his power over the flesh, but Christ's power did not stop there. He held dominion in the spiritual realm as in the natural, and he was able to impart the higher life to man as he had imparted the natural life in the beginning.

When the man helpless from palsy was brought to him Jesus said:

Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee.

The scribes refused assent to his claim of such power, but he said to them:

Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house. And he arose, and departed to his house.

His power to heal the soul of sin is here shown, and made clear to the carnal mind by his healing the body. To others also he said, "Thy sins be forgiven thee," and they went away relieved of their soul-burdens.

Christ's power over life is more fully shown in his power over death. Of his own life he said:

I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down; and I have power to take it again. John 10:17, 18.

And in fulfillment of this declaration he submitted to the will of wicked men and suffered death on the cross, and after three days rose to life again, thus proving his victory over death. Subsequently to this wondrous event he said:

All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.—Matt. 28:17.

I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold I am alive for evermore. Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death. Rev. 1:18.

LIFE TO ALL MEN THROUGH THE RESURRECTION

Through Christ's victory over death, life will be restored to all men through the resurrection, so that all men will again live in the flesh. Jesus said:

I am the resurrection, and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. John 11:25.

And Paul wrote:

For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. 1 Corinthians 15:22.

While all men will be raised to immortality, their condition and degree of life will be determined by the judgment, every man being judged "according to their works," and every man receiving such a degree of salvation or condemnation as his works in this life shall require. Even with those who enter into salvation there will be different degrees of glory, for Paul taught that

There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial; but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead. 1 Corinthians 15:40, 42.

The resurrection is Christ's gift of life to men, but the degree of glory which they receive will be that for which they have lived and gained through obedience to the "law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus."

THE MEANS OF SALVATION.

One important feature of Christ's mission to earth was the teaching of that law given him of the Father without which man could not receive full salvation. It is the gospel of salvation. The rock upon which men must build if they would be secure against eternal adversity. "He that believeth on me, hath everlasting life," is the teaching of Christ, but believing involves more than mere assent of the mind for he further says:

If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments. Matthew 19:17.

Not every man that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Matthew 7:21.

The teachings of Christ, not only those of an ethical character, but those also relating to the ordinances and other sacred observances, are all essential and of necessity must be observed in order to bring the soul to a condition of acceptance with God.

These principles are made effectual by the life and sacrifice of Jesus Christ, so that while we recognize him as the Savior of the world, we also recognize the gospel as the means. Apart from the gospel Jesus does not save in the kingdom of God, his blood cannot cleanse from sin except through obedience to the truth the repetition of sin is stopped.

But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin. 1 John 1:7.

A message of life is always cheering. The healing of the body caused men to leap and praise God, but the healing of the soul inspires greater joy and gladness. The message of Christ is that he heals the soul, and teaches men how to live that they might have everlasting life in the most abundant degree. Should not men seek for this law, and yield diligent obedience thereto. To do so is to have the life of Christ and to walk in his light, to be cleansed from all sin and be saved in the celestial kingdom of God.

We have received a neat eight page pamphlet issued by the Bishopric of the Lamoni Stake being "An address to the saints of the Lamoni Stake, written and adopted by the Bishopric of the Stake as an expression of the requirements of the times, and the opportunities of the people of the Stake as a part of the general church organization." It should stimulate the saints to a full observance of the law.

Bishop C. J. Hunt of the Galland's Grove, Iowa, District, has also issued an appeal to the saints in his district in the form of a circular letter calling attention to the opportunities for service through a compliance with the law. Both will do good.

A SERMON IN RHYME.

If you have a friend worth loving,
Love him. Yes, and let him know
That you love him ere life's evening
Tinge his brow with sunset glow.

Why should good words ne'er be said
Of a friend till he is dead?

If you hear a song that thrills you
Sung by any child of song,
Praise it. Do not let the singer
Wait deserved praises long.

Why should one who thrills your heart
Lack the joy you may impart?

If you hear a prayer that moves you

By its humble, pleading tone,
Join it. Do not let the seeker
Bow before his God alone.
Why should not your brother share
The strength of "two or three" in prayer?

If you see the hot tears falling
From a brother's weeping eyes,
Share them. And by kindly sharing
Own your kinship with the skies.

Why should any one be glad
When a brother's heart is sad?

If a silvery laugh goes rippling

Through the sunshine on his face,
Share it. 'Tis the wise man's saying—
For both grief and joy a place.
There's health and goodness in the mirth
In which an honest laugh has birth.

If your work is made more easy
By a friendly, helping hand,
Say so. Speak out brave and truly,
Ere the darkness veil the land.
Should a brother workman dear
Falter for a word of cheer?

Scatter thus your seeds of kindness,
All enriching as you go—
Leave them. Trust the Harvest Giver,
He will make each seed to grow.

So, until its happy end,
Your life shall never lack a friend.

ADVERSITY MAKES CHARACTER.

A smooth sea never made a skillful mariner, neither do uninterrupted prosperity and success qualify for usefulness and happiness. The storms of adversity, like those of the ocean, rouse the faculties, and excite the invention, prudence skill and fortitude of the voyager.—Maryatt.

INDEPENDENCE ITEMS.

The Christmas spirit has for some days filled the air, as also the winter snowflakes, and the wish of many for a "white" as well merry Christmas will likely be realized. A fall of from two to eight inches of snow is reported over Missouri and Kansas.

The Independence schools closed on last Friday for a two weeks' vacation covering Christmas and New Year's. Many a secret reserved for Christmas morning is discovered daily by the vacationists who have not learned to suppress their natural curiosity.

The lone lines of post office patrols loaded with parcel-post packages waiting their turns at the receiving windows, and wagon-loads of parcel-post mail leaving the post office, show that Independence people are making liberal use of their new privileges under the new postal law. There must be a wonderful growth to the service as the public have only just begun to make use of it.

A revival which has been in progress several weeks at the Watson Memorial M. E. Church closed on Sunday evening. Over one hundred persons are reported to have been converted. The revival was conducted by Evangelist Buch, assisted by Professor and Mrs. Rex J. Moon.

Bro. W. O. Hands celebrated on Saturday last the completion of twenty years of continuous service in the employ of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, with a dinner which was attended by twenty heads of departments. Addresses were given.

As a protest against a practice of the Metropolitan Company of requiring passengers to leave belated cars at Mt. Washington to wait for the next car in order that the car can catch up on time by returning back at that point, about twenty-five passengers refused to leave the car during a snow-storm on Saturday evening, retaining their seats while the car returned to Kansas City and back to Independence. It cost them nearly two hours of time but they will likely be rewarded with better service in the future.

Bro. D. J. Krahl with two other members of the city council visited Kansas City, Kansas, one evening last week to investigate the system by which that municipality furnishes electricity for cooking purposes at three cents per kilowatt which is equal to artificial gas at seventy-five cents per thousand. Independence has a municipal lighting plant, and a committee of the council is considering plans by which Independence people could be furnished with day current for cooking at a similar price.

The Sunday services at the church were up to the average, and the saints found reason to rejoice in the messages of peace and truth received. Elder E. Rannic spoke in the morning and Elder T. W. Chaffars in the evening. The smaller pupils of the Sunday school each received a treat at the close of the session.

Elder J. W. Rushton addressed the priesthood at the monthly meeting Monday evening on the relation of the church to civic and government affairs. It was introductory to a mass meeting of the men of the church held on Tuesday evening to consider ways in which civic conditions might be improved.

The Christmas entertainment will be given on Wednesday evening, the children's chorus in charge of Sr. Audenia Anderson rendering the music, assisted by an adult octette. The Christmas cantata, "In Quest of the King" constitutes the program, and Supt. D. J. Krahl will read the "Story" part.

INDEPENDENCE, SECOND BRANCH.

All the services on Sunday were blessed with the Spirit's presence. The Sunday school had an attendance of 213. The collection was small, but the Christmas offerings were $91.85.

Bro. P. A. Sherman was the morning speaker, it is subject being "Our Conversation." He spoke of the tongue being the most unruly member of the body, yet one of the most useful if used to glorify God. At the prayer service, the gifts were enjoyed, and all left to rejoice.

At 7:30 p. m. Bro. Robt. Warnock was the speaker, opened by reading a portion of Sec. 42, par. 45 of the D. and C. It is so seldom that Bro. Warnock comes to see us that we are glad to hear him on any subject, for he is a man of wide experience in the church, having passed through about all of the troubles of the church in the critical times.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., SECOND BRANCH.

On the first Sunday in December the Sunday school held its annual election of officers which resulted as follows: Harry W. Tilden, superintendent; David C. Wilke, assistant superintendent; Vernon Cochran, secretary; Roy R. Fifer, treasurer; William Scott, librarian; Minnie Scott, organist; Nell Heikes, chorister. Most of these were re-elected and have proved themselves worthy, and we are sure the new ones will be active and reliable.

A fine program has been arranged by the music committee, which will be presented on Christmas eve, in the auditorium of the church, and a "treat" will be given every one who attends. The executive committee in conjunction with the superintendents of departments are busy arranging for the coming year's work, which promises to be successful.

On Sunday morning Dec. 7th Apostle John W. Rushton commenced a week's series of meetings. He used for the basis of his sermon the 84th Psalm. This was the beginning of a number of most remarkable sermons. Bro. Rushton has a mind richly endowed and well stored with knowledge, an unlimited vocabulary, a beautiful phraseology and a wonderful reverent conception of the man Jesus Christ, and we rejoiced when we thought how eagerly the world would flock to hear him did he but bear to them a message of any other brand than that of "Latter Day Saintism."

Yes, we are glad to know that God inspires his servants and endows them with power to preach the blessed gospel so beautifully and we pity the willful blindness of the world, in rejecting the precious message of love and hope and of salvation. Good audiences greeted the speaker every night and packed congregations both Sundays.

On the Sunday afternoon of the seventh the funeral of Sr. Thyra Bacus was held. Sr. Bacus passed away on the Thursday previous, after a short illness. The funeral was in charge of Bro. B. J. Scott, sermon by Bro. Rushton. This was one of the most sweetly comforting talks it has ever been our pleasure to hear.

During this week two sad accidents occurred, which brought sorrow to those of our number. Henry Clay, son of Bro. and Sr. William Clay, was killed in the railroad yards here, and Charles McGrew eldest son of Sr. McGrew was killed in the yards at Omaha. Both were young men, and both left companions. Once again we are led to meditate upon the uncertainty of mortal life.

Because of the week's preaching services, the Religio held its session on Sunday afternoon. At this time Bro. Rushton spoke of the postponed amalgamation of the Sunday school and Religio organizations. There is a strong adverse sentiment concerning the matter here, and it is sincerely hoped that no such measure will prevail.

Our Religio is doing splendid work. We have a set of officers who are alive to the work, and they push all the time, and the members pull. This is the secret of their success. And it is an open secret to all other locals, who will make the effort to do likewise.

Sacrament service on the seventh was well attended and a good spirit prevailed.

On Sunday the 21st Bro. B. J. Scott was the speaker both morning and evening. In the afternoon the Woman's Auxiliary held its regular session. Matters of interest were discussed and plans suggested for a line of work which we hope will be of benefit.

On Friday evening our pastor baptized Bro. Joseph Dwyer, who was later confirmed by Bro. Coventry Archibald, assisted by Bro. Scott and Fifer. How gladly we welcome each one into the fold, and what glorious opportunities present themselves to these young men for consecrated service to God.

Bro. Coventry Archibald and Roy Fifer went Saturday to the Pleasant Grove Branch, near Clarksdale to hold a two days meeting.

Bro. Russel Archibald of St. Louis, Bro. and Sr. James Archibald of Avery Iowa, and Sr. Maggie Angell of Centerville Iowa, have been here because of the serious illness of their mother, our beloved Sr. Archibald, whom we are happy to say has so far recovered as to be able to be out. Sr. Pearl Piper who has been dangerously ill in the hospital here, for the past two weeks is reported better. Grave fears have been entertained for this young sister and we rejoice to learn that she is better. Sr. Pearl is the only daughter of Bro. and Sr. G. W. Best.

KNOBNOSTER, MO.

We are now occupying the basement of our new church which is nearly completed. The formal opening will occur Sunday Dec. 28, 11 a. m., when Bishop E. L. Kelley and J. W. Rushton will conduct the services. Elder Rushton will continue with a series of services.

Since occupying the basement the increased attendance of non members has been very noticeable.

Elder W. S. Macrae has been our Sunday evening speaker for some time and his subjects have been the kind that interest outsiders. Bro. Macrae has been with us since the commencement of the new church and has faith fully labored all the way through at a my kind of work.

We have good reason to be proud of this new church. The building is heated with a furnace and lighted with electricity.

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND.

Our ever welcome Minister in Charge, Bro. F. M. Sheehy came down from Oregon on Friday and is spending a few days with us. He preached a very acceptable sermon in Oakland Sunday night to a good house. Bro. E. Ingham occupied the eleven o'clock hour along religio scientific lines. The Sunday school and Religio were well attended and good.

We spent a very pleasant day Sunday with the San Jose Branch, seeing for the first time their new church building. The services of the day were replete with good feeling and spirit. The Sunday school numbered about forty with Sr. Hattie Burgess as superintendent, well managed and interesting. The Religio was well attended and is cared for by Sr. Bates. The program consisted of interesting talks by Bro. Harley Bates and Bro. Gilbert, with readings, and a beautiful piano solo by young Sr. Wauvita Clark. We called on Bro. and Sr. Cowden with their month old Ruth Aileen, also Bro. Hedrick past ninety-two years old who had recently fallen and broke his thigh bone. The branch is nicely housed in their well appointed church building, and financially arranged as to not make paying for it burdensome. We spoke morning and evening. Was cared for and made comfortable by Bro. and Sr. Hawkins and that warm fire brick at our bed fellow.

The faithful remnant at Irvington were greatly encouraged Sunday by the monthly visitation of Bro. J. A. Saxe who gave them spiritual food.

The morning speaker in the city was Priest E. S. Parks, followed in the evening by Priest E. E. Hartsough. The Sunday school and Religio were usually good.

Euronte home from San Jose we dropped off at Irvington and viewed the reunion camp ground; found Bro. Driver in his home busy in the affairs of life. Walked out to the Stivers ranch where we spent a few interesting moments in visit with Sr. Stivers and two daughters. This home has been shared by many of the chief men of the church in years gone by. Sr. Stivers has a wonderful store of interesting reminiscences.

Bro. C. A. Parkin filled the Windsor and Santa Rosa monthly appointments very acceptably, having good services at both places.

CORRESPONDENCE

McALISTER, OKLA.

Editor Ensign:—As I am renewing my subscription to the Ensign thought I would write a few lines to let you know I am still strong in the faith.

Was reading a letter from Bro. Bootman at Earfaula having such a time trying to find a certain parties. Wish he would drop off at our place for a week or two. Bro. H. R. Harder of Wilburton was here last spring and preached four sermons for us and several expressed themselves as pleased with the preaching, but as it was such a busy time there were not many out, as I did not know for certain he would be here and it wasn't announced as it should have been, but if an elder could come and let me know so I could have it announced in time I think there could be some good done here. If an elder was coming from the north on one of the local passenger trains they would let him off at Melko switch just about a mile and a half east of us; but if they go on to McAlistier they would have to come back three miles north and one and one-half miles west to find us, but if they will let us know when they are coming we will meet them at McAlistier.

Bro. Quick expressed my sentiments exactly in regard to the modern dress. I think some of them are a disgrace to the race of women to wear them. The children of God as I understand it are to be a peculiar people, and are told to come out from the world, and if we follow the same fashions and ways how are we going to tell them from the world? The Bible and Book of Mormon both teach us that pride and rebellion against God's plan has been some of the causes of the down-fall of the nations ever since the world began.

Your sister in the one faith,
Mrs. Lee Cunningham.

SAN JOSE, CAL.

Dear Ensign:—Those who write letters, especially the missionaries, for publication in the church papers as a rule have some good news, something of interest to report to the readers of these papers. Some of our missionaries are more fortunate than some others in that they are privileged to labor in fields more fertile—productive of more good—than some others. Doubtless this is the reason we hear, through the church papers, from some oftener than we do others. My reason for not writing oftener is, I was not anxious to report work others were doing, if I knew, and I have done so little myself that would be of interest to your readers I thought it best to not burden the columns of your valuable paper with uninteresting reports of labor done by me when there are those who have something of interest to report. For my part I am very glad to read the reports of my brethren in the ministry who are more successful than myself. I am pleased to know that we are not all of us preaching a gospel of condemnation, some are believing and obeying it—"Savior of life unto life," and not of "death unto death."

It does not always follow that a missionary has not done his best, or as well as many another missionary would have done had they labored in the same field under like conditions when it is impossible for him to report having done big things. He may have used as much wisdom, tact, energy—been as industrious in all his work in an effort to bring about the best results, as the missionary who labors under more favorable conditions and whose labors do bring more favorable results. Missionaries who have labored in different fields understand this and know that their labors are not always to be measured by the number of sermons preached and people baptized into the church.

Perhaps I had better write no more having but little to report from this field, you know, or maybe you don't know, let me whisper it to you, it is in California, for fear some Californian should chance to read this and think I was knocking good old California. That would not be tolerated by a simon pure Californian without protest. I don't want by any means to lose a lot of good friends I have here by acting unwise in saying something was not just right about California, that would be a mistake. To create a prejudice in the minds of the people against California might spoil the Panama Exposition in 1915.

For the last seventeen years I have labored as a missionary. I have labored in, or passed through going to or returning from my several fields of labor, every state west of the Mississippi River except five, and one east of this river; during this time I have made the acquaintance of a great many saints; in this communication permit me to say to you whose acquaintance I have made, that by testimony today is the same that it always has been; I need not repeat it here. I have always thought that I was in the faith. I am just as anxious to do the little part that is for me to do, with the help of the Master, as I have been at any time in the past. This latter day work to me is my meat and drink. It is all to me and all I have is given to it.

Since coming in these parts, near Madera, I have preached in Bro. I. A. Phelps' home in the afternoon and Sr. Rose's home in the evening of Sunday, November 23d, in the Fair View school house on Friday evening and Sunday afternoon following, and in the Prescott school house in the evening. I will continue preaching in the school house last named during this week. A minister for the Church of God has an appointment for Sunday, therefore, I will give way for him and expect to go to another school house five miles away in another direction, the Stoddard school house, for Sunday, returning to the first two school houses for the next Sunday having already left appointments at these places, and at the preaching in the afternoon at one place and in the evening other. The Fair View and Stoddard school houses are both new openings; preaching has never been done by any minister in these places.

The above will give you an idea that I am trying to do something, if I don't accomplish much.

Fraternally yours,
J. D. Stead.

Prayer is the breath of a new-born soul, and there can be no Christian life without it.—Roland Hill.

Dear Ensign:—As I am renewing my subscription will write a few lines to let you know how much we appreciate your weekly visit, we take the Herald, Ensign and Autumn Leaves and feel like we couldn't get along without them.

Bro. Brooman preached here in Sept. for two weeks, and while he did not baptize any, his sermons were greatly enjoyed. He organized a Sunday school and we have it at our house, and we hope to be able to do some good. It seems so nice to be able to pass the Sabbath in the service of the Lord.

We ask the prayer of theessaints that we may live faithful and be able to do much good for the work.

Your brother and sister in the gospel.

Fred and Agnes Shumaker.

ENGLISH, Ind., Dec. 5.

Editor Ensign:—During our debate with E. G. Denny at Oak Hill school house, near Birdseye, a member of the "Campbellites," as he expressed it, at the close of the first days discussion came to me and invited me to come to English and hold some meetings, which we promised we would do provided arrangements could be made for our entertainment. We continued for nearly two weeks in the vicinity of the scene of the debate, holding meetings in private houses with good interest. Finally we received a card from A. F. Colebaugh saying "Come to English, your entertainment is provided for." Accordingly Bro. Metcalf and I came here on the 2nd inst. and Bro. Colebaugh and Helmbrecht secured the opera house. I chalked the sidewalk for meeting that same night. We had a large audience of attentive listeners, who contributed more than enough to pay the rent of the hall for that night. On Thursday night we were permitted to occupy again, with an increased audience. We are deprived of using the opera house on Wednesday and Friday nights on account of the picture shows.

This is the first effort by the Reorganization in this place so far as we have been able to learn. We hope for good results.

We had expected to spend most of our time in Kentucky but the debate has changed the program somewhat.

Mr. Denny and his people had arranged for time and place for the debate without consulting me whatever, and without informing me of his agreement to any certain propositions that I had accepted. Furthermore he attached my name to a typewritten set of propositions and sent to the people at Oak Hill. It looks like an attempt to slip in without notifying us, and then trying to make it appear that we had failed or backed out.

Hearing of the rumor I wrote one of their preachers and also our own people, and got word just five days before the time they had set. So we were there at their appointed time. We told them we were under no obligations to be there, but came anyway, and would sign up with Mr. Denny both as to propositions and time and place. Then we signed up for a debate, for the first time in the presence of many witnesses, only a few minutes before it began.

The result of the debate was satisfactory to the saints and ourselves. Our people are rejoicing with a joy that is constantly manifest on their countenances, especially when mention is made of the debate.

Will those who know of opportunity for preaching especially new openings, in either Southern Indiana, or Kentucky and Tennessee districts please notify the undersigned at my home address. Holden, Mo., Box 144.

In gospel bonds,
H. E. Moler.

SIoux CITY Iowa, Nov. 20.

Editor Ensign:—After laboring five consecutive years pleasantly, and we trust profitably in New York, my field of labor was changed to the Little Sioux District. Coming into the district we located in this city which has a population of about forty thousand. Many believed this will become the leading western city. Here we have a branch of about one hundred and fifty, but not all living within the radius of the branch or city.

The first of June, in company with wife and Bro. Chas. J. Smith we went to Pisgah where we met many noble saints in convention and conference where we formed many new acquaintances, meeting but few we had seen before. While there we were domiciled at the home of our aged brother and sister Frank Vredenburg who, though aged did all in their power to make us feel at home, as did all the saints in welcoming us to their district. Here we had the pleasure of meeting with three veterans in the cause of Christ, who were Patriarchs J. W. Wright and Charles Derry, and W. A. Smith of the Seventies. The above brethren and myself were the speakers of the conference. A good time was enjoyed by all.

On Monday my wife returned to the city, and I had the pleasure of riding through the country to Logan, with Bro. Sidney Pitt, stopping at Magnolia for dinner at the home of Bro. D. R. Chambers, where we were entertained by his wife and daughter for a short time. We also called on Bro. A. M. Fryando, who, though living alone, one would have good reasons to believe there was at least a first class housekeeper near by.

Leaving Magnolia, we went on through the country, reaching Logan in the early evening, we found this to be a beautiful little western town of about three thousand population. Here we were made welcome at the home of Dr. and Sr. Kennedy, whose aim was the interest of the great work, also that of "ye missionaries." After enjoying their saintly hospitality also the pleasure of being associated with Bro. J. W. Wright over night. I took my leave for Moorehead, where I found Bro. Amos McIntyre at his blacksmith shop and was taken by him to his beautiful home where I found a welcome and where I stayed principally while there, though I was royally entertained by a number of other warmhearted saints.

Bro. Carl Nesentnye is president of the branch, and is a live coal. The branch has a full set of officers and is in good condition. I had the pleasure of preaching ten evenings in their neat church and baptized three. May the kind Father bless them for their kindness to me while there.

From there went to Pisgah the 19th and spoke seven times in their nice chapel. Here also I found a royal welcome by those loyal saints who are presided over by Bro. Joseph Laine, who is not loved by the Pisgah saints alone, but by all who know him. This branch also has a full corps of live officers. I was cared for principally while there at the home of Bro. Joseph Laine and his son Arthur, though I visited many churches.

By arrangements I went on the 26th to Mondamin where I was met by our energetic Bro. Stewart. After taking supper with Bro. J. W. Mann, I went to Bro. Stewarts where I made my home for a week. I spoke some five times in their church and met quite a number of good earnest workers for the Master, among whom were Bro. J. E. Gonsolley, the presiding elder, Bro. Everett Gamet a promising young elder, Sr. Anna Stewart who never expects any one to get lonesome while in her company, and while in her auxiliary work one may find her full of zeal which is according to knowledge. Then there is Sr. Laura Mann, who, for her sobriety might cause one to think of "Mary" or "Martha" who loved to be doing good deeds and helping others to be happy. Yes, when Bro. Stewart rings the bell all must be in their places ready for services.

Really my stay at all the above places was altogether too short for me at least, but my main object was to get my field located, then move out into new work, leaving the branches as much as possible in the hands of those whom the Holy Ghost had made overseers, for we felt sure the Lord had made no mistake in the call of those we met.

After reaching Sioux City I received word from Bro. J. A. Gillen to make Sioux City my objective point, and labor in and around the city as the way might open, so I thought the best way to work would be with a tent. I mentioned the subject to a few and it met the approval of some, and a few it did not. But I drew up a petition, got two brethren to sign it with me as the committee, started out thinking perhaps we might raise thirty dollars in the city, and then we would ask for help from over the district. After working about a week with my subscription paper, I learned just eighty three dollar had been subscribed by the Sioux City Branch alone. Are they not a loyal few? Isolated saints living some twelve miles from the city subscribed $8. Pisgah Branch $10, Moorehead $12.75, Woodbine $2.50, Mondamin $1.25, making a total of $117.50.

We ordered the tent made, bought enough folding seats seven feet long to seat it, also lumber for platform, torches to light it, and the latter part of July we pitched tent and began services the same evening. The young people of the branch and some of the older ones as well stood by me nobly, assisting in singing and helping in different ways. Sr. Lillie Calhoun and Bro. Chas. J. Smith especially deserve mention, the former for untiringly presiding at the organ, the latter having charge of all the services.

We found it difficult to get the people out, though many heard the gospel preached, and I visited many homes, distributed tracts and talked with many people. We did some planting, others may water, and we can trust God for the increase. By request of Sr. James Harr, I went to Bronson, Bro. E. L. Butterworth kindly conveying the tent by wagon, and for three weeks I preached to good crowds. The interest was fine though much prejudice was manifested by some. Rainy, cool weather set in and as our conference convened Oct. 3rd in Sioux City, I closed.

Sr. Lillie Calhoun came from the City and rendered valuable service at the organ, as did my wife a few evenings. Also Sr. Elliott and Sr. Marian Harr in singing. While there I made my home principally with Bro. and Sr. James Harr, but visited with quite a number. After our conference by request I went back, and the weather being too cool for tent work, we procured a garage, where with stove and tent seats, besides automobiles, gas engines, and washing machines I preached four evenings to fair crowds with good liberty, and fine interest.

On returning to the city I set to work to visit some members whom we are inclined to think are sleeping on their rights, with a view to encourage them to come to church, and thus swell our numbers and help us roll on this great work. I also visited the Y. M. C. A. and obtained permission to put the Autumn Leaves in their public reading room, also left sample copy of Herald, Ensign and Autumn Leaves at the public library, for the library board to pass upon at their first meeting which we hope will be soon and their report favorable.

On October 19th I organized a Sunday school at Bronson with seventeen members, and others came on the 26th swelling the number to twenty four, all non-members but five. We think the prospects are bright there, as I have ordered two copies of the Book of Mormon, two of Doctrine and Covenants, and quite a number of tracts for some who are investigating. Bro. James A. Gillen called to see us recently and gave us four good spiritual sermons. The brother's line of work is new to him, but he is meeting the situation with fortitude, and we will expect nothing but success to crown his efforts.

With saintly regards, I am in bonds of the gospel,

Alma Booker.

TROY, Ill., Nov. 26.

Editor Ensign:—I have not written, not because I was not busy. I have tried to do what I could and despite the many trials from without and within. I am still determined to hold on, the Lord being my helper.

The death of Bro. Plumb, my son-in-law cast a sad, gloomy, feeling around us, and we are trying to say, "Thy will be done," although why one so young and useful and faithful in the Master's cause, and so much needed here should be called away and leave wife and four little children, to be cared for by others, is hard to understand now but sometime we may.

We are glad that we have a home and can take my daughter and her children in with us and share it with them. Trusting we shall have God's blessing in the future as we have in the past and we shall pull through.

I left home feeling very much discouraged at the prospects for winter. The high cost of living and fuel, special and regular taxes due, with 150 dollars to pay back I borrowed to go after Bro. Plumb's family with an allowance of $20, per month, and two months in arrears with that, yet I expect to go with nothing but summer underwear and outerwear, except an overcoat so bad for wear that no one but another elder would have thought of wearing it.

But thank the Lord, he moved upon the heart of Bro. Willie Lay's wife a non-member, who started out with and with the aid of Sr. Nina Young soon had enough, with Bro. Young to make up what was lacking. So I have the best overcoat it was ever my lot to wear, a credit to Landsdowne saints.

Coming up to Troy, young Bro. John T. Jones, newly married with a nicely furnished home and a faithful loving little Latter Day Saint for a companion, felt so thankful for the blessing he had received, proved it by buying the writer two nice union-suits of underwear and other articles of clothing, "By this you may know my disciples." Thank the Lord there are some noble saints in this field as elsewhere.

The work in this district is moving along,—quite a change since I left two years ago. There is a noble band of local workers. They are doing a good work, and are to be commended for their effort.

If there are any scattered saints living in St. Louis district who would like an elder to call, they may address me 3038 Forest place E. St. Louis, Ill.

In bonds,
Henry Sparling.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 24.

Editor Ensign:—It is some time since I have contributed to your pages, being conscious that I am not an expert at writing so have refrained, giving place to those who are better qualified. I came into these regions on the 15th inst. to see if anything could be done toward opening up the work. Sunday the 16th was a very wet day, so our meeting did not pan out, so we had an idle Sunday.

In the evening Bro. T. G. Whipple put his horse to the carriage and we took a drive to what is known as Quaker Town, where we called at the home of Sr. Estella Whipple, and had a pleasant hour with her and family. Upon arriving at the Quaker meeting place we found only four men; we had a little talk and returned home. In the mean time we had arranged for a meeting at Sr. Whipple's for Tuesday evening at which we had two outside of their family and Bro. Thomas Whipple's folks.

There seems to be but little prospect in this vicinity. Sunday 23d we held a meeting at what is called Fort Hill in the afternoon with a small audience. This is a new opening. Sr. Merritt lives at this place. She has always been isolated from the church, but is strong in the faith. She has been 27 years a member. Her immediate family do not see as she does, and are somewhat prejudiced. We spoke in a private house.

In the evening Bro. Whipple and I again repaired to the Quaker meeting house. They have what might be termed a free and easy meeting, everyone having the opportunity to speak. I listened to what they had to say, I hardly felt free to speak without a request, so I plead the matter before the Lord asking him to control. After several had spoken, the leader of the meeting asked me if I had anything to say. I felt to improve the opportunity. I had no hopes of making any impression upon any of the members of the society. They have been very successfully deceived, the arch enemy, giving them gifts of tongues etc. But there were quite a number of young men present, who apparently came for a good time, and by the way they acted I guess they had it yet I must give them credit they gave me the very best of attention. I spoke about thirty minutes with the very best of order.

I am informed that about twenty two years ago Bro. Frank Sheehy preached in this same hall, thus opening up the work. He was followed by Bro. George Robley who baptized a few. Since that time, Bro. Luff, Bullard, Farrell and Phillips have labored in these regions, with but apparently little success.

We have twice visited New London which is five miles distant, and had the opportunity of a couple of freside talks. Much of my work of late has been done that way. There has been but little preaching done in New London. Bro. Phillips has done some. If we had the means to open up and sustain a mission there. I feel that a good work could be done. I trust the time will come when we can go into such places and open up and sustain missions.

For fear I trespass too much I will draw to a close. My address is 101 Lincoln Ave., Providence, R. I.

Hopefully,
Wm. Anderson.

EVENING SHADE, Ark., Nov. 23.

Dear Ensign:—I feel it my duty to write to the many good saints as I have never written to the ENSIGN before. I do enjoy reading it, my mother takes it all the time. I have been a member of the true church for nine years but do not get to be with the saints much, there being none around here except father's family. I was married about three weeks ago and my husband does not belong but I have hopes of him as he seems to love the church and I ask the prayers of all the saints that he may come to see the full truth, also that I may live faithful.

Your sister in the one faith,
Mrs. Amanda D. Williams.

DALBY SPRINGS, Tex.

Dear Ensign:—We have a real nice branch at this place, and are having a good Sunday school and have preaching twice a month by Bro. Colloy, our priest. He preached his first sermon last Sunday. All of the saints are glad to see him start out to do the work that the Lord has called him to do. The president, Bro. Pollard has promised to preach as much as once a month for us, and we are also glad to see him doing the work that the Lord has called him to do.

We ask the prayers of all the saints that we all may do our duty and be blessed with a good Sunday school.

Your sister in the one faith,
Miss Audry Moore.

SERMONS AND ARTICLES

JESUS CHRIST OUR LEADER.

Sermon delivered by Evangelist Frederick A. Smith, at the opening session of the special meetings in Kansas City, Sunday, November 9, 1913.

REPORTED BY BELLE ROBINSON JAMES.

It is with some degree of satisfaction and pleasure that I meet so many of you, although I frankly admit it was with considerable reluctance that I consented to attend these services, but I hope and trust and labor to that end that the Lord may bless us, may be with us, that when the services have finished we shall be better for what has been done, and unto Him we will readily ascribe all the praise and the honor because of the good.

I have chosen the latter portion of the 7th chapter of Matthew, beginning at the 21st verse, reading to the close of the chapter. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have we cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity. Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock. And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it. And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonished at his doctrine: For he taught as one having authority, and not as the scribes."

Now, in reading this portion of scripture, we have presented unto us a statement of the one individual that we desire to represent during these meetings, and my principal point that I want to establish this evening, will be to establish authority, the right of this individual to give us a declaration of this character. For one man to make the statement, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord," which was equivalent to a confession of Christ, an acknowledgement of him—"shall enter into the kingdom of heaven" unless he knows whereof he speaks, unless he has authority to make such a declaration as that, and foretell a little of the judgments that must follow upon the human family, then he has been presumptuous and if presumptuous, we need not fear his words.

It is quite evident, from the latter part of the chapter, that the people recognized in him and in his teachings something different from the average teacher. They comprehended at once that he did not teach like the others: he taught as one having authority from God and not as having authority from the scribes and the Levites. What is the difference? In what sense did this individual who calls himself Jesus, teach differently from the scribes and those that had authority by them? When we read carefully the declaration, we are struck forcibly with the thought that it savors very strongly of somebody that speaks from an actual knowledge and who knows what his message is and from whence it came.

We are aware of the fact that today we are confronted in a good many places with those who essay to represent Christ, but when we listen to them carefully we are led to conclude that those individuals are not sure of their ground. They are uncertain, wavering, in some degree, and it invariably brings its influence to bear upon us and the effect is to weaken the force of the testimony that they bear. We cannot escape that conclusion. Every one of you probably, have had some experiences of that kind and, without doubt, those individuals that were listening to the words that fell from the lips of this Jesus, recognized in the message that he brought, in the forcefulness of his presentation, in the seeming satisfactory manner in which he did it, the assurance that he was satisfied of its truth, that it all carried with it the thought of authority, of a right to make these declarations from the sense of knowledge.

But who is this Jesus? Who is it that presumes to make a declaration of this kind? In making the further declaration, that many will say to him in that day; "Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?" And yet he will turn to those individuals and say, "Depart from me. Ye never knew me. Ye workers of iniquity."

In that declaration, he unfolds to us an important thought. It conveys at once the idea that he did not recognize every one who made profession as being legitimately under the power of salvation. He did not recognize the thought that because individuals have done many wonderful works that it necessarily followed that these individuals must, of necessity, be absolutely secure and it would be a kind of hard jolt to the old theory of "once in grace, always in grace," for it would seem that those individuals made profession and claim of having done works of this kind; and yet for some reason, he tells them, "Ye never knew me."

Now I am confident, after a good many years' experience in the line of ministerial work that I am perfectly safe in making the declaration that there are many people who profess Christ, who call him Lord, Lord, that never practically sense what it is to know him. To know him means life eternal. For, if we fully sense that condition, grasp that knowledge and fully awake to just what that comprehends, I am satisfied, in my own mind that not a soul that has reached that conclusion but what would recognize the obligation that rests upon him as he had never done before. He would see the line of demarcation between the right and the wrong, between the true followers of Jesus Christ, and the professed followers of Jesus Christ. He would be able to distinguish, without any hesitancy upon his part, just what his duty was, and then, my friends, if he failed to do it, deliberately refused to do it, he must suffer the consequences, or condemnation, beyond a doubt.

It may be possible that individuals, many of them, may profess to know Christ; may think they have found him that have been deceived and do not know, that may come under some degree, at least, of the declaration made here, but I am more inclined to the thought that it will reach out to the individual who has heard of the Christ, who has had some knowledge of the Christ, has grasped and comprehended to some degree what he was and what he meant—but let us go a little farther.

What do we find concerning this individual? What does he present to us? What does the Scriptures say? In the 26th chapter of Matthew, we have another statement or two that we want to notice. And now in taking this up, and examining if we want you to go with us. Let your imagination have just a little play tonight and forget the surroundings around us a little while and put your minds upon the thought that we are going to examine this man Jesus and see something of his characteristics, and then if we can discover some authoritative declaration that will unfold to us the knowledge of his authority, by what right he announced these things to the human family and set his word as the all-important thing, then, my friends, we shall have accomplished all that we shall hope to do as the opening service to our meetings. We shall have started you in the recognition that Jesus Christ is the one that we propose to present to you.

Commencing with the 36th verse in the King James Translation, we have the following:

"Then cometh Jesus with them [the disciples] unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder. And he took with him Peter, and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful, and very heavy. Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here and watch with me. And he went a little farther, and fell on his face and prayed, saying, Oh my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me! Nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt. And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, Whatt! Could ye not watch with me one hour? Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

You will find the latter statement true before the two weeks are over. The spirit will be willing, is willing, even in the meetings that we are going to hold, but the flesh is weak. The flesh is the burden that drags us down. The Master knew it, too.

"He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, Oh, my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me except I drink it, thy will be done."

I want you to get this scene: the Garden of Gethsemane, walled in; cultivated nicely, with the lawn nicely kept, trees and shrubbery to make a nice place—not a large place but a small garden, yet a beautiful garden. Christ and his disciples were wont to go there to rest. It was private; there they could offer their souls unto God in prayer, in the solitude of that garden.

At the close of day, weary from the travels and the teaching and the questions that they had had all day long, they all wend their way down across the valley and up the hill-side to Gethsemane. They enter the gate, move down through the shrubbery until they come nearly to the end, and the disciples drop upon the grass. The moon has arisen and is shedding its soft light over the garden now, and this man Jesus takes two of these men with him and goes on towards the end. He tells them to stop a little while and he goes a little farther and asks them to watch with him and pray with him and he kneels upon the ground, the soft moon light falling him. He begins to pour out his troubled soul unto God in all the anguish of his soul. There is a conflict on. He has reached a crisis in his experience. He has come to the place where the flesh is weak and the spirit willing. He must fight that battle. We stand back now by ourselves in the shadow and watch the conflict. We listen to the agonizing cry as he lifts his face unto God and cries out in the agony of his soul: "Oh, my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me," and then quickly follow the words, "Nevertheless, not my will but thine be done."

We see him as he arises from his knees and looks upon these disciples and finds them asleep. He wakens them, sad to think that his companions could not watch with him one hour. Oh, how human, friends! We see him as he turns from them and once more goes back to his prayer. He prostrates himself upon the earth once more; he pours out his soul in agony again. He pleads with his God and his Father, and then as he lifts his face in that prayer and the moonlight falls upon it, we start and look in astonishment as drops of blood ooze from the pores of the skin and trickle down his face. How great that agony! How wonderful! Can it be that it is so severe as this? And our thought goes back, wanders back to the experiences that have passed.

We see him as he stands at Lazarus' tomb with the tears trickling down his face. He lifts his voice to God with confidence and assurance and makes a prayer, and then, turning to those around him, says, "Take away that stone." They hesitate and the sister of the one that was dead, says, "No, Lord. He has been dead four days and already stinketh. It is no use now, Lord." But he looks upon her in tender compassion and yet in firmness: "Take away the stone." They move the stone away and then with a mild but commanding voice, "Lazarus, come forth!" and he that was dead comes out.

We see him again standing upon the street and a funeral cortege goes by and the funeral bier and on that bier a son, an only son of a widowed mother. His great heart is touched. He yields to his feelings and he stops that cortege. He reaches out the hand and says to the young man, "Arise! and he that was dead obeys him. He turns and gives him back to that mother. Her joy overcomes her grief and she has been made happy.

We see him in the midst of the throng, a crowd pressing around him. He suddenly stops, turns to his disciples and says, "Who touched me?" Probably as we would do under like circumstances. Ah, but he perceived that virtue had gone out of him; and the poor woman comes and kneels before him and says: "Lord, I said if I could but touch the hem of thy garment I shall be whole," and he says, "Thy faith has made thee whole," and she was healed of an affliction that had held her for years.

We see him again as he goes up the street and hear the cries of the blind man that had begged his bread at the Beautiful Gate and he keeps on crying until the Lord turns and says: "What wilt thou have me do?" "That I may see, Lord." He anoints his eyes and sight comes to that man. He has exercised that wonderful power again.

We see him on the hillside with the thousands gathered around him to listen and they became hungry. There is no food for them there and they have only brought a few little fishes and a few loaves of bread, but he recognizes their need; he commands them to be seated in companies. He calls his disciples; takes those little fishes and bread and blesses them and breaks them and by some power known to him, exercised by him, he has been able to gather from the elements the essentials necessary to complete that bread and fish to feed them until he had fed the thousands. He had exercised this power now in their behalf. That is the man you see bending in the garden, with blood trickling from the pores of his skin under the agony of the hour.

We see him again as the ruler comes rushing to him and begs him to come quickly; "Lord, my daughter is dying," and the Master turns and starts. After they had gone a little ways, this ruler's servant comes rushing to him and says: "Trouble not the Lord, Master; thy daughter is dead." Where is the father that cannot appreciate the agony of that moment? Where is the father that would not have turned with trickling eyes and said: "Master, trouble thyself no farther. My daughter is dead." But once more he manifests that sympathy; once more he moves with that confidence, with that supreme assurance and he says: "Lead on. Be of good cheer." What father would not have taken heart and courage under that? They led the way. They came to the chamber. They are weeping and mourning there according to the custom of the people. He puts them all out but the parents and then taking that little maid by the hand, he says, "Arise," and immediately life comes into that body. She arises from that bed, and he says: "Give her to eat. She is an hungred." Think for a moment what it would mean to you! What would the exercise of a power of that kind do for you? This man bending now in the agony of a struggle, sweating, as it were great drops of blood under that agony!

Our mind goes out again. We see him as he passes into the city and hears that mournful and pitiful cry, that peculiar warning that the customs of the people had maintained, in and through which the individual hailed through the world his own misery: "Unclean! Unclean! Unclean!" a warning to every soul to keep away from him. The Master heard it. It touched his heart. He stopped. He turned to them with one word, seemingly, the power and authority vested in him was exercised and those men were made whole. He cleansed the lepers and set them free from that living tomb.

We see him again as the impotent man lies begging alms and when he comes near that man calls to him, he once more extends the helping hand and ministers to him—a man forty years old who had never stood upon his feet—had been an impotent man from his birth, and yet when this Jesus gives him the word and tells him to arise and walk, there came unto him the necessary strength and the man leaped and walked and shouted for joy.

We see him again weary and tired. He takes a little boat and starts across the sea. Taking a pillow he went to the stern of that boat and lay down and went to sleep. It was not a large boat evidently but at least large enough so that a number of men were upon it. He had not been asleep long before a storm arose and the wind began to howl and roar around them and the waves began to lash high and those on the boat became frightened. Finally they missed him and someone was sent in search of him. When they found him asleep they awoke him—and we have sometimes thought not any too gently for some of those sailors are not as gentle as they might be.

I have tried to picture that scene—that little boat, pitching and tossing upon the waves of the sea. This man, awakened from his sleep, drowsily staggering forward to the bow of the boat and there with one hand clutching a line, he looks upon those around him and says, "Oh ye of little faith." They could not trust him in spite of all the wonderful things they have seen, just to cross that little sea. The flesh is weak. Then lifting his hand calmly he commands, "Peace be still." The winds hushed their roaring, the sea stopped its lashing and a great calm rested upon them. Who is this that commands the elements and they obey? Can bring them together and feed humanity? Can say to the sea, Be still, and it stops its raging; Answer this question, Who is this?

And as we stand now looking upon the scene before us, all these wonderful exhibitions of power and confidence, supreme confidence comes before us and goes flashing through our minds. We have seen him raise the dead, heal the blind, heal the impotent man, cleanse the leper and many other things that we might call your attention to, and now we find him bending in the Garden of Gethsemane beneath the load, agonizing before God with all his power. Ah, friends, what is the trouble? Why, you answer, the shadow of that cross has fallen upon his pathway. He knows what is before him. He comprehends the awful trial that awaits him. He has seen the agony of the crucifixion and he will not shrink from it. He has seen the world enter into the kingdom and he will not shrink from it.

will of my Father which is in heaven. He came for that purpose and in accomplishing that will he sees before him the agonies of the cross. He sees the darkness of the tomb. He recognizes the awful death. He comprehends something of the humiliation that must come to him before he reaches the cross and we are standing contemplating these things and wondering at them. Did it ever occur to you that right there was the battle fought in the interests of humanity? That had he failed, had he weakened, had he yielded to the flesh, it might have cost us all our hope? It was a momentous one and as we stand contemplating these things and wondering at them, we see him arise calmly from his knees and wipe that face, as he gives expression to the thought: "Thy will be done." He had fought the battle. He had won the victory. He was now calm and serene.

And while we are contemplating him, there comes a noise, a tumult, and up the valley and the hillside comes the mob with staves and swords and spears and in through the gate of this little garden they come. His disciples are awakened and rushed to his side, gather around him and when they have come up close, this man steps forward. Sir, whom seek ye? "Jesus of Nazareth." "I am he" and they fall back. They were afraid to touch him. One of his disciples, earnest, energetic and impulsive steps forward and drawing his sword, smote off the ear of one of those men. "Put up thy sword" and he touches that ear with the magic of his power and it was made whole. The man that came to take him to crucify him! Again he asks: "Whom seek ye?"

"Jesus of Nazareth."

"I am he!"

They take him, and we follow sadly out of the garden with this procession and up to the hall of judgment. We hear that mockery of a trial. We listen to those false witnesses. We hear that man make his plea in behalf of this individual and ask them to let him release Jesus. We hear the cry that comes up: "Away with him. Crucify him. Crucify him," and it echoes down the streets. It is taken up and carried on.

Morning has come. The people come rushing now. A crowd gathers. We see the washing of the hands of the judge. We hear the declaration: "His blood be upon us and our children." He is led away. They take him down below into one of the halls. They mock him. They spit upon him. They smite him. They push a crown of thorns upon him until the blood trickles down again. They throw a purple robe around him, the insignia of kingly power and then they lead him away outside the gate, out to Golgotha. They nail the cross together. They place him upon it and we hear the crunching of the nails as they go through his hands and feet. We hear the thud of the cross as it drops in the hole dug for it and this man Jesus hangs between heaven and earth and of all of the cruel, agonizing terrible deaths that can be possibly inflicted upon an individual, to hang by your out-stretched arms with nails through your hands and feet until you are dead' is the worst. Think of it for a little bit!

This man, now that has blessed the people; fed them when hungry, healed them when afflicted, stopped their fevers, blessed them in every way, has ministered to them continually, by the people to whom he has ministered, hung upon the cruel cross, and yet in all the excruciating agony of that moment, we hear him as he looks around upon that crowd: "Oh Father, forgive them; they know not what they do."

What kind of man is this? Hatred, despised, sought after to be killed; finally hung upon the cross and in the agonies of death pleads with God to forgive them, they know not what they do. This is the man we are going to talk to you about. This is the man.

He gives up the ghost. He is laid in the tomb and when that spirit takes its flight, the earth reeled and rocked. The sun hid its face in shame. Think of it! But we want to pass over that scene. You all know what followed. The angels came and rolled away the stone from his tomb and the Son of God came forth never to die again. He had won the victory.

I have another scene I want you to notice before we leave this thought. This one is a little brighter I think and yet no more a victory than the one we have passed. This time he takes two of his disciples—you will find that in the 17th chapter of Matthew, arise to fifth verses—and they went their way to the mountain and they climb higher and higher until they stand at the top of the mountain and they admit away from the noise and hum of this world and its cares. In the solitude and the brightness of the sunshine, and I have sometimes thought possibly clear above the clouds. I have been there and I know the stillness and sanctity that comes over you as you stand in that position; and the awful quiet that comes to you after the clouds have shut out the scenes below you and the sun shines bright above you.

Here the Master was transformed. This man Jesus and these disciples saw him not as a man but as a God; the Son of God clothed upon with his power and authority, clothed upon in his brightness, and as they witnessed it, they bowed down to worship him and they said, "Let us build an altar here for all three of these men." These, two that had ministered to him and himself, and suddenly a bright cloud overshadowed them and out of that cloud comes the voice of the Almighty of the Universe; and what did he say? I want you to get it. "This is my beloved Son." Now the next part I wish I could say, friends, with force enough, with power enough to tingle in your ears and ring until it sets your hearts a-throbbing and your very soul afire with the importance of it—"HEAR YE HIM!" That was the declaration. Who said that? Almighty God—the Creator of the Universe. "HEAR YE HIM."

Ah, friends! If we could only comprehend it! If we could grasp it! If we could sense what it means we could easily understand why it was that the Jews recognized the difference between this man's teachings and the teachings of the Scribes! He comes with the sanction of God. He comes with the authority of God. He comes with the power of God. He knows what the consequences will be. He knows what the future will bring. He is able to read the hearts and souls of men. He knows well when he made that declaration just what he was talking about, that many would make a profession of his name but would not know him. They would work iniquity.

I want you to get that thought and see clearly the idea that we want to present, that in the teaching of Jesus Christ, in the presenting of his divine plan, in holding before you the words that he has left which he says we must obey, for in the declaration that he gives us of the gospel of Christ, that he came to do the will of his Father who is in heaven, he has been commanded from on high. He is the only one, and we are told in the Acts of the Apostles, about the 4th chapter, that there is no other name given under heaven whereby we must be saved but the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God. He is the one.

Now it doesn't make any difference whether we have a title before our name or a title after our name, no matter what our opinion may be, we are forced directly home to the thought that those things that he has outlined, that he has laid down, are the things necessary for us to do in order that we may come into divine favor with God and do the will of God; they are the essential things for us to consider regardless of who it may come in conflict with.

Did you ever stop to think for a few moments that this little conflict in the garden with which the man fought with the weakness of the flesh was one of the greatest battles that was ever fought? He must win or the world must suffer. He did win and he gave to the world the power of salvation. He came here with a purpose, and did it ever occur to you that if he had yielded to the weakness of the flesh there, that this man, this Jesus, the Son of God, this man that had raised the dead, could not have gone into the kingdom of heaven? He was under the necessity of performing these duties, doing the will of God, and when we look carefully over the record, it always gives us courage to recognize the thought that this individual, though he was a Son of God, though he had no sin as far as he was concerned that he must answer for, yet he recognized the will of God and set before us an example that ought to make everyone of us stop and think. Or did it ever occur to you that this individual has never asked us (I want you to get it) to do one single thing that he was not willing to do and did not do? Now he has made that clear. He has never required at the hands of the human family one single thing that he did not do himself. He was not willing to do. He obeyed every injunction that God gave. He went into the waters of baptism; He received of the Holy Spirit; He kept the commandments of God. He observed his law in every sense of the word completely all the way through. He has not asked us to do any more than that, has he? Not a thing! He is better than the Son of God. Oh, you do not have to be a Son of God to do that. He has shown you the way. He has shown you the way to stand in your dignity and in the inheritance of the kingdom of God.

you to do this, that, or the other, for you to humble yourselves and walk in the lowly paths of righteousness that God has asked you to walk in, are you better than this Son of God.

An individual to whose name no one can possibly put one iota of sin. Can you say that for yourself? And yet, my friends he recognized the importance of the means that God had given to them, he understood that God required him and his disciples to comply with all of them. He did not leave any of them out—not one. Now I ask you to think of it. Shame on the mortal man that will stand up in the dignity of his might and say, "I don't have to do that. No, I can be saved without this. I can be saved without that. I don't think this is necessary. I don't think that is necessary." Did it ever occur to you, my friends, that when that great day comes and you stand before him in judgment you will probably find yourself standing in the attitude that he said some of them would—"Depart ye workers of iniquity. You never knew me." If you had known him you would not have taken that position. If you did know him and take that position, then you are justly dealt with and justly under condemnation.

Now we present the thought to you and ask you to consider it, as a closing thought; we love a hero. Every one of us loves a hero. The man or woman that does not love a brave, valiant, faithful, sacrificing man or woman, why, my friends they haven't much love, they are too selfish and egotistical to enjoy life—that is all. But we do admire those brave, valiant, faithful individuals; and we go into the army and watch carefully what follows the general that leads to the front and says, "Come on, men. We will go to victory. Follow me." Oh friends; do you ever think of it? You cannot turn that army back. Nothing can stop it when that leader stands before them waving to them to come on; they will go. Ask the old soldiers if that is not true. They will go every time. So will you. You like a good leader, a brave one. Not the one that sits back in the comfortable chair in the shade of the tree out of the bullets' storm and says "Go." That is not the man that will lead you to the front; but when that leader steps out and says, "Come on. Let us go to victory." Oh, it is different, and you will go.

When Jesus Christ came to us and laid down the law of salvation and presented to us the thought of victory, he was willing to take the lead. He led out. He kept the commandments. And he said to the human family: "Come, follow me." He could have sat back on the throne of his Father in the kingdoms of glory and said to the human family, "Go," but he didn't do it. He came down, sacrificed the beauties and the glories and the pleasures of heaven, took upon him the nature of men; suffered all the agonies and the pain that we have to suffer; went through the very jaws of death itself and the grave as we would have to go in order that he might become conqueror and say to mankind, "Come and follow me." He displayed his own plan to the uttermost and demonstrated to the human family he would do what he said he would, and then says, "Come. Follow me."

Now, friends, while we shall be with you, we will plead with you to follow this leader. We are not ashamed of him. He is a glorious leader, a victorious leader. He fought and won the victory. He stands ready to make good his promises. It is for us to follow. We are going to invite you to follow. We are going to ask you to follow, plead with you to follow, not only in theory, not only mentally but we are going to ask you to do it in fact and present to you the truths that he has given from time to time and hold before you this man and his truths as the way of life and salvation and eternal victory.

May God bless you and help you to see it, to hear it and to obey it, is my prayer. Amen.

THE ROUND TABLE.

Is the kingdom referred to in Daniel 2:44 the same as that established by Christ in the New Testament times?

The verse says: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed." ect. The setting up of this kingdom refers to the last days and not to the time of Christ's first coming, though it is generally understood that this last kingdom is identical with the first which was destroyed through wickedness and apostasy.—See verses 28, 45.

Who is my neighbor? Are they only those who do us good, or are they those who live in immediate proximity?

In the parable used by the Lord for the purpose of answering this question it is shown that the kindly disposed Samaritan who befriended the distressed

Jew was neighbor to him though a stranger. Briefly stated then, our neighbors are those who are kindly disposed toward us and who would be willing to help us in time of need. We are neighbors to those to whom we are charitably inclined and willing to aid and bless. Another meaning of the word refers it to those who live near us geographically.

John speaks of the baptism of fire and the Holy Ghost. Are we to understand that fire and the Holy Ghost refer to one and the same thing, or are they separate? Further, is it literal fire which is to destroy the wicked at the time of Christ's coming?

We understand that the baptism of fire is that of the Holy Ghost, being one baptism of the Spirit rather than a distinct one. As to the fire which shall destroy the wicked at Christ's coming the Scriptures point out how such destruction will come, viz., by war, famine, plague, earthquakes, devouring fire, etc. But we also read that "the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel." (1 Thess. 1:8), and Paul further says of the wicked one "The Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." Thus the fire of destruction is not the burning of material elements but the consuming power and glory of God which are destructive of all that is sinful.

Are the patriarchs higher in authority in the church than the apostles?

Saints should get away from the idea that one class of officers are higher than the others. All those holding the high priesthood have equal authority though they may officiate in various offices and have differing duties. Of necessity some must take general oversight while others have charge locally, and some are relieved from all presiding responsibility in order to be free to follow their spiritual work. A late revelation says:

Those who are holding the office of patriarchs are to be enrolled with the high priests, the same as the bishops, who are acting in their office by virtue of their being high priests. These men in their office are an order in the priesthood, the same as the high councils of the church and the stakes and as the bishops who hold as high priests, as the quorum of the twelve, and as the presidency are but orders in the priesthood, there being but two priesthoods; and these are orders in the Melchisedec priesthood. There is no difference in the priesthood, though there may be and is in the office in which the several orders may occupy and act.—Doctrines and Covenants 129:7.

A WORLD CITY PROPOSAL.

On December 5 there was to be held a meeting at the Sorbonne, Paris, in behalf of the creation of an international city, devoted to all forms of human progress. It was thought that ten thousand persons to whom invitations had been sent, including President Poincaré, would attend the meeting. The originator of the idea is Hendrik Christian Andersen, an American sculptor residing in Rome. The American State Department has manifested a keen interest in the idea, and it is understood that an executive order has been placed in the hands of all American ambassadors, directing them to aid Mr. Andersen in every way that seems feasible. Special audiences with the Kaiser and the king of England are being arranged for. Seventy-nine international organizations have signified their support. The probable cost of the World City will be $100,000,000. Possible sites have been studied on the New Jersey coast, the Dutch coast, near The Hague; the Riviera, near Cannes; Teruieren, near Brussels, near Bern, near Paris; the Marmora coast near Constantinople, and the Mediterranean coast near Rome. This project is the expression of the tendency to world unity.—Christian Herald.

CHOOSE YOUR READING CAREFULLY.

Don't trust your reading to something that you can pick up. Have a book of good writings that deals with real topics of knowledge and wisdom. It should be a family law that only the instructive and uplifting things should be read in the home. Reading goes directly into a person's life, making him what it is—empty, frivolous, witless or vain. Of course, one must have some lightness and humor, but these should be the exception. There is nothing that so weakens the mind as this continual joking, the everlasting laugh over trivial things. The true rule is to meditate upon what one has read, but what sort of meditation will one get out of a lot of jokes? Reading that doesn't inspire thought of a serious nature would better be omitted. It would be infinitely better if one would lounge about on the grass and porch and watch the English sparrows than read only what tickles the empty mind.—Ohio State Journal.

"Though Christ a thousand times
In Bethlehem' be born,
If he's not born in thee,
Thy soul is still torloren.
Ahl would thy heart but be
A manger for the birth,
God would once more become
A child upon the earth."

ANGEL VOICES.

Once on Star-lit Bethlehem's plain,
With their flocks in field abiding;
Angel voice in sweet refrain
Bore to shepherds the glad tidings
Of a Savior born to men,
Who had left the world of glory;
And the babe of Bethlehem
Is at Christmas-time our story.
Then too, from his earthly prison
Angels rolled the stone away,
Saying, "He's not here, but risen—
See the place where once he lay."
And at last his mission ended,
Angels waited by the men,
Saying, as the clouds received him,
"Thus it is he'll come again."
Peter too, in prison lying
Chained to soldiers, felt his bands
Drop away, and to his freedom
He was led by angel hands.
But do angels no more visit
And on earth converse with men?
This is what the world has told us—
That they never come again.
But you know that Jesus promised
That before he came to reign,
That the gospel should for witness
To the earth be preached again.
And the angel that John witnessed
Is seen flying in the heavens,
With the everlasting gospel
To all tongues and nations given.
And to us who trust his promise,
God indeed his words fulfill;
And the record of his gospel
Coming from Cumorah's hill—
Fills our hearts today with gladness
That the night has passed away;
And the gospel in its power
As of old is preached today.
Then as once on Bethlehem's plain,
Shepherds heard the angel's voice
Saying, "Peace, good will to men,"
And let all the earth rejoice.
So this Christmas-tide, we glory
With the saints of former days,
In the ancient gospel story
And in God's own changeless ways.
For the heavens again are open,
Angels to the earth descend,
And we greet you by this token:
"Peace, this day, good will to men."

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

It is the heaven, leavening the whole for a short time at least. We cannot get away from it—this Christmas spirit. God sent "peace on earth good will to men;" it is to be always ours, our memento of his day, of his mercy, of his love for all. (Even though so many people do not realize whence cometh their good will, their cheer, their desire for a happy time to all.)

HIS GIFT.

His gift was the joy and the bliss which is unto the humble and lowly christian, a boon and a recompense—for his sufferings—worlds without end. Yes, the message is still ours, the refresh glad memories, to gladden sad hearts, to awaken slumbering senses to feelings of love and reverence, to draw all mankind together by the great spirit of Christmas, the joy of giving, the joy of being remembered. He gave his only Son, and what joy, "worlds without end," this wonderful token of remembrance will mean to us.

"UNTO THE LEAST OF THESE."

Do they really feel "Christmassy," who give not a word or thought to the dear Christ child; he who brought all this glory and light, and made possible such blessedness? They cannot elude the "Christmas spirit."

It is custom of course to give gifts, but the custom originated in all good faith, when those gifts of frankincense and myrrh were presented to the babe in the manger.

He gave to the world a Child. And thus he indicated to whom the day should belong, the Festival of the Holy Child. The wise men came to—a child! The shepherds and the sages came to—a child! In his great Christmas gift to the world God sanctified all childhood. And when Christ carried on the wish of his Father in the saying, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me," he gave to every family the possibility of a service as holy as that which is rendered by the minister who prays before the altar. Christ is present in the child, and all the love and care of fathers and mothers and nurses and teachers may be a ministry to him. The wise men on that first Christmas brought their gifts and offered them to him. Thus on Christmas we bring our gifts to children. Thus we light the candles on our trees and in our windows, remembering the Christmas stars; and we sing our carols, remembering the anthems of the angels. We do it to make children happy. It is the purest and sweetest thing in life.

THE POOR.

And we do these things to make the poor happy too: we should do more to make the poor happy.

The great child gift was made to poor parents. He came to a following of the poor and lowly, who only were looking for him, and his great mission. We commemorate his birth by remembering the poor and reminding them that they, like he, may bring into the world the greatest gifts: Those of patient lives, of cheer and good will, and words and deeds which will draw men to them for the substantial joys of life.

The poor may in truth be rich, for what is poverty endured here (when endowed with the riches of heaven) compared to the poverty of soul which marks the rich in the rounds of narrow lives and which comforts them in the world to come.

We have lost the true spirit of Christmas, who forget to remember some one who has less than we have, either of worldly goods, or the joys of home, or of the comfortable heart, or of the gospel's peace.

TAG DAY.

Saturday the 13th was tag day in Independence, and it did many a one good to see the young people well supplied with the little red tags bombarding autos, carriages and pedestrians—selling their tags for as much as possible, for the benefit of the poor on Christmas.

"Buy a tag," "Don't you need another?"

To see a jolly, fat, "good fellow" briskly walking past with his coat front well decorated with these emblems of good will, added no small amount to one's zeal.

"Our Ward" (wherein lie the homes of most of the Latter Day Saints denomination, surrounding their stone church) made the largest contribution. It is good that we so show our training to all men. Over five hundred dollars were raised toward the good cause, by this means.

Touching accounts of distress and need have come to our ears and we feel that we cannot enjoy Christmas in the care-free way of the child again. Tears of wounded pride, mingled with tears of thankfulness and parent love of the forlorn, the poor and the outcast—confront us.

Listen:—

My Glorification of the Poor Folks' Christmas is not by way of making existing conditions seem right. There are many people who are too poor and whose Christmas is so pathetic that the wonder of it is that they bear it patiently, or that we, knowing of it, allow it to happen again; for it is a simple matter only awaiting the real Christianizing of the human heart for its complete reform and cure. Poverty is curable.

SANTA CLAUS AND CHRISTMAS STOCKINGS.

Saint Nicholas seems to have been the original of our Santa Claus. He was the Bishop of Myra about the year 300, and was very popular because of his good deeds and kindness, especially to children, whose patron saint he is supposed to be. An old legend says that he wished to bestow a gift surreptitiously upon an old nobleman who, though poor, did not want any one to know of his poverty. When the good Bishop reached the house he saw the old gentleman asleep by the fire, so he climbed to the top of the chimney and dropped his gift therein, thinking it would fall on the hearth. But it so happened that the money fell into one of the old gentleman's stockings, which his daughter had hung up to dry, where it was found and used as a dowry for his oldest daughter. And the old story says that Saint Nicholas never failed to put a gift in the stockings which were hung for him thereafter whenever a daughter of the house was to marry. When our Saint Nicholas comes around on Christmas Eve we look for gifts in our stockings.

The date of the Bishop's death, December 6, is observed in many countries, and the closeness of his feast to that of Christmas Day has probably confounded the two celebrations. Santa Claus seems to be the name by which the good spirit of Christmas is most generally known.—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE CHRISTMAS STORY.

Yes, it is true—historically true. Santa Claus did exist, and does exist. He was a bishop, St. Nicholas. And he became the patron saint of little children, maids and men and, although his mysterious gifts came some time after the birth of Christ, the association of them with the birthday of Jesus is a fitting and beautiful one.

The spirit of this kindly saint hovers every day about the children and when his special visit is made once a year he is a very real presence. He is real and he lives in the hearts of millions of children. He is as real as faith and fancy and love and romance can make him. Of what more lasting stuff could he be made?

Santa Claus not been seen? Yes, but he has. There is testimony. Ask most any grown-up and he will tell you of his vision. Ask any tiny girl or boy who looks for him to come and jumps for joy on Christmas Day when all thought is of Santa Claus.

Perhaps you think it was a dream; perhaps—if you are skeptical.—Kansas City Star.

NOTICES.

To the Members of the Twelve and those who are in Charge of Missions; Greeting:—

I have sent out the application blanks to each of the ones who are in charge of the several missions, to the addresses either at home or in the field.

Should any one fail to receive them please let me know at once, and I will forward another batch.

I have sent new blanks upon which to make up the list of recommendations to the Quorum of Twelve, with columns marked for all of the usual information, there is also an extra sheet provided so that each one may retain a copy. We take the liberty of suggesting that each one make out the list on a typewriter.

If all the brethren in charge will please fill these blanks out and send them to my address not later than the 10th of March, 1914, it will be a courtesy very much esteemed and go a long way towards facilitating the work of the Quorums.

Trusting to have your co-operation,

Very truly,

THE TWO BARGAIN MONTHS HAVE COME.

Please understand that the ENSIGN is to be given to non members only during the months of November and December at half price, one whole year for fifty cents. Please do not understand that this means no subscribers or new subscribers. It simply means non members, whether they be old or new subscribers. We have tried to make this plain heretofore, but as plain as this, but some are determined to interpret it differently.

Please understand that this is not good outside the United States possessions, and that the object of this offer is for missionary purposes, and not for the purpose of a member getting the paper at half price by transferring it to one of the family who does not happen to belong to the church. We do not consider such a transfer strictly honest in the light of the object of this offer.

Those who wish to take advantage of this offer and send to some who do not belong to the church should write to the parties they are to send the paper to or I tell them they have paid for it, so they will not think it is a scheme to get them into debt, and that they may know why they are getting it. Request them to read it.

When these subscriptions are sent at half price, please explain to us that they are for non members, because if we do not know we will credit them for but six months for the fifty cents.

These subscriptions will be discontinued as soon as the time runs out. A non member can subscribe for himself or another may subscribe for him, but in either case we should be advised that it is for a non member, so that proper credit may be given.

This offer is not good after December 31.
